A STORY OF 1812.
By RICHARD A. GREENE.
ONE OF THE FINEST PRODUCTIONS EVER SEEN IN THE PROVINCES
Absolutely Everything Carried. New and Original Plant of Printing by John Waddington, Ltd., Leeds. Incidental Music by H. Henderson, Mus.Bac. Electrical Effects by J. C. Robertson and Co., Glasgow. Specially-Designed Costumes by Hyman and Sons. Wigs by Gustave. Scenery by Walter P. Warren and Archibald Middlemass.

"Carados" in Referee' March 31st, writes:—

The best Napoleonic drama I have seen in many years! Thus I am tempted to speak of Mr. Richard A. Greene's four-act play, "The Angel of Unrest." It is vigorously written. The serious interest, which is keen, is relieved by occasional but never too obtrusive humour, and there is more than one of the characters you are compelled to love as well as to admire before the end is reached. "The Angel of Unrest" was capitally played by a strong company, under the direction of Messrs. Alec Flood and Aubrey Fitzmaurice. Mr. Flood made a highly satisfactory representative of the "Restless Angel" who overan Europe. The drama is well staged, The pretty pine forest set of the last act called forth tokens of warm approval.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

A MEMORABLE NIGHT!
REVIVAL OF DRAMA IN THE WEST END.
ENTHUSIASTIC SCENES. CALLS AND RECALLS.
Four Calls after Each of First Three Acts, Culminating at the Final Curtain in a Scene of Enthusiasm Rarely Witnessed in a Theatre.
Players, Management, and Author Called and Recalled.
The Vast Audience Remained in the Theatre for Fully Fifteen Minutes after the Final Curtain Giving Vent to their Enthusiasm.

OPINIONS OF THE LONDON PRESS.

The Times, April 1, 1907 :—
The New Lyceum was re-opened on Saturday night with a "stirring, romantic play," "Her Love Against the World." The official adjectives are not ill-chosen. Mr. Walter Howard's play is likely to prove as popular, stirring, and romantic in London as has been the case, we understand, in the Midlands. . . . The play is a sound, healthy piece of work.

Daily Telegraph, April 1, 1907 :—
Does melodrama still live, or is it to be counted among the lost arts? Ten or fifteen years ago we all know what the answer would have been; one had only to point to the Adelphi to prove that there, at any rate, melodrama flourished exceedingly. But, following close upon the tragic death of William Terriss, came a change of conditions. Little by little, so far as the West End was concerned, that particular form of entertainment went on steadily disappearing, until at length it practically reached the vanishing point. With the re-opening of the Lyceum on Saturday night, the question once more surges to the surface, and if the results of one particular performance may be accepted as conclusive evidence, melodrama is not only alive, but has never been in a more vigorous or robust state of health. It was, indeed, as if the old days had come again. The huge house was packed to the ceiling. . . . The story is of so strenuous a description that it suffices by itself to hold the spectators' attention from start to finish, and in this way to ensure the complete success of the evening. On the final fall of the curtain there were loud calls for all concerned, and hearty congratulations alike for author and for managers.

The Morning Post, April 1, 1907 :—
The huge theatre was crowded. "Her Love Against the World," a popular play if ever there was one, will be a popular success.

The Standard, April 1, 1907 :—
Struck at once a note of joyousness . . . The stage pictures of the new piece are handsome and striking . . . its language, which is notably simple and unaffected. . . . The great audience revelled in the excitement of the piece.

The Globe, April 1, 1907 :—
It was good on Saturday night to find the Lyceum returned to its old allegiance, and good to see an audience which packed the now handsome theatre in all its specious seats following with tense interest, and sometimes with overwrought feelings, that found expression in ways not familiar in the West End, a drama of the right-down kind. The author, Mr. Walter Howard, calls it a romantic play, and no one will take exception to the label, but it has all that breadth of treatment which we have been in the habit of describing as melodrama. The term need not be used in an invidious sense, and it is certainly not so applied in the present case. "Her Love Against the World" is an excellent play; it was received on Saturday night with such a display of enthusiasm as is rarely witnessed at a West End theatre, and Messrs. H. R. Smith and Ernest Carpenter are to be congratulated on the overwhelming success of their initial effort.

The Tribune, April 1, 1907 :—
An immense audience on Saturday gave a hearty welcome to play and players.

The Daily Mail, April 1, 1907 :—
It was an enthusiastic house that welcomed the re-opening of the Lyceum on Saturday evening. . . . The opening piece, a strong drama, from the pen of Mr. Walter Howard, entitled "Her Love Against the World." The cast is good, the scenery excellent, and the story one of absorbing interest . . . the production a success.

The Daily Mirror, April 1, 1907 :—
The new management should see that they have their "house full" boards ready; they are likely to be wanted for many a night to come. Mr. Walter Howard, the author, was called before the curtain at the end.

The Daily Chronicle, April 1, 1907 :—
Somehow or other, out of the everywhere into Wellington-street there had crowded a huge audience such as might have trooped straight out of the old Adelphi. . . . Every curtain went down before a perfect tumult of sympathy. Mr. H. R. Smith and Mr. Ernest Carpenter, the two gentlemen responsible for the venture, came forward at the end, in response to a vigorous call, and accepted their triumph with an air of undisguised pride. There is no possible doubt that for a wholesome, exciting, and entertaining melodrama one might have to go some distance to beat "Her Love Against the World."

The Daily Express, April 1, 1907 :—
Mr. Howard's drama was described on the programme as "a stirring romantic play." "Her Love Against the World" is certainly stirring . . . the play is decidedly romantic. The Lyceum was crowded on Saturday night, and "Her Love Against the World" was received with unbounded enthusiasm, which was really deserved.

The Observer, March 31, 1907 :—

The Referee, March 31, 1907 :—
The new play is military and romantic, too, with abundant action, deeds of gallantry and daring, a dashing, devil-may-care hero, and a heroine sweet and lovable to the very tips of her fingers. The audience received the piece throughout with great favour.

Sunday Times, March 31, 1907 :—
To predict an enormous success is to be prophetic without indulgence in speculation.—J. T. Grein.

The People, March 31, 1907 :—
Teeming with strong and enthralling incidents. At curtain-fall nothing but pleasant congratulations.

News of the World, March 31, 1907 :—
Enthusiastic Scenes at Lyceum's Re-opening.
In spite of the exodus from town for the Easter holidays, few vacant seats were anywhere to be seen in any part of the theatre, vast as it is, and if the enthusiasm of the evening formed any criterion of what is in store, the famous playhouse is destined to achieve popularity under the new régime. "Her Love Against the World," a romantic play by Mr. Walter Howard, which has found high favour in the provinces, constituted Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's first production, and there need be no hesitation in saying that it responds in no uncertain way to the popular idea of healthy and stirring melodrama. The theatre rang with applause at every curtain. The audience could not have been more enthusiastic.

The Star, April 2, 1907 :—
Achieves its purpose of maintaining the audience's excited attention from beginning to end, and the results of the production? Such applause of virtue, such hissing of villainy as rarely gratify the ear in this days of universal cynicism. We laughed, we applauded, we hissed, we gave "Her Love Against the World" no less than its due, and "we" numbered some thousands, packing the house from gallery to stalls.

Daily News, April 2, 1907 :—
The piece was enthusiastically applauded. "Her Love Against the World" should fill the Lyceum for some time to come.

Daily Express (second notice), April 2 :—
It is estimated that there was more applause at the matinée and evening performances of "Her Love Against the World," at the Lyceum Theatre, yesterday than has been heard in a West End theatre since the days of Irving.

Extract from leading article on Revival of Drama at the West End, in Daily Express, April 2 :—
Melodrama is not moribund. "Her Love Against the World," which has achieved a remarkable success at that home of sub-classical melodrama, the Lyceum Theatre, is a sign of the times.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, is, as usual, a happy conmbination of record, almanac, and literary symposium. The last-mentioned aspect is one that most commends the work to the lay reader. The literary contributions are signed by well-known artists who have contributed personal experiences of remembered incidents, and whose portraits adorn the pages. A touch of pathos is lent to an otherwise cheery publication by the inclusion of stage and music-hall favourites who died last year, one of whom was Mr. J. L. Toole.—Financier and Bullionist., Feb. 6.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for the current year, besides having all the usual valuable features which make the work so necessary for reference, has, for a special feature, a series of short articles, stories, or sketches by prominent members of the dramatic and musical profession, a well-executed portrait of each writer accompanying the text. The obituary for last year—unfortunately a heavy one—is given in a series of photograph likenesses of those departed. The full-page portrait of Mr. J. L. Toole is, indeed, worth more than the humble shilling at which the Annual is sold. The monthly calendar is, as usual, a storehouse of interesting facts connected with the stage.—Weekly Times and Echo.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Taming of the Shrew was played on Monday to a house crowded in every part; Mr. Oscar Asche gave a splendidly characteristic interpretation of Petruchio; and Miss Lily Brayton was a magnificent Katharina. The company all round is exceptionally strong in talent, and the staging and scenery are perfect. On Tuesday Mr. Asche appeared as Othello, with Miss Brayton as Desdemona.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Fred Ginnett, with the assistance of the wonderfully well-trained mare Black Bess and a company, gives a splendid presentation of Dick Turpin's Ride to York. Ryan and Hall show remarkable acrobatic skill as well as a decided talent for comedy; the Silvertone Quartette sing beautifully; Martine and Son provide a thoroughly interesting illustrated vocal turn; Mr. Albert Windsor, a local artist of high reputation, is received with exceptional heartiness; and among the other clever performers may be mentioned Onda and Artell, very smart gymnasts; Miss Queenie Seymour, a graceful comedienne; and Miss Madge Allan, a skilful singer and dancer.

ABERTILLERY. — Theatre Metropole. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—The attraction for this week is A Woman's Past, as successfully represented by Messrs. Warden and Sandford's company. Miss Maisie Hanbury wins golden opinions as Bessie; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves as David Heath and Mr. Charles V. Sandford as Frank Dellanoy give excellent representations of their characters. Mr. Hamilton Warden as Clement Harper and Miss Phyllis Moncton as Kate make the most of the comic element in the piece.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—On Monday Mr. Harry Foxwell's company opened to a packed house with A Broken Heart. Mr. Henry Wolston gave a clever portrayal of John Barnard; Mr. Henry Earlesmere was a success as Stephen; Mr. Will Lindsay made a good Tony Tibbets; Mr. Charles Vivian an effective Gash Gills; the Rev. W. Staunton was well played by Mr. Roy Gordon; and Miss Lillian Herries gave a good rendering of Mary Barnard.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker.—A smart bill is provided here this week. Miss May Moore Duprez is a host in herself; Muir and Bartlett present an amusing piece; Donald Keir and Mabel Kempton are duly appreciated in their vocal numbers; Miss Flo Wood is well received; Farrell and Miller give a droll turn; and the Rialdasos are particularly clever.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Saunes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Arthur Bourchier's company is here in Mr. Alfred Sutro's satirical play The Walls of Jericho. Mr. A. E. Anson's fine conception of Jack Frobisher is much appreciated; and in Miss Gladys Mason (who is an actress of considerable ability and charm) is found an excellent exponent of Lady Alethea Frobisher. Mr. George Bradram as the rough-hewn millionaire is capital; Mr. Cyril Baleine's Marquis is one of the humorous features of the play; and Mr. A. Tyrer's Dallas is ably presented. Miss Nora Wynne, Miss Muriel Mason, and Miss Marguerite Cellier also distinguish themselves.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The Easter bill at the Theatre Royal is melodrama, the title of the piece No Wedding Bells for Her, and the company engaged is the Frank Bateman Dramatic Combination. The leading rôles are ably sustained by Miss Lizzie Montague as Lola Delaspierre, an actress; Miss Dora Pass, as her rival; Miss Bessie Franks as a smart soubrette; and the Misses Ellen Owen, Madge Grey, and Pattie Albery in less important female parts. As a clergyman-author, Mr. Stuart Lomath is vigorous and convincing; Mr. Percy is a smart detective; Mr. F. Garton is good as the wronged husband of the gay actress; as also is Mr. Chas. Liddon as an accomplice in crime of the false-hearted Lola; able impersonations are given to the minor parts by Messrs. P. Beresford, Geo. Herbert, Will Skelton, and Fred Vaughan.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Holiday crowds filled the Hippodrome on Monday. Harry Lee opens with a well-rendered song; Little Tim evokes much mirth with his song and legmania; Baker and Lindsay in a vocal comedy act are very good; Gilroy and Gross, old favourites, are smart singers, patterers, and dancers; Jtoyne, the German military athlete, gives a splendid exhibition of strength and daring; the Czar's Royal Russian Troupe of dancers present a series of vigorous dances and evolutions to robust music and tambourine accompaniment; Henry Carlton and company appear in the popular sketch, The Window-Cleaner, causing much laughter; the Sisters Petram present a pretty and entertaining marionette show; the Yiulian Troupe of acrobats give a capital display, and are a pronounced success; the Jollions give evidence of considerable vocal ability in a pretty duet; a comic series of bioscope pictures concludes.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. A. Wordsworth.—No better holiday attraction could have been provided here than Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding. An excellent performance is given by Mr. Ernest Owttrim as Howard Wilson; Mr. Guy Hastings is good as Robert Curtis; Toto finds an able exponent in Mr. C. H. Hughes; the character-part of Peter Schwartz is in the experienced hands of Mr. Cyril Melton; as the Rev. Dr. Lanceford Mr. Arthur Law Raynor brings into prominence a small part; Miss Katherine Clarke wins sympathy as Mabel Wilson; Miss Leah Marlborough is effective as Cora Williams; Bridget finds an efficient representative in Miss Julie Temple; and Jessie is played by Miss Marie Wilson in a natural and easy manner. The children's scene is a special feature of the piece.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—Crowded houses have been attracted by the Eastertide programme here, headed by Herr Addison's cleverly-trained fox terriers. Lauri Wylie, with his "mimicking-mannikins," provides an excellent turn; Mr. John Henry, basso, is accorded well-deserved applause; a pleasing item is the vocal speciality of Carr and Rose; Mr. Clayton's pictures include an interesting series depicting this year's Grand National; and other turns are contributed by the Kimberley Boys, the Two Walonells, and Hector and Sultan.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tomlinson's company is here this week with Secrets ——, Mr. Reggie Brown is in high favour, his rendering of Lieut. Herbert Markham being admirable; the Hon. Cecil Cholmondeley is capitally portrayed by Mr. Victor T. Raymon; Mr. Wilton Richards as Nouredin Ali is responsible for some fine acting; Ibrahim Al Murad finds a clever exponent in Mr. John E. Tomlinson; Mr. Herbert Woodin as Peter Wilkins, and Miss Madge Palmer as Winnie Wilkins, are smart in their comedy scenes; and with Mr. Will Bird as Breezy Bill, tickle the risible faculties of the audience at every opportunity. Mr. Lal Abdul Cottman gives an able impersonation of Kara Mesrour; and Mr. H. C. Burt plays well as Khalil. Miss Lizzie Palmer as Ismalia is naturally sympathetic; while her rendering of the more spirited lines is admirable; and Miss Nellie Navarro as Zulieka acquits herself well. The Tivoli Quartette of Continental dancers give a charming exposition of smart dancing.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company, Under the Russian Flag, is here. He himself as Michael Romanoff has a part that suits him excellently, and Ivan Romanoff has a good exponent in Mr. Charles Stafford. Mr. Sydney Arnold makes a capital Captain Demetrius, and Miss Marie Rayner in the rôle of Luka Marischla is quite successful.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company in Uncle Tom's Cabin is here this week. Mr. J. Carr in the rôle of Uncle Tom gives an excellent portrayal; Mr. Charles Harrington is a capital St. Clair; and Miss Holly Haselwood an impressive little Eva. Specialities are introduced by Sylvia Stella, plantation song and dancer; Row and Holden, cake-walk; W. H. Nott, tenor; &c.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar Laban.—Here are the Silbons, with an elaborate vaudville circus, a clever show; Amuret, a smart musical athlete; the Zampas, who are pleasing duettists and dancers; Katie Marsh, an entertaining vocalist and dancer; Charlie Gardner, an eccentric comedian; the Morrisons, in a speciality act; and Cole and Rags, amusing and skilful jugglers.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Easterside is considered the height of the Bath season, and with such a strong attraction as the delightful comedy, Peter's Mother, good audiences have been the rule. Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's newly-formed South company commenced its tour here on Monday. Miss Lilias Earle, who has undertaken many leading parts under the Hutchison management, adds considerably to her laurels by her natural rendering of the character of Lady Mary Crewys; Mr. Henry Renouf is also well placed as John Crewys; Peter Crewys could hardly be better portrayed than it is by Mr. E. F. Meads, the selfishness and conceit of the soldier youth being cleverly suggested; Mr. E. H. Ruston depicts the hard side of Sir Timothy Crewys's disposition, his acting being sound and forcible; Dr. Blundell is handled by Mr. A. Kaye with quiet skill, and this gentleman also undertakes the duties of stage-management; Canon Birch is humorously portrayed by Mr. Maitland Dicker; Miss Hilda Sims displays ability of a high order as Sarah; two ladies who create no little amusement are Miss Evelyn Shelley and Miss Margaret Bush as Lady Belstone and Miss Georgina Crewys; Miss Mildred Cottell is seen in the small part of Mrs. Hewell, but in the farce, Chalk and Cheese, which precedes the chief piece, she has a better chance of exhibiting her acknowledged talents as Sybil Raymond, in which Mr. A. F. Kaye (Walter Raymond) and Miss Hilda Sims (Perkins) also add successfully to the enjoyment of a charming evening's performance. Mr. G. W. Millington is the business-manager for the tour.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The fine weather at Easter did not deter large crowds attending this popular resort. A pretty and entertaining speciality is given by Simosa San, with her clever juggling and performing pigeons; Thornbury is once again welcomed locally in his lightning smoke-picture and ventriloquial act; two laughable interludes are introduced, one, The Picture, by the Maitland Trio, and the other, The Tree of Truth, by Harry Braham and company, each of which is well received by the audience; Otto and Olga present their mock opera turn, in which mirth and music are smartly combined; Violet Nunn scores by one of her excellent renderings of "Mr. Brown, I'm out"; and Gladys Witton, a young vocalist ,opens the bill, which concludes, as usual, with a series of films by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

Sydney Gardens.—At Easter Monday fête, Mr. T. R. Gannon, the Bristol agent, for the eighth successive time provided the attractions, his chief draw being Don Pedro, the sensational high-wire artist. The summer-like weather was all in favour of the entertainment.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The above place of amusement was crowded on Monday night, when the first of six evening performances of The Gay Parisienne was given. The piece was presented by Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company, who thoroughly delighted, interested, and amused the audience. The comedy is well mounted, and new songs are introduced. Mr. Will Harman as Honeycombe created much hilarity; as also did Mr. Squire Day as the Major. Miss Lilian Talbot had an excellent reception, being excellently well suited in the part of Julie Bon-Bon; Miss Nance O'Neill gave a delightful portrayal of Norah; Mr. Moore made a good Tom; Mr. Clifford Suyler as the French dandy was particularly clever; and Miss Holford Beringer's interpretation of the part of Mrs. Honeycombe, and Miss Madge Soutter's presentation, were alike successful. In the second act, a whistling medley, by Mr. Cecil Lawrence, proved an acceptable item. The smaller parts all received careful attention.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—During the week the Moody-Manners Opera Company have been continuing a highly-successful return visit. On Easter Monday The Bohemian Girl was presented, with Mr. George Neilson as Devilshoof, Mr. Seth Hughes as Thaddeus, Mr. Marshall Vincent as Count Arnheim, Miss Alice Boaden as Arline, and Miss Marion Broom as Queen of the Gipsies. On Wednesday Carmen was played, with Mlle. Zelie de Lussan in the title-rôle; and the week's productions have also included The Daughter of the Regiment, Lohengrin, The Lily of Killarney, Cavalleria Rusticana, I' Pagliacci, and Maritana. The orchestral arrangements are under the direction of Mr. Harrison Frewin, and the costumes and staging are irreproachable. Large and fashionable audiences have ruled during the engagement.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Harry Rogers and his able company, in a dramatic episode, entitled Told in a Flat, worthily head a capital company, and have made a decided hit. Selby and Myers, in their clever and attractive variety entertainment, are well received; and Miss Minnie Cunningham, Irish comedienne, is repeating previous triumphs here. Lord, Murray, and Lord, club manipulators, boxers, &c., are highly popular; and the appearances also includes the Sisters Aindow, vicalists and instrumentalists; La Belle Sylvia, vocalist and acrobatic dancer; Mr. Bob Hamilton, comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Huntley.—This popular place of amusement opened on Easter Monday evening to a very large audience, who witnessed "Colin's Excursions" by cinématograph, supported by a splendid variety company. The performance goes with a merry and exceedingly interesting run, the periodical displays of pictures being very fine and realistic. Miss Violet Reeve's vocal efforts are well received; Miss Edna Reeve and company, in the dramatic sketch, Her Shattered Idol, win warm applause; Soros, the mystifier, gives a very pleasing entertainment; whilst endless laughter is occasioned by "Wrangling the Wrangler." Some very catchy humorous songs are sung by Mr. Fred Lindo.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are paying a welcome return visit here this week, and their appearance in new and old plays has given great delight to their numerous admirers. On Monday night The Melcombe Marriage drew a crowded house. Mr. Kendal's Lord Melcombe is a perfect piece of acting; and Mrs. Kendal portrays Judith Carlusan as naturally as it is possible. Philip Carlusan, the lawyer, has an admirable exponent in Mr. W. M. Rutherford; and Mr. Bassett Roe carefully and cleverly enacts the villain, Dembowski. Mrs. Tapping as Lady Savourin, Miss Dora Fellowes as Mrs. Pemberton, and Miss Marie Lohr as Mrs. Carlusan also play their parts with excellent emphasis and discretion. A Tight Corner, The Elder Miss Blossom, and The Ironmaster also find a place in the week's programme.

Grand Theatre. — Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Sergenson has shown much wisdom in booking for his Easter attraction The Lady Dandies as presented by Mr. George Edwardes's very able company. This very popular comedy opera was played here as recently as last month by the same company to crowded houses, and the result is the same; this visit is even more satisfactory. Mr. Eric Thorne as St. Amour is again the chief favourite, although every member of the company meets with the most cordial reception. Messrs. Lennox Pawle, Robert Hale, Willie Ward, jun., Jack Cannot, W. Talleur Andrews, Harold Thorley, George Curzon, and Misses Anna Hickisch, Dora Langham, and Deborah Volar also enjoy great popularity.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The place of honour in this week's bill is occupied by Mr. Matthew Brodie and company in a dramatic sketch entitled The Drummer of the 76th, the title-rôle being cleverly played by Miss Dorothea Vivian and Mr. Brodie contributing a remarkably fine portrayal of Napoleon. Other popular turns are supplied by Ray Wallace, the well-known mimic; Beatrice Willey, a sweet singer; Recco, an amusing and clever acrobat; Joe Reichen, with his wonderful dogs; Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian; Whit Cunliffe, the popular comedian; and the Marvellous Craggs, in an acrobatic sketch. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope winds up a capital programme.

Hippodrome. — Lessees, Messrs. Whitehead and Ramsden; Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan. — Mr. Duignan has provided a strong and varied programme for the Easter holiday-makers, and his enterprise has won well-deserved success. Margaret Ismay, with her peerless white coons, supplies a pleasing and novel turn; Fred Oliver is a racy patterer; the Gentrys are amusing comedians and acrobats; the Three Bozdellias curry favour as classical gymnasts; Will Dalton is a good comedian; Jake Euston proves his versatility as actor-vocalist and as sand dancer; and Mons. Slippere, the blind pianist, is warmly applauded for his efforts as a baritone vocalist.

Winter Gardens Pavilion. — General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—A novel attraction is provided here for the Easter holidays in the shape of an original grand ballet tableau entitled Holland, in Song and Picture, produced under the direction of Herr Oscar Van Coppee, in which are given exhibitions of the pleasures of fair time in Zeeland, hand-spinning in Friesland, orphans going to church in South Holland, and the dance of the wooden shoon. Twenty Dutch ladies take part in the production, and their tuneful singing is a special feature. Other artists who find a place in the programme are the Three Rainats, acrobats; Siems, a wonderful French conjurer, who is described as the "king of cards and coins"; Francino Ollom, xylophonist, and Les Fleurs d'Orange, in their grand transformation scenes.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The Eastertide attraction has been supplied by Mr. Wentworth Croke, who has given to the habitués of the Royal a special treat in presenting My Sweetheart, with the famous comedienne, Miss Minnie Palmer, in her inimitable impersonation of Tina. Opening to a crowded house, the charming comedienne was accorded a brilliant reception; Mr. Robert H. Howard as Tony gave a fine rendition of a most popular part; the Dr. Oliver of Mr. Gilbert Heathfield was a finished and artistic portrayal; Mr. Leslie Tyler as Harold Bartlett found much favour; and the Dudley Harcourt of Mr. Alfred Ibberson created much amusement. The other parts were ably rendered by Mr. Fred W. Leonard, Mr. Alfred May, and the Misses Mildred Sylvester, H. E. Russell, and Elsie Forster.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee, Mr. G. E. Good.—The company here includes the Carneys, comedians; Dolly Brough, juvenile artist; Jennie Evans, serio; the Nelson and Thomas Combination, in the sketch, A Fight for a Fiver; and the Bioscope, all of which have met with a good reception.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Tudor.—Will Hebden and company, in the sketch, Teddy Smiler the Sportsman, has formed the chief item of the programme, and has proved a success. Others who have appeared include Halsey and Bowers, comedians; Lillie Vane, comedienne; Storey and Verne, patter comedians; and Florrie Vane, serio.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—The attraction for the Easter holidays is provided by Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ida Blanche and company in What the Butler Saw, a large and appreciative house assembling on Monday. As Pink, the butler, Mr. Rignold keeps the house in a continual roar of laughter with his mirth-provoking mannerisms and funny dialogue; Miss Ada Blanche gives a clever and spirited impersonation of the fascinating Mrs. Barrington; while as Jack Barrington Mr. Charles Fawcett acquits himself with distinct success, and contributes largely to the success of the piece; Mr. Louis Lingard gives a natural and polished performance as Sir Charles Foden; Mr. Victor Widdicombe is good as the peppery General Dunlop; Mr. H. H. Rignold depicts the Jew Abraham Welnstein with excellent effect; and other creditable performances come from Mr. Leo St. Clair, Mr. Alec Alves, Mr. Roy Byford, Mr. George Ascott, Miss Julie St. George, Miss Clara Russell, Miss Dorothy Hart, Miss Vera O. Connell, Miss Ella Terriss, and Miss Dorothy Garth.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—An exceptionally good company is appearing here, and an attractive programme is submitted by the Alexandroff Troupe of Russian vocalists and expert dancers. Ruby Ashton, comedienne and dancer; Tom Shenton, comedian and dancer; Avon and Crest, speciality comedy artists; Ben Albert, comedian; Bennett and Martell, in their nautical scena, The Lost Mariners; Fred Land, eccentric comedian; The Elvio Comedy Trio, in their knock-about absurdity, Those Troublesome Slaveys; Cyrus Dare, impersonator of little children; Datas, the marvellous man of memory; Bertie Wright, comedian; and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. De Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball. — A splendid holiday programme is put before the patrons of this house. Florrie Gallimore is a great success in her songs, including her latest song, "On the Isle of Anglesea." The Herald Comedy Four are clever in an Indian song-scena, introducing some neat dancing. As a whistler and raconteur Harry Taft at once finds favour; Dot Hardy is a popular comedienne, and causes much laughter with her songs; Constance Mori is a successful comedienne and clever dancer; Josie Deliane is much appreciated for her dancing; Kloof and Ramsay are clever in their burlesque musical act; Tom Lowen is laughable in his songs and patter; the Hippodrome pictures, as usual, conclude.

BOSTON.—The Palace.—Manager and Lessee, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—The Easter attraction here is the musical extravaganza Crusoe, the Sailor, in which appear the following talented artists:—Miss Gertie Wasley, chic comedienne; Willie Fyffe, comedian; the Sisters Tremayne, duettists and speciality dancers; the Two Dianias, knockabouts and tumblers; and the famous Revell Troupe in their absurdity Mischief.

Shodfriars Hall.—Lessee and Manager, Mrs. B. Storr.—Mr. Walter Melville's play, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, is presented here by Miss Inez Howard's company under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattel, and is drawing crowded houses.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, under the direction of Mr. M V. Leveaux, opened on Monday with The Morals of Marcus. A great success was achieved, the play going with a swing from start to finish. As Sir Marcus Mr. H. Nye Chart gave a strong reading of the part, especially in the second act, at the end of which he and Miss Hilda Antony, who played Carlotta, were the objects of repeated sounds of applause. To Mrs. H. Nye Chart great praise is due for her convincing portrayal of the part of Judith Mainwaring. Among those in a strong cast special mention must be made of Miss Eleanor Gilbert, Miss Gladys Purnell, Miss Mary Weigall, Miss Conyers Radcliffe, Mr. David Domville, and Mr. Cecil Brooking.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Hart's own company, in a reproduction of the popular musical comedy San Toy has proved a delightful attraction for the holiday crowds here. It is beautifully staged; and Miss Gertrude Gilliam is very charming and vivacious in the title-rôle. Mr. Horace Mills as the Chinaman Li is quaint and immensely diverting; the excellent cast includes Mr. Alfred Clark as the Emperor, Mr. Colin Coop as Yen How, Mr. Edmund Sherras as Bobby Preston, Mr. J. W. Manning as Sir Bingo, Miss Hebe Bliss as Chu San, and Miss Sylvia May as Poppy, and, needless to say, that with such a combination, the merriment is continuous, and the tuneful numbers are delightfully rendered. Mr. Harry Rushworth is the able conductor.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The Great Awakening holds the boards here, providing a veritable feast in the way of exciting incidents, and Lola Selby, the desperate adventuress, affords Miss Maud Hildyard fine scope. She is intensely dramatic and emotional, and the part is filled with consummate skill. James Selby has a vigorous exponent in Mr. A. C. Hardie; and the unscrupulous Richard Wilson is effectively played by Mr. George Child. Mr. Stephen Langton's Jack Merton is an able and convincing performance; and Mr. Gordon McLeod is distinctly good as Captain Harry Lambert. Miss Doris Digby wins sympathy as the much-persecuted Molly Merton; the part of Guy Rogan (Lola's accomplice in crime) fits Mr. J. McBride well; Mr. Willie Scott as Billy Brass and Miss Lilla Nordon as Selina Worts supply the capital comedy element, and the piece is effectively staged.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—In his sketch The Master Musician Van Biene, the accomplished violoncellist, is meeting with much success here this week. His solos are much applauded, and Miss Lena Burnleigh supports him well as Jennie, a lodging-house slavey. Chas. Vincent, comedian, submits an acceptable comic ditty; Miss Gracie Moore's well-rendered song is prettily illustrated; Ed. E. Ford, "the Australian sundowner," is a clever and entertaining facial expert; a delightful entertainment by Marzella's wonderfully-trained birds wins unstinted applause; Sydney James and company of strolling players are very entertaining; a turn by Dusty Rhodes is rich in comedy; Lily Tiso is a charming comedienne; Carney and Armstrong are a pair of quaint and diverting comedians, and there are some fine pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—The Harmony Four are responsible for much mirth and good vocalism here this week; and Flo Chevalier also contributes vocally with success. In their sketch The Silly Servant Tom Kelso and company are immensely funny; Bert Danson's turn is noticeable for smart "patter"; the Lombarts are clever acrobats and hand-balancers; Max Duffex displays genuine originality and cleverness as a "musical contortionist"; Arthur Goodman, tramp juggler, is distinctly funny; T. C. Jaques is a good comedian; and Ormonde Penstone, who is aided by his Chinatown belle, "Tsaoungo," is a clever manipulator of billiard balls, and a mystifying magician.

Al Fresco Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. B. Papplewell, W. S. Bentley, and Matt Kilduff.—With a smart and attractive company of entertainers, the third season was entered upon on Saturday under the most favourable and promising conditions. The Pavilion has been much improved and enlarged.

St. George's Hall.—Manager, Mr. S. Carter.—The New Century Animated Pictures Company again furnishes the Eastertide attraction here.

BRIDLINGTON.—Royal Victoria Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. Norman V. Norman's excellent company is appearing here this week in a round of plays. On Monday, in Robin Hood, Mr. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson were enthusiastically received. David Garrick, The Adventures of Lady Ursula, and Nell Gwynne are also in the répertoire.

Royal Prince's Parade.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The Municipal Orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Joseph Sainton, has been a great attraction during the Easter holidays.

New Spa and Gardens.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—Herr Simon Wurm's famous Viennese Band is a great attraction at this favourite seaside resort.

BRIGHTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—The Girl Behind the Counter was performed here for the first time in Brighton on Monday, and met with a very enthusiastic reception. Miss Nora Brocklebank made a graceful and charming Winnie Willoughby, and sang with artistic finish; Mr. Arthur Cartwright gave an admirable impersonation of Charles Chetwyn, and also displayed pleasing vocalisation; Mr. Ellis Holland submitted a clever character-study as the amorous General Willoughby, and his drolleries and dry humour kept the house rippling with laughter; Mr. A. M. Moore was a very amusing waiter; Mr. William Amery was a diverting Joseph; Mr. Howard Cridland gave a capital enactment of the frivolous Viscount Gushington; M. Jules Charmettes was well suited as the alert M. Duval; Miss Olivia Eltone was a winsome Millie Mostyn; Mr. Frederick Park added to the fun as Adolphus Dodds; and very vivacious acting marked Miss Doris Langdon's Ninette and Miss Rose Helene's Susie. The remaining characters were satisfactorily sustained, and the chorus and augmented orchestra were very effective under the direction of Mr. George M. Saker.

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company opened here on Monday with The Sin of Her Childhood. Mr. Frank Liston gave an excellent impersonation of the hero, Captain John Thornton; and Miss Stanley Burt portrayed the heroine, Mary Haysel, in charming style. Mr. Wilson Summers was powerfully effective as the villainous Stephen Haysel, alias Dr. Henry Grainger; Miss Clara Santley submitted a capital character study as the bibulous Maria Haysel; Mr. James Duncan as the Rev. Alan Grey, and Mr. Richard Dick as the butler, James, merit praise; and the light comedy element was presented in entertaining style by Mr. Hugh Brady as Barney O'Reilly and Miss Nellie Hook as Eliza Muggins.

Alhambra.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. The Abdullah Arabs, wonderful pyramid artists and whirlwind acrobats, evoke the utmost enthusiasm; La Pia submits a new and charming spectacular statuary production, with beautiful limelight effects on fountains of water; Daisy James, "the original Gibson Girl," is warmly applauded for her songs; Helen Martin, a highly artistic vocalist, is a prime favourite; the Seven Wulfrunas show great skill as acrobats in Fun in a Café; the Raies, expert dancers, merit warm praise; Pyke, Tholl, and Taylor, American comedy artists, are capital singers and dancers; Fred Lincoln is a humorous comedian; Lambert and Glover are mirth-provoking in their comedy duologue, The Wrong Room; Little Tichbourne is a pleasing child comedian and dancer; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The chief attraction here this week is John Tiller's pantomime Aladdin. Miss Bessie Cohen is a sprightly Aladdin, and Miss Clara Keck a charming Princess; Little Britton as Schnapps and Mr. Harry Morgan as I-ke-Mo are entertaining; and Mr. Harry Elliston makes a capital Abanazar. Other excellent turns are provided. Boden and Bell are effective juvenile singers and dancers; Nat Watkins, comedian, is well received; Nell Richardson, vocalist, achieves great success; Wyndham and Waters are amusing in The Professor and His Pupil; and the Barrascope pictures are attractive.

West Pier.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company is here this week with Brigadier Gerard. Mr. Langhorne Burton submits a highly successful enactment of Captain Gerard; Miss Muriel Turner acquits herself admirably as the Comptesse de Roqueleure; Mr. George Mallett gives a fine impersonation of Talleyrand; Miss Margaret Chard merits distinct praise for her representation of Agnes; and Mr. Arthur Somers is well suited as Napoleon. The remaining parts are in capable hands, and the play is capitally mounted.

Palace Pier Theatre.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow and company are here this week with Lord and Lady Algy. Mr. Mark Blow gives an admirable and convincing impersonation of Lord Algy, and Miss Ida Molesworth is conspicuously successful in her charming portrayal of Lady Algy. Miss Gertrude Netherville makes a decided hit as Mrs. Tudway; Mr. Cecil Wilford's Duke of Droneborough, Mr. Henry Doughty's Marquis of Quarmby, and Mr. Henry Bute's Brabazon Tudway are ably enacted; and Mr. Kenneth Black is effective as Lord Algy's jockey.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The Easter attraction at this theatre, The Blue Moon, commenced on Saturday evening, the 30th ult. The musical play was nicely staged, and it was well played by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. The chorus was strong and tuneful, the augmented orchestra being ably conducted by Mr. Ernest Harman. Mr. Edward Lewis is exceptionally amusing as Moolraj; Miss Clarice Lockstone acts charmingly as Chandra Nil; Mr. Reginald Switz and Miss Florence Imeson are decidedly clever in their respective parts of Private Charles Taylor and Millicent Leroy; Mr. Leslie Gaze is sufficiently brisk and jovial as Major Callabone; and Mr. Thomas Holding acts in a dignified and impressive style as the Native Prince of Karikhar.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's company is here with the interesting drama, A Little Vagrant. The title-rôle (Arthur) is very prettily played by Miss Alice Bowes in a natural and convincing style; Mr. Cecil A. Collins displays much ability in his clever character-study of the repulsive part of Jim Harris; and Miss Vashti Wynne deserves commendation for a powerful and highly interesting impersonation of Poll. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe does all that is practicable with the heavy part of Eric Arden; Mr. Richard Bosco presents an effective and gentlemanly performance of Thomas Whitworth; Miss Carolina Fenton makes a good part of the housekeeper, Julia Pilbeam; and the comic parts of Slideaway Bakes and Hannah Smithers have capital and amusing exponents in Mr. Douglas Campbell and Miss Bella Moody.

Palace Theatre.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Tom Foy and company head the bill with the amusing sketch, The Yorkshire Lad in London; Herbert Lloyd, "King of Diamonds," obtains considerable applause; The Hypocrite is a well-staged and interesting sketch, a good broadsword combat being introduced; Frank and Violet Patte amuse with their sketch, Also Ran; Fred S. Peake and company successfully introduce their sketch, The Gambler; the Cole de Losse Duo do both humorous and skilled work on the slack rope; Fred Villars, comedian, is successful; and the same must be said of Will Souls, the laughing comedian. "A Trip Across the Atlantic" is depicted in good style by Vernon's Bioscope, to conclude the entertainment. On Good Friday there were special entertainments, both afternoon and evening, for the benefit of Mr. F. J. V. Welchman, the attendance being good in the afternoon, and the house packed in the evening.

Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Madge Lessing heads the bill with her successful scena, Snowland, obtaining much applause from all parts of the house for her pleasing and refined turn; Mahatma, "Queen of Secondsight," evinces exceptional ability in her mysterious line of business; the Ottawas, musical cowboys, obtain appreciation; Bella Elmore is a pleasing comedienne; the Brontes amuse with their duologue, "Saucy Maud"; the Paul Hesse Trio of equilibrists and acrobats are expert in their line; Ida Brophy sings and dances in good style; Blarney and Kennard, assisted by a clever dog, amuse with their comedy act; J. C. Morris, patter comedian, is successful; and the Courtiers please with their refined vaudeville entertainment. The performance concludes with animated pictures of the Liverpool Grand National.

Zoological Gardens. — Superintendent, Captain Villiers.—The Easter holiday fêtes here have been very successful, over 15,000 persons paying for admission on Monday. The variety entertainment was provided by Hr. Tom Wood, of Whitehall-road, Bristol, the well-known amusement provider in the West of England. The artists included Blanche and Diakoff, in their tea-cup track cycle speciality; Volo, in physical poses; Fred Moran, e

COLSTON HALL.—Walter Jeff's New Century pictures, the original exhibition from Curzon Hall, Birmingham, is here for a short season, and attracting a large attendance at each performance. The pictures are all very fine, being well selected to be both interesting and effective. Also included in the entertainment is a costume recital of Maritana, by Miss Evelyn de Lara, Miss Marie Wescott, Mr. Frank Pemberton, and Mr. Hickman Smith; musical and mimetic monologues and songs by Mr. Cuthbert Rose; and the orchestral band of the 1st Gloucestershire Royal Garrison Volunteer Artillery.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Miss Lancashire, Ltd., which commenced on the 30th ult., is continuing during this week. Miss Florence Baines keeps the house in roars with her very clever acting. She also shows good singing power by her "Home, sweet home." Mr. Bert Burton's Isadore Moses is a comical character; John Higgins is in the capable hands of Mr. David Donaldson; Eva Lancashire is prettily played by Miss Kitty Jones; Mr. Patrick Evans is well placed as Harry; Bertha is fittingly portrayed by Miss Muriel Johnson; and Herbert Fox, solicitor, and Grunt, the butler, are excellent studies respectively by Mr. Richard C. Hicks and Mr. Walter Hicks. A fine old farmer is presented by Mr. Cole Aspinall, and Miss Pattie Groves is a comical Bridget.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A brilliant performance of Claudian is drawing crowded houses here this week. As Claudian Mr. William Maclaren is seen to much advantage; Mr. F. Owen Chambers as Tetrarch is excellent; and Mr. Douglas Earle makes a manly Agazil. The difficult part of Alinda is capably undertaken by Miss Lily C. Bandman; Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner creates fun as Belos; and Miss Maud Garth is very good as Edessa. Mr. Edmund Grogan admirably undertakes the rôle of Theorus; Mr. Ulrick Burke does well as the Holy Clement; and Miss Rosa Webster is a capable Serena.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Something new is provided here by the Juanitos, springboard acrobats, who perform a series of startling leaps. Fred and Maud Vypond are highly acceptable; Clifford Morgan, baritone, sings acceptably; The Saletos give a startling performance of hand and head balancing; Cullen and Carthy, with Little Cluley, have a host of new jokes; the Sisters Lytton give a capital rendering of Il Bacio; Edwards and Espinosa are experts with the banjo; and the new Empire Theatroscope holds the audience with a long and exciting film.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jno. Waller.—A good company has been engaged for the Easter holidays, consisting of Arthur Kennedy, sensational cyclist, in some daring and exciting tricks; the Garlleys, in their juggling exhibition; Mr. T. C. Callaghan, with some amusing songs; Robert Gilbert's circus, consisting of well trained dogs and cats; Chas. Tempest, the laughing comedian; Miss Ida Fair, comedienne; and Prof. Albert Dickinson and Miss Queenie Johnson, ornamental swimmers and tank performers. Raymond's Bio-tableaux are interesting.

BURY (LANCS.). — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Her One Great Sin is being presented here this week by Miss Lydia Donovan and company. Miss Donovan does remarkably well as Grace Warhurst; Mr. C Quinton Fulford is well suited as Arnold Thornhill; Mr. Claude H. Heaton is good as Reuben Warhurst; they are well supported by Miss Maudie Lambert, Miss Phyllis Damain, Mr. Fred Hodson, and Miss Louie Walton.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—A capital programme is provided here this week. Sam Elton, the eccentric tumbler, is the star turn, and is well supported by Chas. R. Whittle, comedian; Freddie's Ma-in-Law, a sketch presented by Flockton Foster, Ruth Vincent, and Arnold Richardson; Angeline, lady juggler; Edgar Bodden, bone soloist; Arthur Croxon, mimic and comedy artist; Francis Hanlow, comedienne; and the Colonials, a quartet of nice voices.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The chief turn here is a musical sketch, entitled Rent, by Harry Daniels. Other items are Phern and Phern, a Continental couple of musicians; Olms and Carbeth, sketch artists; Lila Lingard, male impersonator; Alf. Davies, actor-vocalist; Bob Best, comedian; and Leo Trainor and Lily Arthur, vocalists.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Mr. Montefiore's own production of The Streets of London forms a big holiday attraction, the house on Monday night surpassing all records. The refined villainy of Gideon Bloodgood is admirably depicted by Mr. Riddell Robinson; Mr. William Rokeby submits a clever sketch of Badger; good acting is displayed by Mr. Frank Bradley as Mark Livingstone; Mr. Joe Bracewell is amusing as Jonas Puffy; and the rôles of Captain Fairweather and Paul are capably played by Mr. Clifford Armitage and Mr. Chas. O'Connor. Miss Dorothy Mayhew gives a refined portrayal of Alida; Lucy is gracefully played by Miss Violet Hammersley; Miss Helena Rigby is good as Mrs. Puffy; and Miss Florence Moore makes a lively Dan. The street urchins' scene, in which local children appear, creates great excitement, and the admirable staging of the play throughout deserves warm praise.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The theatre opened for the holidays on Monday night to a big audience, with a company under the management of Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton, the piece selected being A Gambler's Daughter. Mr. Ayrton as Desmond O'Dare was in every sense excellent; and Miss Adria Hill, in the dual rôle of Miriam and Mildred Grant, made capital characters of both parts. Mr. Alfred Sanders, Mr. Richard Pitt, Mr. Victor, Mr. Fred Bell, Mr. H. Barham, Mr. S. Fiennes, Mr. George Vinning, Mr. Harry Darby, Mr. Harry Ray, Miss Lizzie Gordon, Miss R Dempsey, Miss Harriett Lloydall, Miss Lottie Sanders, Miss Madge Hobart, and Miss Annie Broughton, were all that could be desired. By special request, East Lynne was billed for Friday and Saturday.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—A greater holiday attraction than The Catch of the Season could not have been placed on the boards, and huge crowds bombarded the theatre on Monday. On the last visit of this popular comedy, Miss Moya Mannering made a tremendous hit at Angela, and her reappearance this time is mainly responsible for the popularity of the piece. As the Duke of St. Jermyns, Mr. Frank Lincoln is still as breezy and amusing as ever; Miss Belle Napier is immensely successful as Lady Caterham; Miss Emily Mellon undertakes this time the rôle of Lady Crystal, and her ladyship's two daughters are excellently portrayed by Miss Isobel Dickens and Miss Florence Lee. Mr. R. H. Kelly is a capable Lord Dundreary; and Buckett is amusingly portrayed by Master Graia; while Mr. Hampton Gordon (Sir John Crystal), Mr. Alfred Miles (Mr. Gibson), and Miss Maud Davies (Duchess of St. Jermyns) are perfectly placed. The orchestra and chorus are of valuable assistance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The Beast and the Beauty is the drama presented here by Mr. Frederick Melville's capable company. The play is full of powerful work and striking situations, and requires delicate handling. Mr. Herbert Ford and Miss Lydia André take the chief rôles of the Beast and the Beauty respectively, acting realistically throughout, but the entire company deserves much praise for the excellent representations.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The management of this popular Queen-street house are to be congratulated upon their selection of the artists for this Easter week, the huge holiday crowds being perfectly satisfied with the performances. At the head of the bill we have a return visit of the marvellous Chung Ling Soo, whose conjuring is weird and delusive, and thoroughly baffles the audiences. Another good turn is that of Madge Grey, a capital dialect comedienne; an exceedingly laughable sketch is that entitled A Short Acquaintance, presented by Lilieth Leyton, and supported by Mr. John Spurling and Mr. Edgar J. Coyne. Chas. Kay is the typical topical tipster, and is a comedian who is greatly appreciated; Clark and Glenney, in their screamingly funny act, The Haunted House, create many a genuine laugh; while Geo. Newburn is a mimic of the first water. Roma and Romani, talented and artistic musicians; Herbert Rule, quaint comedian; Ethel Ra Leslie, comedienne; and a laughable subject on the bioscope complete a really splendid holiday attraction.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The first visit of the musical "dream play," Bluebell in Fairyland, by Mr. E. Graham-Falcon's company, drew a splendid house here on Bank Holiday night. Mr. Falcon has brought a most capable company, and the dressing and mounting of the piece excited unusual admiration Mr. Lawrence Emery was admirable as Dickee, and soon became a warm favourite; Messrs. J. H. Bishop and Charles Resti, versatile and clever comedians, were very much in evidence, and contributed smart and highly popular performances; a capital character-sketch of a London policeman was submitted with rare humour by Mr. Harry Douglas, who was equally funny in the second act as the King; Mr. Frank Lennard was quite a success as the Sleepy King; in the title-rôle, Miss Mamie Finbow made quite a hit, and proved herself a clever little actress and agreeable vocalist; a clever dance by Miss Haidee Fitch met with enthusiastic approval; the San Remo Girls contributed some smart and much-appreciated dances; and Miss Vera Vizard as the Good Fairy, Miss Constance St. Bride as the Queen, and a large and well-trained chorus, added much to the success of a thoroughly enjoyable performance.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—An attractive programme is submitted here for the holiday week, and on Monday both houses were packed to the doors. Miss Mabel Hind, a character comedienne of some ability, made a good impression; the singing, and, more particularly, the smart dancing of Amos Howard was much appreciated; Barrett and Knowles are a very popular turn, their quaint patter and really funny business bringing down the house; a most amusing farcical sketch, entitled House Full, by Messrs. Danerell and Rutland's company, was brightly played; and the Wakeman Quartette harmonised well-known ballads with excellent effect. Barney Vox, the Irish ventriloquist, who is also on a return visit, met with his usual success; Phern and Phern, in a novel musical act, and the ever-welcome Pepiscope, completed the programme.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—On Easter Monday the Merrions appeared in their mirthful, musical, and mimetical entertainment, and delighted a large audience; Messrs. Hees and Lisbon, in their trick and fancy skating act, were very good, while their grotesque Jumbo policemen were highly amusing. Lieutenant Chard's troupe of trained dogs went through a clever performance.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—This week Mr. Arthur Carlton's excellent company is appearing here in The Span of Life. It is noticeable for the manner in which it is staged and mounted, and for the excellence of the scenery. The character of Richard Blunt is creditably sustained by Mr. R. S. Trelawney; Mr. Sanderson Moffat as Dunstan Leech gives a fine exposition of villainy; Mr. Walter Dale as Nutty Brown proves a constant source of merriment; Miss Kitty Russell is droll in the part of Shrove Tuesday; Kate Heathcote is played by Miss Guinevere Shilton in a pleasing and sympathetic manner; and Miss Phillis Hamilton acts with intelligence as Mrs. Jelfs. Mr. James Jarrett looks a thorough old salt as Joshua Gurnett; Miss Phyllis Graham, in doubling the parts of Cecil Jelf and Cecil Blunt, shows much promise. The Stebbing Trio are much in evidence.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will. H. Emerson.—Heading the bill here is the Stavordale Quinette, in their banjo and harp speciality; Mill, May, and Theresa, in a novelty Japanese scena, are excellent; Sandy and Carl, knockabouts, win warm recognition; Miss Madge Daly contributes successfully; Johnny Worman is a clever comedian; Zenora is a smart hand equilibrist and jumper; Harry Levaine causes hearty laughter; and the Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures are still to the fore.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—The holiday attraction comprised The Little Michus, performed by Mr. George Dance's company, under the management of Mr. Hubert Dunbar. Miss Alice Coverick makes a splendid Marie Blanche; and her efforts are very ably seconded by Miss Gipsy Dale as Blanche Marie. Miss Mary Young appears to be quite at her ease as Mme. Michu; and Mlle. Marjorie's neat dancing is much admired. In the hands of skilful Mr. Foster Courtenay General Des Ifs proves a most popular personage; Mr. Gilbert Childs works untiringly as Bagnolet, and is very successful; Mr. Robert C. Harcourt makes a pleasing Aristide; Mr. Leon Simkin scores as old Pierre Michu and stage-manages; while Mr. W. Kingsley was seen to advantage as Gaston Rigaud.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard. — Henry De Vry's marble statuary act proves a great attraction, the various groups being highly appreciated; David Poole is a resourceful ventriloquist with smartly-manipulated figures; Hunting, by the Three Sisters Tree, is somewhat out of the usual groove, and is interpreted in artistic style; the concertina playing of George Young, a blind musician, is a revelation to local music hall goers; Matt Wilkinson's company amuse in The Registry Office; the Sisters Belmont are favourites; Hunter and Maris, comedy artists; Harry Desmond, comedian; Stuart and Evans, patter vocalists and dancers, complete the variety turns; while much excitement is aroused by "The Bad Man of the West," a film projected by means of Mr. Lacey's Erascope.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Donne.—Happy Holland tops the bill here, and with lively music, pretty dresses, and appropriate scenery, it is proving a big attraction. Mr. Jake Friedman makes a splendid Jakey Oodlevassal; Miss Florence Hunton, a vivacious Gretchen; and Mr. L. Ellis, a lively Frenchman. Lillie Lazzah is on a welcome return visit; the Lurins stage The Curate's Dilemma; Edna Cragge's songs go well; Arthur Slater's clever whistling surprises the audience; Virto gives great satisfaction in his musical scena; and the Edisonograph provides new pictures; while mention must be made of Clarissa Talbot and Albert Pearce's Japanese song-scena, which is one of the most popular items in the programme.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—The Swiss Express is the attraction here. The acrobatic feats of the Renad Brothers are astonishing; and excellent support is given by Messrs. W. E. Brandon, Alec Wylie, and Harwood Cooper. Miss Celestine Brandon is the laudably patient bride; and the spirit put into the business by every member of the company is deserving of great praise, the Verona Quartette being much in evidence.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—A well-filled house greeted Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company with Bound to Win here on Monday. Mr. Geo. Steel sustains the part of Harry Lyndon with fine effect; Mr. Edward Bikker makes a good Squire Forbes; Mr. Edward Fryer does well as Philip Eyre; Mr. J. Franklin as the faithful Ned Oakley is well to the fore; Mr. Arnold H. Allen as Horatio Buffit, a dandy, and Miss Effie Macintosh, as Winnie Oakley, are responsible for hearty laughter. Mr. Sidney Rudge is well placed as Joe Blake; Miss Violet Langley is a sympathetic heroine; and Mr. Dick Seddon appears to advantage as Willie Winkins.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Messrs. Acton and Nash's company is here this week presenting Between the Lights. The drama is capitally staged, and special mention should be made of the steel works, an exceptionally realistic scene in Act IV. Mr. Bertram H. Moss capitally plays the part of Robert Hinton; Mr. William R. Winning successfully presents Stanley Crofton; Mr. Frank Orchard very effectively undertakes Ben Armley; Mr. Frank Daleno is particularly good as Charles Stott; and Mr. Fred Acton is a host in himself as Jimmy Tickle. Miss Fanny Williams sympathetically portrays Violet Warren; Miss Eileen Bamford powerfully enacts the rôle of Madge Armley; while Miss Millie Dorris is a charming Kittie.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Harold Montague; Manager, Mr. E. J. Barrett.—Mr. Montague opened here for a fortnight with his well-known vaudeville troupe, the Vagabonds, which comprises Messrs. Leslie Burgess and Claude Russell, and Mesdames Olive Spark, Leslie Lulu, and Marie Longmore. Good business is being done.

OPERETTA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Williams.—Messrs. Graham, Russell, and Bentley opened here over the holidays, and gave their ever-popular variety show to crowded houses. Their programme included Mr. P. Ganton Young, a fine baritone; Mr. Fred Wildon, a very versatile entertainer; and Miss Emily Hayes, a talented soprano; and the three famous old Clacton favourites already mentioned.

PALACE-BY-THE-SEA, LTD.—This hall was hired by a private syndicate, and concerts, under the direction of Mr. Ballard Brown, were given. The programme was made up of the following:—Miss Gertrude Shrimpton and Miss Marie Schulz, and Messrs. Ballard Brown, Leonard Burton, Percy Farling, Harry Hall, Arthur J. Hill, and Finlay Dunn.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Reginald Dance and company opened a tour with Raffles at this house on Saturday last, and the reception extended to the production was of a most flattering nature. Mr. Dance himself impersonates the amateur cracksman and acts in such an easy and confident manner as to bring forth long and continuous applause and calls at the end of each act; Mr. Edward Irwin plays the egotistical Curtis Bedford with considerable success, his mannerisms being capitally Americanised; Mr. C. W. Lyttleton-Rogers is conspicuous as the hot-headed Lord Crowley; and Mr. C. Rivers Bertram, as the professional burglar Crawshay, is particularly well placed. The Ladies Melroso and Ethel are well represented by Miss Mildred Orme and Miss Constance Hamilton; Miss Katie Yates makes a charming Gwendoline Conran; and Miss May Brooke is good as Mrs. Vidal; whilst the small, yet important, part of Marie is cleverly depicted by Miss Rita Ward.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The chief turn for the holiday week is Mme. Angelo's Three Graces, a trio of beautifully-formed ladies, and their endeavours to impersonate classical statuary are crowned with success, the effect of the artistically-arranged draperies and limelight being most charming; Ernest Rees, the acme of quaintness, is an immense favourite with his songs and patter; Percy M. Stephenson and company appear in a new dramatic sketch, entitled The Way of the World, a playlet full of incident, in six scenes; Russell Carr, the military ventriloquist, is well received; and a similar remark applies to Flo Somers, comedienne, who is here on a return visit. Capital pictures of an instructive nature conclude the programme.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The holiday attraction here is Mr. Clarence C. Corri's music hall stars' combination. The following are amongst the artists engaged:—George Danvers, jun., in Ethiopian songs and dances; George Delaforce, character and topical vocalist; the Sisters Powell, big-boot dancers; Frank A. Wood, tenor vocalist; Fred Evered, comedian and mimic; Ethel Thomas, banjoist; the musical comedy sketch, Office Hours, is well received; as is also the vaudeville sketch, A Soldier's Trust; or, A Story of Two Christmas Eves. Animated pictures conclude a most enjoyable entertainment.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company, in Are You a Mason? opened a week's engagement here on Monday. The company is an admirable one, and the piece, from start to finish, kept the audience in roars of laughter. As Mrs. Bloodgood, Miss Adelaide Grace was admirable; Miss Margaret Farleigh as Eva Perry was successful; and Miss Dora Frank Harvey pleased greatly as Mrs. Halton. Mr. E. H. Paterson as Amos Bloodgood was excellent; as also was Mr. Howard L. Tracy in the character of Frank Perry. Mr. G. R. J. Austin was most amusing as Hamilton Travers; and as George Fisher Mr. Ernest Cossart was humorous to a degree. The minor parts were capably taken. The play was preceded by A Bad Penny.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The Dayton Family, ten in number, are a great attraction here in their entertainment, entitled The Rendezvous; Imor Fox gives a clever illusionist and conjuring turn; Nellie Doon is a clever comedienne; the Wallon Duo are delightful duettists and dancers; the Ashley Team of American pantomime skaters are a clever combination; Arthur Richards, character comedian, pleases with his songs; the Fays are good speciality artists; and Flo Cecil is a talented comedienne and dancer.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—His House in Order is being presented here. Miss Dorothy Grimston gives a powerful rendering of Nina, being ably supported by Mr. Stephen T. Ewart as Hilary Jesson. As Filmer Jesson, M.P., Mr. J. Edward Pearce is successful; Mr. H. Lomas, Mr. E. R. Holloway, Miss Augusta Haviland, and Miss Elaine Steddall are responsible for the Ridgeley Family.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—One of the smartest turns of the holiday bill is the Daunton Shaw Troupe of cyclists; Katie Butler as a character comedienne is deservedly encored; Fred Frampton is a successful burlesque actor; Alice Blandford sings popular songs; Mlle. Sylvia's electrical vocal tableaux are interesting; Mlle. Lucretia as a speciality dancer is much appreciated; and George Lashwood is also billed to appear. Vernon's Bioscope concludes the performance.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—The Easter attraction here is Messrs. E. A'Dell and Chabot's company with His Sister's Honour. Mr. Evelyn A'Dell takes the hero's part, and as Frank Stanley wins constant applause; Mr. H. C. Robinson is the heavy villain, Sir Richard Redvers, and submits a capital piece of acting; Mr. Sidney Dean as Timothy Timid causes much fun; and Mr. Gilson Brooke is well placed as Doctor Godfrey. Miss Ethel Ashleigh as Ivy Merton wins the sympathies of the house; Miss Katherine Eckart makes a winsome Dora Stanley; Miss Minnie Hennely is in her element as Gretchen; Miss Bessie Deares deserves praise for her impersonation of Maria; Mr. T. Marsden contributes a useful part as Jones; Mr. Henry Slater and Mr. Fred Carston claim recognition for their able rendering of Sergeant Pedro Ramon and Private Juan Lopez; Mr. Jno. Leyland has a part to his liking as Bill Buggins; Mr. Alf Smith must not be overlooked for his Will Bennett; Mr. Harry Mitchelson as P.C. Worthie justifies his selection.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is the popular attraction for Easter week. The répertoire includes The Merchant of Venice, Henry the Fifth, Hamlet, As You Like It, Macbeth, The Taming of the Shrew, and Richard the Third. On Monday night The Merchant of Venice was presented to a crowded holiday audience. Mr. Gerald Ames was at his best in the rôle of Antonio; Mr. Dagnell as the Duke of Venice gave a masterful display; Mr. Philip Merivale acted the part of the Prince of Morocco in excellent style; Mr. Henry Herbert gave a characteristic rendering of Shylock; Mr. Charles Francis was conspicuous as Bassanio; and Mr. Reginald Owen was exceedingly clever as Lorenzo. Miss Louise Graeme's impersonation of Jessica was a finished piece of acting; Miss Dorothy Green cleverly sustained the character of Portia; Miss Mary Webb was good as Nerissa; Misses Beatrice Terry and Mary Dibley, as Balthazar and Stephano respectively, and Messrs. E. Spencer Geach (Gratiano), Vincent Holman (Salanio), Charles Bruce (Salarino), Esme Filmer (Tubal), Ross Shore (Launcelot Gobbo), and Henry Morrell (Old Gobbo) also appeared.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The Easter attraction here is Mr. George Dance's company, in The Spring Chicken, which is giving great satisfaction. Mr. J. S. Durant hits off to a nicety the rôle of Gustave Babori; Mr. Harry Averell is quite at his ease as Boniface; Mr. A. Drinkwater is good as Baron Papouche; Mr. E. Nainby is very quaint as Felix; Mr. C. Brierley is capital in the part of Stephen Henry; Mr. Emil Adams is excellent as Joseph Boniface; and Mr. Fred Payne keeps the house in a roar of laughter in the rôle of Mr. Girdle. Miss Nellie Kavanagh is bright and bewitching as Mrs. Girdle; Miss Clarice Cartner makes a charming Baroness Papouche; Miss Florence Wix is seen to advantage as Dulcie Babori; Miss Lillian Errol is a pretty Emmy Lou; Miss Tatty Leonard is enchanting as La Belle Cissi; and Miss Chrissie Ralland deserves congratulations for her admirable rendering of Rosalie.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Herrick.—Mr. Geo. Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company, in Her Luck in London, is attracting appreciative audiences here this week. Mr. Chas. A. Leicester as the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor deserves much praise; Mr. Chas. Stirling figures well as Richard Lenowen; and Mr. Douglas Tremayne gives an excellent representation of the Rev. Lionel Strong. The part of Stephen Harborne is played in an especially effective manner by Mr. Tyron Power; Mr. Bruce Chapman gives a good portrayal of Algie Kircumbrie; and Mr. J. Telley Dillsen as Jerry Gotobed proves himself a good comedian. Miss Marie Clavering distinguishes herself as Mme. Gabrielle; Miss Frances Bruce appears to advantage as Lillian Harborne; Miss Flossie Groves capably fulfils the rôle of Maud Gladys Shovepenny; and Miss Mary Neil enacts the part of Nellie Harborne with all the skill and tact of an accomplished actress.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—A capital holiday bill here. Wal Pink's Workmen, in Repairs, are paying a welcome return visit; the Two Bees are successful in their allegorical scena, The Man in the Moon; Harry Rogerson, the lazy comedian, receives a cordial reception; the Debreans, in fancy Japanese entertainment, are greeted with applause; Joe Archer, comedian, is worth seeing; the Three Prestons are commendable in a sketch, The Liftman's Rise; George Reeves, comedian, is liked; Elton and Edwin are expert banjoists; and Edie Veno is a neat comedienne and dancer.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Miss Maud May and Mr. Courtenay Thorpe's company is here in Trilby. Miss May gives a capital study of the title-rôle; Mr. C. Thorpe is a powerful Svengali; Mr. Arthur Houghton gives a characteristic rendering of Taffy; the Laird is effectively played by Mr. Arthur D. Pipe; and Little Billy is capably handled by Mr. T. F. Elvey. Miss Rhoda Ray is charming in the part of Honorine; Miss K. Romsey is an excellent Angèle; and Mme. Vinard is shown to advantage by Miss Mary Cleveland. On Thursday the company played A White Passion Flower.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Carr Loates' company is here this week on a return visit with At the World's Mercy. Mr. Loates gives a capable representation of Captain Frank Manley; Mr. Henry Fergusson ably sustains the rôle of Morris Goldstein; as Skittles Miss Cissie Milford is good; and Mr. Alf. Dawson and Miss Kathleen Loates provide amusement as Charley Smart and Kitty Knot respectively.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Danley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Langly Wyatt.—The Derby Operatic Society gave very creditable performances of Dorothy on Monday afternoon and evening at the Grand Theatre, and will occupy the boards for the remainder of the week. In the name-part Mrs. Harry Stratton sings and plays with ability, and secures well-merited applause; Mrs. A. G. Thorpe makes a capital Lydia Hawthorn, and combines stage aptitude with a pleasing voice; a vocally charming Phyllis is found in Miss Eva Macdonald, whose bridal song ensures her a well-deserved encore; Miss Bertha Sherwin, too, does very well indeed as Mrs. Privett; and Mrs. Ernest Sadler figures agreeably as Lady Betty. In the male parts Messrs. Charles Butterworth and C. Edgar Taylor may be said to divide premier honours as Geoffrey Wilder and Harry Sherwood respectively, each singing his numbers with artistic finish and good effect; Mr. W. Adderley makes an entirely acceptable Squire Bantam; and Mr. Harry Stratton is diverting as Lurcher, though he rather overplays and hardly looks the part. Mr. W. H. Ward gives a robust and creditable rendering of John Tuppit; and Mr. Frank Harrison acquits himself well as Tom Grass. The members of the chorus do their work well, and the orchestra, led by Mr. Sidney T. Sadler, is to be commended.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—W. J. Churchill, comedian, is making a welcome reappearance here this week, and Monday night's reception testified to his popularity. The Three Richards, in their acrobatic sketch, The Giddy Golfers, cause great amusement; as a conjurer, Henri Bekker proves himself well above the average; Mlle. Roza, with her canine hippodrome, provides an interesting turn; Pueblo and Cropp, creole artists, appear to great advantage in song and dance; and the same can very well be said of the Sisters Clifton. Bert Lytton, swell comique, renders his songs in smart style. The Bioscope is not the least entertaining feature of the programme.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Life's Sweetest Sins is being presented here by T. A. Jones's company. The introduction of a submarine is naturally of great interest in the naval town. Miss Marie Daventry, a young and accomplished actress, takes the leading part of Doreen Rivers; Mr. Oswald Douglas is exceedingly clever as Dr. Collbrooke; Mr. J. A. Jones as Captain Harold Marston is a manly hero; and Mr. Edgar Morgan and Miss Elsie Malton do well in the comedy scenes.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The management have reintroduced the system of two houses nightly for a short season. Easter week has seen very large assemblages of the local theatregoers to witness The Face at the Window, presented by Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company. Mr. E. Hogan-Armadale as the repulsive Lucio Delgado played with studious earnestness and energy, and made the character sufficiently weird and despicable to inspire disgust and indignation in the minds of his audience. Particularly good in quality is the acting of Mr. T. W. Dunscombe as Paul Gouffet, the detective, whose fearlessness and zeal were characteristically reproduced by this clever young actor. Mr. Gilbert Hall acquitted himself very agreeably as Lucian Cortier, his acting showing much promise; Miss Marie Barrett entered with sympathy and tact into the part of the heroine, Marie de Bresson, and played with unflagging spirit to the end; much humour is forthcoming from the joint exertions of Mr. C. Alan Hineson (Peter Pottleberry) and Miss Gladys Newcombe (Babette).

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon.—Applause greeted the efforts of Zaro and Arno in a new and interesting bar act; whilst the society entertainers, Phillips and Merritt, were no less endorsed by the audience; Miss Merritt claims to be the lady champion finger whistler of the world: certainly her talent is pronounced. Clarke's Nippers figure prominently and ably in their speciality act, in which they introduce club manipulation, ball-punching, and boxing; hilarity reigns supreme whilst the Monckton's perform their comedy sketch, A Woman's Curiosity. Other artists are Harry Colton, comedian; Smith and Johnson, society coloured duo; Miss Lottie de Abbey, vocalist. Animated pictures are also much in evidence.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A Beautiful Fiend was the holiday attraction here. Mr. Montague Beaudyn did yeoman service as Ivan Paulovitch; and a skilful treatment of Count Fedor Karatoff must be credited to Mr. Herbert Skardon; Mr. Matt Russell did well as Sergius Strogoff, and Mr. Harry Oaks in the rôle of Christopher Crackles showed genuine humour. Nadine Karatoff was admirably impersonated by Miss Irene Munro; Miss Annie Clunn was a charming exponent of Pattie Woodlands; and the title-rôle was powerfully portrayed by Miss Sidney Crowe.

DOUGLAS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. C. Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—This popular playhouse opened on Saturday last with a performance of The Lady of Ostend, and a most appreciative audience witnessed the production. Sir Francis Burnand's clever farcical comedy was played with artistic effect by the members of Mr. Lawrence Brough's company. Mr. Henry Hampson as Dick Whortles and Mr. Percy Marshall as Joseph Carbury were admirable; the Baron was played to the life by Mr. Lawrence Brough; Mr. Dalziel Heron's Toby Crockett was excellent; and Mr. Reginald A. Hunt, Mr. W. H. Douglas, and Mr. Hewson Elliott did good service. The Lady of Ostend, in propria persona, was characteristically presented by Miss Marian Ripley; Jane, the maid of farcical comedy, was delightfully played by Miss Eiley Boyne; Miss Bessie Harrison's presentment of the mother-in-law was admirable; and Miss Muriel Harding and Miss Kate Milford were charming as the young girls. For the last three nights of the week the same author's Saucy Sally was billed. At the Risin' of the Moon has furnished the "curtain-raiser," the principal character of Barry O'Blane being perfectly played by Mr. Percy Marshall, well supported by Mr. Reginald A. Hunt, Mr. Dalziel Vernon, and Miss E. Eiley Boyne.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.—Large audiences have assembled at this popular place of amusement to dance in the still cold nights to the witching strains of Mr. Harry Wood's orchestra. In addition to this there is a special engagement of the Douglas Male Voice Choristers (twenty-five in number), under the conductorship of Mr. Noah Moore. Another item was Vernon's Bioscope.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatre, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—An excellent variety programme has been arranged for the first week of the special vaudeville season, for which Mr. Dew has collaborated with Mr. Frederick Baugh, of the Vaudeville Syndicate. A very well played sketch is submitted by Fred Southern's company, including the popular comedian himself, and Miss May Emery, a talented and experienced artist. Nora Beverley is a skilful singer of excellent songs; and Macintosh and Royal are a couple of expert dancers; a most amusing turn is that given by Rell and Butt, and entitled Fun in the Garden; while Fred Southern and full company also gain well-merited applause for their humorous efforts in His Lordship's Birthday. Quite a furore is created by George Bendon's admirable rendering of several catchy songs; Violet Desmond is a captivating comedienne, and wins an encore; while Raymond's Bio-tableaux exhibits some laughable and clever pictures.

Pier Pavilion.—Lessees, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—A series of splendid concerts commenced here on Good Friday, and proved very acceptable entertainments for the holidays. Miss Alice Tristraam, the possessor of a soprano voice of wonderful compass and exceptional power, has won a host of admirers. The charming personality of Miss Belle Green lends itself to assist her in her cleverly-rendered songs and skilful mimicry; while some dainty songs daintily rendered are contributed by Miss Marie West. A most interesting and novel performance is given by Mr. Ernest Sewell, who succeeds in thoroughly mystifying his audience; Mr. Trefelyn David's melodious tenor voice is heard to advantage in a good selection of songs; Mr. Roland Foster has a pleasing style and a well-trained bass voice; and Miss Ivy Moore is unanimously pronounced to be the most winsome and fascinating of comediennes. Mention should also be made of the various humorous and operatic sketches given by the celebrated Merry Peasants Costume Quartette.

DUNDEE. — Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—Corman's Juveniles appear in a beautiful scena, The Waif, in which these clever youngsters contribute a number of graceful dances and songs; John Grun Marx, in his strong man turn, proves very popular; Jay W. Winton and "M'Ginty" give a very entertaining performance; while Keith and Merson score heavily in their hunting absurdity The Meet. The other contributors to an excellent programme comprise Dolly Denver, a chic comedienne and dancer; Andy Fagan, a really good character comedian; the Nettas, in a charming vocal scena, "Home Again"; Halma, a clever young juggler; and the Bioscope.

Gaiety Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The Seven Elliotts are starring here as the Musical Savonas, and produce The Palace of Orpheus, in which the storm scene from the famous opera William Tell is executed in a most realistic and wonderful manner. They conclude their performance with that pretty American coon melody, "A Moonlight Trip on a Mississippi Steamer." Señorita Eloina, whose graceful gymnastic act is well known here, gets a very warm reception; Ina Lorimer makes a welcome return visit, and this young artist is undoubtedly destined for a brilliant future; Jack Neil, a Scotch comedian of a decidedly novel type, simply bubbles over with wit and humour, and the audience showed their appreciation of his turn in no half-hearted fashion; Harry Leaton, vocal comedian, likewise scored a decided success. Others appearing are the Three Sisters Kilner, vocalists and acrobatic dancers; Nellie Dunbar, charming young soubrette; Rene and Smith, American comedy artists; and the Electro Motorscope, with entirely new set of films. This house now presents a very pretty and attractive appearance, an elaborate and judicious use of the electric light transforming the building into a veritable fairy land.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Although this is the third week of Messrs. Jury's pictures there is no falling off of public patronage. This week's series of pictures are even better than ever. A sensational dramatic picture, entitled "The Coiner's Daughter," is a work of art in itself. Another dramatic item, and one shown for the first time in this country, is "Trapped by Pinkerton's," depicting an original method of trapping two bank robbers. Capital variety turns are contributed by Professor Gelder (facial mimic) and Ivy Dean (serio and dancer).

DUNFERMLINE. — Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—The second annual benefit to Mr. Potts, the popular manager, took place here on Monday afternoon and evening. Both performances were well patronised, more especially the evening one, showing how much the efforts of Mr. Potts's catering for his patrons is appreciated. The performance commenced with a two-act play, Breach of Promise, in which two local amateurs took the principal parts—Miss Ella Craig that of Honour Molloy and Mr. Alec Craig as Philip, both acquitting themselves with much credit. The other parts were capably handled by Miss Madge Locke as Clementina Ponticoff, Mr. Francis Marton as Ashates Croople, Mr. R. A. Catanach as Mr. Fullawords, Mr. Arthur Lee-Todd as Mr. Ponticoff, and Mr. Clyde Miller as David. Charles Dance's comedy, Delicate Ground, was also produced, the parts being well sustained by Mr. Baker Howard as Citizen Sangfroid, Mr. Clyde Miller as Alphonse de Grandier, and Miss Ketty Elliott as Pauline. This was followed by Brough and Halliday's Scottish comic romance, My Heart's in the Highlands. Mr. Pete Donald, a local amateur comedian, contributed to the success of the programme; the speciality turn by Miss Madge Locke was much appreciated; as also was the dancing of Miss Florrie Simpson.

EASTBOURNE. — Pier Pavilion. — Manager Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Hayes is to be congratulated on the holiday attractions he has provided. Mr. Lewis Waller recited poems by Kipling and Meredith and extracts from Henry V. in his strong, manly style. On Tuesday afternoon another most successful matinée was given. Miss Decima Moore recited in a charming manner, Miss Helen Martin sang in cultured style, Mr. Nelson Jackson was highly amusing in his répertoire, and other successful artists were Mr. Noel Fleming, Mr. Walter Scott, Miss Clara Evelyn, and Miss Edith Pratt. The attraction during the week is Mr. Herbert Ralland's company in La Poupée. Mr. Fred Seymour's clever and funny work as Hilarius keeps the house in laughter; Mr. Arthur Cozens sings and acts nicely as Lancelot; Mr. Walter Balfour is a dignified and picturesque Father Maxime; Mr. Fuller Allen is an imposing and effective Baron Chanterelle; and Mr. Arthur Dennis is a quietly able Loremois. Miss Mysie Devine makes a pretty and truly charming Alesia, Miss Doris Dickens a bright and interesting Henri, Miss Edith Hunter an excellent Madame Hilarius, and Miss Alice Roche a captivating Guduline.

Devonshire Park Theatre. — Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark. — Attractions on a colossal scale have been offered here during the holidays. On Saturday afternoon and evening Mr. Harry Fragson appeared, and was received with the warmest applause. During the week a high-class variety bill is offered. Mme. Alice Esty, in a scene from Il Trovatore, uses her magnificent voice in a way which rouses the audience to enthusiasm. She is assisted by Mr. Crauford Kent, whose fine tenor voice is heard to advantage. A very amusing item is A Pantomime Rehearsal, in which Mr. Murray King as Lord Arthur Pomeroy causes much laughter; Mr. Ardene Linden is a tireless and excellent Jack Deedes, Mr. Cecil Frere a capital Capt. Robinson, and Mr. M. Florence a light and effective Sir Charles. Miss Lilias Waldegrave is a very attractive Lady Muriel; and capital work is done by the other ladies of the company. Mr. Manrin's beautiful statuary and fountains are extremely pretty, and one of the most popular numbers of the programme. Mr. Jean Seul mystifies the audience with his Hindoo tricks; Mr. Percy Farrimond as the singing collier has a goodly share of applause; Miss Gladys Archbutt is very pleasing in Dutch song and dance; and the new orchestra, under Herr Tas, contributes a musical selection in finished style.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. H. Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Smith.—At the head of a good variety bill offered here stands "Quo Vadis," the title of a cleverly-worked illusion, in which a lady is apparently burned to ashes. The Madcaps are four agile and comely ladies who revel in many smart and varied dances; Miss Gladys Huxley is a sweet-voiced comedienne; Johnson and Bert give one of the most successful turns in a novelty act called A Queer Customer; Mr. William Gourlay as Hamlet introduces a funny drama act; Miss Minnie Mace is a distinctly pleasing singer and dancer; Mr. Cyril Carle does well as an actor-vocalist; and new living pictures are shown.

Floral Hall.—Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Manager, Mr. E. A. Brown.—An innovation in the form of Sunday concerts was introduced here this week. The bill was a strong one, and the audiences were large. Miss Constance Collier was recalled again and again for her recitations; Mr. Courtice Pounds sang in his accustomed exquisite style; and Miss Clara Evelyn, Miss Helen Blain, Herr Franz Meisel, and Mr. Harold Craxton also appeared with great success. In connection with the Baths Miss Annette Kellermann gave a display of fancy swimming and diving on Saturday evening of last week.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford. — Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company is producing here this week the farcical play The Electric Man. The brunt of the work falls upon Mr. Bernard Copping in the dual rôle of Walter Everest and the Electric Man, and he is a decided success. He is well supported by Mr. Sydney Lynn as Jack Strange, and Mr. Legai Robinson hits off the part of the private inquiry agent skilfully. Mr. Chris Grose as General Pomeroy is good; and Miss Amy Fanchette ably sustains the part of the landlady. Obliging a Friend makes a capital curtain-raiser.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—The attraction this week is Fred Karno's No. 1 original vaudeville company. The chief items on the bill are the sketches, entitled The Mumming Birds and The Early Birds, which provide the audience with a continual feast of laughter. In addition, there are enjoyable turns by Miss Lillie Stuart, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Charles Denton, comedian; the Sisters Lavender, duettists and dancers; Messrs. Lincoln and Warren, trick acrobatic comedy cyclists; and the Miltons, a comedy duo.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—The Easter attraction is Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, including Miss Mabel Love, in The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love, in the title-rôle, played in a vivacious and graceful manner; Mr. Templer Powell was a successful Charles Trevor; Mr. F. G. Thurstans an excellent Fitzroy Harding; Miss Annie Stalman acquitted herself with distinction as Lady Charlotte; Miss Mincing was amusingly played by Miss Florence Harwood; Mrs. F. Turner made a humorous Mrs. Putman; Miss Violet Ley a refined Lady Isabel, Mr. Gerald Alexander an able Sir Horace, and Mr. J. Hastings Batson, Mr. Townsend Whitling, and Mr. Richard Neville were good in their respective parts. Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company was booked on Thursday for a return visit of Peter's Mother.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—This week we have Miss Bonyn Carlton's company in The Old, Old Story and The Plucky Nipper. In the former piece, Mr. W. Heilbronn gives a clever representation of the villain, James Marlow; Mr. Edward Surrey is successful as the detective; Miss Carlton and Mr. Syd Morton contribute fun in the characters of Tilly Blossom and Bobby; and Mr. H. J. Butler and Mr. M. Maud are capable; Miss Marie Dempster is a pathetic Nelly Hazel.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Starring here in an excellent programme we have Wal Pink and Jeff Vendome's company of silent comedians in The Daybreakers; described as "Gladiatorial Marvels," the Three Romas make a huge hit; the Bros. Obo, with their laughing song and genuine humour, are eminently successful; Bugler Carr has some clever musical business; the Lavelle Bros. shine as comedy acrobats; Jennie Lee, a capital vocalist; Dave McNeil, comedian; Gracie Lawn, a refined comedienne; and the King's pictures form an entertainment which is a credit to the management.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Lucky Durham, excellently portrayed by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company, has drawn large audiences to this house. Mr. Edmund Kennedy supplies a well-nigh perfect embodiment of John Durham, and has been the recipient of much genuine applause. Lord Mountfallon is depicted with success by Mr. Robert Forsyth, in an easy and quite natural manner; Mr. Arthur Leigh portrays Reginald Steighton; Mr. A. E. Walker presents a capital Mr. Vallerton; Miss Alice Esther Belmore submits a charming Helen Vallerton; Miss Francis Wolviston makes the most of Lady Mountfallon; and Miss Louise Gourlay fills the rôle of Mrs. Durham with credit. A clever Margaret Steighton is seen in Miss Florence Dulhunty.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Packed houses have been the rule at this house during the week, Mr. Fredk. Melville's The Ugliest Woman on Earth being the attraction. Chief honours go to Miss Beatrice Homer, whose work in the name-part wins unstinted praise; another clever portrayal is that of Morita by Miss Violet Macaree; Miss Nellie Jackson does well as Aggie Brown; Mr. Philip Darien supplies an effective Jack Merriman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor is a prominent figure as Hubert Gold; Mr. Chas. Barrett's Antonio Luchesi is smartly done, and Mr. Tubby Edlin makes the most of his opportunities as Tubby Herrick.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—Hippodrome.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—The above hall re-opened for a season on Saturday last to a large audience. A fine series of pictures were shown, including "The Wreck of the Berlin" and "Hooligans of the Far West." Variety was added to the programme by Lillie Thomas, a clever juvenile soubrette; and Miss Laurie Hayden, an exceptionally fine balladist. The orchestra, with well-chosen selections, is again under the able leadership of Mr. Harold Price.

GLOSSOP. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—This week Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Spenser's own company, in The Colleen Bawn, is pleasing local theatre-goers. The piece is well staged, and the version embraces several musical numbers. Mr. Hall Collier as Myles-na-Coppaleen (with songs) gives a good reading; Mr. Henry Danson is a capital exponent of Hardress Cregan; and Mr. Sydney Spenser acts successfully as Danny Mann. Mr. F. Hamilton as Kyrle Daly is conspicuous; Mr. Chas. Osborne as Father Tom does ample justice to the part; Mr. Fawcett Lomax is decidedly good as Mr. Corrigan; Mr. Hyland Clarke stands out well as Bertie O'Moore; Miss Lizzie Hall (Mrs. Sydney Spenser), in the title-rôle, acts the character in a praiseworthy manner, and is also encored for the song "Take me to your heart again." Miss Constance Bellamy as Miss Ann Chute is pleasing, and also gives a tuneful rendition of the song "Come back to Erin"; Miss Adelina Collier shows histrionic ability as Mrs. Cregan; and Miss Carrie E. Grahame is effective as Sheelah. Mr. W. E. Cottrill is in charge of the orchestra.

GLOUCESTER.—Palace.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—The Easter programme is full of good things. Signor and Mme. Eorelli are accorded a gratifying reception; the Three Zaracs on the triple bars are wonderfully smart; Charles Bignell proves an excellent comedian; and Williams and Warden, in their Irish cross-talk, score. The Ladderites present a clever act on unsupported ladders; the Spangelettis introduce clever dogs, a pony, a baboon, &c.; Miss Marie Beresford sings with taste; Mr. George Penn is an excellent Musical Nib; Vasey and Ramsey are good eccentric dancers; and Poole and Poole are responsible for a neat turn, including songs, comedy, and dancing. Miss Bertha Norwood is a refined soubrette; and the Woellhafs present a smart comedy act.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—Messrs. Power and Kirby's company is appearing here in the drama Man's Enemy. The drama abounds with thrilling incidents, and the various rôles are well filled by capable artists. Mr. W. A. Overton plays the part of Harry Stanton with great distinction; Mr. Wm. Jeans gives a capital representation as General Sir Arthur Stanton; Mr. Fred Owen gives a very fine character-study of Isaac Barnett; Mr. H. J. Kirby is seen to advantage as Count Lanski; Mr. John Power is to be complimented on his powerful portrayal of Tom Drake; Mr. Burt Cordyn is a capital P.C. Smithers; Mr. Chas. E. Johnson as Bill Saunders and Mr. F. A. Ellis as Fred Lisle are highly successful in their respective rôles; Mr. Frank Hedley is an amusing Adolphe; Miss Constance Medwyn's portrayal of the adventuress Sarah Drake is full of dramatic force and striking effect; Miss May Grayce charms the audience as Grace Leslie; and Miss Clara Reid is successful as Polly Harris, her songs being well received; and Miss Evelyn Geldard ably presents Mrs. Saunders.

GRAVESEND.—New Public Hall and Theatre. —Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company was here on Monday and Tuesday in The Country Girl. Mr. Bernard Vaughan as the Rajah of Bhong, Mr. W. O. Billington as Sir Joseph Verity, and Mr. C. Biddulph as Lord Anchester, all did well; whilst Mr. Michael D. Pitts as Geoffrey Chaloner sang tastefully; and as Barry, Mr. Arthur Staples created roars of laughter. The character of Marjory was well sustained by Miss Violet Leslie; and the Sophie of Miss Florence was a very artistic performance. The Princess was well enacted by Miss Harding; and as Nan, Miss Edith Maynard was the life and soul of the comedy. Other characters well enacted were Mr. Besley Beltran as Douglas Verity, Miss Florence Brewster as Mrs. St. Quintin, Miss Maude as Lady Anchester, and the Nurse of Miss Kitty Stone. The comedy was under the successful direction of Mr. Goodwin Woodward.

Grand Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—At the head of a good programme here appears Harriett Vernon, in her successful scena, Sunshine and Shadow. There are also Charlie Chard, a good comedian; Helm and Cozens, in their laughable comedy act, The Doctor and the Patient; Annie Casey, a bright comedienne; Leslie Race, a stirring vocalist; Childie Stuart, vivacious comedienne; and Les Rallis, a unique artist, with his monkey.

Rosherville Gardens.—Manager, Mr. A. E. Radcliffe.—A special holiday programme attracted thousands of holiday-makers to this popular resort. A café chantant was one of the principal amusements; and Herman, styled the modern Blondin, gave a wonderful tight-rope performance.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — Royal Aquarium. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—A welcome return visit is being paid by Mr. Chas. Macdona's principal company with The Toreador. As Pettifer, Mr. Richard Adams is most amusing, and dances with astonishing nimbleness and dexterity; Mr. Fred Thompson contributes a capital caricature as Sir Archibald Slackett; Augustus Trail is successfully portrayed by Mr. Herbert Willis; Mr. Sidney Granville makes a splendid Toreador; Mr. Henry Arthur is excellent as the Governor of Villaga; and Sammy Gigg is cleverly and humorously depicted by Mr. Robert Rous. Miss Leah Howard is a bright and vivacious Dora Selby; Mrs. Malton Hoppings finds an able exponent in Miss Gwen Clifford, who sings effectively; Miss Nina Carlton is admirable as Donna Teresa; and Dora Selby and Nancy Staunton are charmingly played by Miss Florence Wood and Miss Mabel Gregory.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—A capital programme has been provided by Mr. Gilbert, and is much appreciated by large audiences. The Seves give a wonderful display, the description of articles selected from the audience being accurate. Aerian and Ostara supply a clever and graceful aerial performance; Miss Yetta does extraordinary things, including a cake walk, on the tight-wire; Prince Ishmael and Mlle. Valeria give a mystic séance; the Dorians prove themselves expert gymnasts; Mlle. Rosini introduces her well-trained animals; the Cumberlands contribute a capital turn as trick cyclists; Miss Ada Webb and troupe give an enjoyable exposition of swimming; and the Boy Doodles supply any amount of fun.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Messrs. Polini and Maitland's company is here this week in The Coal King. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland as Tom Roberts gives an excellent rendering of that character; Mr. Chas. Whitlock as Sir Reginald Hartford is a decided success; Mr. Escott Robson as Walter Hartford is a typical exponent of villainy; and Dick Shirley is well represented by Mr. Frank Dalton. A deal of humour emanates from the efforts of Mr. Alfred Terris as Jim Williams and Miss Enid Ross in the character of Araminta. Miss Gertrude Valentine as Grace Shirley achieves an unqualified success; Miss Sinna St. Clair acts well as Mad Ann; and Miss Eveline North is good as Mrs. Baker.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—An excellent programme includes Coram, a clever ventriloquist, who meets with a hearty reception; the Sisters Terry are loudly applauded for their vocal efforts; Ted Curtis and his piccaninnies please immensely; Florence Deighton's vocal items are much appreciated; the Venola Brothers submit a smart gymnastic turn; the Three Panamas, in a pot-pourri act, are exceptionally smart; and the Empire pictures are, as usual, up to date.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—The Sisters Howard, in their clever mental telepathic act, are well received; the Brothers Robson amuse greatly with their knockabout business; Fred Herbert scores as a topical vocalist; and other good turns are Effie Stuart, Scotch comedienne and speciality dancer; Louis Kerno, vocal comedian and dancer; Madeline Rossiter, comedienne and dancer; and the Paviscope pictures complete.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—Mr. Junius Booth's dramatic version of Monte Cristo has repeated its former success here. Mr. Booth himself appears in the central character of Edmond Dantes, and his conception of Dumas' hero is admirable in every way; whilst as Mercedes, Miss B. Doyle realises to the full the emotional possibilities of the part. The conspirators, Danglers and Fernand, are played by Messrs. Augustin Bowerman and C. W. Crowe with due regard to the envious and jealous natures of Dantes' enemies. Mr. Beckett Bould is good as Nortier; and Mr. J. W. Braithwaite makes the most of the pathetic part of the Abbe. Amongst other members of the somewhat numerous company who contribute to the success of the play are Miss M. Ellis as Sophie, Miss Alice West as La Carconte, Mr. Walter Huron as Villeforte, Mr. Walter Manfree as Caderousse, and Mr. Leonard Marshall as Albert.

Curry's Tivoli.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The farce, A Trip to Chinatown, which is a condensed version of the musical comedy of that name, is one of the brightest and most laughable of its kind on the variety stage. The Howes give an interesting séance of mental telegraphy; Alf Gibson is scoring heavily as a comedian; W. H. Clemart gives a ventriloquial turn that presents novel features; the Cabiacs are acrobats with original business; Sinclair and Parr contribute an entertaining medley of Irish ballads; Dot Moss sings pleasing songs; and Fredk. Villiers presents artistically illustrated songs.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Shread; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Dr. Carl Hermann is attracting much attention by the exhibition of his powers in the science of electrical healing; Lillie Soutter is a highly popular comedienne; Zeta Gray accomplishes good vocal work in The Lancashire Lass; the Bostonians are a clever trio of American singers and dancers; Lilian Rigby introduces an excellent musical speciality; the Voldam Bros. are amusing acrobats; Will Poluski, jun., is a successful comedian; and Montague Biggs is a smart impersonator.

HALIFAX. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Messrs. Hallatt and Howard's principal company in Her Love Against the World has proved a most attractive holiday booking. The efforts put forth are of the best, and Mr. Walter Howard is to be commended for his skilful interpretation of Eric, Earl of Strathmere. His juvenile brother, Neilo, is figuratively enacted by Miss Rossie St. John; while Mr. W. H. Hallett makes his presence felt as Prince Othmar, as does Mr. Walter Langley as Prince Maurice. A delightful study of the Countess of Rassellyn emanates from Miss Blanche Steele, whose fine acting is spontaneously approved of. Two chic maids-in-waiting are found in Miss Lizzie Lennon and Miss Hettie Ferguson; a painstaking Austrian dancer is Miss Julie de Esco; while Miss Ellen Snow has a stupendous task to fulfill as Princess Iris, a part she has mastered to perfection. Other characters in the drama have been wisely allotted.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—A crowded and enthusiastic holiday audience gave Miss Hilda Jacobsen, who describes herself the brightest of all musical comedy stars, a rousing reception on Monday. Her business is of the best, the singing and dancing being superb. The appellation will undoubtedly take much wresting. Another exhilarating turn was contributed by Pip Powell and Katie Vesey in a musical absurdity, The New Woman, the witticisms being thoroughly enjoyed. The unique solo concertina player, Percy Honri, once more delighted his numerous admirers; Marriott Edgar, "the man in red," did likewise; Los Rupertos gave a wonderful equilibrium act; while Dan Filmer and Benno Adele were heartily applauded. Captain Maximilian Cruber's elephant, horse, and pony, in a speciality cake-walk and serpentine dances, brought the programme to a close.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—A gigantic bill is again put on here, headed by the all-time favourite, Marie Kendall, who gives all her latest successes smartly, embodied with many a quaint pose. Steve McCarthy has more than acquired the art of step-dancing; and Rich and Rich, comedians, extort many smiles. Elsie Roby in The Slavey's At Home; Luigi Salvino, a musical prodigy; the Three Pirmans, in their novelty act, Dans le Jardin; T. G. Edwards, an Australian baritone; together with James Mooney and Ida Holbein in a vaudeville intermezzo, complete a remarkably good entertainment.

HANLEY. — Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—The Easter attraction is Mr. Lewis Waller's company in Robin Hood. Mr. R. Minster is seen in the title-rôle, and his performance clever and artistic. Miss Marie Polini contributes a splendid reading of Lady Marion de Vaux; as Friar Tuck Mr. Augustus Wheatman is well placed, his playing of the part being first-class; Miss Katherine Hinton admirably enacts the part of Adela; Mr. Elliott Ball does well as Hugo; and the Sir Aylmer le Botelier of Mr. Val Glynn is a most praiseworthy interpretation. The songs introduced are admirable, Mr. Herbert Bunning having done his work masterly, such songs as "In the May-time," "The man and the maid," "Black Jack," &c., being excellent.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—The Boissetti Troupe head the bill this week in that funny sketch, The Bricklayers. The Schiavoni's Troupe in their comic acrobatic performance contribute a really clever exhibition, the feats of Miss Ella being truly wonderful; Ross and Lewis, in their sketch Fits and Misfits, present a turn of much excellence, the dancing of the male member being admirable; Alma Obrey is always welcome, and is successful; Bob Baxter sings a capital song, viz., "Come away," in good style; Lillian Warren in her illustrated songs is well received; Lilith, the mysterious flying lady, is a turn which creates much interest; and the pictures are up to date, one being shown of the Grand National.

HARROGATE. — Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith. — For Easter week Baron H. Harriss's company in The Prince of Pilsen is here. Miss Sophie Harris appears as Mrs. Maddison Crocker, and makes the most of her many opportunities; Mr. Harry Kilburn is a gifted comedian (Hans Wagner), and was greatly appreciated by the huge audience; Carl Otto, the real Prince of Pilsen, has an able exponent in the person of Mr. Frank Crimp, who possesses a fine voice; Mr. Roy Sidney is a good Lieut. Wagner. Miss Connie Leon, as Sidonie, the French maid, is a capital dancer, and receives many recalls for her "Zuyder Zee" song and dance. Mr. Rich was amusing as the French waiter, François; and Miss Albert as the Gibson Girl attracted much attention. The rest of a very long cast was in reliable hands. The piece is lavishly mounted and dressed, and Mr. Albert Vernon conducted an excellent orchestra, and Mr. Herbert Higgins was the courteous general-manager.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—Packed houses are nightly showing unmistakable signs of appreciation of the holiday programme submitted this week. Foremost in the list is Miss Georgette Thierry's sketch company in Nancy Sikes, an episode dramatised from Oliver Twist. Coralli, a Tyneside ventriloquist, is the recipient of marks of appreciation; Sadler and Ross, patter comedians, and Tom Henderson, comedian and dancer, add considerably to the humour of the evening; James Kurry, who has made such a great success in pantomime this season, continues to please; the Belmores (Bertha and Kittie), smart comediennes and neat, expert dancers, please greatly; the Four Maisanos, in Continental musical eccentricities, are loudly encored; and the Bioscope is more than usually interesting.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—The Easter attraction here was provided by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and Wood Ingram's company in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, on a three day's visit. The house was literally packed on Monday, and a hearty welcome was given to Miss Decima Moore upon her entrance as Peggy, a rôle she played with most perfect naturalness. No less a success was the companion rôle, Jimmy, played by Mr. Lionel Glenister. Excellent support was rendered by Miss Naomi Neilson as Mrs. O'Mara, Miss Kate Wingfield as Lady Crackenthorpe, and the Misses Eva Lonsdale and Estelle Despa, and Messrs. F. G. Bailey and Hendum Bland. The comedy was preceded by the dramatic episode The Lady who Dwelt in the Dark. On Thursday and remainder of the week Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company were billed with The Freedom of Suzanne, Miss Mabel Love in the principal rôle.

Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Boucicault's sensational drama After Dark is being played here by Mr. J. D. Hunter's company. A characteristic sketch of the wily Jew, Dicey Morris, is given by Mr. Hunter; Mr. Charles Hawker gives a polished interpretation of Sir George Medhurst; a telling embodiment of Gordon Chumley comes from Mr. Howell Seguin; Mr. E. W. Maule Cole distinguishes himself in the part of Chandos Bellingham; A very intelligent representation of Old Tom is given by Mr. Herbert Maule; a graceful impersonation of Eliza is presented by Miss Violet Graham; and Miss Violet Agnew very naturally and tenderly portrays the character of Rose Egerton.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The holiday programme is opened by the swell comedian, Mr. Mike Asher. The Currie Trio exhibit some smart dancing; the unique juggler, Primavesi, is remarkably clever; the Bioscope shows some excellent films; Miss Edie Anderson, comedienne and dancer, is highly appreciated; some telling scenes, extremely well acted, from the works of Dickens are introduced by Miss Eva Hope and Jack Wayho; Happy Attwood, comedian, soon ingratiates himself with his audience; some nimble and diverting comedy juggling is shown by Derenda and Green; the Sisters Reno are pretty and graceful dancers; and the Ford and Barris Trio, legmania dancers and bone soloists, contribute a good turn.

St. Leonards Pavilion Theatre.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—A return visit of Charley's Aunt has been much appreciated by the holiday folk. A good sketch of Sir Francis Chesney is given by Mr. Sydney Compton; a natural impersonation of Stephen Spettigue is contributed by Mr. Walter Beaumont; the three undergraduates, Jack Chesney, Charles Wykeman, and Lord Babberly, as represented by Messrs. Hastings Lynn, Richard B. Mason, and Spencer Trevor, exhibit humorous characteristics; Miss Lena MacNaughton in the title-rôle gives an intelligent performance; Miss Bertha Northam plays the part of Kitty Verdun very prettily; and as Spettigue's niece, Miss Ida Vynall acts with refreshing simplicity. An excellent rendering of Ela Delahay is given by Miss Ruth Nightingale.

HOYLAND.—Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company opened on Monday to an excellent house with A Traitor Prince Mr. George M. Montanini is a powerful exponent of Prince Roa Dalmirez; and Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe is a manly Lieut. F. Derrick. Mr. Dudley Wynton, in the dual rôle of Richard Vane and Colonel Vane, is very good; and an excellent Cara is found in Mr. James Sherwin. The comedy element is ably supplied by Messrs. D. Hallam and T. Musgrove as Billy Bright and the Hon. Bobby Dalrymple, well supported by Miss Netta Mitchell as Pansy Blossom and Miss Clara O'Grady as Mrs. Blossom. As Lola Vane Miss Rose Routledge is all that can be desired; and Miss Florence Delmar, in the rôle of Vashti, displays great histrionic ability.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard has put on the road a fine company for the presentation of Mr. Tree's production of Oliver Twist. The various episodes are cleverly handled, notably by Mr. Stanley Drewitt as the crafty and treacherous Fagan, Miss Edith Anton Laing as the devoted Nancy, and Mr. Arthur Escort as the rough and cruel Bill Sikes. Miss Eva Stuart is dainty and refined as Rose Maylie; Mr. W. H. Rotherham "doubles" very effectively as Monks and Mr. Grimwig; Mirrie Omar shows talent as the boy Oliver; and the less important parts are all carefully filled. The piece is well dressed and mounted.

Hippodrome, Ltd. — Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A big bill is provided for the packed holiday houses. At the top is a closely and cleverly-written one-act piece, by Cecil Raleigh, entitled The Doom of Delilah. The intensely dramatic episode is capably played by Miss Lilian Dundas and Messrs. Lawrence Leyton and Harry Kendal. Other turns are Bert Williams, a bright ventriloquial humorist; James Stewart, in his clever sketch, The Tramp at the Piano; Mlle. Rose, contralto vocalist; Julia Kent and Alex. Keith, duologue artists; Miss Lola Patey, a pretty ballad singer; J. W. Hawtrey, an acceptable actor-vocalist; Miss Rosa Tilley, comedienne; Tom Carrick, dame comedian; Keen and Waller, in their clever and eccentric acrobatic performance; and new pictures on the ever-popular Bioscope.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Easter attraction is Mrs. Russ Whytal, whose present engagement is for a fortnight. The versatility of this charming actress was shown on Monday, when she appeared in the afternoon as Juliet and in the evening as Lady Teazle—an impersonation both delightful and spirituel. Sir Peter was pleasantly portrayed by Mr. G. S. Titheradge. Mrs. Whytal is as well able to paint the sombre shades of tragedy as the sunnier-hued of comedy. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice, with many clever innovations, was produced; and As You Like It figured on Wednesday's bill.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—An extraordinary attraction for Easter is Peter Pan, Mr. Barrie's beautiful story. Miss Zena Dare has made the hit of the Grand season, much as her reputation had preceded her; she comes very high up, and fully justifies what one had heard about her. That sterling actor Mr. G. W. Anson finds plenty of scope for his powers as Smee; whilst Mr. Lionel MacKinder as the Pirate Captain has a capital part, which he fills with distinction.

Alexandra Theatre.—Mortons, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—A False Wife is just the play for a Bank Holiday audience, and there is no denying the fact that at the "Alex." Bank Holiday audiences are very real. The play, if built on conventional lines, is one with strong powers of attraction. It is from the pen of Mr. F. Marriott Watson, who finds his opportunity as the villain, painting the character in sufficiently lurid colours. Miss Florence E. Florence as the adventuress shows that she has in no small degree histrionic talent that only needs a little development, and one will watch with interest her future. Miss Annie Hylton as Agnes and Miss Ivy Chandos as Bessie are to be commended.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The Eugene Family of gymnasts give a sensational performance; Griffiths Bros. cause much amusement with their very clever business; a very versatile artist is Miss Odeyne Spark, who possesses a highly cultivated voice, and sings, dances, and recites to perfection; the MacDonald Trio appear in a nice musical show; and Sam Shipley is also a favourite. Beatrice Worth, a favourite burlesque vocalist, and Dave O'Toole complete the bill.

THE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett. Mike S. Whallen is as big a favourite as ever; Fred Elton gives an excellent piano scena; Speedwell is a most talented artist in the sketching line; the Aurora troupe of cyclists gave a clever performance; Herbert Shelley appears in a smart quick-change artist; Daisy Mayer is a clever coon vocalist and dancer; Azella Wilson a graceful gymnast; and Graham and Webb Bros. also contribute a pleasing entertainment.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson. —Animated pictures are drawing crowded houses.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Good business is being done here this week by Mr. Bulmer's company in When Woman Hates. Mr. Percy Horton as Lieut. Frank Rokeby is well applauded for his spirited acting; the unscrupulous nature of Godfrey Lawton is graphically depicted by Mr. Gordon Robey; and Mr. Fred Dalby plays with quiet dignity the rôle of General Sir Henry Rokeby. In the character of Cora Daintry, Miss Chrissie Dunbar displays exceptional histrionic ability; Miss Gladys Hawthorne makes a sweet and sympathetic Edith Rokeby; Miss Ethel Whiteby gives a finished performance as Marie; and Little Zara Dare plays intelligently as Nelly. The humorous elements are in the capable hands of Mr. Evan Roland as Patrick O'Brien, Mr. Walter Clarke as Alphonse Picolot, and the Misses Mary Dalby and Sybil Haughton as Mrs. Sally Potts and Miss Sally Potts respectively.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Crowds have been attracted here this week by Jasper Redfern's talking, singing, and animated pictures and colour photography. Dennis McCarthy scores in his latest songs; Lena Page and Edna Francis are highly successful as vocalists; and Bostock creates roars of laughter by his quaint ditties. The other turns include Cristo, a clever magician; Dean and Lester, coon vocalists and dancers; and F. W. Barrett, comedian.

ILKESTON.—QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—The first position on the bill is held by Harley and Melton, comedians and dancers, who have a good reception; Yettmah, with his Japanese magic, remains another week; Fred Harrison receives marked attention as a character comedian; F. H. Dundas, actor vocalist, and Nellie Elder, Tyrolean vocalist, are successful; Dan Harley, comedian, and Fred Melton, comedian, give able support.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. Augustine Knight and company are appearing here this week in The Assassin, in which Mr. Knight himself exhibits acting of a high order in the rôle of Prince Demetri. The part of Countess Wanda is handled in a capable manner by Miss Ella Vane; whilst that of Ipanoff is well represented by Mr. Edward E. Ashby. Mr. Chauncy Morris gives a good reading of General Nicol; and Mr. Theo Balfour is clever as Duke Karl. Mr. Edwin Jenner is excellent as Captain O'Neil; and Miss Hettie Senior as Connie Jonathan wins the favourable opinion of the house. Miss Frances Waring is well chosen for the part of Nita; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond as Baron Alphonse, Mr. Tom J. Taylor as Peter, Mr. George Kempt as Evangie, and Miss Marie E. Robertson as Katrina are responsible for some very acceptable comedy.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—For the Easter week, Mr. Jerome K. Jerome's piece, Tommy, was produced, with Miss Annie Hughes in the title-rôle. This accomplished actress was well supported by Mr. Rupert Leslie as Dick Danvers, Mr. Evelyn Vernon as Peter Hope, and Mr. Willie Haslett as Peter Clodd. The ladies' parts were well rendered by Miss Winifred Pearson and others. The curtain-raiser was the well-known farce, Good-for-Nothing Nan.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—A varied and attractive programme was provided for the holidays. The chief item was the appearance of Herr Grais, with his trained baboons, whose marvellous performances were received with general and unstinted applause. The other chief turns included Alf. Chester, a droll comedian and singer; the Four Jumels, clever instrumentalists; Mlle. Haydee's Bijou Marionettes; E. J. Sheldon, the "Man in White"; Walter Purvis and company, in a sketch called Cauliflower Joe; and the Weldrums, in an interlude, called The Silly Burglar.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr Jerold E. Reed.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and company are paying a welcome visit here with the drama, entitled A Warning to Women. Mr. Norman B. Cannon gives a manly performance of the part of Fergus McNaughton; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter is an excellent Lord Eversleigh; and Mr. Henry Rutland a vigorous Squire Kennion. Mr. Richard Vane proves equal to the part allotted to him of Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. C. Watson Mill makes the part of Shaun quite a character-study; and Mr. Henry P. Kennedy gives great assistance in the rôle of Mike McQuade. Great credit is due to Miss Edith Rutland for the care she bestows on the part of Miles O'Moore; Miss Rosalind Tate supplies an admirable portrayal of Moira Kennion; Miss Grace Barton is sympathetic as Sheila Kennion; and Miss Ellen Beverley is well placed as Molly O'Moore; and the same remark applies to Miss Elinor Glover as Hildred.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ernest Adrim.—This place of amusement has been reopened for a short season, and the following artists are appearing this week:—The Four Louberts, in a pantomimical acrobatic sketch, entitled Uninvited, which is well received; Keane Harker, eccentric comedian; Winnie Wentworth, comedienne; the old Jarrow favourite, W. S. Hutchinson, ventriloquist; Henderson, the blind concertina soloist; Will Hughes, boy coon singer and sand-dancer; John E. Lennard, character comedian; and the Sauteron Wonders.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris.—Mr. Edward Marris reopened this house last Saturday night with his own company in The Dandy Doctor. There can be no doubt that Mr. Marris, who has this week taken over the theatre, will prove a most popular lessee, and his clever versatility as author, actor, and manager, augurs well for his success. As Melchisadek Brown Mr. Marris at once placed himself upon a friendly footing with his patrons, making an undoubtedly big hit; Mr. George Blunt as Colonel Pendred is sufficiently fierce; Mr. Brunston Williams is an efficient Dr. Vandyke; Mr. Walter Nugent as Bertie Bolingbroke caused much mirth; and Mr. Owen Dacroy as Drycoff, Mr. J. P. Twist as P.C. Quick, and Mr. Ernest Pierce as Henson do good work. Pretty Miss Ethel Ward is a vivacious Ivy Pendred; and Miss Florence Smithers causes roars of laughter.

KENDAL.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Managers, Messrs. Butler and Chorley.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company is presenting The 'Varsity Belle. Mr. James Danvers as Professor Septimus Stoney is funny, and is ably supported by Miss Josephine Ellis in the title-rôle. Miss J. Sullivan earns an enthusiastic encore for her rendering of "Dreamland."

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—An excellent programme has resulted in crowded houses the first three nights this week. Ara, Zebra, and Vora, in "Indian Pastimes," were accorded a vociferous reception; Les Blancs gave a clever comic performance on the triple bars; and Staffo was responsible for an excellent comedy juggling turn. Grant and Allen were very funny in their burlesque; Miss Daisy Reed danced exceedingly well; and Fred Elmont proved a popular comedian. As usual, Jury's Pictures were a great success.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—The season was brought to a close on Easter Monday, when Mr. Burton, the popular acting-manager, took a well-earned benefit. Mr. Burton's popularity was evinced by the large and fashionable audience that turned out to witness the programme, which was a varied and attractive one. The interesting feature of the entertainment was the appearance of Mr. Burton himself, assisted by Mrs. Burton and daughter, in the one-act comedy, On Delicate Ground, and in three selected tableaux from Richard III. Others who assisted successfully were Mr. John Clyde and his company in The Irish Doctor; Mr. E. W. McClellan, tenor vocalist; Miss Nellie Hutchison, and the McCarrons, dancers. The orchestra, which has greatly improved under the lately-appointed conductor, Mr. J. W. Snape, gave valuable assistance.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—A big holiday attraction was provided here in Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company, who opened on Saturday evening with East Lynne. Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer appeared with her usual success as Lady Isabel; and Mr. F. Skein did full justice to the part of Sir Francis Levison. The répertoire also includes From Washerwoman to Duchess, Mary Queen of Scots, Hamlet, School for Scandal, and Jane Shore.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Martin.—A mammoth programme arranged for the holiday week has been rewarded by crowded houses. The Columbia Comedy Team, operatic and humorous vocalists, head the bill; Mabel Le Roy sings exceedingly well; and Vincent, acrobatic performer, is smart. The Boston Twins are well received, and Defidardy has some good patter; Correze and Keith, comedy jugglers, and the Brady and Johnson sketch combination fairly bring down the house. The Hippograph is still an attraction. Ernie Myers, comedian, has a gratifying reception, and Miss Lilly Lonsdale, vocalist, is recalled again and again.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Mr. Ian Maclaren and his Shakespearean company are appearing here with great success in a répertoire of the immortal bard's works. On Saturday Hamlet was played to an appreciative audience. Mr. Ian Maclaren acted Hamlet in a most impressive manner; whilst Mr. W. S. Hartford gave an intelligent rendering of Claudine. A graceful and pathetic Ophelia was found in Miss Katherine Harrington; whilst Mr. J. N. Bryant's Horatio was a commendable performance. Other impersonations calling for favourable mention were the Polonius of Mr. Arthur Fayne, the Laertes of Mr. Frank Royde, and the Queen of Miss Edith Coleman. On Easter Monday the company appeared in The Free Lance, a notice of which appears in another column. The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, and Macbeth have also been played during the week.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The Belle of New York again appears here, and has filled the house to overflowing with appreciative holiday crowds. Mr. George Musgrove's company are talented. Mr. John Doran figures well as Harry Bronson; Papa Brown has a capable representative in Mr. Paddy Duprez; and Mr. Joseph R. Tate is repeating his diverting creation of the polite lunatic. Mr. Frank Lawton re-appears in his original part, and his whistling is as usual a most popular feature. The Belle is portrayed in charming style by Miss Empsie Bowman; a clever study of the chic Fifi goes to the credit of Miss Lily Maxwell; and Cora Angelique is well acted by Miss Winnie Browne. Other leading parts are well played by Mr. Alfred Sandoe, Mr. Walter Uridge, and Miss Florence Hersee.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character holds the boards here. Miss Alice Bracewell is applauded for a talented portrayal of the central figure of Molly Vernon, and she is capitally supported by a good company, of whom Mr. Stanley S. Gordon, Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle, and Miss Emmie Barton are particularly prominent members.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—La Milo's beautiful classic poses have aroused great enthusiasm. That clever quintette of entertainers, the Delevines, fill the bottom of the bill with conspicuous success; the Bros. Lang are screamingly funny with an eccentric knockabout act; Gwennie Hasto finds a big reception for her clever speciality dancing. The vocal contributions of Godfrey James, a real singing collier, are a popular line; Miss Gladys Mavius pleases with attractive song and dance; and acceptable turns are also furnished by Harry Lawson, comedian; Harold Hughman, mimic; and Carrie Joy, comedy artist.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Some beautiful and artistic posings by the famous Spanish artist, Irma Lorraine, are a feature of this week's bill. Dora Lyric is a popular comedienne, and this week enhances a big local reputation. Martinengo achieves notable success with vocal and instrumental contributions; an amusing comedy sketch is cleverly done by the Gregson Trio; Maxford and O'Neill are a pair of smart comedians and patterers; whilst Lloyd Morgan, comedian; Marie Jones and company, in a clever protean act; Johnson and Pelham, with comedy pot-pourri; and Percy Johnson, comedian, also make a successful appearance.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Fred Karno's company, with the extravaganza, Saturday to Monday, is a popular holiday attraction here. The Four Rios achieve success with a remarkably fine gymnastic turn. That popular artist, Ada Fawn, enhances a big reputation; Walter Emerson is to the fore with smart new items in the comedy line; and the eccentric contributions of Spencer and Marks are a successful feature. Of the rest, Sam Morrison, vocalist; Dan Robans, operatic tenor; and Gus Hindell, comedian, distinguish themselves in their respective lines.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Alburtus and Jessie Millar provide the top-of-the-bill turn this week with an excellent comedy and instrumental speciality. The popular comedian, J. W. Hall, is again a strong favourite; and in a similar line Jack Crawley and Chas. Russell are also doing well. The Lambert and Hands Trio are very successful with an attractive song-scena; the Ringling Trio are eccentrics of much merit; and further capital entertainment is subscribed by the La Donays, song illustrators; and Bertha Winder, the dancing marvel.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—After being closed for five nights, this theatre re-opened on Saturday evening with Mr. Milton Bode's company, in A Chinese Honeymoon. The whole production is a particularly smart one, the artists engaged being well up to their work, and the lavishness displayed in the dressing and staging is also a feature. New songs and business have been introduced, and altogether the phenomenal success achieved augurs well for a most successful future. There is a full London chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. D. J. Damant. Mr. Rudolph Kloss as the Emperor, who has a most imposing figure, is very good; and both Mr. P. Allerton Turner as Chippie Chop and Mr. Leonard May as Li Hung give excellent impersonations. Mr. Tom Jennings is admirable as Tom Hatherton; Mr. George Rydon scores a distinct success as Mr. Pineapple, the same remark applying to Miss Eva Bevington as Mrs. Pineapple; Miss Gwennie Harcourt must be accorded great praise for a particularly clever impersonation of the waitress, Fi-Fi; Miss Nancy Rossiter is a delightful Princess Soo-Soo, and sings with most successful results; Miss Maud Adams is good as Mrs. Brown. Attractive and pretty bridesmaids are forthcoming in Miss Dorothy Radcliffe, Miss Iris Roy, Miss Kathleen Kerr, and Miss Elsie Skillings. Mr. P. Allerton Turner is responsible for the excellent stage-management, and Mr. Alfred Munro is the general-manager for the company.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; business-manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A strong holiday attraction is presented here this week by Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's company, in the domestic play, The Shadow of a Crime, which has a good reception. Miss Nellie Howitt plays the part of Loyale Norman in an artistic manner; and Mr. W. Ruddle-Brown as Harry Bullington well maintains his reputation as a sound actor; Mr. Hugh Newburn is a success as Ralph Esmond; and both Mr. Fred J. Little as Jim Todd and Mr. Sidney T. Russell as Tom Brown give popular and amusing impersonations. Miss Nita Langford as Mrs. Thomas Brown and Miss Bertha St. Ruth as Sarah are good; Mr. J. B. Murray does well as Sir Edward Bullington; and Miss Nellie Moore as Dora Bullington is deserving of much praise.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Huge holiday audiences are highly delighted with the programme here this week, at the head of which is Mr. George Gray and company, who have been specially retained, and are presenting the dramatic sketch, Parson Gray, V.C., which is both staged and played in admirable style. Mr. Gray portrays the principal rôle in his inimitable manner, and the success of the whole performance is most pronounced. Lily Burnand, whose songs are rendered with a vivacity and "go" that is quite infectious, secures a fine reception; Nellie Coleman, whose extremely clever make-up as a low comedian is really astonishing, keeps the audience in the merriest mood. Howard and Harris, in The Adventures of a Happy Hooligan, give a most enjoyable and popular turn; the Three Tauberts are past-masters of the zylophone, their selections giving much pleasure; Dome, the comedy clay-modeller, raises the heartiest laughter; Frank Lyne is one of the smartest of humorists; Fanny Erris is a capital comedienne. The American Bioscope is also a feature, with some excellent films. The special overture, "Songs of the Season," is composed by Mr. John W. Lowe, the musical director, and is very tuneful.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—At this vaudeville theatre, where sketches are so popular, the management have secured Lloyd-Phillips' company, in the military drama, Betrayed Friendship, which is presented in good style, the principal parts being played by Mr. Syd Leslie, Mr. N. W. Phillips, Mr. T. B. Lloyd, Miss Lizzie Edare, and Miss Ivy Howard. The Albano Family of musical experts meet with a very popular reception. The Custances are seen to great advantage in their entertaining sketch, A Game for Two; Bert Goldin is a capital comedian and a very fine clog-dancer; Will Lear, a comedian with a novel style, who arouses hearty laughter; the Bros. Lennetti are excellent acrobats; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope makes a big success.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. G. Stanyon.—Mr. Waller Jeffs' New Century Pictures opened their season here on Monday afternoon. They comprise the very latest films, and the marvellous effects secured by the new process of polychromatic photography is shown. The humorous subjects are accompanied by roars of laughter, and "Japanese Boats Tossing on the Rapids," "A Tour in Cornwall with Bostock and Wombwell's Circus," "The Great Fox Hunt," &c., are received with unstinted approbation. The Four Sisters of Erin also introduce a capital vocal and musical turn, and Miss Tiller renders an illustrated song. Mr. Walter Rozelle lucidly explains the various subjects, which are presented with novel effects, and accompanied by appropriate music.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—The popular musical comedy The Earl and the Girl is paying a first visit here, and is proving a great attraction as presented by Mr. William Greet's company. Mr. Thomas Kennard is a distinct success as Dick Wargrave, his songs being greatly appreciated. Miss Gertrude Simpson gives a capital representation of Elphin Haye, and her rendering of the song "In Zanzibar" is loudly applauded; Miss Ida Stratham makes a charming Daisy Fallowfield; Mr. Alfred Donohoe as Jim Cheese never fails to keep the amusement at a high pitch; Mr. Leslie Owen makes a capital Hon. Crewe Boodle; Miss Lina Hicks is seen to advantage as Liza Shoddam; Miss K. Gerrard as Mrs. Shimmering Black and Miss Winnie Plumpton as Miss Virginia Bliss deserve special mention; Mr. E. A. Plumpton scores as the American lawyer, Downham; and Mr. G. Hayes and Mr. Sam Lysons are very good in their respective parts of Bunker Bliss and Mr. Talk.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The ever-popular Florodora has been the attraction here, well produced by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. The peculiar personality of Anthony Tweedlepunch is excellently represented by Mr. Alf. E. Passmore; the rôles of Lord Abercoed and Cyrus Gilfain are effectively interpreted by Messrs. H. V. Cropton and Stanley White; while Mr. Edwin Oxlee and Mr. Harold Perry are both good in their respective parts of Leandro and Captain Donegal. Dolores is exceedingly well portrayed by Miss Daisy Lake; Misses Kate Leicester and Lily Gullick contribute catchy songs and dances as Lady Holyrood and Angela Gilfain; and in the important matters of chorus, costumes, and stage-setting, commendation is due to all concerned.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—In its way, The Little Stranger, Michael Morton's fantastic novelty, is certainly unique, and immensely amused a big Bank Holiday audience on Monday. Master Edward Garratt as the pseudo Baby is, of course, the life and soul of the piece; Mr. C. Stewart is good as the Captain; the General and Sir George Peacock are ably contrasted by Mr. S. Lathbury and Mr. A. Lucy; and Mr. C. Hanbury as Howard, Mr. C. A. Doran as the Spiritualist, and Mr. F. Epitaux as Eames, all do extremely well. Miss Dora Hole as the mother is quite successful.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—A big holiday bill has attracted overflowing audiences. The chief number is Mr. J. H. Darnley in the condensed farce, What a Night, which is crowded with genuine fun. The programme includes two marvellous gymnasts in the Craggs, a party of smart instrumentalists in the Transfields, and entertaining items also by Vera Mayne, D. W. Watson, Lise Rolland, Minnie Fenton, John Macauley, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. A. E. Vaughan; Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—The Parisian Animated Picture Company are again occupying the boards of the above theatre with an entire change of pictures, which are up to date in all branches. Miss Vi Epiett, in her songs, "Good-bye, sweet Marie" and "My Rickshaw Queen," greatly contribute to the varied programme; as also does Mr. Ernest Ellerslie in his tableaux song, "Alone on the raft."

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—On Saturday, March 30, Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company commenced a four nights' engagement in Mr. Hall Caine's play, The Christian. The Hon. John Storm, as depicted by Mr. Jack Fortescue, is a part thoroughly enacted throughout, and he deserves every credit; Miss Laura Walker as Glory Quayle is excellent, her many phases of life being faithfully portrayed in each and every case; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman is a good Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Percy Johnson (Parson Quayle) and Mr. Ernest Stidwell (Horatio Drake), are well placed; Miss Constance (Mrs. Callender), Mr. Harry Colbeck (Father Lamplugh), Mr. Phipps Stanley (Archdeacon Wealthy), Mr. Anthony Rawles (the Faro King), and Miss Aggie Royal (Aggie Jones), complete a powerful cast.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Miss Elaine Verner's company, including the great Welsh actor, Mr. Harding Thomas, is here with The Middleman, Saints and Sinners, and Judal. Mr. Harding Thomas enacts the part of Cyrus Blenkarn in a powerful and successful manner; Joseph Chandler is in the able hands of Mr. E. Rayson Cousens; Mr. Edward de Vere is very good as Captain Julian Chandler; Miss Elaine Verner as Mary is most sympathetic; and the part of Nancy is exceedingly well portrayed by Miss Ada Clarke. Mr. Edgar Kent is a good Batty Todd.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The management here have decided to lower the prices of admission to all parts of the house to half the ordinary prices, and the new arrangement came into operation on Bank Holiday, when a crowded house witnessed a return visit of Sherlock Holmes. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart showed to great advantage in the title-rôle, and was warmly received for a most careful and convincing study. Supporting him were Messrs. W. F. Sterling, Stanley Logan, James Skea, Ernest Gray, Edward Mervyn, and the Misses Constance Leigh, Rosalie Notrelle, and Lindsay Fincham.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. F. Freeland.—This popular house was packed to repletion on Monday. Besides the beautiful series of animated pictures, we have this week the Five M.P.'s, musical experts; Miss Daisy Dimple, vocalist; and Stelling and his canine partner, Kiswoski.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—The London Fireman was well received at this theatre on Monday. Miss Nelly Shirley as Ida Curtis makes a womanly heroine; Miss Waddington and Miss Sinclair as Gladys Fleming and Grace Curtis respectively are pleasing; and Mr. E. Garside portrays Ratty successfully. Mr. H. Humber does well as Viscount Fleming.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. H. Gatley.—A good all-round company, under the direction of Mr. F. J. Webb, is successfully presenting The Hour of Her Triumph here. Mr. Fred J. Webb as Eugene Harbury is clever and vigorous; as Rose Denton Miss Barbara Gott acts with grace and ability; Mr. Harry Stuart depicts Harold Clavering in a praiseworthy manner; Mr. Clifton Earle is smart as Jack Vernon; Mr. Louis Nanton as Ben Brodie, Mr. J. Stuart as Roscrus, and Miss Hetty Gale as Jenny Jinks, are most amusing. Miss M. D. Smith as Nellie Clavering and Miss Mamie Stanton as Linda Denton, both do well; and Miss Lallah Price as Sal Soaker is good.

MAIDENHEAD.—PAVILION PLEASURE GARDENS. —Proprietor, Mr. G. Gude.—A capital al fresco entertainment is provided here. Dan Idle is the embodiment of boisterous fun, and keeps the audience in continuous laughter; Rene, the girl juggler, provides a pleasing turn; Charles Douglas is most entertaining, both in song and story; Roy Beavis has a happy way of amusing while he deceives; and a capital finish is provided by Leslie and Player, comedy duettists and patterers. Mr. Gude announces his intention to open for the season on May 6. Miss Adelaide Twort (balladist) and Miss Gertie Lovedale (comedian and dancer), who were great favourites last year, are re-engaged.

MAIDSTONE.—CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Beslee.—The Margate stock company is drawing crowded houses here this week with Caste. Special mention must be made of Mr. Wallis Clark as Eccles, Mr. A. Austin Leigh as Captain Hawtree, Mr. Richard Trieve as Sam Gerridge, and Miss Mabel Archdall as Polly.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. S. Baskerville.—A good holiday programme is being submitted here, headed by Otto Menotti, in his daring and sensational motor-bicycle act; Harry Freeman is a popular comedian; Toch and Tard are amusing in their aerial comedy act; Kitty Clover and company appear in an amusing sketch; Will Cornish is an accomplished musician; the Sisters Lunelle are smart dancers; and Miss Connie Milton, comedienne, and the bioscope, complete the bill.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Captain Cecil Clayton.—Excellent holiday fare is to be found in the presentation by Mr. Gilbert Payne's company of The Honeymoon. In the comedy part of Nathaniel Noodle Mr. Payne is excellently placed; Mr. Fred Fulton gives a capable interpretation of Archie Mashington; as Jack Armstrong Mr. Leslie Erle is successful; Miss Pattie Fairley is a vivacious Madge Armstrong; Miss Lillian Ramsdale is excellent as Eweretta Noodle; and as Stella Le Brunn Miss Nellie Dyson is admirable.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Her Nameless Child is being presented here by Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company. In the rôle of Anthony Ford Mr. J. W. Evelyn plays well; Mr. H. Evelyn is well placed as Arthur Ford; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne admirably represents the part of Lord Henry Woodville; and the comedy element is capably looked after by Mr. Fred Danvers as Tom Rivers, and Miss Florence Hall as Bessie Brooks. Miss Grace Jones capably presents the character of Lady Sybil; and Miss Pattie Hastings is excellent as Phyllis.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Fox.—Last Saturday night Mr. Herbert Barr's company opened a week's engagement with a répertoire of plays. On Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday Life was presented. Mr. Herbert Barr as Jack Lockhart was excellent; Mr. Will Sherlock was a capable Zac Krabbe; Mr. A. B. Lyons gives an admirable representation of Joe Pippet; Miss Dorothy Oswald is well placed as Beatrice Ferrars; Miss Maudie Vincent is a successful Jess; and as Mrs. Moriarty Miss Eva Shaw is effective.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Stage and Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—This house reopened after the Lenten recess on Saturday with a strong holiday attraction, provided by Mr. Norman Macowan's company, in Monsieur Beaucaire. The piece was capitally produced, the acting throughout being of the highest order. The title-rôle was admirably sustained by Mr. Norman Macowan, and he was ably supported by Miss Violet Sterne as Lady Mary Carlisle. Mr. Murray Hathorn was seen to distinct advantage as the Duke of Winterset; and Mr. Harold Weston was good as Major Molyneaux. Mr. Sydney R. Palfrey was a success as Mr. Rakell; and the same remark applies to Mr. George Traill as Mr. Bicksett. Mr. P. Ramsey Forman did excellently as Captain Badger; and Mr. Robert Entwistle as Beau Nash, Mr. Sinclair Holden as Lord Townbreak, Mr. Henry Armstrong as Mr. Bantison, Mr. Erik Rooke as Joliffe, and Mr. Hans Schlesinger in the dual rôle of Marquis de Mirepoix and François, were respectively good. Miss Mary Masters was a charming Lucy Rellerton, Miss Mabel Adams a satisfactory Mrs. Mabsley, Miss Lester Stephens a good Lady Rellerton, Miss Isabel Hathorn meritorious as Miss Prestbury, and Miss Evelyn Victor and Miss Izzard all that could be wished as Miss Paitelot and the Countess of Greenbury. On Tuesday evening A Marriage of Convenience was given; but, with the exception of Friday evening, the first-played piece has remained in the bill for the rest of the week.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The management here have arranged a very attractive programme, and on Easter Monday both houses held packed and delighted audiences. Lew Loman, swell comedian, was boisterously received; the Cecilias, in their refined musical act, were given quite an enthusiastic ovation; and the Tom Davis Trio, in their daring and sensational whirling the whirl on motor-cycles in mid-air, created quite a furore. Fred Collins, Scotch comedian, proved most amusing; and in "Clito" was presented a most realistic reproduction of artistic statuary. The animated pictures are exceptionally good.

JETTY EXTENSION.—Proprietors, Margate Pier and Harbour Company; Secretary, Mr. Theo. Golder.—The special holiday attraction here has been the engagement of Mr. Tom Clare's Comedy Concert Company. Miss Gertrude Snow, soprano, has delighted all hearers; Miss Georgie Esmund, contralto, has sung well; and Mr. Arthur Mortimer, tenor, has carried all before him, his songs being encored over and over again. Mr. Stanley Kirby, baritone, has also been a strong favourite; Miss Jessie Jolly has well acted up to her name by being one of the most delightful comediennes one would wish to hear. Mr. Fred Milner, humorist, has completed the company.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—An excellent holiday programme is provided here, and attracts large houses. Harry Tate's company is responsible for endless amusement with the absurdity Fishing; Horace Jones, Welsh comedian, has a flattering reception; Athas and Collins are an attractive comedy couple; Cicarde is a smart juvenile juggler; Miss Nellie Stewart is a delightful comedienne, and obtains considerable applause; Sibb and Sibb are clever trapeze artists; S. B. Athol is excellent in his vocal production; and "Dreamland" and an effective display of bioscope pictures complete the bill.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—A really good programme here includes the Testo Brothers, in a humorous musical and comedy act; Barney Noble is successful with his songs; Tony Spring affords amusement as the jumping scarecrow; the Sisters Hypatia are refined duettists and dancers; and other artists include Benson and Waite, Al. Tasker (ball puncher), and Olive Veno (burlesque actress and clog dancer), the biograph showing some fine films.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company is this week presenting The Golden Ladder. Mr. Wm. Clayton gives a refined and intelligent rendering of the Rev. Frank Thornhill; Mr. J. Milne-Taylor cleverly depicts the villainous Michael Severn, whose accomplice in M. Peranza is ably played by Mr. Douglas Howard; Mr. Fred Archer is an excellent Jim Dixon; Mr. Fred Mace is well placed as John Grant; Miss Elsie Marriott Watson is sympathetic and womanly in her interpretation of the heroine, Lilian Grant; and Miss Theresa Haynes plays excellently as Mrs. Dixon. Smart comedy is provided by Mr. Fred May as Samuel Peckaby and Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Frank Lindo and his company, in the domestic drama Home, Sweet Home, is here this week. Miss Marion Wakeford fills the leading rôle admirably, playing the part of Joan with naturalness; as Stephen Armitage Mr. Frank Lindo acts with great distinction; and Miss Daisy Rocheforte makes a charming Dora. David Armitage finds an excellent exponent in Mr. Lawrence Boyle; and Miss Cecil Wood gives a delightful reading of the part of Lady Summerton. Mr. Lionel Ray is all that can be desired as Gaffer; and Miss Ray Rocheforte is pleasing as Sybil Fay. Mr. Ernest Owens is very effective as Lord Silvermoor; and Captain Gerald Gambier does full justice to the part of the Duke of Ancaster. Mr. John Patrick does well as the Hon. Percy; and Mr. George Overs is good as Dick Redmayne. Mr. Miles Hodgson (Lucas Lyle), Mr. T. Lewis (Solomon Ready), and Mr. Danvers (Dr. Granby), also portray their respective parts exceedingly well.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.—Mr. Louis Calvert's principal company pays a welcome return visit to Middlesbrough this week with Sunday. The title-rôle is filled by Miss Emelie Polini, who gives a sympathetic and emotional rendering of a difficult rôle; Mr. Leonard Pagden as Colonel Brinthorpe displays some fine acting, which elicits the applause of the audience; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas as Tom Oxley gives a clever impersonation; and Miss Rosalind Ross as Mrs. Naresby, is very pleasing; while Miss Muriel Pope acts charmingly as the sister

MORECAMBE. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's excellent company in The Lion and the Mouse has proved a sterling attraction at this house, and the principal parts have been sustained by Miss Nita Faydon (the mouse), and Mr. Leslie Carter (the lion), and very admirably have both done their work. The capable company supporting them has included Misses Elspeth Dudgeon, Maude Townsend, Margaret Nybloc, Messrs. Herbert Chown, Douglas West, Geoffrey Hill, John Wheatman, and Dan Dyer. A most interesting production.

Alhambra Palace.—Manager, Alderman John Gardner; Secretary, Mr. F. R. Hartley.—The Six Brothers Luck have held high revel at this popular house, and their pantomimical absurdity, The Demon of the Cellar, goes as well as usual; the Arthur Saxon Trio of strong men have neat and new business; the Brothers St. Clair are smart in their comedy cycling act; Denby and Dent are capable, clean, clever comedians; Onda and Leon make much fun on the triple bars; the Sisters Dainton sing well; the Brothers Barker have a taking speciality; Polo and Florence are successful acrobats; and Miss Ethel Yorke has a refined and charming style as a comedienne.

Winter Gardens.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson.—Tom Grave, in his daring act of flying the wheel, has proved a good holiday sensation here. The Kurios have caught on in their whimsical business; and the Geraldos have juggled cleverly. That excellent actor, Mr. T. W. Rawson, and Miss Lily Bertram, have presented the screamingly funny incident, The Would-be Actors, and this has proved quite one of the most bustling things going; Tate and Tate are clever acrobatic and trampoline people; the Wallys have proved themselves expert jugglers; and Mabel La Blanche has rendered attractive songs. Carl Rosine's wonderful hoop trick has baffled all seekers after the secret; Smiler Lee (comedian) and Hesketh Meade (baritone) have also been appearing.

Central Pier. — Manager and Secretary, Mr. Emilius Hill.—Topping the bill the Sisters Onetti have proved an effective holiday draw. Chas. E. Best, in his striking comedy act, MacBunker the Mountebank, has caused roars of laughter; the Five Musical Savonas play a variety of instruments with pleasing effect; Urquhart is an expert pedal equilibrist; Wee Jessie sings and dances pleasantly enough; J. S. James is always good on tambourine, banjo, or bones; and Sam Green demonstrates his possession of a capital baritone voice.

West End Pier.—Secretary, Mr. John Bastow.—On Sunday evening Mme. Ella Russell proved herself a great attraction here, and she was most heartily applauded by a big audience. Mr. Frank Oldfield sang at the same concert, and his fine bass voice was heard to advantage. During the week the Leopolds amused as usual, Astley Weaver entertained, and the Fitzgeralds juggled.

MOTHERWELL. — New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant. — Mr. Edmund Tearle's company is this week appearing in a series of plays, The Three Musketeers being chosen to open with on Monday. Mr. Edmund Tearle appears to decided advantage as D'Artignan; and Mr. Bernhardt Turner is decidedly good as Cardinal Richelieu. Mr. Clifford Merle appears as the Duke of Buckingham; and the Three Musketeers are ably represented by Messrs. A. A. Adams, Ernest Lodge, and R. H. Lace. Miss Kate Clinton suitably sustains the rôle of Miladi; the same made be said of Miss Mary Campbell as the Queen; while Miss Esther Tearle should be congratulated on the charmingly simple manner in which she impersonates the character of Constance.

NEATH. — Castle Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will. Hagger.—The holiday attraction here is The Colleen Bawn. Mrs. Will Hagger is a pleasing Eily O'Connor; Miss Kate Sylvester as Ann Chute, and Miss Giddings as Sheelah, are both good; Mr. Will Hagger is admirable as Myles-na-Coppaleen; the Father Tom of Mr. Geo. Stanley is successful; the Squire Corrigan of Mr. Fred Hagger is excellent; and Mr. Jack Desmond makes a capital Danny Mann. Mr. Arthur Stanley as Kyrle Daly and Mr. Harry Templeton as Hardress Cregan were praiseworthy; and the remaining parts were in adequate hands.

NELSON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—The boards have been occupied here this week by Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in the drama Honour Thy Father. Mr. Walter M. Cameron draws a faithful picture of the farmer Gabriel Garth; and Miss Kate Newton admirably plays the part of the trusting wife. To Miss Mabel Coleman is entrusted the difficult rôle of Lilian Garth, the erring daughter of the Garths, and she performed her task with every success. As Duncan Bly Mr. Howell Travis acts powerfully; and Mr. Claude Merton, in the dual rôle of Job Merry and Geo. Bloggs, lunatic, is in every respect capital. Miss Muriel Dean gives a charming presentation of Mercy Merry; whilst other characters deserving of note are Miss Ada Salmon as Poppy Cornleigh, Mr. Fred Rolls as Mike Copplestone, and Mr. Melrose as Ned Pennycomquick. Mr. Robert Gilbert as Jack Halyard is excellent. The transformation scenes are performed with expedition.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Grand Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bacon and Bolam; Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—The holiday attraction here this week is Mr. Fred Benton's company in The French Spy. Mr. Beresford Lovett makes an excellent Captain Sommers; Mr. Max Coutts as Count Romanoff is highly successful; Mr. Hugh Travers as General Trapoff gives a good interpretation; Mr. Charles Digby is a good-humoured Viscount Alexis, being admirably supported by Mr. Seymour Perry as Knipps; Miss A. Harrison Tate makes a winning Olga; and the French spy, Countess Aude, is in the capable hands of Miss Madge Devereaux.

Tyne Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—A real rarity nowadays, in the shape of an English comic opera, is supplied in Amasis, which is rendered by a company of exceptional strength, organised by Mr. Louis Calvert. Every part is in thoroughly efficient hands; while the chorus, largely augmented orchestra, and staging are excellent Especially welcome to Novocastrian audiences is the appearance of Mr. Rutland Barrington, who, as Pharaoh, plays with an unctuous humour that is highly effective; Miss Constance Drever has charge of the title-part, and it would be difficult to imagine a more pleasing exponent, her pure, clear, and fresh voice being heard to great advantage in the various numbers allotted her; Miss Madge Vincent is a most vivacious Natis; Mr. Roland Cunningham's fine voice delights the audience; and Mr. Norman Salmond and Mr. Whitworth Mitton also prove great favourites. Mr. Laurie de Frece causes roars of laughter as Sebak; and Mr. Reg. White as Ptolemy is also very diverting. A characteristic dance by Miss Winifred Hart-Dyke gains well-deserved encores. Amasis is attracting crowded houses.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—A welcome visit is being paid this week to the Theatre Royal by the popular actor, Mr. Martin Harvey and his well-selected company. To a crowded house on Monday evening Mr. Harvey gave his first production in Newcastle of The Corsican Brothers, himself taking the dual rôle of the brothers Fabian and Louis dei Franchi. Judged by the immense reception he met with his interpretation of both parts was in the highest degree successful, and at every fall of the curtain he was awarded insistent rounds of applause. In the rôle of Emilie de Lesparre Miss Coleridge gave a charming and effective performance. The many other characters were ably sustained. An effective one-act tragedy, entitled Rouget de L'Isle, with Mr. Harvey in the title rôle, and Miss N. de Silva in a pathetic rendering of Angelo, precedes The Corsican Brothers. For Thursday evening The Breed of the Treshams was announced.

Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—At the top of a gigantic holiday bill here is Mr. Hymack, who mystifies his audiences with his remarkable changes, and is accorded a great reception; Casey's Circus causes no end of laughter; Frank and Jen Latona have a delightful musical mélange; Kitts and Windrum's military contretemps goes well; the Cambrian Trio sing well together; George Brooks, with some catchy songs, scores heavily; Mezzetti and Mora, triple horizontal bar performers, do well; and the bill is completed by Lizzie Daniels, comedienne; Schwartz Brothers, Continental parodists; and pictures of the Grand National.

Pavilion Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Pantomime is the principal attraction here this week, and Dick Whittington is being enthusiastically received by crowded houses. A happy and dashing Dick is Miss Jessie Templeton; Lizzie Hay as the Princess fills the rôle in charming fashion. Percy Harman (baritone), The Crystals (vocalists and dancers), W. T. Ellwanger and company, in the comedy sketch The Peacemaker, and the well-known Tally-Ho Trio are also in the bill.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Ernest Carpenter's company, in The Spider and the Fly, provide the holiday attraction here. Mr. Benson North as Cyril Girdlestone plays with vigour, and David Strong is admirably portrayed by Mr. Arthur H. Hill; Miss Nina Vaughton is a decided success as Edith McAllister; Miss Amy Venimore as Sheila Grey and Mr. Ellis J. Preston as Welby Girdlestone are powerful in the tragic parts. The comedy element is well provided by Messrs. Chas. Preece and Chas. Russell as the twin brothers Roe; Miss Lucy Murray as an Irish girl is popular; Miss Ada Palmer as a lodging-house keeper does well; and Mr. H. C. Lanceley is a dignified Rev. Mr. McAllister.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page. — A strong holiday bill is provided here. Horace Goldin, an illusionist, with Jeanne Fransiolli and company, give a really mystifying performance; Hall and Earle supply a creditable gymnastic turn; Eily Adair, a charming dancer, is warmly received; Barry Lindon sings some good illustrated songs; Harry Leybourne, a clever comedian, receives cordial recognition; the McConnell Trio, in their sketch, Mrs. Skinner's Lodgers, afford much amusement; Harry Bedford, in his latest effusions, causes roars of laughter; and the bioscope shows some interesting pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—The Northampton Operatic Company have revived The Silver Stick, a musical play in two acts, here this week for the purposes of charity.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred. H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—A programme, excellent from top to bottom, is presented here this week, the principal items being the clever show of the great Narrow Brothers, the pretty and interesting display of Les Montaldos, and the intensely pathetic coster ditties of Will Bacchus. Tom Parker is another highly-appreciated turn; and Minnie Harbor proves herself a superb burlesque artist. Other commendable presentments are those of the Three Careys, Viny Loftus, Hardie Palm, Devere and Kenwick, Lily Gaston, and the artistic display of pictures by C. Vincent.

NORTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee, and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company, with Held Apart, has drawn large and appreciative audiences here this week. As James Barlow Mr. H. K. Ayliff gives a capital portrayal of the character; Mr. Leonard Lawrence brings into prominence the part of John Douglas; and Mr. A. W. Norman acquits himself well as Captain Ford. Mr. E. G. Batley is quite at home as Hugh Trevor; and Mr. Robert B. Drysdale as Andrew M'Pherson scores a distinct success. Miss Ethyle Murray enacts the rôle of Quita Garcia with much tact and skill; Miss Ruby Loncraine makes an admirable Sybil Grey; and Miss Gertrude Homewood gives an excellent interpretation of Lily Granville Stark.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Harrison Brothers, capital comedians, head a good company here. The Gilberts, with "In the Park," are cordially greeted; the Three Royal Temples, operatic vocalists, are very popular; Messrs. Bishop and Vale, comedians, create much laughter; Mr. S. Cosgrove and Miss Ethel Burns, duettists, gain loud applause; Mr. George Hylton, ventriloquist, goes well; and the Bio-Photoscope continues to be very interesting.

NORWICH. — Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Charles Macdona's excellent company opened here on Saturday evening, and remains during the present week in Three Little Maids. Miss Mabel Kerridge as Ada, Miss Daisy Sylverton as Hilda, and Miss Eva Weigh as Edna, were each thoroughly appreciated for singing and acting. Miss Kate Graham-Beck was also successful as Lady St. Mallory. Miss Hilda Stericker as Lady Rosemary Beaulieu, Miss Bertha French as Venetia Grafton, and Miss Nellie Clapton as Lady Marjory Chrichton, were successful in their respective parts. Miss Laura Wright was amusing and pleasing as Gretchen, her eccentric sabot dance winning much applause; Miss Maude Madle represented Miss Price, Mr. Frank Henderson was very humorous as Lord Cheyne, Mr. Eric Barrington was good as M. de Orme; Mr. Frank Wilson was highly successful as Bryan Molyneaux, Mr. Burgess Barratt was good as the Rev. Mr. Branscombe, and Mr. Harry Walsh received hearty greetings as Cupid. Mr. C. W. Nightingale ably conducted.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—A capital holiday programme is presented this week. Tom Leamore heads the bill, and is much appreciated for his songs, patter, and eccentric dancing; Lady Mansell and her juveniles make a return visit, and are heartily applauded; the Alberto Troupe are clever in their equilibristic turn; the illustrated sorgs given by the Haverleys are exceedingly entertaining; Ronald Bagnall is a pleasing turn; Harry Weldon, "the swell entertainer," is cordially received; Fred Gasburn, comedian, is successful; Lea and Lovell, duettists and dancers, give great satisfaction; and the Hippodrome Bioscope, with scenes of wild life in the West, is entertaining.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Belle of Mayfair made its first appearance here on Monday before a crowded and appreciative audience. Mr. Harry Parker is the life and soul of the play, simulating Sir John Chaldicott's senile gaiety in a highly-diverting manner. He is well supported by Miss Emily Stevens as Lady Chaldicott. Miss Aurelie de Loriere makes a great success in her impersonation of the "Gibson" Girl, and with her six attendant maidens forms a pretty stage picture. Miss Agnes Tandy sings with charming taste the music of Princess Carl; and Miss Veronica Brady dances gracefully as the maid, Pincott. Miss Queenie Finnis looks dainty, and used a pleasant voice to effect as Julia Chaldicott; and Mr. Edward Hugonnet plays capitally in the rôle of Raymond Finchley. The irascible Mount Highgate finds an able exponent in Mr. Haddon Cave; and Mr. Laurie Lyle is amusing as Perrier. The chorus numbers receive full justice under the bâton of Mr. T. M. Tunbridge.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—For the holiday attraction The Prodigal Parson is presented by Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company. Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a manly impersonation of the Rev. Tom Godley; and Mr. Alfred Northway carefully portrays the character of Enoch Jaggirs. Mr. Wm. Hayward omits nothing from his characterisation of Ben Jaggins, and he is ably assisted by Mr. W. Vincent as Kettlepin. Miss Bertha Kingston enlists the sympathies of all in the rôle of Fern Godley; and the blind child of the Godleys is realised vividly by Miss Violet Jefferies. Miss E. Fredericks does well as Pomeroy; and a very successful artist in a small part is Mrs. Ashton; whilst Miss Dot Russell scores heavily as Korale; and Miss Lydia Hart makes her mark as Gretchen. Mr. Owen Redmonde shows much talent as Phil Drive; and a very satisfactory detective is found in the person of Mr. T. Edward Evans. Messrs. Herbert Martin, E. Ashton, and Edward Vincent fill the remaining places, and add to the success of the play.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Fred Bowyer's melodrama, The Little Stowaway, rewritten and brought up to date, makes a first-class attraction. Mr. John K. Walton is excellent as the Captain; and as the little stowaway Miss Eva Lumley makes hosts of friends. That wonderful pianist, Mendel, here on a return visit, seems cleverer than ever, and arouses considerable enthusiasm; while Tom Owen, with a budget of new songs, increases his already enormous popularity. A good turn is provided by Bellonini's cockatoos; and the songs and jokes of Dare's Minstrels compel generous recognition. Gertrude Bradshaw, a soprano of merit; and Frank Darwin, an actor-vocalist of undoubted ability, give great pleasure by their respective efforts; and the versatility of C. Randolph King is really exceptional. A good deal of amusement is caused by the Kirbys; and the comedy of the Celtic Trio, no less than their pleasing vocal efforts, are responsible for a commendable addition to the programme. An excellent series of films illustrative of an American detective story, shown through the bioscope, forms an appropriate conclusion.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—On Monday night there was the usual crowded holiday house when Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's company opened with Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Stanton was enthusiastically received as Sinbad; Mr. Harry Joseph appeared with success as King Krusty; deserving special praise are Miss Ethyl Errol (Capt. Sellini), Miss Norah Neville (Liza), and Mr. Bruce Green (Mrs. Sinbad). Excellent specialities were introduced, and included the Alhambra Girls; Wyman, comic skater; P. J. Durney, globe walker; the Deroneys, wire walkers; Farrell and Gorman, musical eccentrics; and the favourite, Little Keeno.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Large audiences have assembled this week to witness The Midnight Mail, as performed by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's excellent company. Mr. George Harvard gives a well-rendered delineation of the part of Harry Steyne; and Miss Ada Oakley wins commendation as Mary. Mr. Fred G. Evison causes much laughter as Billy Brewer; and the acting of Miss Mildred Carr as Nancy Brewer is much applauded. Miss Iris Love makes a capital Lady Phyllis; Mr. Austin Mortimer is very good as Leonard Royle; and Mr. Harold B. Lewis as Hassam Padisha is clever. Mr. Harry Emmerson as Donald Craig, Mr. J. Mann as Gerald Eustace, Miss Kitty Johnstone as Kitty, Miss Ethel North as Patty, and Miss Kate Merson as Mrs. Mildmay render much assistance, and the remainder of the characters are well enacted by a capable cast.

Colosseum Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Excellent holiday fare is provided this week by Messrs. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company in The Traitor. Mr. Bensley Evans doubles the parts of Prince Rudolph and Colonel Nervi in a masterly manner; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlon is equally good as the Chief of Police; Mr. W. L. Hurst makes a manly Captain Ross; and his rival, General Hertz, is well played by Mr. Arthur McCulloch. Miss Isabel Hunt is excellent as Lieut. Nicolas; Miss Effie Bartlett as Zula proves a warm favourite; and Miss Gwynne Warren is prominent as Countess Zicka. Miss Lillian Matthews shows ability as Elise Dupres; and Miss Olive Lanty as Cen-Cen is the cause of much laughter, as are also Messrs. Edward Lowrie and Fred Haming, as Loff and Jack Boult respectively.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Abdullah and La Superbe head the bill with Electra's Bower, which provides a splendid spectacle; Selma Braatz, a dexterous lady juggler, elicits much applause; Old Madrid, a vocal and humorous scena, with good singing by Miss Margaret Ruby and Ernest Laws, is capitally presented; Ray and Calden earn many recalls with their clever act; and Mlle. du Roche, burlesque artist, sings in fine style. The Vekeys, banjoists, rendered duets admirably; and Fred Cary causes much laughter with his funny songs. Syd Myra and dog have a good novelty act; and the Dottoscope concludes.

Hippodrome. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—The Wedburns, in their funny and refined acts, are excellent; Amy Anderson and company keep the "house" in roars with capital comedy; Maggie Rimmer, a dainty comedienne, submits good songs and dances; the Brothers Adderley are talented duettists and mimics; and Maston, master mimic, has a good reception; as has also Jimmy Shields, comedian and one-legged dancer. Adey North and Charlie Carston, comedians, also take well; and the Grand National, depicted on the Dottoscope, completes a good programme.

OXFORD.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is paying a most successful return visit this week with Under Two Flags. Mr. Wellesley Draper gives a capital rendering of Louis Victor, acting throughout with power and artistic finish; Mr. Harry Benson scores heavily as Rake, his songs and dances meeting with marked approval; and Mr. Arthur Elwyn cleverly renders the repulsive character of the Black Hawk. Miss Mabel Ormonde is a stately and handsome Princess Venetia; and Miss Amy Maitland plays Cigarette with a dash and go that carry her audience with her right through the play.

East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—On Easter Monday Mr. Horace Stanley's company opened to a full house with The 10.30 Down Express. Mr. George Beverley gives a capital and finished representation of Jack O'Malley; and Mr. Chas. Burdon makes a refined villain as James Inderwick. Mr. Alaric Burton is natural as Cuthbert Leigh; Mr. Edwin Clarke is seen to advantage as Huntley Mason; and Mr. Horace Stanley is decidedly humorous as Sam Wagstaffe. Mr. Arthur E. Francis makes the most of Bletherby Baggs; Miss Kate Kilpack is bright as Peggy Potts; while Miss Evelyn M. Walton causes great amusement as Letitia Leigh. Miss Elsie Capell portrays Bessie Leigh sympathetically.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A great attraction this week is Leah Kleschna, presented by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's able company, under the managership of Mr. Bernard Hishin. Miss Bessie Rignold gives an earnest and convincing portrayal of the title-rôle; and Mr. Paul Belmore acts powerfully and with distinct ability in his embodiment of Kleschna. Mr. William F. Grant's polished and incisive manner has good effect in the part of Paul Sylvaine; well played in every respect is the Raoul Berton of Mr. Hamilton Deane; Mr. Campbell Goldsmid contributes a capital embodiment of Schram; the General Berton of Mr. Ronald Daniel is admirably depicted; as Mme. Berton Miss Ethel Russell is quite satisfactory; and Claire Berton is finely interpreted by Miss Helene Belgrave. Minor characters are adequately filled by Misses Violet Thorold, May Hamond, and Edith Summers; and Messrs. Bert Gunter, Ronald Daniel, Bernard Rain, Arles Conway, Frederick Bannerman, and Henry Buxton.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—A good all-round programme is provided here this week. The Battle of the Belles, an amusing sketch by Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholl's company, is enthusiastically greeted; Ricardo and Salving are a decidedly clever couple with their daring acrobatic and equilibristic novelty; a pleasing and interesting number is supplied by Wilton Heriot and company in their protean sketch, An Anglo-American Alliance; Sadie Simpson is a good serio and coon artist; the Crown trio of vocalists are greatly appreciated; Carson Hicks, coon singer and novel rag-time dancer, is entertaining; the Two Dixons, bâton swingers, banjoists, and song and dance artists, are excellent; Mamie Cannon, coon comedienne, has a good reception; and the Hippodrome Bioscope concludes with some fine pictures.

PERTH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—A new departure is presented to local theatregoers this week, and one which gives every indication of success, judging from the houses, which are both encouraging and appreciative. Two performances are being given nightly, and the bill is replete with attractiveness, including extremely clever acrobatic feats, cycle-roller races, musical displays, dualogues, and various vocal contributions, all of high order.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Sergeant Brue is again "on beat" at Plymouth. Mr. Arthur Reynolds fills the title-rôle, and his representation is intensely amusing; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy as Michael Brue has a couple of attractive musical numbers, to which he does full justice; Mr. Clarence Ibbotson, as Crookey Scrubbs, is exceptionally humorous; Mr. C. Sims furnishes a clever burlesque in the third act of a well-known Metropolitan stipendiary magistrate; Miss Mary Hay as Aurora is a fascinating and graceful actress; Miss Marion Hargrave makes a good general servant; and Miss Cissy Raymond is an accomplished Lady Bickenhall.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is here in A Fatal Wedding, which appears to have lost none of its attractiveness. Mr. Cecil A. Melton undertakes the part of Howard Wilson with ability and distinction; Miss Mildred Howard is sympathetic as Mabel; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh provides a clever piece of acting as Cora Williams; and Mr. Dunlop Stewart ably acquits himself as Robert Curtis. Miss Hetty Kelly is popular as Jessie; and Mr. Charles Locke and Miss Beatrice Hudson are amusing in the parts of Joto and Bridget.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Large audiences have been the order of the week, and the programme is interesting and varied. Miss Ella gives a daring exhibition with her well-trained African lions; Mr. Frank Cumminger furnishes some smart dancing; Mark Melford and company are amusing in the sketch entitled Non-Suited; Miss Yoland Hill is an attractive comedienne; Mountford and Walsh are a clever pair of society entertainers; and Daisy Morell is a versatile vocalist. Other attractions in the programme are Rowland Hill (comedian), J. C. Scatter (dancer), and Vernon's pictures.

PORTSMOUTH. — Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of The Dairymaids is exceedingly pleasing and pretty. Mr. Harry Dent is at his best as Joe Mivens, convulsing the audience with his fooling; Mr. E. Statham Staples also does excellent work as Sam Brudenell; Dr. O'Byrne, R.N., is well portrayed by Mr. Forbes Dawson; Lieut. Brudenell is ably presented by Mr. George Desmond; and Captain Fred Leverton pleasingly sustained by Mr. Alec Fraser. Winifred is bewitchingly played by Miss Rhoda Gordon; Miss Violet Lloyd is charming as Peggy; and Eliza is taken by Miss Cissy Sephton in characteristic style. Miss Beryl Vaudrey also does capital work as Hélène; Miss Madge Avery ably depicts Miss Penelope Pychase; and Miss Edith Blanche makes an excellent Lady Brudenell.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Ernest Chesney and company are here with The Power and the Glory. Mr. Bryce Methven makes a favourable impression in the part of Harry Goodluck; Mr. Francis Chamier does excellent work as Ferdinand Crayle; Mr. Ernest Chesney as Forward is responsible for a clever character-study; and Harold Hartree, alias Medwin, is well impersonated by Mr. Arthur Lindley; Miss Olive Fulton is praiseworthy as Lizzie Medwin; Miss Flo Florence acts naturally as Linda; and Miss Bessie Elma ably sustains the rôle of Kate.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The management at this house is offering an excellent and attractive Easter bill. George Rapley sings capital character songs; Hallam and Stanton, in the musical comedy A Broken Journey, are much applauded; Leo Lester and company in Monkeyland are extremely popular; Wee Mona, juvenile comedienne and danseuse, is an exceedingly capable little artist; Barnard's Mannikins prove a source of great amusement; Tom Craven and company in the sparkling comedietta, The Lady in Red, are a highly successful turn; the Three Brooklyn Girls, vocalists and dancers, are a smart trio; Stowe Bros. give a well-sustained and wonderful exhibition of hand-balancing; and also appearing are Bliss and Bliss, eccentric comedians; Janet Howard-Reynolds, vocalist; and Payne's Bioscope.

RAMSGATE. — Amphitheatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Mr. Charles Constant's company has been appearing in the attractive pantomime Bluebeard with considerable success this week. Miss Isa Bowman is a dashing and popular Selim; and Miss Dorothy Dempster makes a charming Fatima. Mr. C. Luke is a capital Bluebeard, Mr. Johnny Clegg an amusing Sister Ann, and Mr. Mac Stuart (Shacabac) and Mr. Alec Godfrey (Pimple) prove themselves clever comedians. Stuart and Stuart and Little Felicia introduce admirable speciality turns.

RAWTENSTALL. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—After a week's interval this theatre was reopened on Saturday last week with The Silver King, which was finely presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's excellent company. As Wilfred Denver Mr. Horace B. Herbert gave a powerful and finished portrayal; and Miss Florence Radcliffe as Nellie Denver was equally successful with her impersonation, her acting being delightfully clever and sympathetic. Mr. Seton Bernard as Jaikes was admirably placed, and gave a remarkably good interpretation; as the Spider Mr. Paul Beckett was seen to great advantage; whilst as Olive Skinner Miss Dorothea Black was all that could be wished. Miss Dorothy Love and little Josephine Mackintosh gave excellent portrayals as Cissie and Ned Denver.

RHYL.—Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will Smith; Secretary, Mr. S. Thornley. — Mr. Penrhyn Forster's company are here this week in an original farce, The Officer's Mess. Miss Nellie Sheffield as Rose Smith delights the audience with her admirable singing and dancing; as Thomas Rugg Mr. Harry Emeric is very amusing; Miss Edith Harmer makes a delightful Sybil Carruthers, and sings several pretty songs; Mr. L. Cadwaladr acquits himself well as the Major-General; Mr. George Ellis makes most of his opportunities as Capt. Melville; as Antonio Wilkins Mr. Chas. D. Cleveland brings out the humorous features of the rôle excellently; and amongst the other noticeable members of the cast are Mr. H. Vivian, Miss Clara Nicholls, Miss Marcella Hudson, and the Alston troupe of dancers.

Pier Pavilion. — Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots are here for the holiday week with a company including Jack Macdermott, the popular manager and comedian, who has a cordial reception; Frank Dunlop, comedian, appeals greatly to Rhyl audiences with his Welsh patter; Rene Steadman, comedienne, meets with success; Bertram Noel gives some entertaining sketches; and Albert Hinton, Alick Macmillan, George Storey, and James A. Lowe (accompanist) complete.

ROCHDALE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague. — At Cripple Creek is the play in possession of the boards here this week. Mr. Stanley Bedwell makes a manly hero; Mr. Eric Hudson cleverly portrays the villainies of Martin Mason; Mr. Oscar Power is effective as Manuel Alvarez; Mr. Arthur D. Layland as Wahketah and Mr. Harry Leander as Ben White are both successful in their efforts. Mr. Will Hook is a lively and humorous Reggie Harwood; Miss Daisy Carlton makes a vivacious Maggie Mason; little Rosie Hopkins is a sweet and entertaining Little Tatto; Miss Lily Beagle is winsome as Belle Gordon; and Miss Agnes Verity is effective in the rôle of Dynamite Ann.

Circus and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Smith and Co.—The programme submitted here this week is headed by Hicks' Clerks (nine in number), with a laughable sketch, entitled A Day at the Seaside; George and Edwards are amusing patter comedians; Mezotti finds favour with his clever juggling; and other turns are submitted by Miss Emily Florence, comedienne and dancer; Ted Hord, actor-vocalist; Eventio and Bush, in A Juggler's Dream; Miss Madge Seymour, serio-comic; and Miss Clarice, contralto vocalist.

Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Rosina Casselli, with her midget wonders, evokes loud bursts of applause as the tiny animals go through their wonderful tricks; Vanola is exceptionally clever with his feet, balancing and twirling barrels and balls to a remarkable degree; Ray Ford is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; the Orchids, comedy entertainers; Will Musgrave, comedian; the Prinellas, in a farmyard scena, and the Empire Bioscope complete an attractive bill of fare.

ROTHERHAM.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. F. G. Kimberley's company is providing the bill for the holiday week with Two Little Drummer Boys. Mr. H. R. Leigh is effective as General Kingsley; Mr. Fred Emery is a manly Frank Carsdale; Mr. Archie Helsby scores as Captain George Darrell; and Mr. C. Newton Buckland is seen to advantage as Lieut. Allen Kingsley. Messrs. J. Magrath and Harry Lyndon as Quincy O'Quirke and Timothy Trimmer are responsible for the humour; and Mr. Philip Redgrave is quite a martinet as Major Kilkerrie. Miss Maggie English as Eric Carsdale and Miss Douglas as Jack Smith are highly successful in their parts. Miss Kathleen Magee gives a life-like portrayal of Margaret Rivers (Mad Meg); and Miss Lizzie Chambers scores as Molly Meadows. Miss Mildred Eversleigh is a pleasing and sympathetic Alma Kingsley.

RUGBY. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—The attraction for Easter at this theatre is the musical comedy The Pick of the Bunch, by Charles Carey and Harold Wingate. The music is bright and sparkling, and the songs and choruses are well rendered. Mr. Carey as Hallwell Merrit is a great success; and Mr. H. Buckston Clair is excellent as Colonel Joseph Merrit. Mr. Harold Wantage as Dick Seymour is excellent both as vocalist and actor; Miss Eva Ellis as Ruth Gay is charming and vivacious; and Miss Madge Christopher as Nellie Mather is equally attractive. Miss M. Sadie as Nancy gives a humorous and clever impersonation, and pleases greatly with her various songs. The Hydro Girls are a great attraction. Miss Millie James as Wilhelmina is good; and the Misses Gladys Glynn, Sybil Glynn, Mabelle May, and Elsie May as waitresses contribute materially to the success of the piece.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Price of Her Soul is furnishing plenty of fun and excitement to good houses this week. As the hero, Lord Rolfe Manderville, Mr. J. B. Shinton gives an able study; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle successfully portrays the villain, Major Ivan Skoboloff; Mr. Larry Clements as Pat Murphy, Miss Ethel Rainforth as Polly Perkins, Miss Gracie Garside as Lady Jemima, Mr. George Marriott, jun., as Hon. Algy Fraser, and Mr. Maurice Lesage as Alphonse Didot all keep the audience in excellent spirits; Miss Maude Yorke as Olga Lanovitz and Miss Ada M. Ryder as Countess Inez Steinmetz do good work in those opposite characters; Mr. Archie Gear as General Lanovitz, Mr. Fred White as Zouroff, Mr. Ernest Regent as Petruski, Miss Mabel Ronald as Vera, Miss Hilda Clench as Nadine, and Mr. Reginald Taylor as Paul Steinmetz give good support.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Mme. Ada Colley is enthusiastically applauded for her delightful singing. An amusing sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, is also well ston. Misses Nellie V. Warden and Muriel Thompson also did well in their respective parts.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company presented In Sight of St. Paul's to a large holiday audience on the opening night. Mr. Arthur Armfield is very successful as Mr. H. Chichester; Mr. Ernest R. Allen interprets Tom Chichester with much power; Harry Chichester is effectively played by Mr. W. H. Domone; the scheming John Gridson is faithfully drawn by Mr. Herbert Cecil; Fretley Burside is vigorously drawn by Mr. Ed. Valentine; Mr. Herbert Colley is very humorous as Jim Palfrey; Blidstein is cleverly enacted by Mr. Henry Gilpin; Aileen Millar is delightfully played by Miss Cissie Bellamy; Cynthia is skilfully treated by Miss Gussie Everitt; Becky is smartly played by Miss Sybil Hammersley.

SHEERNESS.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—An extra special company is engaged at this old-established hall for the holiday week. Miss Hilda Gordon sings popular ballads in a pleasing manner; Miss Amy Cecil is a charming comedienne and dancer; Mr. Nick Ohlson is funny; Miss Josie Watson is clever; the Byrons, musical comedy duo, are exceptionally good in a banjo duet; Miss Topsy Levane fully maintains her popularity; Mr. Phil Reymond is well to the fore, as usual, and the Holroydes conclude.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—An excellent bill is presented here for the holidays. Ariel and Astarte, in their gymnastic pot-pourri act, are clever; Fred Mulvey and Minnie Miriam, in the comedy act The Studio, provoke much merriment; Fanny Humber, comedienne and instrumentalist, is favourably received; Linda Wasey is a pleasing comedienne; Grey and Parry distinguish themselves as burlesque acrobats; and Harry Maynard, comedian, is also popular. The programme concludes with an amusing comedy sketch, entitled Captain Cupid.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Christian, effectively mounted and carefully played, has again proved a good Easter attraction at this theatre. Miss Grace Chalmers is a delightful Glory, and all the members of Mr. Wentworth Croke's company act with care and distinction.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Good old East Lynne has been played to well-pleased holiday audiences this week by an excellent company, headed by that graceful artist Miss Julie Kennard, who gives a conscientious interpretation of the character of the unhappy Lady Isabel. Mr. Alfred Beaumont acts in a natural and finished manner as Archibald Carlyle; Captain Levison is cleverly represented by Mr. Frederick Harker; Mr. C. C. Grattan's Justice Hare and Miss Ethel Hardacre's Cornelia are excellent character-sketches; and the irrepressible Bullock is made the most of by Mr. Alfred Tate.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The popular actress Miss Winifred Chalmers and a good company opened to a crowded house on Monday in the exciting play The Master Criminal, which was received with enthusiastic applause. A fascinating study of criminal character was supplied by Mr. Henry L. Osmond's Lestage; Mr. Harold Macartney was a manly Philip Manners; Mr. Harry Cooke and Mr. Ernest Dale provided good comic relief as Tom Dale and Gentleman Jim respectively; and Mr. John C. Carlyle was smart as a typical stage detective. Miss Winifred Chalmers was a graceful Cecile; Miss Mabel Tremere made a vivacious Peggy; and Miss Kate Somerville secured the sympathies of the audience for the heroine, Mabel Manners. The piece was realistically staged.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The spacious auditorium of the Empire has proved far too small this week for the thousands who have desired to enjoy the splendid programme. The pièce de résistance on Monday was the exhilarating extravaganza The Isle of Ooma, well played by Mr. Arthur Rigby and a large troupe of smart comedians and pretty ladies. Mr. John Alexander's famous pantomime company kept the house in roars with the screaming fun of Brown in Paris; Mr. Tom Costello was enthusiastically applauded in his finished impersonations; and the other items scheduled were comic duets by the Dorrells, songs and dances by Boy Glenn, comic ditties by Mr. Ryder Slone, Mr. Billy Farrell, a clever dancer, the New Macs, comedians, the Sisters Jonghmanns, accomplished vocalists, and the American Bioscope.

GRAND PALACE.—Manager, Mr. R. Ralli.—Here are engaged Mr. Harry Vardon, comedian; Miss Carlotta De Yonsen and company, in dramatic sketches; Miss Raynor, Mr. Harry Merson, Mr. Tom Dawson, Messrs. Cliffe and Kean, Mr. H. C. Lovell and company of burlesque artists in Mlle. Pom-Pom, and the Biograph.

ALBERT HALL.—The complimentary benefit tendered to Mr. George Burton by his Sheffield admirers on the 30th ult. was a great success. A colossal programme was gone through, including turns by the Hamiltons, Australian burlesque artists in Fum-Fum; De Lyle, mimic and ventriloquist; Fred Cass, novelty artist; Boy Watson, vocalist; the great De Cora troupe of acrobats, &c.; the Sheffield Photo Co.'s pictures; the Conways, the Topsi-Turvys, Gyto, juggler, Mr. Frank Latimer, vocal comedian, and the Hallam string band.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The United English Opera Company, under the direction of Mr. F. S. Gilbert, is here this week, playing the popular old operas Maritana, Bohemian Girl, Faust, Il Trovatore, and Daughter of the Regiment. Maritana was presented on Monday evening to a most appreciative audience, Mr. Gilbert being in excellent voice and acting with ease and ability as Don Cesar de Bazan; as Maritana Miss Elsa May sang with power and refinement, and was loudly applauded; Mr. J. Kneale Campbell acted and sang in an accomplished manner as the King of Spain; Miss Kate White was a capable Marchioness Montefiore; Miss Doris Gilbert was excellent in the part of Lazarillo; Mr. F. C. Silverstone as Don Jose, Mr. James Knox as Captain of the Guard, Mr. Fred Feather Tone as the Alcade, and Mr. H. Balgrave as Marquis de Montefiore were all praiseworthy in their respective rôles.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Mouillot; Resident Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—The Easter attraction is Mr. Leonard Boyne and company in Raffles. Mr. Boyne in the title-rôle creates a profound impression; Mr. E. W. Thomas is excellent as the American detective; and Mr. Dalziel Heron gives a capital character-study of Crawshay, the burglar. First favourite among the ladies is Miss Elaine Inescort, with a powerful rendering of Mrs. Vidal; Miss Jean Morrison is successful as Gwendoline; and Mr. Lewis Edgard acceptable as Bunny.

PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace (Southampton), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—Crowded holiday audiences twice nightly appreciate the good holiday fare provided. Carlton's Mysterious Cross is a wonderful illusion; Chas. Vandyke and company appear in a popular pantomimic sketch Nicodemus; the Four Herberts, Charles Mildare, Chas. Torbay, and Wallan also successfully appear; and Jessie Barlee and Phil Smith present an amusing episode, A Rehearsal.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold P. Howell.—Forman and Fannan, the millionaires, are starring here; Morny Cash successfully deputises for Harry Russon; Lonnen Meadows and company present their comedy, Kiss Your Father; and others who do well are Burnetti and Corrie, eccentric jugglers; Sisters Carina, instrumentalists, Dandy George and Rosie, and Rose Harvey and Rose Hamilton, comediennes.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—The Easter programme provided here is of a diversified character. The entertainment in the variety theatre is of great interest, every turn gaining repeated calls. Tamamoto is a smart perpendicular rope performer; Miss Kate Avey is a fascinating dancer; Morton and Martell gain well-deserved appreciation; Arthur Stacey's top boot dancing creates enthusiasm; Sweet, Dale, and Sweet delight as acrobatic eccentrics; Chivo and Mlle. Moto are marvellous slack wire walkers; the Brothers Odell dance very well; Miss Queenie Lawrence is a fascinating burlesque actress; and some excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Mr. Pringle commenced his Easter engagement last Thursday, and his North American Animated Singing Picture Company is presenting the Chronophone twice daily. Pictures on the Bioscope are more than usually interesting, especially those of the wreck of the ss. Berlin and the trip to Niagara Falls. The Chronophone is a notable feature, the singing pictures creating admiration. Miss Marie Altino sings powerfully in her English and French selections; Skeath and Adlin submit with success the musical comedy Claude Du Val; a musical mélange by Phedona gains a capital reception; and Mr. Stanley Angless is an accomplished 'cellist.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Alec Hurley, with an excellent company of artists, furnishes the Easter attraction, and is to be highly complimented on the capital variety entertainment he provides. Included in Mr. Hurley's répertoire is The Coster's Beano, in which the popular comedian, capitally supported by a full complement of artists, wins every success. Howard Baker as the "laughometer" is delightful, as also is Miss Marie Gros as a comedienne and dancer. The dramatic episode entitled Pity the Blind is pathetically rendered by Miss Frances Ferina and Mr. Charles A. James. Will Van Allen's original monologue is a notable feature, while his banjo, "one striniola," and saxophone selections are musical treats. A novel pot-pourri act entitled "Gentlemen at Practice," by the Zampah Bros., is well received, and their champion chair jumping is sensational. Miss Clorinda Thurtell contributes in fine style Spanish and operatic soprano selections. A Lesson in Love is well presented by Miss Poppy Lytton and Mr. Jack Bland. Maxey and Pete are entertaining as trick and comedy cyclists.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—In the engagement of the Moody-Manners Opera Company, who are paying their annual visit here, the management have provided a great attraction for the Easter holiday week, and a packed house greeted this celebrated combination of artists on Monday evening, when an excellent interpretation of Carmen was presented. Mlle. Zelie de Lussan in the title-rôle submitted a fascinating portraiture of the beautiful fiery-spirited gipsy girl. Signor Umberto Salvi was excellent in every way in the part of Don José, his conception of the character leaving nothing to be desired; Mr. Lewys James was very successful as Escamillo, his rendering of the "Toreador" song was capital, and secured the applause it deserved; Michaela had a charming representative in Miss Kate Anderson, whose brilliant singing was much admired; Mr. H. Bailey impersonated Il Remendado with good effect; and Mr. C. Moppett did well as Il Dancairo. The orchestra was under the able conductorship of Signor Romualdo Sapio. During the week Faust, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Aida, Tannhäuser, Romeo and Juliet, and Maritana were billed.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Lockhart's performing elephants give a marvellous and interesting entertainment, and the other items submitted embrace Regan and Ryan, comedy entertainers; H. O. Wills, in his latest successes; La Petite Carlina, international dancer; Maitland and Homer in their novel comedy act; T. E. Johnstone, the modern actor-vocalist; Patty Yole, comedienne and dancer; the musical Keiths in their refined instrumental acts; and the Bioscope, with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The sensational drama As Midnight Chimes, presented by Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company, is arousing interest. Mr. Dalrymple gives a capital portrayal of Dave Stannard; the villainous Luke Dezzard is ably accounted for by Mr. H. Delmore; Miss Maud Hastings is seen to advantage as Mary Stannard. The comedy element is well supplied by Mr. James Salter as Tat Spavin and Miss Madge Beresford as Suzette. Mr. Herbert Pearce as Ezra Gamble is praiseworthy; and Miss Marion Ryder is an interesting Little Davy.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—A welcome return visit is being paid by the Bros. Egbert, the original happy dustmen; the Vasilescu troupe of pantomimists, in a comedy act on the triple bars, are a strong attraction; the Howards score heavily in a smart musical comedy act; a comedy duo, Getting Even, presented by Sinclair and Whiteford, is greatly appreciated. Other enjoyable turns are Jess Thorne, a clever comedienne; H. E. High, comedian; Edie King, comedienne and dancer; Eva Barrie, vocalist, and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Joseph Sweeney; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—A good bill is headed by the Three Moxons, Continental acrobatic comedians, who arouse enthusiasm by their clever feats; a sparkling musical entertainment submitted by the Bros. Smith is deservedly popular; excellent comedy and dancing are introduced by the Sages; Lillian Victoria, male impersonator, meets with a flattering reception; and Frank Vallance, entertaining magician; Winnie Arnetti, ballad vocalist, and the Tivoli Bioscope are also held in high esteem.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—A splendid house assembled on Easter Monday to witness the performance by Mr. F. B. Woulfe's company of Max Goldberg's romantic drama Lady Godiva, in which Miss Ethel Griffies fills the title-rôle with much éclat. Mr. Woulfe submits a really clever sketch of Tom of Coventry, whilst Mr. Clifford Rean, who on a former visit played this part, now appears with much success as Algar; Leofric, Edgar, and Lady Aldyth are parts which are capably handled by Mr. E. Holland Day, Mr. Cecil Renton, and Miss Barnet; as Robin and Elfrida Mr. Bob Anderson and Miss Edith Loraine are a merry pair; Mr. G. Edward Dunstan gives a creditable interpretation of Unwolf. Three other pieces, Nell Gwynne, Jane Shore, and Robin Hood, have been played during the week.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—The Selbini troupe of cyclists are accorded the premier position in this programme, a distinction which they richly merit; the remaining artists being Minnie Moran, comedienne; Brothers Danby, comedians and dancers; Luis Hardt, the boy Samson; James Tower, impersonator; the Bodina Trio, instrumentalists and vocalists; Carl Lynn, mimic; George Prince, the crazy comic, &c.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Driven from Home has been received with unmistakable appreciation. Miss Beatrice Western, in the dual rôle of Laura and Walter, takes the honours of the evening; Mr. Felix Pitt gives a firm rendering of Antony Raybrook, as does Mr. Leonard Aardale as the outcast, Willie; Mr. C. Imbert, well known here locally, is responsible for most of the comedy.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Vic Carnell.—A large audience assembled here on Monday night, when an attractive and diversified programme was given. The Ian Kura troupe, introducing The Slide for Life, are the principal turn, ably supported by Anthony, Illusionist; J. Dwyer, Sisters Brooks, Carter and Merziand, Wash and Woel, and H. Aiston and company in amusing sketch, The Duck Hunt.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—A most acceptable Easter attraction here is Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile pantomime company in Sleeping Beauty, which has delighted crowded audiences. Miss Kittie Trewhitt is a captivating Prince Florizel; and Beauty has a charming representative in Miss Dolly Dodds. Highly clever and amusing is Wee George Wood; Messrs. Doyle and Gibson as Colonel Dreadnought and Major Flashlight provoke an abundance of mirth; Mr. Pat Sloan and Mr. Taylor Snowball add their share to the fun as the Gollywogs; the Bros. Armstrong as the Queen and Asbestos fill their parts capably; and Master Jack Harrison causes plenty of laughter in the character of the King. Throughout the pantomime are interspersed numerous popular and up-to-date songs, the music is bright and entertaining, whilst the dresses are magnificent.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Carl Hertz, the world-famous illusionist, is the star here this week, and has mystified large audiences with his clever entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, in "Scenes from Dickens," are paying a return visit, and have received a gratifying reception. Among others comprising the programme are Ray and Miles, amusing jugglers; Craig, Rose, and Craig, in their clever gymnastic speciality; Ruby Bijou, an expert dancer; Lou Langley, comedienne; and Harry Bickley, an eccentric comedian.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—The Six Æolians, who are here this week, provide an enjoyable musical programme; Maud Vera is delightful in her coon songs; Billy Burns, "the singing pitman," possesses a good tenor voice; Gerhardi Mohr, acrobat, turns a complete somersault over a cab; and the Sisters Desmond, character duettists, Cyrus and Maude, in their burlesque act, Turpin's Ride to York, the Forestiers, tumblers, and an excellent novelty show in D'Arc's Marionettes, are among the other attractions. The Pictures complete an excellent programme.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Hetty King, who heads the bill here, is a clever male impersonator; Walter Wade is a remarkably fine vocalist; Will Letters is greatly appreciated; Kelly and Ashby, a couple of comedy acrobats, cause much amusement; Drum and Major are well received; Leslie Bell and company present a good sketch, The Red Letter; Mark Leslie is a pleasing coon impersonator; and the Pictures are interesting.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Mr. Leonard Thiel and Mr. Fred Fowler's Pom-Poms head the bill this week, and their performance, consisting of vocal items, is excellent. The Tennessee Guards contribute some military exercises, which are performed most rapidly; Vanando returns in his novel ventriloquial entertainment; Lena Willard is a pleasing comedienne, her imitations being good; and the Raymond Trio, in a musical and dancing turn, are most successful. Bert Brantford offers humorous songs; J. H. Carney is a comedian of merit, his mimicry being capital; Kioto, the Japanese equilibrist, is a decided success in his novel entertainment. The pictures are excellent.

STROUD—SUBSCRIPTION ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. S. J. Twitchett.—Miss Maggie Morton's Home, Sweet Home company was here on Saturday. Mr. Gordon Ingram does full justice to the part of Stephen Armitage; David Armitage is acted with ability by Mr. F. Morton Wright; Mr. Raymond Chester scores as Lucas Lyle; Mr. Charles Clayton submits a good sketch of the Duke of Ancaster; and Mr. Frank Wheatley is excellent as the Hon. Percy. Joan finds a capable exponent in Miss Francis May; Dora is portrayed in a winsome and pathetic manner by little Josephine Melbourne; Miss Nellie Marler ably sustains the part of Sybil Fay; and Mr. C. W. Oliver hits off the part of Dick Redmayne to perfection.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson opened a fortnight's visit here on Monday with A Midsummer Night's Dream. Mr. Benson plays the part of Lysander with all his accustomed keenness and success; Mrs. Benson brings all her acumen and charm to the portrayal of Titania; Mr. Chas. Derwent is a capable Demetrius; and Mr. Murray Carrington displays considerable power as Theseus. Mr. George Buchanan is well placed as Oberon; and Mr. Reginald Davis is a meritorious Egeus. Miss Tita Brand is pleasing as Hermia; and Miss Helen Haye is no less charming as Helena. Miss Leah Hanman is a sprightly Puck; and Miss Estelle Stead ably enacts the rôle of Hippolyta.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Carlo.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's principal company provides the Easter week attraction here with The White Chrysanthemum. On both Monday and Tuesday there was a crowded house.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. F. C. Somerfield's The Tyrant company occupies the boards this week. Miss Dagmar submits a strong portrayal of the rôle of Tisbe; Mr. F. C. Somerfield ably embodies the part of Homodei; Mr. Roy Fortescue forcibly enacts the character of Angelo; Mr. Lionel Atwill is good as Rudolph; Miss Milly Ford does well as Lady Katherine; and Miss Lallah Shelton is seen to advantage as Eulie.

PALACE OF VARIETY, LTD.—Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—The bill here is headed by Jack McKenzie and company, in the musical comedy, The Belle of Barcelona. Others appearing include the Leotard Bros., musical clowns; Lidden and Hayward's comedy team; Ben Harris and his Nippers; Hans and Lux, college chums; Frank Seely, comedian; and Francis O'Flynn, banjoist.

SWANSEA.—THE STAR.—Of the sensational type of drama none has been more successful than Walter Melville's Worst Woman in London, which Mr. T. H. Taylor's company presents at the Star this week. Miss Olga Andre ably presents the title-rôle, and the company supporting her does full justice to the dramatic scenes.

TON-Y-PANDY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Morice Prendergast's company in A Woman of Pleasure. In the rôle of the Earl of Arlingforth Mr. Ernest Wallace scores heavily; the Rev. Luke Goddard is in the safe hands of Mr. H. Lewis; Major Barrows is well played by Mr. Arthur Gilroy; Mr. Fred Kay is successful as Commander Deach; Mr. Edmond Baker is extremely funny as Bobby Bumpwell; Miss Grace Carew makes a successful Alice; and Miss Sylvia Eaton is a good Lord Arthur Selwood.

TREHERBERT.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole; Manager, Mr. J. Gunn.—The attraction which is drawing crowded houses here this week is Mr. E. R. Abbott's company, in Lady Audley's Secret. Miss Ada Abbott, who plays Lady Audley, is to be greatly complimented upon her clever embodiment. In the part of Sir Michael Audley, Mr. W. H. Garbois is admirable; Mr. E. R. Abbott as George Talboys proves himself efficient; Mr. Douglas C. Phelps as Robert Audley is seen to advantage; Mr. Edwin Keene is extremely good in the part of Luke Marks; Miss M. Tennant as Phœbe Marks deserves praise for a fine portrayal; Miss Hetty Jones in the child's part proves herself to be a talented young actress, and is ably assisted by Miss L. Gilmore, who plays Clara Talboys.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA.—Proprietor and Director, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—A strong holiday programme includes The Pansy and the Owl, a comic operatic burlesque, by Messrs. Gordon and Hickman, and Miss Iris Banfield; Harry May Hemsley, mimic; Lulu Gillespie, musician and vocalist; May Rawlinson, soprano vocalist, Ryde and Beeman, comedians; W. Belmont, cyclist; and the Royal Roumanian band, under the bâton of M. G. Fericescu.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Miss Winifred Maude's company, in the drama, The Convict, is paying a return visit. Mr. Wm. Vane gives a manly and realistic rendering in the title-rôle; Mr. Leonard Harrison is good as Mr. Britton; and Mr. W. Bradford makes a capital villain as Captain Hurley. Mr. Victor Du Cane is highly successful as Sergt. Holmes and Alphonse Godin; Mr. Frederick Gerratt is humorous as Mike Larne; Miss Winifred Maude acts with great pathos as Nellie Seaford; Miss Ethel Tinsley is admirable as Miriam Goldberg; and Miss Jenny Hackett scores as Jenny Bright.

HIPPODROME.—Scottie's Waifs and Strays appear with success in a pathetic scene; Mabelle May is a charming comedienne; Juan and McQue, comedians, are amusing; Mr. Fred Terry, comedian, and Misses Dorothy Kint and Maisie Fuller, vocalists, also appear. Pearce and Ward are a smart comedy couple.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The Kremo Family prove a great attraction here this week, and their extraordinary acrobatic display is wonderful. Other items include Andrew Moy; Victor Newman, an actor with a marvellous delivery; the Three Cape Girls, comediennes and clever long-boot dancers; the latest musical comedietta, Mam'selle Pom-Pom, by H. C. Lovell and company; and George Christian, comedian. The Musical Schafers, in their speciality, are most entertaining; and the American Bioscope completes a capital programme.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Fred J. Little's company occupies the boards here this week with the drama, The New World. Mr. Victor Rae makes a capital Jack Hawley; Mr. W. S. Stevenson does well as Jim Rawlings; Mr. Albert H. Clarke is successful as Joe Williams; Miss Evelyn Robson shows considerable ability as May Walton; and Jenny Williams is charmingly portrayed by Miss Beatrice Moore.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The Emilions head the bill here this week, and prove to be a wonderful troupe of acrobats; Jimson's Pets are remarkable specimens of the canine species; Welda and Wynne score in a musical acrobatic act; and Kitty Kearns is a charming comedienne. Oliver Conroy also scores a big success with a good round of humorous songs, and Lena Willard is a dainty burlesque artist. The Bioscope pictures are a choice collection.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Mr. Godfrey Tearle and company, in A Soldier of Fortune, is here for the first time this week. The rôle of Lieut. Rupert Clive finds an able exponent in Mr. Godfrey Tearle; Mr. Alfred Gray exhibits some good work in his portrayal of the Earl of Annandale; and Mr. Baliol Holloway submits a skilful impersonation of Sir Stephen. A clever rendering of Dr. Thorn is presented by Mr. William Lowe; Miss Molly Malone evokes loud applause for her fine representation of Lady Phyllis; Miss Violet Barnett is responsible for the rôle of Grace; and as Mistress Culign Miss Ethel Mathews proves a decided success.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is presenting The Eternal City this week to good business. Grace and pathos mark the assumption by Miss Eva Moss of the rôle of Donna Roma Volona, her acting eliciting great appreciation. The delineation of Baron Bonelli entails some exacting work, and Mr. E. Stanton Sharp acquits himself admirably. The fine stage presence and excellent dramatic versatility of Mr. Oswald Cray enable him to score in the rôle of David Rossi; Mr. Edgar L. Hocking gives artistic treatment to the character of Pope Pius XI.; Mr. Charles McCann's interpretation of the part of Bruno Rocco is entirely satisfactory; and Mr. Wernham Byott gives a studied rendition of that of Commendatore Angelli.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Houses packed in every available part assembled on Monday to witness the excellent array of talent chosen for the holiday attraction. Harry Roxbury and his company have been seen here on a previous occasion. Their merry musical melange, The Prince of Monte Carlo, goes as well as ever, the comicalities of Harry Roxbury keeping the audience in roars of laughter. Bert Weston is another old favourite, and his incessant jocularity is irresistibly funny. Some marvellous feats are performed by the Alskarno Trio of comedy Risleyists and tumblers; Edie Endon sings in a taking style, and is an expert sand-dancer; Beau and Belle appear in a novel and artistic singing scena. Good opinions are earned by the Sisters Hall, vocalists; remarkable skill and precision in juggling and club-throwing is exhibited by the Henres; and an excellent display of pictures is submitted and appreciated.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. John A. Thomson's No. 1 pantomime company is here this week in Little Red Riding Hood. Miss Ella Willmer is a very clever actress, and gave a delightful portrayal of Red Riding Hood; Miss Beatrice Varley acted and sang with distinction as Prince Allfair; Miss Fay Desmond possesses an exceptionally fine voice, which is heard to much advantage in the songs allotted to the Good Queen Flora; Miss Ivy Bolton makes a dashing Boy Blue; and Rosa is charmingly impersonated by Miss Kate Pennington. Mr. Fred Anderson (Tommy Green) and Mr. Lovell Rowland (Simple Simon) are great favourites locally, and their quaint gags keep the house convulsed with laughter; Mr. Fred Latimer is very good as Dame Trot; and Mr. George Newham makes an excellent Baron Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Fred Boulton as Paddy and Mr. Pulo as Sandy, are both entitled to praise; whilst the Wolferino of Mr. Albert Victor deserves the highest eulogy. Other characters are in capable hands.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—A huge audience assembled on Bank Holiday night to witness Mr. Fred Karno's troupe of comedians in the old favourite, His Majesty's Guests. Mr. George Nestor is well known locally, and his Sergeant Lightning is very funny. Mr. Frank Morton is a capital Lord Easem; Mr. Charles Usher is well suited as Mr. Miffin; Mr. S. Kearns is a comical Minks; Miss Edith Ager is an excellent Dolly; and it would be far from easy to improve upon Miss Kittie Brunton's "new woman." Mr. Tom Manardo is at home in the skirts and eccentricities of Selina; Miss Leonora Castelle does good work as Lady Maud Easem; Mr. A. Bolton is an admirable Harry Miffins; and Mr. Harry Howe is well suited in the part of Bunker.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company, in the drama In Holy Russia (by Lillian Clare Cassidy) has attracted large holiday audiences. Mr. Robt. Cockroft in the part of the Tzar, Mr. Arthur Stratton as Colonel Forest, and Mr. J. Rice Cassidy as Mickey Nolan are ably supported by the other male members of the cast; and Miss Florence Creagh as Catska Lavotski, a Russian spy, and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy as Renee Rubinoff portray their respective characters admirably.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—There is an excellent bill of fare at the Hippodrome this week. Newhouse and Ward, trick cyclists; Smarte Bros., acrobatic eccentrics; Prof. Dunning, ventriloquist; the Avolos, somersault throwers; Kahn and Kahn, in a magical act; and Nada Moret, dramatic vocalist, prove very popular; and first-class comedy is provided by Jack Pleasants, W. J. Ashcroft, Jack Lane, and Tennis and Laune.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory is presenting here this week Lights Out. Mr. Arthur Stone as Captain Von Bannewitz puts in some excellent work; and he is ably assisted by Mr. Kenneth Brampton as Lieut. Von Howen. Mr. George Hanbury as Major Paschke gives an excellent delineation of the character; Miss Francis Davis is good as Klara Volkhardt. The remaining characters are well placed. The principal play is preceded by A Hundred Years Hence, which is well presented by Mr. Lambert Plummer as Hon. Billy Winder, and Miss Belle Donaldson as Astrea Dacre.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week the Sisters Russell, pleasing comedy duettists, have proved a big draw; Mr. T. B. Talbot, ventriloquist, is as popular as ever; Miss Lily Anton is a neat comedienne; Lee and Arden give a clever musical comedy duologue; and Miss Carrie Leslie, characteristic comedienne, is much appreciated.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The York Amateur Operatic and Dramatic Society have, during the past week, delighted crowded houses by the clever and artistic manner in which The Gondoliers has been presented. The excellent result speaks volumes for the tact and skill shown by Mr. W. Simms Bull, under whose sole stage direction the opera has been produced.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Jenny Johns is in great form this week, her charm of manner and piquant style finds great favour; Herbert Clifton sings some taking songs in first-class style; and Eldra, with his dog, Prince, are enjoyable items. The Lavalls are gymnasts of more than ordinary merit; Hettie Chattell quickly sings herself into favour; and charming Dolly Elsworthy, as Nell Gwyn, in The Orange Girl, gives a delightful impersonation. Wragg and Wragg and the Highland Pipers, together with the Bioscope, complete the bill.

AMUSEMENTS IN BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—On Saturday last, the annual Easter pantomime, Goody Two Shoes, was produced, under the able direction of Messrs. Fred W. Warden and J. H. Saville. A full report will be found in another column.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris.—There is a splendid attraction for the holidays in Dan Thomas's grand pantomime, Aladdin, which forms quite three-fourths of the entertainment, and is a big draw. Mr. Dan Thomas himself appears as Widow Twankey, and a more irresistible impersonation could not be desired, his songs and dances being deservedly encored. Miss Daisy Yates was a charming Aladdin, and her songs were rendered in delightful style; the rôle of the Princess Badroubadour was delightfully played by Miss Amy Bellwood, whose songs were much enjoyed; and other rôles were capitally undertaken by Miss Marie Lewis, Miss Minnie Saunders, and Messrs. A. Jenner, Chas. Dore, Miss Ethel Robertson, and Miss Rosie Conroy. The Four Dandies add much to the success of the pantomime by their clever dancing. Holden's Mannikins, so cleverly manipulated, furnished an entertainment of great attractiveness; and a hit has been made by Miss Edna Seaton, the little Dutch girl; Mr. Arthur Boyne, comedian; Gillen, ventriloquist; and the Palace pictures complete.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The bill here is headed by the celebrated actress, Mrs. Brown-Potter, who, with her company, appears to the utmost advantage in a dramatic episode, entitled Mary Queen of Scots. Mrs. Brown-Potter's acting quite enthralled the audience. Seeley and West play a number of musical instruments cleverly; and Mr. Barney Armstrong is a capital comedian and dancer. The acrobatic feats of Rhoda Bros. have created quite a sensation; and Hurley and Cole make a big hit with their scena, Let Bygones be Bygones. The mimicry of Florence is certainly

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys. — Mr. F. Mouillot's Geisha and Greek Slave company is here this week. Many as have been the visits of The Geisha, this comedy has lost none of its local popularity. O Mimosa San is charmingly played by Miss Louie Collier, who acts and sings with such vivacity and taste as to secure special favour. Miss Florrie Saunders gives a thoroughly artistic reading of Molly Seamore, and uses her voice to great advantage; Miss Violet Kenyon is entrusted with the rôle of Juliette Diamant, which she invests with much chic; Mr. Cyril Thompson is a capital Reginald Fairfax, and he has an excellent voice which he uses with admirable effect in the numbers allotted to him; Wun Hi is undertaken with plenty of spirit by Mr. Edward Carlton; Mr. J. Mansell Stringer plays Captain Katana pleasingly; and Mr. A. J. Nicholls does well as Takamuni. The Marquis Imari is admirably represented by Mr. Lionel Braham. On Friday The Greek Slave was presented.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie. —Glasgow playgoers are this week afforded an opportunity of seeing the comedy Dr. Wake's Patient, performed in highly creditable style by Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company. Mr. Lawrence Grant plays the title-part, and is heartily applauded for an excellent impersonation, his appearance, voice, and bearing suiting the rôle admirably. The Lady Gerania of the cast is Miss Fyfe Alexander, who gives the necessary charm and interest to the part, and likewise succeeds in finding favour with the audience. The old farmer, Wake, is a well-known character, and, as played by Mr. George Howard, loses none of its firmness and strength; equally characteristic and telling is the Mrs. Wake of Miss Kate Osborne; as the languid young aristocrat, Wynterden, Mr. Allan Pollock pleases the audience greatly; Mr. Paul Lovett comports himself well as the Earl of St. Olbyn; as the Bishop, Mr. Adam Alexander is particularly good; Miss Georgie Trewman looks and acts the part of the Countess of St. Olbyn extremely well; the rôle of Harriet Bronson is attractively filled by Miss Clara Carle, the other female characters being well represented by Miss Mabel Wynne (Mrs. Murdoch), Miss Yamsi Ismay (Gipsy), and Miss Kathleen Ferrers (Janifer); clever sketches being also submitted by Mr. George Newlands (Brown), Mr. C. R. Gordon (Prescott), Mr. Eliot Graham (Antony), and Mr. Tom Constable (waiter).

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane. —A big holiday audience, in the best of holiday humour, welcomed The New Aladdin here on Monday. Miss Cressie Leonard makes a charming Lally, acting, singing, and dancing with unfailing energy and go from the first scene to the last, and at once established herself a favourite. Mr. Geo. Gregory is already popular here, and as Tippin he has unlimited scope for his versatility. With Miss Leonard he shares the honours of the evening. As the Genie of the Lamp, Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., proves himself to be a most volatile comedian, and carries through his performance with a wealth of high spirits and humour. Miss Jessie Lonnen as the Spirit of Paris makes a typical French comedienne; and Miss Nellie Lonnen as Laolah displays her ability as a dancer. Miss Irene Verona proves as humorous as ever as the Spirit of the Ring; as the Lost Policeman, Mr. John Brabourne has exactly caught that tone and look of hopeless melancholy which Mr. Alfred Lester made so amusing when last here; Mr. Ernest Mahar as General Ratz sings well; Mr. Frank Hector is duly acidulated as Lally's uncle Ebenezer; and Mr. William Spray is an amusing Cadi. Miss Mary Fraser as the Scotch maid Jennie has scored a big hit, her charming appearance and the absolute genuineness of her accent being points in her favour. Miss Ida Rene, who was last seen here in variety business, is a most attractive and engaging Princess, bright and winsome, and she gives her songs with arch humour. Miss Edith Denton contributes a solo dance; and another lady, whose name is not specially given, distinguishes herself in the energetic dance tacked on to "Waltz me round again, Willie." The chorus singing and the staging deserve the highest praise.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—Capital holiday audiences gave a welcome to Mr. Charles Macdonna's company in the musical comedy Mr. Popple (of Ippleton). In the title-part Mr. Arthur Longley is easy, unaffected, and most entertaining as the country Squire; Miss Millie Hylton as La Bolero has had a splendid reception for her acting and singing; Mr. Robert Corray is excellent as Norman; Mr. Tom May scores as Platt; Miss Nellie Hodson is a sprightly and vivacious Louise; as Mr. and Mrs. Hennay and Mr. and Mrs. Doring, Mr. Sydney Courtenay, Miss Alice Rene, Mr. James Stevenson, and Miss Stella St. Andrie are a most successful quartette, sustaining their parts with spirit and ability; Miss Cora Lingard as Violet sings and dances charmingly; while Mr. Robert McLachlan, who appears as Jacques Kenyon, is an excellent vocalist.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The attraction provided here this week is Robert Perriss' company in the sensational American drama, A Fight for Millions. The company is an all-round good one. Mr. Wm. Macready as Tom Manley and Miss Winifred Symons as Pearl Rivers present a striking picture of the injured lovers; and, in conjunction with Mr. Alec C. Grant as Richard Dudley, sustain the principal parts. Other artists include Messrs. Karl H. Edwards, J. Schofield, Harold Turner, George Hodges, and Misses Elma C. Turner, Isabel Edbrook, and Rosie Kearns, who give capital support.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson. —Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. Edward Whitty's company opened here on Easter Monday in the drama entitled The Unwedded Wife. As Marion Miss Ethel Van Praagh has a capital rôle, in which she is seen to advantage; and a great success is scored by Little Doris as Reggie. The parts of John Hawthorne, David Drummond, and Frank Armstrong are well cast, and are strongly portrayed by Messrs. Logan Darra, J. A. Grove, and Valentine Henry. Mr. J. E. Whitty as Constable O'Runyin provides some humour. The part of Philip Blackstone lacks nothing in the hands of Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes; and Misses Jessie Gillette and Elsie Walton are commendable as Caraway Crumpet and Elsie Langham. Mr. Sam Roberts is quite entertaining as N. B. Boomer.

Lyceum.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—That popular young Irish comedian, Mr. Chalmers Mackey, is here this week in The Shaughraun, and the genial humour of his Conn is proving as acceptable as ever. Mrs. Chalmers Mackey is a charming Clare Ffolliott; and the lively and entertaining Moya is well played by Miss Nana Flensberg. Mr. John S. Chamberlain gives due emphasis to the villainies of Harvey Duff; and the scheming Carry Kinchella is ably acted by Mr. David McFarlane. Mr. St. John Stuart is an earnest Robert Ffolliott; and Father Doolan is impersonated with suitable dignity by Mr. H. Sainsbury. Miss Kate Lever as Ate O'Neil, and Miss Adele Liddon as Mrs. O'Kelly are also well placed.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—Fred Karno's company in Dame Trot still forms the principal part of the programme here, and the lively entertainment provided by Fred Kitchen, Luna Love, Aggie Morris, Fred Whittaker, &c., is heartily enjoyed. Gustave Fasola, the Indian conjuror, shows wonderful neatness and dexterity in the execution of his marvellous tricks; the Geretti Sisters are clever and daring trapeze artists; Lennie and Hast present their artistic Sea-Nymph scena, which proves popular; as also do the illustrated songs of Chas. Robinson. Dan. A. Meely's combination in A Merry Tramp, Harry Marlo (smart dancer), and Allan Hanbury (light comedian), with the Bioscope, complete a varied and attractive bill.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Boy Army head the bill at this house, and are well received, their evolutions and drill being very smart. Barton and Ashley as mirth makers are old favourites in Glasgow; Alice May and company, in their sketch entitled Tranquillity, and Frances Letty, comedienne, in her latest success, "Hello!" are both exceedingly clever. A versatile turn provided by the Brewsters deserves special mention; the Les Uniques are worthy their hearty reception; and the company also includes Harry Carsdale (farmyard mimic), Stephens and Rennior (sand dancers), and Frobel and Ruge (aerial comedians). The Hippodrome pictures conclude the performance.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—A prominent place here is taken by Arthur Prince, the clever ventriloquist; Harry Tate's Motoring sketch has been well received; and so, too, has the clever comedy sketch, The Golfer and the Maid, by Hanvarr and Lee; the sleight-of-hand king, Dunningarto, fairly mystifies the audience; Arthur Reece, comedian, sings two favourite songs; and the Markies give a high-class vocal and instrumental sketch, entitled From Pavement to Stage. Other acceptable turns include Amy Sullivan, comedienne; Fred Clements, facial comedian; and Venie Clements, refined comedienne and dancer.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Mr. Herbert Darnley, a popular comedian in Glasgow, heads the bill here with his company in the exceedingly laughable sketch entitled Moving In. Henry A. Coutts and company in Outflanked give a smart exhibition of quick-change business; and another enjoyable turn is that of the Proveanie Troupe of lady cyclists. Will English is as successful as ever in his coon songs, &c.; and the Anartos, in their speciality act, The Morning Mail, are responsible for much mirth. Stylo is a clever hoop manipulator; and Beatrice Bonnie, in her "Peter Peacock" song, is well received. A talented little lady is Kathleen Cogan, whose singing and dancing are highly appreciated; while the dancing, tumbling, and general eccentricities of Forest and King make them favourites. The Bioscope concludes an excellent programme.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—The invincible Russian wrestler, Georg Hackenschmidt, is again in Glasgow, and attracting crowded houses to witness his prowess against all comers. Addie Dorina appears in her clever quick-change scena, in which she impersonates seven characters; Gus W. Blake and Maude Granby appear in a lively sketch, The Man in Possession; Musical Silvo's selections on various instruments are specially well done; Mlle. Pollo is a clever and daring lady gymnast; Tom E. Hughes increases in popularity with every visit; Geo. Goodfellow and Jennie Gregson are a smart comedy couple, with new and taking business; Verno and Voyce are big favourites in their clever turn; and Robibe Roy, laughing comedian, and the Bioscope complete an excellent bill.

Gaiety, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Miss Daisy de Roy, a fascinating burlesque actress, has made quite a success in several songs here this week; and the two Eltons, in a funny triple-bar performance, have also had a good reception. Tom Bassett, comedian, is in demand; and Bob Stephenson and Jack Brindall are popular comedians in their respective lines. A clever performance on ladders is given by Signor Berteni, and a musical turn presented by Mlle. Dora wins applause. Further amusement is provided by Mlle. Sara's trio in classical statuary poses and the Gaiety Bioscope.

AMUSEMENTS IN MANCHESTER.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—High-class holiday entertainment was provided here on Monday night by the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, who greatly pleased a fairly large audience by their excellent rendering of The Bohemian Girl. Mr. Edward Davies as Thaddeus sang and acted well; and Miss Elizabeth Burgess made in all respects a delightful Arline. Mr. Dillon Shallard's Count Arnheim was distinguished by equally effective renderings of the well-known numbers; and Mr. Arthur Winckworth added to the fine vocalism of his part a spirited interpretation of the humours of Devilshoof. The other parts were well done, and good service was rendered by a highly efficient chorus and orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Eugene Goossens. Tuesday's performance of Tannhäuser was as excellent and as well-attended as usual, the principal rôles being entrusted to Mr. Julius Walther and Mme. Lucile Hill, to whose fine singing much admirable assistance was added by Miss Marie Alexander (Venus), Mr. Dillon Shallard (Wolfram), and Mr. Arthur Winckworth (the Landgrave). Others in this excellent company who shine prominently in the week's répertoire are Miss Doris Woodall, Miss Grace Nicoll, Miss Ina Hill, Mr. Charles Victor, Mr. Frederick Clendon, and Mr. Charles le Sueer. The remaining operas are The Merry Wives of Windsor, Lohengrin, The Marriage of Figaro, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Faust.

Gaiety Theatre. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Always highly-appreciated in Manchester, Mr. Edward Compton and his company opened here on Monday in a répertoire of old English comedies, the first of which, Davy Garrick, was capitally rendered before a good house. Mr. Compton's impersonation of Garrick was the principal feature, though his graceful and finished work was adequately supported by the company, among whom Miss Mackenzie played very delicately as Violet, and Mr. Henry Crocker also distinguished himself, notably as Gresham. The Desperate Lover, a smart one-act comedy, preceded. On Tuesday Edmund Kean, Tragedian, was successfully presented; and, in addition to The School for Scandal, She Stoops to Conquer, and The Rivals, the bill included a production of The Gentleman in Grey on Friday, the occasion being the benefit of Mr. Edward Compton.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mrs. F. G. Kimberley and her company, in the recently-produced drama, A Soldier's Honour, provide the attraction here this week. The play is proving very successful, and is certainly staged and rendered in excellent style.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Prominent and well-received turns, included in a good programme here this week, are Gus Harris, the well-known Hebrew delineator; Robins and Collier, in the musical comedy scena, The Lady and the Porter; Nellie Voltaire, comedienne and dancer; and the second-sight seers, the Days. Very entertaining also are Eustace and Eyre, in a novel ventriloquial absurdity; Hilda and Leigh and company in a capital sketch Another Man's Wife; Little Dando, comedian; Tony Iveson, at the piano; Olive Armadale, a pleasing singer; and Harry Grey, novelty comedian. "Oh! that Hat," is a funny film shown on the bioscope.

St. James's Theatre—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company are seen here this week in Max Goldberg's detective drama, The Bank of England, which purports to be a characteristic adventure in the life of Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Chas. H. Lester sustains the rôle of Holmes with very good effect; as Stephen Hartley Mr. G. Clifton Boyne presents a clever sketch of the director of the bank; and a prominent success is gained by Miss Lallah Davis as the American widow, Aminta J. Beane. Among many well-played minor parts, that of Gordon Isaacs, the money-lender, is conspicuously brought out by Mr. Edmund O'Grady; and Sylvia Barraclough has an admirable exponent in Miss Dorothy Riddell.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Mick Whittintun, a variation of the doings of the "Casey's Court" comedians, is the top attraction here this week, and provides plenty of amusement. A first-class sketch, Number 99, presented by Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister, gives the last-named an opportunity for some very fine character-acting; Jeannie Mackay, vocalist, sings excellently; the Karno Four are amusing in their "dinner-hour" sketch; a capital acrobatic turn is given by the Garganis; Sylvesta, assisted by Vere de Courtney, shows himself a smart magician; and other items are contributed cleverly by James Brady, comedian; Billy McClain and company, in a very effective southern scena; and the Bohemians, instrumentalists and comedy artists. The Bioscope depicts the adventures of a stray dog.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—A fine spectacular show here is Frank Parker's production of The Treasure Ship in Fairy Seas, with music by Carl Kiefert. Excellent turns are added by the Gems, in song, play, and mirth; the McBanns, wonderfully expert juggiers; Clarence C. Corri's company in Heart Strings, a sweet and pathetic episode; the Trapnell Family of graceful acrobats; the Four Royal Welshmen; Topsy and Usher, Kentuckian vocalists and dancers; Harry Clifford, comedian; three pleasing items by the choir, and pictures on the Bioscope.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Galatea, otherwise the charming Miss Maud Odell, is here this week rivalling the famous La Milo, in a series of artistic reproductions of sculptured masterpieces, all beautifully carried out. Haley's Juveniles, including Dot and Spot, are smart singers and dancers; Leo Dryden, the popular vocal character-actor, is well received; Charles Austin makes a hit with his song, "Mr. Perkins"; Tom Stuart, character-actor and impersonator, is good; and Gold and Sterling are entertaining duettists. The Three Mackweys cause much laughter in a cleverly-arranged "mad whirling act" on the wire; Fred Hallam, comedian, contributes a song; and the Three Ettenas are successful in their globe-walking speciality. Some excellent films are shown.

King's, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—The Lost Coon is the attraction here this week, presented in excellent style by Dinah Morris and company, including Bessie Morris, the dancing and singing being most enjoyable; another capital turn is that of Emma Don and her Black and White comedy team, in melody, mirth, and music; Greener, the singing pit lad, is well received; Windermere and Mansfield are good in duologue, A Narrow Squeak; the Henriques do some smart work in a comedy acrobatic act; and the Three Behans are vastly entertaining in a quick-change, vocal, and dancing act. Acceptable turns are also contributed by the Simpsons, in musical act; the Bendons, in song-scena; and Fortune and Fame, comedians. Animated pictures complete.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Mr. W. B. Crabtree's company, in an amusing burlesque, The Village Free and Easy, are responsible for much merriment here this week; the Westwoods are wonderfully clever trick cyclists; Vowles and Bryan make a hit in song and story; and the Brothers Curran cause much laughter with a comic boxing act. Excellent vocal items are contributed by Marie Blythe, contralto, and Herbert Bates, tenor. Snowball and Miss Dolia, American artists, dance well; and George Hyam (comedian) and Nell Cotter (comedienne) have pleasing styles. "The Catch of the Season" and "Two Young Scamps" are shown on the bioscope.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—That favourite burlesque artist, Millie Lindon, is the bright particular star here this week, and is well received. Very successful, also, is George French, a capital eccentric comedian; and warmly applauded are the Morton Trio, whose singing in The Dandy Bandits is very fine. Mr. and Mrs George Leonard are seen to great advantage in a comedy sketch, Coming Home; and Frank Coyle, the "continuous" comedian, is as amusing as ever. Other smart items are contributed by the Sisters Selwyn, vocalists and dancers; Patty McCarthy, comedienne; Tom Garland, ventriloquist; and Nellie Chandos, comedienne. Raymond's Vivagraph pictures are entertaining.

Hippodrome (Hulme).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—A beautiful act is given here this week by Venus, who tops the bill, her poses of famous pictures being represented in a thoroughly artistic manner; Stanley and Vandyke are highly amusing in a laughable sketch, entitled A Broken Promise; Mack Olive, assisted by Daisy Baldry, is good in a versatile act; J. W. Gallagher, eccentric comedian, is entertaining; and Mac and Hill are smart patter comedians. Other good turns are those of Annie Cohen, comedienne; Les Valdos in absurdity, The Eccentric Motor 'Bus Men; and Mlle. Fontainbleau and her remarkably clever performing dogs. On the occasion of our visit Gladys Williams (comedienne) and Jack Hylton (comedian) did not appear, an unnamed deputy turn of good singers and dancers, and extra bioscope pictures being given.

Grand.—Jasper Redfern's pictures, with vaudeville items, are still the attraction here.

AMUSEMENTS IN BIRMINGHAM.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Sign of the Cross is drawing large crowds here. Mr. William Greet's No. 1 company is engaged, with Mr. Frank E. Petley, whose presentment of the noble Marcus Superbus shows fine feeling and dignity; Mr. O. Yorke acts with clever art as the ignoble Nero; Mr. Frank Wood scores as Glabio; Miss Mary Newcombe shows good deportment as the Empress; Miss Gertrude Price does admirably as Berenice; and Miss Cissie Carlton, Mr. H. Thurston Harris, Mr. Tom Lloyd, Mr. Charles Aldred, and Mr. J. Wetherall make admirable satellites. Miss Marie Leonard moves the audience deeply as the gentle Mercia, Miss Dulcie Greatwick has the house in tears as Stephanus, and Mr. Walter Fleet as Farius is impressive.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—See-See, the new and exquisitely pretty Chinese comic opera, made its first appearance here last Monday, and has been drawing full houses all the week. In the unavoidable absence of Miss Lily Elsie, the name-part was taken by Miss Octavia Barry, whose pure, full voice and artless manners evoke frequent encores; Miss Elise Don made a highly-efficient substitute for Miss Barry as Mai-o-Yao; Miss Amy Augarde made a most effective part of the fortune-teller; Miss Topsy Sinden as So-Hie appeared in a variety of dances, which brought the audience to her feet; and Miss Daisy Wallace and Miss Alice Hatton, who made a most pleasing impression as Lee, are foremost among the others. Mr. Frank Danby made a fine part of the roguish Hang-Kee, Mr. W. H. Rawlins gave capital aid as Checoo, Mr. Myles Clifton was crisply humorous as Wang, and Mr. Leonard Mackay furnished a bold and resolute lover, Yen, his vigorous delivery and clear, ringing voice being much appreciated.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Man and Wife fills the bill here, with Mr. T. Edward Ward's company, who have met with much success. Miss Kate Hallam has elicited favourable receptions as Marcelle; Mr. John F. Traynor has made a popular rôle of the conscript, Paul Revere; Messrs. Edward Van Biene and Ambrose Horton are successful in the respective rôles of Colonel Latour and Sergeant Jacques; Mr. Wilson Coleman is highly commendable as Captain D'Esparre; Messrs. Sydney Bryant and Val Gully present the rôles of Bimbo and Bambo cleverly; and Mr. Edward Leslie as Father Coupe, and Mr. R. Stone as Phillipe, support ably. Miss Violet Temple wins sympathy as Ruth Revere; Miss Ethel F. Greene acts capably as Jean; and Miss Pollie Denville is well applauded as Rosette.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Great World of London, depicted by the Metropole company, has been attended by large crowds of holiday-seekers, who have vented much enthusiasm over their favourites. Mr. Percy Dawsone as the hero, Jack Clinton, is received with acclamation; Miss Rose Ralph is rapturously applauded as Lilian; Mr. Austin Milroy invests the rôle of Richard Thornton with clever realism; and Messrs. Francis Everard, Edward Finlay, Morley Carroll, and Edgar Snow contribute useful parts. Mr. Andrew Emm is the very quintessence of humour as Tom Bates; Miss Jessie Yatman makes a capital rôle of Tagrag, the shoeblack; and a numerous and most efficient cast supports.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Woman Who Gambles provides the holiday attraction here, a powerful company being presented by Mr. T. Morton Powell. Mr. Alex. Alexander brings out the valiant character of Count Otto Stienbach with conspicuous ability; Miss Louise Peach invests the rôle of the Countess with a glamour that fascinates everybody; Mr. Horatio Sinclair makes a powerful part of the Baron Cratzlaw; Mr. Reginald Fox gives a fine representation of Lieut. Carl Ctzarteriski; and Mr. E. H. Clarke as M. Stambuloff, Mr. Albert Brandhurst as George Orloff, Mr. Gilbert Dance as Speinletch, and Mr. J. J. Welch as Slivanovitch, are well suited. Miss Florence Halton has many attractive features as Cora Gouldheart; Miss Lily Malvern is good as Stella Melakoff; and the comic characters are well represented by Mr. Alfred Richards as the Hon. Bertie Bray, Mr. Fred Prior as Peter Peteroff, and Miss Violet Wilson as Zila Zeyelda.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Whittles.—The Grip of Iron continues to hold its own among the potent attractions of the stage, and its visit here this week has been signally successful. Mr. Fred Powell is numbered amongst Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company, his assumption of the masterful and brutal Simmonet retaining all its powerful attributes; Mr. Geo. Denham's acting as the Smiler yields the audience welcome humorous relief; Mr. Wallace Carnock gives a satisfactory study of Paul Blanchard; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner as Lerentz de Ribas, Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood as Alphonse de Coucon, Mr. J. Brittain as Dodet, Mr. Norman Tracey as M. de Belfort, and Mr. Henry Lawrence as M. de Beaudin, are all deserving of the highest praise; Miss Rosabel Dodd acquits herself in an admirable manner as Cora Simmonet; Miss Muriel Inglis realises the rôle of Sophie Blanchard to admiration; and Miss Violet Ingram as Marie Guerin, and Miss Pope Royal as Mlle. Delaney, are excellent.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Bella and Bijou are a smart pair of entertainers; Tschernoff's dogs and ponies are amazingly well trained; a farcical duologue, Opera Bouffe, by May Glenn and Leonard Griffiths, is a bright turn; and the Lupinos are nimble comedians. Lively Lily Langtry keeps the audience amused; Charles Norton's imitations of "stars" are very lifelike; the Five Jees give a clever musical act; and Nipper Lupino Lane is a droll little fellow, who sings Dutch songs. Margaret Ashton sings her songs effectively.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Miss Rose Elliott, who is described as "the singer of sensible songs," makes a decided hit, being vociferously encored; while the Harvey Boys provoke considerable mirth with their smart patter and mimic boxing act. The Great Roland mystifies the house with his clever illusions; the topical song and recitations of F. V. St. Clair are very well received; while Frederick Voelker, violin virtuoso, provides another acceptable turn. Harry Conlin, a versatile comedian, delights the audience; and Queenie May is enthusiastically applauded. Charles Somers, Lucy Coventry, Dale and O'Malley, and Meier and Mora were also responsible for enjoyable turns.

National Trades' Exhibition, Bingley Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. George Stanley.—This "hardy annual," which was opened last week by the Lord Mayor of Birmingham, supported by the Lord Bishop (Dr. Gore) and other dignitaries, is a marked advancement on all previous shows here, and as an epitome of the art and labour of man, should crowd the place for months. The London and North-Western, Midland, and Great Western Railway companies are represented by models of their respective and various systems, and Messrs. T. Cook and Sons have a miniature fleet of liners on view. Canada is well advertised, and horticulture, groceries, chicken-hatching, and sweet-making, glass-spinning, and the manufacture of artificial teeth, and mechanism of all description is laid bare to the public. Our sweated industries are represented in stalls by the sweated operatives themselves, this being a question that the Lord Bishop has taken in hand. The side shows are comprehensive and engrossing, and, altogether, Mr. Stanley is to be congratulated on the success that has attended the opening of his fifteenth and best effort. This week the band of H.M. Grenadier Guards and Scots Guards Pipers and Dancers are engaged.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Nellie Wallace is a burlesque artist whose humour is irresistible. She renders several songs in a style peculiarly her own. The singing of Parke's Eton Boys has lost none of its charms; and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden give a duologue in entertaining fashion. Simms and Simms are capable comedy musicians; the Hartley Wonders are skilful jumpers; while Maggie Walsh, a singing mill girl; and Spry and Monti, in "The Dandy Guardsman," are also appreciated.

MR. DANCE'S PIECES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Referring to Mr. Dance's letter in your last week's issue, would you kindly allow me to correct a statement which may be as misleading as the one Mr. Dance points out? I hold the rights of the fit-up towns and some eighty theatre towns for The Duchess of Dantzic, The Cingalee, The Girl from Kay's, and The Orchid, and have also options on the Catch of the Season, Veronique, and other of Mr. Dance's pieces.

Yours faithfully,

Opera House, Jersey. EDWARD MARRIS.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

AMUSEMENTS IN DUBLIN.

Gaiety Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The revival of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas formed an agreeable attraction here, and on Monday, when Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's Répertoire Opera Company played The Mikado, the popular melodies were heartily enjoyed by a crowded audience. Mr. Fred Billington, who was accorded a warm welcome, sang and acted with his accustomed success as Pooh-Bah; Mr. Pacie Ripple gave a clever representation of Nanki-Poo, and sang his music in capital style; Mr. Charles R. Walenn made a satisfactory Ko-Ko; Miss Hope Hastings was delightfully pleasing as Yum-Yum; Miss Lulu Evans as Pitti-Sing and Miss Mabel Burnege as Peep-Bo were both admirable in their respective parts; as Katisha Miss Theresa Rassam was particularly good, and Mr. Albert Kavanagh also did well as the Mikado; Mr. Leicester Tunks as Pish-Tush and Mr. Fred Drawater as Go-To fulfilled their parts successfully. For the rest of the week The Gondoliers, The Yeomen of the Guard, and Iolanthe were announced.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—An enthusiastic reception was accorded Mr. Chas. Frohman's company, in J. M. Barrie's fantastic play, Peter Pan, which commenced a three weeks' engagement here on Saturday. Miss Pauline Chase, in the title-rôle, is most artistic, and received rounds of applause; Miss Hilda Trevelyan was very convincing as Wendy, and acted with much feeling and grace; Miss Mary Grace was admirable as Mrs. Darling; and Mr. Loring Fernie made a capital Mr. Darling, his impersonation of the pirate Captain Hook being also an exceedingly clever performance; Smee and Gentleman Starkey were most amusingly presented by Mr. George Shelton and Mr. Charles Trevor, the remaining parts being filled in a most satisfactory manner. The play was magnificently staged, the last scene, The Tree Tops, being a masterpiece of stagecraft.

Abbey Theatre.—On Monday four one-act plays, entitled Deirdre, by W. B. Yeats, The Rising of the Moon and Spreading the News, both by Lady Gregory, and The Eyes of the Blind, by Miss W. M. Letts, were played before a good attendance, and were well received. The principal parts in each were fulfilled with great satisfaction by the Messrs. W. G. Fay, J. F. Fay, J. M. Kerrigan, Arthur Sinclair, and J. A. O'Rourke, and the Misses Maire O'Neill, Brigit O'Dempsey, Sara Allgood, and Mona Limerick. On Thursday Lady Gregory's comedy, Hyacinth Halvey, Riders to the Sea, by J. M. Synge, and Kathleen Ni Houlihan, by W. B. Yeats, were announced to be played by the same artists.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The holiday programme here is an attractive one. Heading the bill we have Mme. Classen's "Living Art Bronzes," in several classical poses, which elicit much applause; Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright, in an amusing sketch, entitled Cockie, are well received; and the clever and graceful gymnastic act of the Fitzroys proves acceptable. A laughter-provoking item, entitled Captain Kette, is presented by the Three Missouries; Miss Kate Trail's entertainment at the piano is well appreciated; Hunt and Thomas cause much merriment in their sketch, My Birthday. As an actor-vocalist Mr. George Ridgwell is much above the average; the Knick-Knacks, comedy artists, meet with approval; and the Empire Pictures are also an attraction.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Lorch Family of Risley acrobats provide the leading item in a good bill, and are deservedly applauded. Johnny Holland and company are responsible for much fun in their sketch, The Millionaire; and Arthur Woodville gains favour as a comedian and dancer. The College Boys, in harmony and song, create great enthusiasm; and Henriquette Maude, the little New Zealander, supplies an interesting turn. The Two Kays, in their vocal scena, "The Nightingale," are much enjoyed; and Prof. Norcross, shadowgraphist; Wat Tyler, character comedian; and Fenton Cross, society entertainer, score successfully in their respective turns. The latest pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

Pavilion, Kingstown.—Manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon.—The Russell Rosse répertoire company commenced a fortnight's engagement here, and on Monday afternoon Caste was presented before a large audience. The principal characters were in the capable hands of Miss E. Nolan O'Connor and Mr. David James. In the evening Betsy was played to a full house, and was well received.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme here includes Prof. and Mme. Elba, second-sight artists; Hilda Hazel, ballad vocalist; Charlie Cooper, comedian and dancer; Harry Garbutt, actor-vocalist; and the New Cinematograph.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The concise descriptions that we give below of recent patent applications are specially contributed by Messrs. Howard and Co., Patent Agents, 57 and 58, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will assist readers in all patent matters:—

SPECIFICATION.

22,644. Roundabouts. R. Horsley and W. R. Ward, both of the Metropole Hall of Amusement, Blackpool, Lancashire. An aquatic roundabout is constructed of an annular water channel, in which float a number of ships or yachts, which revolve preferably around a lighthouse. The driving-shaft is mounted in suitable bearings, and is driven by worm or other gearing from a motor or engine The ships are connected to a shaft by means of radiating arms and jointed links attached to the keels of the boats. Steps are provided to give access to the boats, and the exterior of the canal may be decorated with mountain or other scenery

22,897A. "Engaged" indicators for seats. C. Bright, Queen Victoria-street, London. The number of seats "engaged" or "vacant" in a theatre or concert hall is shown by apparatus which automatically displays at will the number upon an indicating band or wheel. In the apparatus referred to, the contact-plate allotted to each seat is kept raised by suitable means while the seat is vacant, and a shaft and drum, which normally stand with brushes resting upon the insulating surface, will be completely rotated if the attendant momentarily closes a switch. By this means circuit from the battery is made directly through an electro-magnet which feeds the ratchet-wheel upon the shaft, sufficiently to bring the conducting part of the wheel under the brushes, after which a make-and-break action at the contact controlled by the armature completes the rotation, the battery circuit being made through the electro-magnet and the brushes.

Applications.—5695. Thomas Henry Grave, of Chancery-lane, London. Improvements in apparatus for use in music halls and like places in the performance of certain feats of skill.

6357. George Hannibal Bond, of New Bond-street, London. Improved wig spring.

Complete Specification.—23,559. Hat, umbrella, and card-holders. Beechey, W., Lord-street, Gainsborough. Relates to a device for use in theatres and like places for holding hats, umbrellas, and the like. To a base-plate are attached spring clips. One clip is curved outward to hold umbrellas and the like. The lower end of the other clip is bent round to hold a hat, while the upper end is bent down to form a clip for a play-bill, programme, or the like. The ends of the springs are bent round or tipped with rubber or similar material.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, MARCH 28.—The average man is never so happy as when he can applaud in a piece those qualities he does not possess himself. He who, when he meets poor "traviata," withdraws the hem of his garment, on the principle that "Once lost is lost for ever," delights in plays wherein a courtesan is rescued. Alexandre Dumas fils tried the experiment with his Dame aux Camélias, and for many years to come paterfamilias will continue to shed tears over this sentimental story. Alphonse Daudet followed the example with Sapho; and, not long ago, London audiences showed their keen interest in the fate of La Maslowa, in Tolstoi's Resurrection. And as these works became immensely popular, and, consequently, brought in money, M. Pierre Wolff decided to write another "rehabilitation" piece, which M. Porel wisely accepted. To-day author and manager are happy, for the new work is proving a financial success. M. Wolff's heroine is by no means a "grande cocotte." She belongs, not to the half, but to the quarter world, and is a gutter-snipe, who sells herself because she is hungry and cold. As a contrast to her, the author shows us a society lady, courted because she is rich, devoid of moral sense, only anxious to satisfy her passing whims. Such a woman is Mme. Grandval, the mistress of Paul Bréhant, a painter of great talent, a "dreamer of dreams." Paul discovers that Mme. Grandval is unworthy of an honest man's affection, and, sick at heart, he seeks distraction in a Montmartre cabaret. Visitors to Paris are acquainted with these night cafés, filled with noisy music, noisy laughter, noisy women, miserable creatures of whom someone said, "Look at them! You think they are having supper, but for the majority of them it is their breakfast." Paul sits alone in a corner, and at the table next to him is a girl, ill-clad, with beautiful, sad-looking eyes. Her name is Denise. A fellow walks up to her and seizes her roughly by the arm. She utters a cry of terror, and the incensed Paul gives the scoundrel a thrashing. Paul is fascinated by the girl. He enters into conversation with her, and proposes to paint her portrait. Later on we find Paul and Denise hiding their love in a little Normandy place. Paul has discovered in Denise wonderful qualities of the heart and of the mind, and he is intensely happy. One day a motor car stops at the small hotel where they are staying. The travellers are some of Paul's Paris friends. One of them recognises Denise as a girl he has frequently met in the Montmartre night cafés, and he hastens to tell this to Paul. This prudish man is married, and deceives his wife, who, equally prudish, returns the compliment. In a shocked tone the man asks Paul, "Do you know whence this girl comes?" "Yes," replies Paul, "I found her in the gutter, which generally carries along some very ugly things. But I found a flower there, called Denise, and I do not intend to part with it." That is the whole plot. Only a cast like that of the Vaudeville could have done justice to a play of that description, and M. Pierre Wolff owes a deep debt of gratitude to M. Louis Gauthier, admirable in the part of Paul Bréhant; to Mlle. Yvonne de Bray, a charming Denise; to M. Joffre, an inimitable Monsieur Edouard; and to the other members of this excellent company.

"LE COUP DE JARNAC."

Vaudeville, in Three Acts, by MM. H. de Gorsse and M. de Marsan. Produced at the Folies-Dramatiques on March 22.

Mme. Brétillot .....MLLE. DIETERLE
Bobinette .....MLLE. MISTINGUETTE
Mme. Bonafous .....MME. GERMAINE ETY
Hildegonde .....MLLE. GENSE
Mme. Prune .....MME. JACQUEMINE
Brétillot .....M. MILO
Farjotte .....M. ROUVIERE
Le Commandant Bonafous .....M. BRESSOL
De la Crémone .....M. NEMO
Prune .....M. MODOT

The new vaudeville bears a strong family likeness to La Dame de Chez Maxim. M. Feydeau is a kind providence to many farce-writers, who quietly borrow some of the situations he created, with the absolute certainty that the public will laugh at the jokes. And the Folies-Dramatiques audience, who only like vaudevilles if they are "peppery," had reason to be satisfied. Brétillot, a Civil Service clerk, has gone to Jarnac on a visit to his Uncle and Aunt Bonafous. The latter have no children, and Brétillot hopes to inherit their fortune. Brétillot's wife has remained in Paris. The Bonafous do not know her, and, owing to unforeseen circumstances, Brétillot has been compelled to introduce to them, as his wife, Mlle. Bobinette, a music hall star. But Bobinette is by no means his mistress; in fact, he does not care for her, and is very much annoyed to see the Bonafous fuss over her, for he is a model husband, and intends to remain always faithful to Mme. Brétillot. We next meet Brétillot and his wife at Enghein, where they are spending the summer. Bobinette also arrives there, escorted by the Vicomte de la Tremblotte, whose mistress she is. The Vicomte admires the pretty Mme. Brétillot, but fails to make any impression on her. Brétillot receives a telegram that the Bonafous will come to Enghein the next day. No time is to be lost. If the Bonafous discover that he introduced another lady as his wife, there will be trouble. He sends his wife to Paris, and Bobinette consents to impersonate Mme. Brétillot, as she did at Jarnac. Moreover, the servants are sent away, a new cook is engaged, and Farjotte, one of Brétillot's friends, acts as valet. All might have gone well if Bobinette had taken her duties of pseudo-lady of the house seriously. Unfortunately she proved too flighty. Brétillot, having received the Cross of the Legion of Honour, gives a supper, and Bobinette, under the influence of champagne, sings some outrageous songs of her music hall répertoire, and dances a pas-seul to match. She is promptly put to bed, and other scenes occur which cannot well be described. And poor Brétillot learns to his disgust that his scheme to inherit the Bonafous' money could never prove successful, for the Bonafous laugh in his face, and tell him that they have sunk their money in a life-annuity. The farce was well acted. Mlle. Mistinguette, who, with Dranem, was one of the stars at the Eldorado, sang and danced with the entrain to which she owes her reputation; Mlle. Gense—who always impersonates servants—gave a somewhat too realistic sketch of a cook who falls in love with every man she sees; Mme. Ety was an amusing Mme. Bonafous; and the other members of the cast showed their cleverness in not overacting their parts.

ON Monday at the Opera House, Workington, there was a large audience to witness The Unseen Power, presented by Mr. Harry Starr and company. As Fred, Mr. Starr was applauded for his singing and acting; Mr. W. Miller was excellent as Harold; Mr. B. Firth was seen to advantage as Antonio; equally good were Mr. Will Hee as George and Miss Dolly Starr as Chris. Miss Kate Norris was successful as Lucretia.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS GRACIE MURIELLE.

Miss Gracie Murielle will be remembered as an exceptionally brilliant child actress, of whom some flattering predictions were made by very competent judges indeed—Mr. J. T. Grein amongst their number. Miss Murielle has grown up in an especially trying time for the actor, and so far her best work has been done very far afield, chiefly in South Africa, where she went with the laudable intention of gaining a wide experience in every kind of part, and in seeking to win the favourable verdict of South African audiences she had a by no means easy task before her. A young woman, barely out of her teens, and absolutely unheralded, she may be said to have fairly conquered one of the most critical audiences in the world—an audience composed of many nationalities, each with its own traditions and prejudices. Miss Murielle's recollections of Africa are, for the most part, very pleasant, for she was lucky in adding social success to an artistic one, and when at last, after struggling bravely against "long odds," a very nasty injury to her head and face compelled her reluctantly to curtail a fresh contract, just entered into with Mr. Rayne, she and her mother Miss Marion Laurence (also a member of the company), were simply overwhelmed with the crush of friends who thronged the station at Johannesburg to wish them "God speed and a quick return."

Miss Murielle was in South Africa during the war, and met many distinguished people and collected some very interesting mementoes. One of these is a bracelet composed of the South African medal, clasps and ribbon, with every engagement engraved thereon. This was presented to Miss Murielle by officers of the famous 60th Rifles (K.R.R.'s), and, being especially designed for Miss Murielle, is unique. Miss Murielle is enthusiastic on the subject of the climate of South Africa, though it is certainly trying in the very hottest season when one happens to be an actor or actress in a repertory company which produced forty plays in four months! (this Miss Murielle believes to be Mr. Rayne's record). So it will be seen that only workers are wanted in South Africa. Mr. Harry Nicholls was the genial comedian of the Rayne company; Mr. Charles Hewitt, the stage-manager; while Mr. Rayne, who is the "Alexander-Bourchier-Tree-Waller" rolled into one of South Africa, played most of the leading male parts.

Miss Murielle during her long engagement out there played over one hundred parts, and her success in such rôles as Roma, The Dancing Girl, The Worst Woman in London, &c., was a very big feather in the cap of the young actress, who went out to play juvenile and ingénue leads.

Miss Murielle (whose full name is Grace Eve Murielle) was quickly appreciated by Mr. Tree, who saw she was just exactly what he wanted for Rosy Sky when he sent out The Darling of the Gods. Miss Murielle had only been in England a month when he engaged her. Since then she has been starred as Glory and The Worst Woman in London. Naturally, Miss Murielle looks forward to the time when some astute manager recognises that Gracie Murielle has lost none of the magnetic power that drew all London to see her in Editha's Burglar, Managers and the Press are continually bewailing the lack of young actresses; the London and leading provincial papers frequently drew attention to Miss Murielle when, as a young girl of sixteen, she supported Mr. Ben Greet as Ophelia, Juliet, &c.; yet it was left to a Colonial manager to recognise and make practical use of Miss Murielle's exceptional gifts—an enterprise he certainly had no reason to regret.

AMUSEMENTS IN SINGAPORE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SINGAPORE, FEB. 21.—The Bandmann Comedy Company appeared here this week in Pinero's brilliant comedy, His House in Order, which was given a hearty reception by the playgoers of Singapore, who thoroughly appreciated the efforts of the clever combination. Miss Florence Hamer as Nina played with great strength and pathos, and was ably supported by that clever and experienced actor, Mr. Claude King, as Hilary Jesson. Mr. Sidney T. Pease as Filmer Jesson was well to the fore, his acting in the fourth act being particularly worthy of mention. The "boy's" part of Dick Jesson was prettily played by Miss Helen Grenville; and Miss Violet as Geraldine Ridgeley and Mr. Phillip Sanders as Major Maurewarde, acted with convincing effect. The parts of Sir Daniel Ridgeley, Dr. Dilnott, and Lady Ridgeley were efficiently played by Messrs. Clifford Brown, Sinclair Cotter, and Miss Dorcas Corsbie respectively.

CHATS WITH DRAMATIC AUTHORS.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

How comes it that the Jewish race, more than any other, is instinct with dramatic expression? Mr. Israel Zangwill, no doubt, would be better qualified to answer the question than the present writer, who claims no greater acquaintance with the children of the Ghetto than an occasional ramble in the neighbourhood of Petticoat-lane. But that occasional ramble has taught at least one thing. One does not need to be gifted with extraordinary powers of observation to realise how full of character and expression are the movements, the speech, in fact, the merest casual glance, of the average Hebrew. For centuries past the Jew, like Poor Jo, has been a-movin' and a-movin' on. He has made a home in many lands, and yet he has never been at home. He has been compelled, often by hard fate, to accommodate himself to circumstances as varying as the nationalities with which he has come into contact; and, while the present-day Jew may have, in great measure, those distinctive peculiarities which were part and parcel of the race when it held Palestine, yet he has acquired to a remarkable extent the characteristics of other peoples among whom he or his forbears for some time sojourned. It is these varying characteristics, this inherent gift of being able to adapt oneself to circumstances, that have been responsible for the large Jewish contribution to the stage in all its branches.

So much for the race; now for the individual. Mr. Israel Zangwill, who, as a playwright, is best known to the British public as the author of Merely Mary Ann, and as a novelist for his "Children of the Ghetto," has somewhat decided views on the subject of playwriting, or, rather, on the subject of the disposal of a play. In future the plays he proposes to write will not be offered direct to managers, but will be published, and anyone who desires to produce them will have to apply to the author, instead of, as formerly, the author applying to the producer. Thus, Mr. Zangwill is prepared to write at a loss, if need be, taking the chance of their ever being produced. It must not be supposed from this that he speaks as a disappointed dramatist, for in America and many other parts of the world Mr. Zangwill is reaping the rewards—and they are not insignificant—which form the financial outcome of successful playwriting. He feels, now that people are being better educated, that there will be a public who will find pleasure in reading plays. At the same time, he does not think that the conditions of the theatre, from the literary point of view, are what they should be. To his way of thinking, it is quite impossible for the author to do the work he really wants to do. He must not have in his play any ideas that are not already in the minds of the audience. Mr. Zangwill considers that Mr. Granville Barker is the most hopeful influence in the dramatic sphere at the present moment, because the latter has shown himself to be a man of wider ideas and ideals than many other theatrical managers.

"I find," says Mr. Zangwill, "that it is a much easier matter to deal with American managers than with English managers. In this country you are expected to approach the manager with the completed play, and that is one of the reasons why playwriting is so speculative a business here. British managers have not got the business enterprise of the Americans. Some ten years ago, before I had written a single play, Richard Mansfield, the well-known American actor, came to me and said he wanted me to write a piece for him. He paid down a goodly cheque there and then, and in the agreement he stipulated that there should be no alteration of any kind without the author's permission. In the end we did not agree, but still Mr. Mansfield's initiative deserves grateful recognition."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

Mr. Zangwill's most successful play was Children of the Ghetto, which, it will be remembered, was toured all through the United States. In New York, where there are three Jewish theatres, it was played both in Yiddish and in English, its production in the two languages being most favourably criticised. In London the piece was presented at a most inopportune time. The production, the date of which was arranged long beforehand, took place during what was called the Black Week of the late Boer War. News of the three British reverses at Black Rock, Colenso, and Magersfontein had reached this country, and the feeling was such that nobody was in the mood for theatre-going. Under such circumstances it was not to be expected that Children of the Ghetto could be given a reasonable chance of success. In America, on the other hand, it scored tremendously, and every member of the company that played over there has since become a star.

Many admirers of Mr. Zangwill's work have wondered why he has published no book for four years. Even the bulk of his new book now announced—"Ghetto Comedies"—was written many years ago. The explanation is simple enough, and redounds to his credit. During the last eighteen months he has devoted but a few weeks to his literary labours. The rest of the time has been given to affairs in connection with the Jewish Territorial Organisation, of which, as everybody knows, he is the president. An undertaking so ambitious, and of such overwhelming importance, as the foundation of a new home for the Jewish race, from which it shall not be "moved on," requires all the assiduity of thought and attention that can be concentrated upon it, and in this respect Mr. Zangwill and those working with him have not been lacking.

A CONCERT will be given at the Steinway Hall on May 9 by the pupils of that accomplished teacher, Miss Kate Flinn, when clever examples of Miss Flinn's methods of training will appear.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS BUENA BENT.

Miss Buena Bent, a lady whose name is, as yet, unfamiliar to English ears, is well known to our American cousins. This charming young lady has just returned from a very successful season in America, and is returning there in the autumn to join a new production. Miss Bent first saw the light in 1885, and was educated in after years at St. Anne's Convent.

Her introduction to the stage was through a Mr. Spellman, representative for the then Mayer Syndicate in America. That gentleman heard her sing at a friend's house, and evidently he thought her voice good, for he immediately took her on a concert tour, and she found herself earning what seemed to her a fortune at the age of eighteen. She, however, soon discovered that singing was far too much of a strain, and under advice turned her thoughts in the direction of musical comedy, &c. Her first venture upon what may be termed "the legitimate," was with the White House Strollers, who used to do little charity performances for hospitals, &c. She then appeared in the American version of Florodora, and two other successful musical comedies. Now it is her intention to appear if possible in London.

Miss Bent was in America at the time of the Thaw shooting case, and being rather like Evelyn Nesbit (who, by the way, played with her), she used to be followed by newspaper men, and until she sailed for England she scarcely had a quiet minute.

In reply to an inquiry as to what kind of part she liked best, Miss Bent's reply was, "Well, a serious part—a sort of 'Madame Butterfly,' and if ever the chance comes I mean to give up comedy and go in for serious work."

BELFAST EASTER PANTOMIME.

On Saturday, March 30, at the Theatre Royal, Belfast, the Pantomime, by Fred Locke, entitled "GOODY TWO SHOES."

Goody Two Shoes .....MISS MAGGIE BOWMAN

Dolly Dimple .....MISS ADELA CRISPIN
Mephisto .....MISS FLORENCE LISTER
Fairy Goodheart .....MISS LENA WYLIE

On Saturday last Messrs. Fred W. Warden and J. H. Saville produced the annual Easter pantomime, and undoubtedly another success must be added to the long list recorded under the régime of Messrs. Warden, Ltd. The book (by Mr. Fred Locke) is smartly written, and the local allusions, although few, are quite up to date. The plot is on somewhat traditional lines, being ingeniously told. The music, which is certainly catchy, has been composed, selected, and arranged by the clever musical conductor, Mr. Samuel P. Swanton, and Mr. Bert W. Stephens, and among the capital songs that are likely to be "featured" may be mentioned the ear-haunting "Isle of Anglesey." The costumes by Hugo Baruch and Co., Elkan Bros., and Miss Nellie Walters are beautiful; and the scenery by Messrs. John M. O'Farrell, W. McCulloch, and the artistic local scenic artist, Mr. G. Jansen, is on a scale of great magnificence. Mr. Warden has succeeded in securing a very competent company, and possibly chief honours on Saturday evening were due to Mr. Peter D. Bermingham, whose impersonation of Sandy Sapps was simply inimitable. His songs were encored, and his droll and diverting humour was fairly irresistible. In the title-rôle, Miss Maggie Bowman was delightful, her fascinating interpretation winning all hearts. She sang "Zuyder Zee," "Goodnight, Mr. Brown, I'm out," with rare charm, and was rapturously encored. An excellent principal boy is found in Miss Ethel Campbell, her dashing impersonation of Roland being most successful. Miss Campbell, who has a good voice, sang the catchy song, "Isle of Anglesey," and "I'm going back to the Fatherland" in pleasing style, while her dancing was both graceful and excellent. Miss Carrie Foy must also be commended for her capital impersonation of Peter Piper. Miss Foy spoke her lines with good effect, and created quite a furore with her smart rendering of "A different girl again." Mr. Jack Foley presents a droll impersonation of Dame Fanny Freckles, being responsible for much of the laughter heard during the evening. He sings a parody on "The old apple-tree," which made a big hit. Mr. Foley is certainly a capital comedian. Messrs. Karr and Kooney appear as Truthful Tommy and Phil the Philosopher, and are already immense favourites with their funny songs and capital humour. They succeed in keeping the fun going merrily, their parody on "The little wooden hut" being deservedly encored. Mr. Harry A. Gribben makes an admirable Baron Grabb. One would fain see more of Mr. Tom J. Morton, who succeeds so well as Simon. His song with Miss Bowman in Scene 4, entitled "Shopping," is one of the features of the pantomime. Miss Adela Crispin is a winsome Dolly Dimple, investing the rôle with much vivacity and charm. Miss Lena Wylie appears as Fairy Goodheart, and her cultured voice is heard to much advantage in "I can see red roses blooming." Claremont and Victor appear as Smirk and Smile, the bailiffs, and furnish an acrobatic performance of much merit in Scene 6. Miss Florence Lister appears as Mephisto, and is the happy possessor of a powerful voice. Among the specialities may be mentioned the See-Saw Girls, whose clever terpsichorean efforts add materially to the success. The ballets were beautiful, and for the excellent staging Mr. Frank Sutherland is responsible. Mr. Fred W. Warden must certainly be congratulated on the success of this year's production.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The special holiday attraction at the Theatre Royal, Leamington, on Monday evening was the new and powerful romantic drama entitled The Free Lance, which was played before a most enthusiastic audience by Mr. Ian Maclaren and his Shakespearean répertoire company. The new piece cannot be said to suggest a mediæval atmosphere, but it abounds in incidents which must be agreeably familiar to all those who have read and enjoyed historical romances of the kind, which were more popular in Early and Mid Victorian days than they are now. The hero is a reputed peasant knight—but really the hereditary prince of a German state, kidnapped when a child by the order of the wicked and ambitious Chancellor—who champions the cause of the poor and oppressed, and by so doing incurs the bitter ill-will of the oppressor in the person of the Chancellor. By that evil personage he is sentenced to death, but the fair Princess, in whose name the Chancellor governs, claims his life under the provisions of an ancient law which makes him her "slave" for a year and a day. The sequel of this is very evident to all lovers of romance. In a very pretty story it is told how the knight and the princess fall in love, and a false charge of witchcraft brought against the lady by her enemies enables the knight to play Lohengrin to her Elsa, and to confound the politics and frustrate the knavish tricks of the Chancellor. The belated repentance and confession of the latter—who is conveniently disposed of by another of the villains of the piece—reveal the Prince's identity, and the curtain falls on his double triumph in the lists of battle and of love. The name of the author of the play was not given on the programme, but the piece is said to have had a successful run in America.

The title-part is, of course, not such an exacting one as any of Mr. Maclaren's Shakespearean rôles. There is no subtlety in it; it is just a picturesque part, but Mr. Maclaren on Monday night made the most of his opportunities, and whether as the depressed captive, the fiery champion of persecuted poverty and virtue, or the ardent lover, he was always "in the picture," a romantic and interesting figure. Miss Coleman made a charming Princess, and the part suited her admirably; whilst Mr. W. S. Hartford acted with great power as the Chancellor. Miss Katherine Harrington played the Countess Magda von de Horst with a certain amount of sinister strength; and Mr. A. Fayne's impersonation of the jester was also an excellent performance.

ALDERSHOT MANAGER'S DEPARTURE.

Mr. Geo. E. Williams, who has been resident-manager at Mr. Clarence Sounes' Aldershot theatre for over five years, is giving up a position that has been worthily held by him. During his connection with Aldershot Mr. Williams has won friends in almost every circle—in his own particular profession, in social matters, and in the local world of sport and athletics. His popularity and ability as manager is widely known, and the public favour bestowed on the Aldershot Theatre attractions week by week testifies to the success of his efforts. The popularity of Mr. Williams among his subordinates is attested by the regret expressed in every department. Mr. Williams's theatrical career commenced sixteen years back at the Royal County Theatre, Reading, where, as secretary, he remained with Mr. Ormsby Trench until Mr. Milton Bode became proprietor. Transferring his services to the new lessee, the young secretary remained at Reading until he was drafted to Mr. Milton Bode's Dalston Theatre. Following his North London experience came some years as manager of touring companies, his travels ceasing for a while with a term as manager for Mr. J. F. Elliston, Bolton. A special appointment to open a new theatre at Hanley, Staffordshire, led up to the meeting with Mr. Sounes, and subsequent managership of Aldershot Theatre. It is not alone at the theatre that his loss will be felt, for as footballer, hockey player, and more especially as cricketer, Mr. Williams has long been a local power. It was almost impossible, it is said, to conceive an Aldershot athletic team without, at the same time, picturing "G. E. W." at the wicket. The business abilities that made Mr. Williams invaluable to any theatrical company as manager have been placed at the town's—or rather the county's—disposal for two successive years in connection with the county matches at the Officers' Club. The first of these was an ordinary three day county match; but last year Mr. Williams, as local secretary, contrived to organise a full week, with credit to himself and satisfaction to the county. The Aldershot Carnival Committee in times past, and even in more recent days, has been grateful to him for advice given and assistance rendered towards the success of a show that in itself demands a knowledge of theatrical effect, and the local Amateur Operatic Society owes much to his expert knowledge and ability.

WE regret to record the death of Master Will N. Courtneay, the nine-year-old son of Mr. Neville Courtneay, late of Messrs. Johnson's Theatre, Tredegar, who passed away after a brief illness on March 27. He was interred at the Llantwit Old Cemetery on Monday last, the chief mourners being the parents (Mr. and Mrs. Courtneay), Mr. Edward Courtneay, and Masters Geo. and Bob Courtneay (brothers), Miss Marie Courtneay (sister, and Miss Pepler Trowbridge. Members of Mr. Will Hagger's Castle Theatre Co. were also present. The wreaths included a cross with "Deepest sympathy" from Mr. and Mrs. Courtneay and Family, a wreath from Mr. Will Hagger's company, and a wreath from the deceased boy's schoolfellows. A touching feature of the ceremony at the graveside was the singing by the school children of the hymn "Safe in the arms of Jesus."

IN 1849 Scribe and Legouvé's drama, Adrienne Lecouvreur, was brought out at the Comédie-Française. It was a poor production, but the title-rôle was played by the famous Mlle. Rachel, and all Paris rushed to see her. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, who likes to do things differently from others, decided to write a new Adrienne Lecouvreur for her personal use. She wrote it a long time ago, but never would bring it out in Paris. This time, however, she has had the satisfaction of producing it on her own stage, although it can hardly be said that it was a public performance in the strict sense of the word, as it was in aid of the sufferers of the Iena catastrophe. The seats had been sold at fabulous prices long in advance, and there was, of course, no room for the Press. And thus it happened that although brought out in Paris, the Parisians—except a privileged few—have not seen it, and the Press, who cannot afford to pay £5 a stall, even for a deserving charity, must await another opportunity to hear the work.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 1, the farcical play by Charles Hannan, entitled

"THE ELECTRIC MAN."

Just the thing for a holiday-making crowd is the Electric Man, and Mr. Mulholland displayed his usual business acumen in bringing his touring company to the King's for the Easter week, for he enabled the Hammersmith public to enjoy themselves, and he thereby secured a good week's business for himself in his dual capacity of touring and resident manager. For the part of Walter Everest, the electrician, and Mr. Prometheus Frankenstein the electric man, Mr. Stanley Cooke is retained, and certainly no better choice could have been made. The representative for so long of Charley's Aunt has a keen perception of the ridiculous, and his efforts meet with the most complete success. Mr. Archie Selwyn is a racy and lively Jack Strange. A thoroughly unctuous performance of Jobbins, the private inquiry agent, is given by Mr. Lloyd Townrow, a ripe comedian. Mr. Richard Pardon causes real amusement by a laughable rendering of General Pomeroy. Miss Sybil Brooke is a praiseworthy Mrs. Everest, and Miss Phyllis Manners displays genuine humour as the landlady, Mrs. Anderson. Miss Gladys Jesson makes a charming Stella Pomeroy, and Miss Amy Francis impersonates Mary Everest with grace. A playlet of a comical nature entitled The Matrimonial Advertisement is also given each evening, in which several members of the company combine to put the audience in good humour for the more substantial fare that follows.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, April 1, the Comic Opera entitled

"LES CLOCHES DE CORNEVILLE."

North London Easter holiday-makers whose tastes lay in the direction of good music of the popular kind, found all that they required at the Marlborough Theatre, where Mr. E. St. Alban's company opened on Monday in Planquette's always attractive opera, Les Cloches de Corneville. Although the members of the cast have represented their respective characters many hundreds of times, there is not the slightest trace of slackness in their performance, but, on the contrary, the acting all through is most spirited and exhilarating, while the singing gives complete satisfaction. Miss Madge Roberts, the Serpolette, plays the part in such a manner as to satisfy the most exacting critic, and her songs are charmingly rendered. Warm praise can also be accorded Miss Marion Ayling for her pleasing embodiment of Germaine, her singing being a particularly attractive feature of the performance. Mr. E. St. Alban, in his powerful portrayal of Gaspard, has met with his usual success; and the weird scene in the ancient castle goes as well as ever. The miser gloating over his gold; the gaunt figure in armour, and the picturesque surroundings combine to impress an audience, while at the same time there is a touch of comedy introduced that is very welcome. Mr. St. Alban depicts the haggard old man with quite remarkable vividness, and his admirable acting throughout is acknowledged by loud applause. Mr. Walter Everard is seen to considerable advantage in the part of the Marquis de Corneville, and Mr. Charles Ross renders valuable assistance as the fisherman, Grenichaux. Mr. Fred Dark furnishes a capital impersonation of the Bailie, richly humorous in the assumption of official importance and pomposity, while his clerk has a most amusing representative in Mr. Richard Martin, who misses no opportunity of adding to the merriment of the audience. Pretty village girls are brightly embodied by the Misses E. Lawton, E. Humphries, F. Mears, E. Wellbourne, W. Kirby, and M. Yorke. The orchestra and admirable chorus are under the able direction of Chevalier Le Grand. It may with confidence be said that Les Cloches de Corneville has again formed one of the most pleasing and attractive holiday programmes that could have been chosen.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, April 1, the Play, entitled

"HIS HOUSE IN ORDER."

During Bank Holiday week Mr. George Alexander's touring company is appearing in Pinero's successful and striking play, as produced at the St. James's Theatre. Mr. Frank Fenton and Miss Auriol Lee enact the parts played in town by Mr. George Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh. It is marvellous the faithful likenesses which are reproduced in the interpretation of this intensely interesting study of sactimonious self-sufficiency and priggish methodicality as typified in the Ridgeley family. Even the tricks of speech and the mannerisms which we became accustomed to at the St. James's, are faithfully reproduced in some cases, but not to the extent of mere imitations. These "pests of humanity," as the author describes the Ridgeley family, are analysed and dissected mercilessly, and their narrow-minded bigotry and selfishness laid bare in all its repulsive nudity. Hilary Jesson, the genial, broad-minded, slightly sentimental diplomatist from Santa Guarda, is delightfully impersonated by Mr. Frank Fenton with earnestness and sincerity, combined with bonhomie and incisive wit. Miss Auriol Lee is a charming representative of the impulsive and large-hearted Nina Jesson, and the audience applaud her again and again in her vigorous defiance of narrow-minded tyranny and canting hypocrisy, and they follow with bated breath her various emotional phases of character. She is specially good in the scene where she refuses to recognise either the voice or the echo of priggish and little-minded control, and in the scene where she yields to Hilary Jesson's persuasive power and performs a noble action. Mr. Cyril Harcourt is capital as the weak-minded, methodical M.P., Filmer Jesson, whose insensate attempt to put his house in order meets with its deserved reward. We might shut our eyes and imagine the original representative of the part were acting it, and this is high praise indeed. Miss Moyna Hill enacts the rôle of Derek Jesson, and very prettily she portrays the complex nature of the child, with its semi-ardent, semi-priggish nature. The part of Sir Daniel Ridgeley receives full consideration at the hands of Mr. George Fitzgerald, and very funny is his patriarchal utterance of pharisaical platitudes; whilst Mrs. Kemmis repeats her admirable assumption of Lady Ridgeley, her exasperating acerbity of manner being lifelike to a degree. Mr. George Silver gives a telling portraiture of the caddish Pryce Ridgeley; Mr. Lloyd Lowndes acts with well-considered reserve force as Major Maurewarde; and Miss Lilli Keer is a smart representative of the governess, Mlle. Thomé; and Miss Audrey Campbell is an icy and forbidding Geraldine Ridgeley, who would surely be a suffragette in these days. Other parts are capably rendered. Mr. A. P. Horn is general-manager, with Mr. Charles Grattan as business-manager in advance, and Mr. Cyril Cattley (who enacts the small part of a provincial newspaper representative), assisted by Mr. Reginald Besant, as the secretary Harding, stage-manages the show.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, April 1, the Comic Opera, entitled

"VERONIQUE."

No better draw for the Easter holidays could have been chosen that André Messager's delightful opera, and its return visit to Peckham is proving a great success. Mr. George Dance's principal company gives a rendering which is in all respects excellent, and the favourite items, notably the famous "Swing song" and the catchy duet, "Dear little donkey," are received with the utmost enthusiasm. Miss Nellie Wigley, a handsome Veronique, sings admirably; Mr. Roland Bottomley looks very picturesque as Florestans, his various musical items being cleverly interpreted, his "Letter song" in the second act being especially well rendered. Miss Doris Greville shows to the utmost advantage both as actress and vocalist as the light-hearted Madame Coquenard; and the elderly flirt, Mons. Coquenard, becomes a very droll personage in the skilful hands of Mr. Tom Seymour. Mr. Percival Knight extracts a good deal of fun from the rôle of Loustot, and his topical gags are very smart. Mr. Scott-Cullen plays Seraphin in appropriately brisk and alert fashion; Miss Edith Devonshire shows decided comedy ability as the Countess de Champ d'Ayur, and sings in good style. Miss Neste Laurel is a dainty and piquant Denise; and deaf Aunt Benoit is humorously enacted by Miss Maud Leonard. The chorus works hard and successfully, and the orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. T. E. Boatwright. The scenery and effects are well up to the mark, and the dance at Seraphin's wedding in the wood near Romanville is a very spirited affair. The popular acting-manager, Mr. H. J. Brett, is now at his post again after his recent severe indisposition.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Saturday, March 30, the Comic Opera entitled

"LA POUPEE."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard could scarcely have chosen a more attractive play for Easter week than the well-known and popular La Poupée, which his own company rendered, by special arrangement with Mr. C. P. Levilly, and in spite of the extraordinarily fine weather and many other allurements in the building this week it has been played to most satisfactory houses. Mr. Gus Danby, as Hilarius, the doll-maker, is the chief laughter-maker, and is well able to keep the fun going by legitimate humour, gags and incongruities not being needed. Mr. Gerald Clifford as Launcelot, the novice, had many encores for the tasteful rendering of his songs. The title-rôle is played with captivating grace and artlessness by Miss Cissy Wade, whose cultured voice is used artistically in the numbers that fall to her share. The solo and trio "Charming," in which capable assistance is derived from Messrs. Stanley White and Sidney Burt as Baron Chanterelle and Loremois respectively, wins particular recognition. Father Maxime is sustained with abundant jollity by Mr. Arthur Burdett, the favourite "A jovial monk am I" being received with enthusiasm. The drollery of Balthasar is freely exercised by Mr. S. Anchor. Madame Hilarius is effectively presented at the hands of Miss Alice Macfarlane; Miss Violet May is to be commended for her performance of Henri; and Miss Lola Trevor is equally praiseworthy for the agreeable prominence given to the part of the maid. Minor characters in the play are adequately sustained, the choruses are tunefully rendered, and the scenery is on an elaborate scale.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, April 1, the Drama, entitled

"TOMMY ATKINS."

It was a happy selection of Mr. Robert Arthur's to present that popular military drama Tommy Atkins for the holiday week. As played by an excellent company under the direction of Mr. John M. East it is proving a first-class attraction. Mr. Albert Ward fills the rôle of Harold Wilson, the curate who leaves the Church and joins the Army, and he gives a very earnest and straightforward rendering of the character. That popular actor Mr. Oscar Adye appears as the villain of the play, Captain Maitland, playing the part with his accustomed skill, and scoring a big success. Miss Theresa Osborne enacts Ruth in a most pathetic manner, and she has the full sympathy of the audience throughout; Margaret Maitland is well sustained by Miss May Kilpatrick, who is seen to advantage in the part. Mr. W. P. Sheen is once more seen in his old character of Ebenezer Skindle, in which he is as diverting as ever, and is responsible for most of the lighter side of the play; he is, however, ably seconded in his efforts to amuse by Mr. Keino Johnston, who portrays Sergeant Paddy Molloy in a truly humorous fashion; while Miss Marie Wright as Kate Perkins, afterwards Mrs. Molloy, is very bright, and acts with great spirit. Mr. Frank Harrison portrays Stephen Raymond in the necessary harsh manner; while Mr. W. Felton is good as Captain Bob Sparrow. Mr. Fred Mason is seen to advantage as Private Mason, a character which he plays with much force and with the best results. Miss Marjorie Murray makes a charming Elsie; and Rose Selwyn is sweetly depicted by Miss C. Harrison. The minor characters are in each case well filled, and there is also a military band introduced which gives finish to the production. Mr. Frank Harrison is responsible for the excellent stage-management.

THE LYRIC.

On Saturday, March 30, Revival of the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Booth Tarkington and E. G. Sutherland, entitled

"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE."

The Little Admiral having failed to fulfil expectations, Mr. Lewis Waller revived for the holidays Monsieur Beaucaire, a production that has delighted many thousands of playgoers since it was first seen at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, in the autumn of 1902. It was first produced in the metropolis a few weeks later at the Comedy Theatre. The play has a somewhat curious history. Its reception at the Liverpool theatre had not been of an encouraging nature, and at the Comedy the piece was put in the bill as a mere stop-gap. And then the unexpected happened. The verdict of London audiences quite reversed that of Liverpool, and Monsieur Beaucaire quickly became a popular personage. The comedy remained in the bill throughout the season, and the following year it was successfully revived at the Imperial Theatre. It was again revived, this time at the Lyric Theatre, on June 28 last year, and still its popularity showed no signs of abatement. Nobody, therefore, need be surprised to find the romantic comedy once again being played to crowded and enthusiastic houses. One of the secrets of its success is that the interest of the audience is aroused from the very beginning, and is never allowed to relax throughout the four acts. The pictures of fashionable society a hundred and seventy years ago are vividly presented; and the manners as well as the dress of a bygone age are admirably realised.

It is not easy to find anything new to say of the Monsieur Beaucaire of Mr. Lewis Waller, nor is it necessary. The character in his experienced hands retains in a marked degree all those fascinating qualities which distinguished it originally; if anything his embodiment of the Duke, who assumes the name of Monseur Beaucaire, is a more polished and highly-finished performance than ever. It is certainly one that is likely to take a permanent place among the most pleasant memories of regular playgoers. Miss Evelyn Millard is again seen as the fascinating Lady Mary Carlyle, a part that was originally taken by Miss Gracie Lane, and she acts with her usual charm of manner and graceful bearing. Mr. Franklin Dyall is a new representative of the Duke of Winterset, and is quite successful in his treatment of the character. Praise, too, is due to Mr. Owen Roughwood and to Mr. Eric Scott for their excellent impersonations of Major Molyneux and Lord Townbrake respectively. Mr. Herbert Jarman gives a capital sketch of the famous leader of fashion, Beau Nash; Mr. S. B. Brereton is well placed as Captain Badger. Miss Dora Barton is a new Lucy Rellerton, and acts the part in delightful style. Miss Beatrice Lewis as Mrs. Mabsley and Miss May Chenery as Lady Rellerton are pleasing exponents of those rôles; and also deserving of commendation are the Misses Eleanor May, Catherine Vyse, and Minnie Griffin as Miss Presbury, Miss Paitelot, and the Countess of Greenbury. Mr. J. H. Irvine, Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Herman de Lange, and Mr. Shiel Barry carefully and effectively represent various characters who were prominent members of the Bath beau monde more than a century and a half ago. Other parts are safely entrusted to Mr. G. Aspard, Mr. H. Vyvyan, and Cecil McGuinness. Monsieur Beaucaire will remain in the Lyric bill for only one more week; but Mr. Waller has had new scenery specially painted for the production by Mr. Walter Hann.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 1, the Drama, entitled

"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

Mr. Herbert Hollister's company is this week appearing in the well-known drama, The Lights o' London, and has provided a big attraction for the holiday-makers. The piece is admirably staged, while the acting is good all round. Mr. C. F. Collings is Harold Armytage, and this manly character he forcibly sustains; Mr. Sydney H. Hallows is Squire Armytage; and Mr. Riddell Robson is the rascally nephew, Clifford. Miss Jeanne Burgoyne is the noble-hearted Bess, daughter of the lodge-keeper at the Hall, and she makes an excellent heroine. Members of the "Temple Legitimate" are represented as follows:—Jarvis, Mr. Herbert Lewis; Mrs. Jarvis, Miss Nellie Fern; Shakespeare Jarvis, Miss Rennee Douglas; Jim, Mr. Arthur Bell. The acting of Mr. Lewis and Miss Fern is particularly noteworthy. Mr. Herbert Hollister's Seth Preene is deserving of warm commendation. Miss Constance Davey is Hetty Preene, the poacher's daughter, who seeks "life" in the great world of London. Other interesting representations are Mr. F. V. Lloyd's Lodge-keeper, Mr. H. W. Forster's Skeffington, Mr. F. W. Waters's Percy de Vere, Esq., Mr. G. Wallace's Philosopher Jack; and others in the cast include Miss Hilda Wollard, Miss Mary Rose, Miss W. Eves, and Miss Rita Wallace; Messrs. H. G. Dolbey, J. Willis, G. Wallace, E. H. Dolbey, E. M. Wells, T. Raymond Waghorn, Elliston, Matheson, and Melville.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, April 1, the Grand Opera,

"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL."

For the Easter attraction here Messrs. W. and F. Melville have secured for two weeks Mr. J. W. Turner and his well-known opera company, and, despite the counter attractions on the Bank Holiday, a good audience assembled to listen to the rendering of The Bohemian Girl, with which the season opened. Mr. F. J. Hargrave as Thaddeus displayed much ability, both as an actor and vocalist, the well-known "When other lips" being enthusiastically received. Mr. Tom Griffiths as the Count was dignified, and sang with taste, his principal number, "The heart bowed down," being accorded an encore. Mr. Sidney Clifford as Devilshoof provoked much amusement, his excellent bass voice being of much assistance in the concerted numbers. Mr. P. Newton as Florestein was amusing. Miss Christine Gomez as Arline carried off the honours of the performance, her singing being very brilliant, and her attractive stage-presence and vivacity combining to make her appearance in the rôle most successful. The ever-popular, "I dreamt I dwelt," was, of course, encored. Miss Jennie Dennis as the Gipsy Queen is also deserving of commendation for a performance both vocally and histrionically of very great merit. Miss Maud Esdale in the small part of Buda completed the cast. The chorus and orchestra, which was largely augmented, were under the direction of Mr. T. Lawton, to whom no small share in the general success is to be attributed. The mounting leaves nothing to be desired. The programme for the rest of the week consisted of Faust, Daughter of the Regiment, Lily of Killarney, Il Trovatore, and Maritana.

THE STANDARD.

"LIFE'S SWEETEST SINS."

The opera season at this theatre being over, drama is again in full swing. For the holiday attraction, Mr. W. A. Brabner's interesting play, Life's Sweetest Sins, has been chosen, and on Easter Monday, at both the afternoon and evening performances, it met with a hearty reception from a full house. The drama is adequately mounted and staged, an incident particularly worthy of special note being the submarine vessel at work in the depths of the sea. Foremost in the powerful company engaged is Mr. Vincent Clive, who undertakes with distinction the rôle of Captain Harold Marston. He plays with much earnestness and power, and his efforts quickly find favour with the audience. Mr. Robin Shields capably portrays Kimberley Coutts, alias Flash Jim; and Mr. E. Howard Templeton acquits himself extremely well as the Rev. Edward Grey, alias Sam, the Scribe. Much praise is due to Mr. J. C. Aubrey for his fine embodiment of Dr. Colbrooke, the callous nature of the man being thoroughly depicted. Mr. Jack Denton supplies a good delineation of Ernie Wodstone; and Mr. Corney Lewis as Martin, an old "salt," makes the most of every opportunity offered. Much merriment is caused by Mr. E. Harvey White as Bob Tanner, whose efforts to amuse result in many a hearty laugh. Mr. George Elsworthy gives every satisfaction as Jack Lackey. Miss Grace Lester supplies a well-conceived delineation of Fay Colbrooke, and is much appreciated; and Miss Lena Delphine ably sustains the rôle of Bess Grayson. The part of Doreen Rivers is played in a capable manner by Miss Maude Stewart Drewry, who submits a sweet and impressive interpretation. The orchestra is ably directed by Mr. A. Sommerlad.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, April 1, Shakespeare's Tragedy,

"MACBETH."

The Bard of Avon has been adequately represented this week at the theatre bearing his own illustrious name, where Mr. William Mollison, an actor of ripe experience and finished methods, is appearing in several Shakespearean characters for the first time in London. Added interest was given to Mr. Mollison's embodiment of Macbeth on Easter Monday evening in view of a recent example by a popular leading actor and of that of another eminent artist yet to come. Mr. Mollison's study of the Thane of Cawdor is one of great picturesqueness and variety of treatment. The ambitious nature of the Thane striving for mastery over a dread of the consequences of his contemplated deed is suggested with artistic restraint, and the intensity of the banquetting scene creates a profound impression, which held the audience completely in thrall. Mr. Mollison has an abundance of dramatic resource at his command, and in the scene where Macbeth comes to realise the destruction of his hopes and his impending doom, the actor went from the ferocity of despair to the depth of dejection with equal sureness. The profundity of tone which has touched some former embodiments of Macbeth is absent from Mr. Mollison's, and the variety of expression which he puts into it stimulates interest throughout. The actor's admirable elocution stands him in good stead from first to last, and his sterling performance was loudly cheered by a discriminating audience. A youthful, but no less impressive, Lady Macbeth is presented at the hands of Miss Evelyn McNay, who shared honours with Mr. Mollison. Miss McNay is especially happy in her contemptuous raillery of her vacillating husband, and rises to superb tragic heights in her sleep-walking scene. The actress manages realistically to convey the impression of the somnambulistic state, the moaning sighs and the prolongation of the sounds being weirdly effective, and the burst of applause which awaited the conclusion of the scene evidenced its impression on the audience. That fine young actor Mr. Whitford Kane gave a vigorous and polished interpretation of Banquo, suggesting the nobility of the character both in appearance and delivery. Mr. B. A. Pittar gave distinction to the rôle of Macduff, and his acting in the scene where he learns of his bereavement was very touching; though he allowed himself occasionally to be betrayed into an excess of passion which impaired his distinctness. Mr. W. Walton Palmer and Mr. Stuart Black rendered the Scottish noblemen, Lennox and Ross, in good style; and Mr. Harold Neville gave character to the part of the Bleeding Soldier. Mr. William Hughes and Mr. Kendal Chalmers shared the responsibilities of the two Murderers, and the sepulchral effect of the cauldron scene was well maintained by the Three Witches, weirdly made-up and acted throughout by Miss E. Blair-Staples, Miss Josephine Woodward, and Miss Elsie Vron respectively. Mr. W. A. Mackersy was a resolute and kingly Duncan; and the requirements of his sons, Malcolm and Donalbain, were amply fulfilled by Mr. Henry Deas and Mr. Hugh Shaw. Fleance was endowed with boyish ardour and prettiness by Miss E. Hermina Black; and the Gentlewoman of Miss M. Roberts was a refined performance. Mr. Fred Ellis contributed valuably to the efficiency of the representation by his efforts in the part of the Physician; a sound rendering of Seyton was given by Mr. Roy Cushing; Mr. Kendal Chalmers invested the part of the General of the English Forces with military firmness and dignity; and the oddities of the Porter were drolly depicted by Mr. Alec F. Thompson.

The Merchant of Venice was given on Monday afternoon, when Mr. Mollison submitted a performance of Shylock which won warm approbation, Miss Evelyn McNay being a Portia of much sweetness and animation. Mr. Henry Worrall's Bassanio also merited the utmost commendation. Other announcements for the week were Richard the Third, and the productions of As You Like It and Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, with which Mr. Mollison had a prosperous season at the St. James's at the beginning of last year. The mounting of the present series is in every way praiseworthy, and good audiences have been attracted to the Clapham Junction theatre by the promise of fine productions amply realised.

THE PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, April 1, the Romantic Play, by Walter Howard, entitled

"THE MIDNIGHT WEDDING."

For the last week of the present management, and for a holiday attraction, no better selection could have been made than The Midnight Wedding, by Mr. Walter Howard. It is a romantic and vigorous play, with a well-devised, ingenious, and interesting plot, and was received with warm favour by the audience on Monday, who followed with attention the many thrilling incidents. Mr. Alfred Paumier, who possesses a refined voice and an easy deportment, depicted with considerable ability the character of Paul Valmar; and Mr. Ernest E. Imeson rendered unexceptionally good support as Captain Rudolph von Scarsbruck, the part suiting this actor's method to perfection. The weak-willed gambler, Lieut. Eugene von Strelsburg, is effectively portrayed by Mr. Edward Fletcher; and Mr. Frederick W. Freeman scored a thorough success as the Crown Prince Leopold; while Mr. Arthur Radford was excellent as Sub-Lieut. Kulman. Mr. W. S. Hardy deserves special commendation for his study of Father Gerard; and the three comrades in war, but rivals in love, Sergeant Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo, after the style of the Three Musketeers, are amusingly depicted by Mr. James E. Page, Mr. Vernon Vane, and Mr. Algie Spalding respectively. Miss Annie Saker wins much sympathy for her admirable impersonation of the Princess Astrea von Strelsburg; and Miss Marion Fawcett is particularly well suited as Rozel; while Miss Ada Champion is an animated Kathie. The remaining parts are in the capable hands of Messrs. J. Harringay, C. E. Dane, Chas. Stephens, Mark Shelding, Bert Lewis, and Miss Prudence Laurence. The scenery is in good taste, and the mounting all that could be desired. Mr. Stephen E. Blythe conducts the orchestra with efficiency, Mr. E. H. Grime is a courteous assistant acting-manager, and the genial general-manager, Mr. Harry Lyons, superintends the whole with his usual ability.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 1, the comedy entitled

"THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

A typical good-tempered Bank Holiday crowd thronged the Kennington Theatre in every part on Monday to give a hearty reception to The Private Secretary on its reappearance in South London and to laugh consumedly over the troubles of the Rev. Robert Spalding in the wicked world of London. The brilliance of the comedy seems little diminished with time, despite its twenty-three years of touring, and the delightful humour of the unending succession of amusing situations seemed as fresh as ever. The piece is produced by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's strong combination, every available ounce of fun being extracted from the play. In the character of the Rev. Robert Spalding Mr. Donald Price-Evans scores a great success. He is an exceedingly clever actor, and played the part of the forlorn curate to the life, and whenever he was about laughter reigned supreme from stalls to gallery. Mr. W. T. Elworthy gives a fine representation of the rôle of Mr. Marsland, the sporting Englishman, and Mr. J. P. E. Hussey is admirable as Harry Marsland, his nephew. Mr. W. Hargreaves is unapproachable in his old part of Mr. Cattermole, giving an intensely amusing study of the irascible old Anglo-Indian. Another comedian of undoubted merit is Mr. Vivian Gilbert, who supported the rôle of Gibson, the Bond-street tailor. The characters of Eva Webster and Edith Marsland are charmingly taken by Miss B. Elliott and Miss D. Shawe, two graceful and dainty actresses. As Douglas Cattermole, who masquerades as "the secretary," Mr. Reade is full of life, and makes much merriment on his own account. Mrs. Alfred Davis is entertaining as Miss Ashford, the chaperone, and Miss Cecily Wade makes a typical landlady. Mr. D. Benford does well as John, the servant, and in the small part of Knox, the writ-server, Mr. John Macready deserves mention. The Private Secretary is preceded by a bright little one-act farce entitled My American Admirer, in which Mr. W. T. Elworthy gives evidence of his versatility as Petroleum G. Hooker, and Mr. James Hussey also does well. Miss Beth Elliott is very good as Winifred Crow, the lady politician, and Miss Cecily Wade is capital as the servant girl.

THE BROADWAY.

On Monday, April 1, the Play, entitled

"NO CROSS, NO CROWN."

The holiday attraction here is the delightful costume play of the Georgian period, entitled No Cross, No Crown, which introduces to a Broadway audience the popular resident-manager, Mr. William Giffard, and his charming wife, who appear as Sir Francis Luttrell and Lady Margaret Luttrell respectively, characters in which they are well and favourably known to provincial playgoers. Mr. Giffard plays Sir Francis quietly and artistically; even in his most impassioned scenes he never loses sight of the courtly gentleman, whose noble nature cannot realise, until confronted by undoubted proofs, that his cousin, Austen Blake, is an unmitigated scoundrel. Mrs. Giffard plays Lady Margaret with a womanly gentleness and tenderness that are delightful; her scenes with Sir Francis make a deep impression on the audience. Miss Rosemary Rees gives a very fine, powerful rendering of Lady Claire. Miss Edith Goodall presents a clever picture of Dame Priscilla Barclay, whose little black page, Plato, is excellently represented by Master Hubert Walter. Other parts are well embodied by Miss Katherine Brook (Annabel), Miss Kate Bratby (Estelle), Miss Rita Russell (Janet Muir), Miss Kitty Cotter (Minnie), and Mrs. Barnet as Nurse Agatha. A very charming and natural performance is that of Doris, by little Elsie Crooke. As Austen Blake, Mr. Henry Hatchman presents a fine study of the smiling villain. Mr. E. Story Gofton proves himself once more an artist of great ability, his conception and rendering of Prof. Nebb is altogether admirable. Dr. Ashby is well acted by Mr. Robert Rivers, who causes much amusement by his persistent wooing of Dame Priscilla. Mr. Conybeare Gough presents a capital character-sketch as Rawson Haines. The remaining parts are all in good hands. The costumes are handsome and costly, and the scenery pretty and appropriate.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS."

There was a typical Bank Holiday audience at the Kingston playhouse on Monday night, when a capable company appeared in an effective adaptation by Ernest Norris of Dumas' novel, which, judging by the manner in which it was received, was quite to the liking of the onlookers. Mr. Norris himself appeared in the part of D'Artagnan, and gave a fine impersonation of the easy-going swash-buckler, which was hugely appreciated. Miss Vera Beringer added to the laurels which she has already been awarded at Kingston by her fine portrayal of the joys and sorrows of Miladi; and Miss Ethel King was also a great favourite in the part of Anne of Austria. The famous trio of musketeers were ably represented by Messrs. Maurice Hoffman, Franklyn Graham, and Harold Wagner. The Cardinal Richelieu of Mr. Frank Harding was a masterly conception. Valuable assistance was also given by Miss Dorothy Chard as Constance, and by Miss Dorothy Mackenzie as the maid to Miladi.

THE TERRISS.

"MIDST LONDON'S MILLIONS."

The patrons of this popular South London house have accorded a hearty welcome this Easter to the talented leading lady, Miss Marion Denvil, and the excellent stock company in the drama, Midst London's Millions, a very satisfactory piece of work that affords Miss Denvil a chance of displaying her undoubted versatility in the rôle of Jerry, the waif, a poor little street urchin, half-starved, yet withal good-hearted and merry. Miss Denvil scores a great success, and the pathos of her death scene is very effective. Mr. Astley Page makes a gallant and interesting figure as the young artist, Gerald Dering; and Miss Alice Defoe acts sympathetically as Lucy Barrington. Mr. Weldon Atherstone as Jack Benson plays with great force; and Mr. Johnny Chippendale is very amusing as the wooden-headed P.c. Tompkins. Mr. John Sargeant is grimly effective as Ned Goole; Miss Mattie Everett causes much laughter in the part of Sally Pinks; and Miss Maggie Lindsay is good as Miss Brummy. Mr. Tom Taylor is an aristocratic Colonel Barrington; and Miss East Robertson plays with much feeling as Kate Colby. The scenery and effects are excellent. In the third act, on the Thames Embankment scene, there is a capital street arabs' concert, in which various musical items are rendered in first-class style by Miss Marion Denvil, Miss Lulu Bowes, and Miss Elsie Jezzard. A special feature of the production is the effective incidental music, which has been composed especially for the piece by the musical director, Mr. Alexander Humphreys.

THE WEST LONDON.

"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

Many competent judges consider A Girl's Cross Roads the finest of the series of dramas from the pen of Mr. Walter Melville, and, judging by the crowded houses which have packed the West London Theatre this week, their opinion is amply endorsed by the discerning Marylebone playgoers. Mr. Charles Franmore still proffers his delightful impersonation of old Farmer Meadows, and whilst he is on the stage it may truthfully be said that "Glorious Devon" is brought very close indeed to Edgware-road. Mr. Gerald Jordan portrays Cuthbert Lumley with skilful effect. Mr. Fred Withers does well as Luke Ramsden. Mr. Cyril Vernon is adequately placed as Dr. Weston; and Mr. Wilson Gunning gives a robust and telling impersonation of Jack Livingstone. Mr. Fred Ingram provides plenty of amusement with his laughable rendering of Toby Turvey; ample assistance being given him by Miss Mabel Scudamore as lively Tilly Vane. Miss Florence Zillwood sustains Nellie Meadows with convincing force and expression; Miss Jessica Black makes the best of the part of Constance Cornell; and Miss Hilda Beverley, in the trying rôle of Barbara Wade, fairly fascinates the audience with her realistic portrayal of that loathsome creature, her make-up being admirable and her gestures telling.

GRAND, FULHAM.

"HEARTS ADRIFT."

This play was given for the first time in London at the Fulham Theatre some two years ago, and is now paying a return visit. It is full of brisk action and incident, much of it very ingeniously contrived. Few of the original company are now playing in the piece, but among those that remain is Mr. Cecil Klein, who as Robert Darney makes an excellent hero, and puts as much life and vigour into his work as ever. Mr. Henry Bedford has a great deal to do as Captain Teddy, and does it very well; while Mr. Fred Terriss is capitally suited with the part of Edmund Gerne. Mr. R. Gwyn-Richardson is satisfactory as John Lane; and Mr. Alfred Holles gives a good study of the inventor of the airship, Pidgeon. Mr. Brian Daly, with a first-class stutter, is highly amusing as Simeon Green; and Miss Irene Ross is a most capable representative of Little Tim. Mr. William Gomer is another of the old caste, but he now plays a more important part—that of Redway, the detective. Mr. Robert Lyons is effective as Warder Gregory. The attractive rôle of the flower girl, Rosie, is charmingly taken by Miss Nellie Clyde; and Miss Gertrude Harrison plays as Julia Lane with energy and decision, looking particularly well in her handsome gowns. Miss Kitty Kirwan, with a powerful brogue, is responsible, as Peggy MacGuire, for no small part of the laughter-making; Miss Marion Walker renders well the unattractive rôle of Mother Haggstow; and, finally, we recognise another member of the former company in the person of Miss Beatrix Bell, as Energy Mugs, the sleepy domestic, who is as handy with the gloves as before.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

"THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN."

That perennial attraction, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, is paying a visit to Stratford this week, and in receiving a cordial welcome. Its interpretation is in the hands of Mr. Charles Freeman's company, and Mr. Freeman himself essays the popular part of the Lancashire lad, Bob Brierly. His performance is throughout earnest and convincing, though a frequent lapse from making it a "dialect" part is noticeable. Miss Florence Tench's May Edwardes is a very prepossessing golden-haired girl, and her acting is always charming. The crafty, scheming nature of James Dalton is admirably expressed by Mr. C. Lodge Percy; and Mr. Frank Coston, who elects to depict the unctuous old rascal Melton Moss on somewhat humorous lines, is quite successful in the part. As the deducting detective, Jack Hakwshaw, Mr. George K. Ashley is seen to much advantage; and Mr. Percy Lincoln submits a sound performance as Mr. Gibson. Miss Henrietta Schrier acts very appropriately as Mrs. Willoughby, and the pert and precocious Sam Willoughby is smartly played by Miss Lily Walker.

The production of Her Love Against the World at the Lyceum Theatre on Saturday evening was a sort of surprise to us. We had expected the ordinary provincial melodrama, mounted and acted in the ordinary provincial way. Instead, we found a play and a performance which reminded us of the palmy days of the old Adelphi. Some old tricks and habits of cheap and ancient work have clung to the author, notably the introduction of a pair of comic servants, who supplied "relief"; but in the way in which the drama is planned and the style in which it is written, Her Love Against the World is distinctly superior to the ordinary piece of its class. It is admirably mounted and dressed, and it is acted in just the right style and spirit. The success of the production was never for a moment in doubt, and the appeal made was so sincere and sympathetic that the same result would have been attained with a more expensive audience.

Mr. Walter Howard has made an excursion into the region in which Mr. Anthony Hope has been the pioneer—the vague Continental country of little kingdoms and large possibilities, where Rupert of Hentzau flourished and the Prisoner of Zenda was confined. The villain of the play is Prince Ulric of Ravensburg. The hero is Eric, Earl of Strathmere, a "soldier of fortune," who holds a captaincy in one of the Ravensburg regiments. Princess Iris, one of the richest maids-of-honour to the Empress of Austria, is the heroine. Her horse runs away with her, and the Captain, passing at the head of his company, stops the steed, and saves the Princess's life. Of course, she must thank her preserver, with whom, it is evident to the audience, she has fallen over head and ears in love. He, on his side, is equally enamoured; and Prince Ulric, who only wants to marry Iris in order to fill his empty war-chest, is exasperated at this obstacle to his plans. Ulric, with characteristic brutality, rides down Eric's little brother, Lionel, and, when the Captain wants to go to the boy, orders him to remain on guard. Strathmere breaks away mutinously, after assaulting the Prince, and, in revenge, the latter has him arrested and sentenced to solitary confinement in a military prison. After knocking the Captain senseless while he is held by the guard, Ulric tells the latter to leave the culprit lying in the cold in his shirt-sleeves, exposed to a fall of snow, which comes down opportunely for the "situation." The Princess, alone with her lover, takes from her shoulders the sumptuous cloak which she wears, lays it upon him tenderly, and mournfully departs. This is the end of the first act.

With diabolical cruelty, Ulric comes to the military prison where Eric is confined, in order to torture him with the news that he—the Prince—is that evening to meet the Princess Iris and sign a contract of betrothal with her. In desperation, Eric resolves to make his escape, go and see Iris, and persuade her not to sacrifice herself to the villain. He gets out of the prison by the connivance of Ulric's cousin, Othmar, a real good fellow, who not only detests his relative's cruelty, but has excellent reasons for wishing the marriage with the Princess not to take place. Dusty and haggard, he enters her boudoir, and pleads with her; but Ulric and his troops are on the track of the fugitive, who is easily captured. Will the Princess consent to marry him? She refuses, and confesses her love for Eric. Then, says the Prince, either she agrees to wed him, or the man she loves shall be shot. What will she do? Says the Princess: "If Eric wishes me to save his life at such a price, I will save it." Strathmere refuses to accept such salvation, and is led out to be executed. The Prince drops his handkerchief. Bang! go the rifles of the firing party. Surely they cannot all have missed him?—for, of course, the hero must not be killed at the end of the second act. No; they have simply refused to slay their beloved officer, and have fired in the air.

After the sensations created by such ingenious means, the incidents which follow need not be dwelt upon in detail. Sufficient is it to state that Eric enters the service of Maurice of Saxonia, with whom Ulric is having a "little war," and with twelve men, a revolver, and an application of "Hands up!" makes Ulric a captive, and forces him to fight a duel, in which the Prince—who by a brutal blow has caused little Nello's death—is mortally wounded. After this, the course of true love seems likely to run smoothly, and everyone, including Othmar, who succeeds to the crown, is more than satisfied.

Well-deserved success was won by Miss Nora Kerin, who was quite a possible Princess—refined, dignified, and winsomely gentle and kind-hearted. While divesting her performance of all "staginess," Miss Kerin showed that, when necessary, she had plenty of dramatic power at her disposal, and in the passionate parts of the play she "came out" very strongly indeed. Mr. Norman Partriege played Eric, Earl of Strathmere, with a subdued vehemence and an intense earnestness which carried entire conviction, and he had the audience with him from first to last. Manly and alert in action, and distinct and expressive in delivery, Mr. Partriege was an ideal hero of higher-class melodrama. Mr. Eric Mayne's Prince Ulric was an admirably clearly-cut and clever impersonation, and he realised the haughty egoism of the Ravensburg ruler remarkably well. There was nothing of the stage villain about his rendering, which was at the same time natural and incisive. Mr. Frederick Ross indicated the good-nature and humanity of Prince Othmar with decided ability; and Mr. Scott Craven's Prince Maurice was a sound and expert performance, which did him very great credit. Miss Marie Rignold contributed valuably to the cast as the passionate and amorous Shulah; and Miss Madge Beresford was seen to undeniable advantage as Corona, Miss Maude Aston and Miss Lulu Louden making two amusing maids, and Mr. Harry Barford and Mr. Gus Oxley creating a vast amount of amusement as the pair of Pimpernickels. Mr. Edmund Waller played the regimental surgeon neatly; and Mr. S. Major Jones was excellent as the bluff and honest Sergeant Kaspar. Mr. Fred Grove was good as General Gessler; Mr. Lionel Gadsden deserved praise as Colonel Esterhazy; Mr. Henry Armstrong's Colonel Lindorff was a creditable embodiment; and Mr. Wilfred Edmunds made a capital Captain Sarona. Mr. Horace Terry was unimpeachable as Colonel Werner; and Colonel Otho had an able representative in Mr. J. Benedict Butler, Mr. Charles Vast being entirely satisfactory as Captain Hainhault, and Mr. C. Brooks's Captain Steinberg being a meritorious assumption; while Captains Holtzmann and Wentzel were depicted with care and skill by Mr. Harold Chaplin and Mr. Lester. Miss Valli Valli's Lionel was a delightfully sweet and expressive impersonation, which completely won the hearts of the audience.

The play, thoroughly well produced by Mr. Ernest Carpenter, went with complete smoothness, though the two latter acts might be slightly reduced in length and taken in quicker time. The cheapness of the prices was only equalled by the liberality of the dressing and mounting; and Herr Raimund Pechotsch directed the performances of a large and accomplished orchestra with artistic sympathy and skill. The audience was most enthusiastic; and the season at the Lyceum commenced with every symptom of triumphant success. At the close, Mr. Henry R. Smith, Mr. Ernest Carpenter, and the company were rewarded with an uproarious "ovation."

"ALFONSO THE NOBLE."

An Historical Operetta in Yiddish, by Jacob Gordin, produced at the Pavilion Theatre on Monday, April 1.

Alfonso .....MR. NATANSON
Elenora .....MME. GOLDSTEIN
Father Benedictus .....MR. J. FINEBERG
Ganzeron .....MR. M. GUSOFSKY
Count .....MR. ISAACOWITZ
Isaac bal Gusmo .....MR. S. SCHILING

Ezer .....MME. JOSEPHSON

The story of Alfonso the Noble is one of extreme simplicity, dealing entirely with the love of a Spanish monarch for a Jewish maiden. The play opens with the Palace Gardens, where the public are allowed to promenade while the king is in residence. Among the visitors are Isaac, Celia, and their daughter Rachel. The monarch appears on the scene incognito, and hearing Rachel express a wish for a lily, and being smitten with her charms, he presents her with a beautiful specimen, at the same time acquainting her with the fact that she had better leave the grounds, as the king is expected. As Rachel is about to depart with the prized flower she is accused by the Guard of having stolen it, and is brought back into the presence of the monarch, who immediately reveals himself, and, despite the wishes of his mother, Elenora, declares that he gave her the lily. Rachel having now decided (being deeply in love with Alfonso) to live at the Palace, Elenora, with the assistance of a scheming priest, Father Benedictus, decides to cure the monarch of his infatuation by the destruction of the Jewess; and, having by foul means obtained the password, manage by treachery to seize Rachel and convey her by boat to a fortress some distance from land, where the King, after vain efforts to secure another vessel, swims through the water and rescues his beloved, marking the fact by much jubilation and festivity hereafter, while permission is accorded the Jews to trade and live free from persecution.

As Alfonso the Noble Mr. Charles Natanson was earnest, vigorous, and hard-working; Mr. Natanson's dive and swim were watched with much interest by the crowded house. Mr. J. Fineberg was plausible and crafty as Father Benedictus; as Rachel Mme. Natanson gave a thoroughly satisfactory performance, her acting in the first scene being marked by ease and grace. Mr. S. Schilling was greatly appreciated for his rendering of Isaac, and his wife Celia was humorously played by Miss R. Bryh. An incisive portrayal of Ganzeron was presented by Mr. M. Gusofsky; and Mr. Isaacowitch was conscientious as a Count. Mr. J. Scherman as Leizer and Mme. Josephson as Ezer did their best with very small parts, and Mme. Goldstein enacted Elenora. The dancers well deserved their reception, and the stage crowds were ably handled.

THE ACTORS' UNION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As one of the founders of the Actors' Union, before handing over the scheme to the council whom the members will shortly elect, I feel that we ought to ask the profession at large which items on the programme appeal to them most, so that the incoming council may know what course to adopt to make the movement popular and without loss of time.

For instance, at the meetings held in provincial centres will those present discuss as to whether the funds shall be allowed to accumulate so as to form a provident and old-age pension fund, or whether the income shall be devoted to the upkeep of premises such as the A.A. have? It is obvious that we cannot have both for some time, unless the membership makes enormous strides. Also let it be settled if they wish to be known by numbers or not. I find on canvassing the members with whom I am in touch that they are very much divided on these points, and it was the main idea of the founders of this Union to please the majority.

The minimum wage, too, does not appeal to all, although I think, so far as London is concerned, the majority are in favour of it.

Can anyone solve "the stage carpenter who acts" riddle? Is he an actor or not? How can we deal with him? Of course, he ought not to "go on" for parts, but is it policy to interfere? Again, ought we to run an agency? I hope not. That means disappointment to the many, and resignations will at once ensue, to say nothing of the expense.

Members cannot too clearly understand that the founders wish them to be the masters; but that of course can only be effected by their taking a lively interest in the matter, and making known their wishes to those who will endeavour to carry them out.

By discussing the above points, and others that I feel sure will occur to them, they will enable the retiring provisional committee to put the council on the right tack at the start.

I suggest that a vote might be taken on points debated at the meetings, and the result made fully known to headquarters, as the entire success of the Union depends on the governing body knowing the popular feeling at the outset. Every company on the road (members or not) should do this, as this Union may concern them far more than they think at present. Circulars may be obtained by applying to the Hon. Sec., 49, Bedford-street, W.C.—Yours faithfully, ROBSON PAIGE,
10, Ospringe-road, N.W., April 3, '07.

ON Saturday, March 30, the Victoria Opera House, Burnley, was crowded on the occasion of Mr. W. C. Horner's annual benefit, and a monster programme proved heartily enjoyable. The Bros. Egbert, the happy dustmen, caused much merriment; the Lavails, in a smart acrobatic turn, were highly appreciated; Margaret Ruby and Ernest Laws were most acceptable in songs; and Ernie Myers contributed a very funny turn. Lilly Lonsdale, Lilly Hayes, and Virgil Crowther were also successful in the songs; and the Four Maisanos were very pleasing in their eccentric musical turn. The Reays, silver-chain artists, were very good; Amurat, musical athlete; Eskdale Bros., comedians; Coreeze and Keith, equilibrists; Harley and Hardon, knockabouts; and the Bros. Zampah, one-legged acrobats, likewise assisted in capital fashion. Pearl Mystr was very smart in several conjuring tricks; Master Bullock, boy siffleuse, was very good; and Gym Hurst, horizontal-bar artist, and Eddie X. Rabout, swell comique, completed the list.

RETIREMENT OF MR. HALES.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

In the beautiful riverside residence at Staines owned by Mr. Tom Hales, the well-known supplier of stage animals and properties, is to be seen a fine massive silver loving cup. There is an inscription on the cup, and it reads:

"Presented to Tom Gardner Hales as a mark of esteem and affection upon his retirement after thirty-nine years' service. From Arthur Collins, the Directors, and his numerous Comrades at Drury Lane Theatre Royal. 23rd March, 1907."

And the said Tom Gardner Hales treasures that tribute of affection and esteem as he treasures nothing else among his possessions, and that is saying a good deal, for Mr. Hales has not retired from business a poor man.

It is always interesting and frequently instructive to study the career of a successful man in any department of life or calling. Mr. Hales entered Drury Lane Theatre on September 20, 1868. He went there in the capacity of a super, portraying the character of a City apprentice in the production of The King of Scots, Phelps playing the part of the King and doubling it with that of the Miser. Young Hales became on such friendly terms with the super-master that the latter thought he was worth a better position and recommended him to Mme. de Breuil, the wardrobe mistress at Covent Garden under the late "Gus" Harris, and he was engaged as the first dresser for the opera season. A little later he became Mapleson's dresser at Her Majesty's

MR. T. G. HALES.

Theatre, and afterwards general dresser at Drury Lane during the dramatic season, when he attended to T. C. King, J. B. Howard, Britton Wright, Fred Rokes, and others. "After about two years of dressing," says Mr. Hales, "Charles Harris appointed me prompter at the Opera Comique when that house was taken over by a company, at the head of which was Mr. D'Oyly Carte as managing director. The first production there was The Sorcerer, followed by H.M.S. Pinafore. After a split in the management I became stage manager for Pinafore when the piece was transferred to the Olympic Theatre. From there I went to the Imperial Theatre with the same opera, followed by more stage-management at Covent Garden Theatre with the pantomime of Bo-Peep. Then I was prompter under Charles Harris in the Covent Garden pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, where I introduced my first pony, which, by the way, I had to borrow."

The first horse that Mr. Hales purchased was used in Amy Robsart when that play was produced at the Adelphi. To the same management he supplied a coach and four for the production of Nicholas Nickleby. But his earliest success in the animal line was when he introduced the thoroughbreds to do the race in the Derby scene in A Run of Luck at Drury Lane. Sir Augustus Harris's idea was to have presented the scene with the aid of special mechanism, but when Mr. Hales brought real horses to him, the stage innovation appealed at once to Harris, and in the next season's production of The Prodigal Daughter, the Grand National was represented by horses jumping over a hedge and real water.

"In the following year," says Mr. Hales, "there was a production called Freedom, for which I provided 300 supers, and at the same time I was superintending 500 at the Italian Exhibition and 100 at Covent Garden Theatre, holding the position of super master at all three places, with the control altogether of 1,000 men. I have supplied not only England, but France and America with livestock of every description. My livery stables are at Russell-street, Covent Garden, and the animals that are not required for immediate use are at the farm at Kingsbury. Dr. Maddick has just written to me asking for three camels and four boarhounds, and Mr. John Douglas tells me that he wants me to provide all the live stock for the pageant to be held at Oxford this June."

It has fallen to Mr. Hale's lot to furnish all manner of animals for the great exhibitions at Earl's Court and Olympia. He tells us that the biggest order he fulfilled was for the spectacle called The Orient, for which he found one hundred horses, four elephants, six mules, and two Spanish bulls, which he imported direct from Tangiers. Some years ago, in the months when these establishments were closed, Mr. Hales started a company of clown cricketers, who proved so attractive a combination that they appeared for seven years at the Alexandra Palace, and for four years at the Crystal Palace, as well as at Cremorne Gardens, and elsewhere. Ten years ago Mr. Hales built his own theatre—the National Palace, at Croydon—and the respect in which he was held by Sir Augustus Harris at the time found expression in the fact that Harris left a banquet in order to be present at the opening. Recently, Mr. Hales rebuilt the Croydon Palace, and let it to Mr. Walter Gibbons, on a ninety-nine years' lease, giving the latter gentleman the option of purchase. Mr. Hales also has a big interest in the Grand, Clapham, and other halls.

It is not generally known that Mr. Hales (whose real name is Gardiner), married the widow of the late Henry Hales, the celebrated theatrical trimming manufacturer, of Wellington-street. To enable the subject of this sketch to carry on the business in the old name, he took out letters patent, and conferred on himself the nomenclature of Hales.

And now, not only does Tom Hales retire from Drury Lane, but he also retires from the business established in 1838 by Henry Hales. That business, he tells us, has been disposed of in lots to Messrs. Morris, Angel, W. and C. May, J. Harrison, J. and L. Nathan, Willy Clarkson, and Waller.

After a long and useful life—spent, as it were, in the glare of the limelight—it is to be hoped that Mr. and Mrs. Hales have still a long period in which to enjoy the fruits of their labours, and that the wondrous sunset effects, so often witnessed on up-river scenes, may shed a pleasant refulgence on the evening of their days.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This new musical play compares favourably with any of the many similar pieces which have from time to time been witnessed in this town, and it was received in the most cordial manner at the first performance. The new scenery has been specially painted for this play by Mr. John Turner, of Manchester, and the gorgeous costumes have been designed by Mme. Nervy, and made by Messrs. W. A. Hume and Sons, of Manchester. Much credit is due to Mr. Harry Fischer for the excellent way he has staged the play, which opens at Eric Brown's bungalow, Calcutta. He is Commander of H.M.S. Speedy, stationed in Indian waters, and is expecting the arrival of his foster father, Palatine Brown, the latter's ward, Dorothy Stanley, and her companion, Hilda Graham, who are on a visit to India. In due course they make their appearance. Mr. Brown wishes Eric to marry Dorothy, but he (Eric) is in love with Hilda. Among the visitors at the garden party are Percy Brassington, an attaché, and Mrs. Pamela Bung, mother of John William Bung, a middy of H.M.S. Speedy. Palatine Brown, Pamela Bung, and Percy Brassington each carries a portmantean bearing the initials, "P.B." Eric declares his love for Hilda, which is reciprocated, when a messenger arrives from the Viceroy bearing some official despatches, which Eric is ordered to place without delay in the hands of the British Minister in Tokio. He is moreover instructed to take great care of the documents, as efforts will no doubt be made to obtain possession of them. Eric thereupon entrusts them to Hilda's care until he sails. Dorothy then informs Eric that Mr. Brown has been telling her he wishes them to marry, and she having in the meantime fallen in love with Percy Brassington, makes a compact with Eric that they will never marry each other. This compact is sealed with a kiss, and Hilda, not recognising Dorothy, thinks that Eric is deceiving her, and consequently decides to go away to Japan with her foster father, an old actor, one Horatio Jukes, who has been commissioned to direct some theatrical performances at Tokio for the British Minister. Before leaving, Hilda gives the despatches to Mrs. Bung, charging her to hand them to Eric, and urging the necessity of great care in their disposal. Mrs. Bung, for safety, places them in her bag, and about the same time, to her great astonishment, discovers that Mr. Brown is her long-lost husband, Peter Bung, who has changed his name some years ago, and is now a J.P. John Willie, in the excitement, mixes up the bags, and Eric, learning that Hilda has gone to Japan, immediately orders all aboard and sets sail.

The scene of Act 2 is the Hall of the British Legation, Tokio, where a ball is in progress. Owing to the bags having been mixed, some confusion is caused, the three parties concerned whose initials are alike being unable to find their respective suits of clothes. Hilda, disguised as a Jap, proceeds to test Eric's love by flirting with him, but he makes no response to her advances, and she, being now convinced that he loves her only, and learning that the despatches have gone astray, decides to pass John William Bung off as the Ambassador, in the hopes of discovering their whereabouts. This ruse is successful, and eventually it transpires that Hilda is Mr. Brown's daughter, and he gives his consent to her marriage with Eric. This brings the play to a happy conclusion.

Mr. Witty Wattie Walton as John William Bung is a tower of strength in the comedy portion of the play, and meets with marked approval. His songs, "Would you like to hear?" and "The Ambassador," were well received. Mr. Robert Hyett acts the part of Eric, a naval officer, in a realistic manner, and takes full advantage of his rich and well-trained baritone voice in the rendering of his various songs, which are repeatedly encored. They include "The King's Navee," a patriotic song with chorus, and ballad, "Why need we part?" Mr. T. Sinclair Holden as the Hon. Percy Brassington, is artistic and pleasing, and he scores with a topical ditty. Mr. Herbert Franklyn as Horatio Jukes plays his part capably. Mr. Harry Fischer gives great satisfaction as Palatine Brown. Miss Ethel Dunford as Hilda Graham renders her vocal items, including the ballad, "Farewell," and "The Mermaid's Lament," effectively, and the audience testified approval in a very marked manner. Miss Florence Watson, in the rôle of Dorothy Stanley, sings acceptably, "Dora" and "The Jappy," and "The bold Jack Tar." Miss Julia Bassett as Mrs. Pamela Bung makes the most of her opportunities, and infuses much fun into the piece. The chorus is a strong and able one, and reflects great credit on Mr. Albert E. Wilson, the conductor.

PRICES AT THEATRES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With reference to the controversy that is going on in the London Press as to whether prices for seats in theatres should be lowered, will you kindly permit me to give you the following fact. At Middlesbrough we gave operas ranging from Tännhauser to Maritana at 4d. in the gallery (and please don't forget that my salary list must be the biggest in Great Britain). That same week Mr. Waller's Robin Hood company (very beautifully put on) could have been seen at the other theatre for the same sum. There were two music halls as well, which you could have visited at 2d. a night. To sum up, Middlesbrough had four evenings' entertainment of the above description for 1s. My companies repeatedly play to a fourpenny gallery, and 3s. as the highest. I have never willingly, in my career as an opera manager, consented to putting up the price one farthing, and I think I owe what little success I have had in a great measure to this plan. By the way, I should be quite satisfied if, in my coming season at the Lyric Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, we played to the same gross receipts per week as we do in Middlesbrough, and, indeed, if we played to £100 or £200 less. If this can be done throughout the provinces, why not in London? — Yours faithfully, CHARLES MANNERS.
Opera House, Southport, March 30.

MESSRS. TOOTH AND TOOTH will include in their sale of furniture and effects at Oxenham's Auction Rooms, Oxford-street, beginning at mid-day on Tuesday, a quantity of expensive silk plush and damask curtains, draperies, and a supply of fine quality Wilton pile carpet, removed from the Criterion Theatre.

MR. WILLIAM LOCKHART will give his 600th performance of Towzer in Sunday at Poplar on Saturday, April 20. No doubt many will be there to say good-bye to their old friend Towzer, in the hope that he may be resurrected in another form equally life-like and attractive.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Walter Howard's facility in the writing of successful dramas of military interest is once more exemplified in his latest effort, Second to None! which was produced at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester, on Easter Monday. The story concerns certain officers of the Royal Scots Greys, one of whom, Colonel Sir Reginald Greystone, V.C., has a doubtful past, though the truth is not suspected by those who are dear to him and who hold him in high esteem. The Colonel has two daughters, May and Nell, of whom the latter plays the more important part, since it is to gain her hand in marriage that the two opposing forces of virtue and villainy, in the persons of Harry Wilding and Captain Philip Mannering, are set in motion. Wilding is the nephew of Colonel Greystone, and, having failed at Sandhurst, is considered at length in the light of a ne'er-do-well, while his brother Frank has more credit to his name. But it is not on account of Harry's delinquencies that he is at length turned out of doors by his uncle. Thereby hangs the tale. The situation of rivalry between Mannering and Harry Wilding being clearly and portentously defined, into the scene comes weirdly, while the Colonel sits alone, Nemesis, in the shape of Sergeant Jack Horseman, a ghastly figure of a man, broken by years of suffering and captivity among the hill tribes of Northern India, but bent upon bringing home to Colonel Greystone a penalty for the latter's crime against him twenty-five years ago. Horseman reads to the Colonel the details of this crime from a written document, which he compels the Colonel to sign. It tells how the respected Sir Reginald Greystone, V.C., deliberately left his wounded comrade to the mercies of the assailing tribesmen, and galloped away on horseback with looted jewels to the value of £25,000, the riches upon which he attained his position in the world. With the signed document Horseman departs, leaving the Colonel in a state of uncertainty as to when the man will make his next appearance and deal the blow that shall shatter his position and good name. But this torment of expectancy takes another turn. Captain Philip Mannering has overheard all from the staircase, and, instantly following Horseman, obtains possession of the paper, leaving the Sergeant prostrate and unconscious. Now he has such a hold upon the Colonel that he can dictate terms. Exposure is the alternative if Mannering does not obtain the Colonel's assurance that he shall marry Nell. This assurance he gets, but Nell herself indignantly refuses; and it is upon her confession that her heart is Wilding's, that the latter—on Mannering's initiative—is bidden to leave the Colonel's roof. From this act, which takes place at Greystone Manor, the action is transferred to Carchester Barracks, after a lapse of six months during which Mannering has been awaiting a final decision from Nell. From her heart he is farther than ever, and the gap is widened by his brutal persecution of Harry Wilding, who has joined the ranks of the Royal Scots Greys, in which regiment also his brother Frank is a lieutenant. Goaded by Nell's contemptuous refusal of him, Mannering makes the revelation of her father's infamy, and this has the effect of bringing her to the prospect of self-sacrifice to save her father's name. In an ensuing scene outside the Manor, Nell makes known her decision to Harry. The parting of the lovers is well done. In the same scene Harry gets an inkling of the reason why their happiness is to be thus destroyed. A dramatic passage between the Colonel and Horseman occurs, the latter being in search of his stolen document; the Colonel is half-strangled, and Wilding appears in time to prevent Horseman's escape. It is from Horseman (whom he allows to go free) that Harry learns the fact of Mannering's possession of the fatal document. Thereafter, in a scene of the third act, efforts are made to despoil the dastardly Captain of his power. This is done rather cleverly by Nell. On the same errand, however, comes Horseman, who, in a sharp struggle, is shot by Mannering. The immediate issue for Mannering is disastrous, and the way is, of course, made clear for a happy denouement, so far as the lovers are concerned. Incidentally, it has been discovered that, to Harry's credit, a mistake between his name and his brother's—an occurrence founded on fact—was made at Sandhurst, so that it is really Harry who should be the lieutenant, while Frank is non-commissioned, and, in fact, a civilian. The point is, of course, used dramatically by the author. But all is not so felicitous as it seems. The last act—Greystone Manor again—is devoted to the wedding of Harry and Nell, but the sinister enters into it. After nine months' imprisonment and disgrace, Philip Mannering re-appears. He has brought a wedding present for one or other of the happy pair, which he will present at the moment of their return from the church. Colonel Greystone realises with horror that the man is mad. The scene is well conceived, and tensely carried out. Mannering's wedding present is to be a bullet from a revolver. But in this crisis, the Colonel hits upon the expedient of persuading the quondam Captain that he is still in his regiment and called for duty; and under the influence of a series of sharp commands Mannering strides off, minus his dropped revolver. Thus the tragedy is averted, and the wedding bells may ring without a jar.

The acting throughout was distinctly capable and effective. As Nell Greystone, Miss Ward played with a grace and an emotional power that made the character quite likelike, and contributed much toward the success of the play. Mr. Jerrold Heather's depiction of Harry Wilding was manly and sincere; Mr. Louis Norman presented a very good idea of the conflicted Colonel; and Mr. James Stillwell acted the evil part of Mannering with marked skill. The rather difficult rôle of Jack Horseman was excellently filled by Mr. J. G. Maine; Mr. Horace Booth played with bold effect as Frank Wilding; and comedy character passages were capitally handled by Mr. T. G. Vane as Archie Ballater and Miss Violet Ennis Lawson as May Greystone. In the way of comedy interludes not directly bearing on the story, Mr. Tom Sinclair as Private Flutter, Mr. Allan Carruthers as Joe Ruggles, and Miss Maudie Grayson as Nora, the housemaid, provided plenty of amusement; and smaller incidental rôles were satisfactorily filled by Mr. Eric Wilde and Mr. Frances Austin.

The play is very well written, strong in interest and dramatic effects, remarkably well staged, and promises to prove a big success. It is being toured by Mr. T. Edward Ward.

AT a meeting of the shareholders of the Hull Grand Theatre Company, which has been summoned for Monday next, an offer of the purchase of the Grand Theatre from Mortons, Ltd., who at present own the Alexandra Theatre in the town, will be considered. Should the negotiations be successful it is proposed that the transfer shall take place in the autumn.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham has fixed upon Saturday next for his reappearance with Miss Mary Moore in a revival of The Liars by Henry Arthur Jones. The Criterion on its reopening will be found to be practically a new theatre. The scheme of colouring is white, and the upholstery and draperies are in yellow and pale blue, and altogether a most charming effect is obtained.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree is to be entertained at a send-off banquet at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday in honour of his impending visit to Berlin. The Lord Mayor will preside. Intense interest is being taken in the distinguished actor's visit in the German capital, over 3,000 applications for seats being received before the box-office opened. Mr. Tree starts on Monday, the principals of the company who will cross with him including Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Basil Gill, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Julian Lestrange, Mr. Nigel Playfair, Mr. Fred Lewis, Miss Constance Collier, Miss Viola Tree, Miss Alice Crawford, and Miss Cicely Richards.

Mr. Martin Harvey performed the opening ceremony on Tuesday at a café chantant in connection with a bazaar in Newcastle promoted by the Legion of Frontiersmen. There was a very large attendance, and Mr. Harvey was received with unbounded applause. The connection between the stage and matters military, he said, was not very obvious. Of course there were the rebellious times of the seventeenth century, when the powers that were declared that art in every form was another form of impiety, and therefore closed the theatres, and the actors, finding themselves without engagements, partly through patriotism, partly from pay perhaps, entered the ranks of the Royalist army to fight for throne and religion. He had no doubt that if ever such an occasion should arise again they would be found there too. Then there was that other incident of which many of them probably had heard, when a certain gallant general and a certain eminent actor were comparing the perils of their respective callings. "How would you like, sir," said the gallant general, "to stand here with shells all bursting around you?" "Well," the actor said, "that would depend upon the date of the egg."

Mr. Harvey had, in a small way, had his experience as a frontiersman. He remembered some time ago, when he had the honour of playing The Only Way near the Canadian frontier, and when he was called upon to make a speech at the end of the performance. He would never forget the thrill which passed through him, and passed through the audience too, when he had occasion to say how inspiring it was to an Englishman that, after travelling so many thousands of miles, he still found himself playing under the Union Jack. He should never forget how that Canadian audience rose and cheered at that moment. It made one proud to be an Englishman.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier has determined that should a successor to Mr. Sheridan be required at the Garrick Theatre this season he will produce The Duel, by Henri Lavedan, a play which has the distinction of being the greatest success the Théâtre Français has produced in Paris during the last few years. This piece also enjoys great popularity in America, where it was presented by Mr. Charles Frohman.

Mr. Oscar Asche will be the occupant of His Majesty's Theatre during Mr. Tree's tour of the provinces in the autumn. Mr. Asche will be aided in his newest enterprise by his wife, Miss Lily Brayton, and both artists will be seen in the course of the season in a new play.

An interesting and pretty wedding took place at St. Mary's Church, Newington, on Saturday last, when Cordelia Elizabeth, the youngest daughter of Mr. J. J. Dallas, was married to Dr. A. Newton Benson, of Manchester. The bride is well known theatrically as Miss Bessie Allayne, and will be remembered by her successes in San Toy and other musical plays. The ceremony was witnessed by a large congregation, which included visitors from Lancashire, Tunbridge Wells, &c., also the bride and bridegroom's parents and relatives. The ceremony was impressively performed by the Rev. F. Lynch, the organ accompaniments being played by Mr. Kirby. The presents, numbering over a hundred, included cheques, silver services, valuable furniture, &c.

Mr. F. R. Benson will begin his three weeks' Shakespeare festival at Stratford-on-Avon with Coriolanus, which will be presented at the Memorial Theatre on Monday, April 22, with Miss Genevieve Ward and Mr. Benson himself in the cast. The following evening will be devoted to Love's Labours Lost. As You Like It will be played on the Wednesday evening, and The Peacemaker, a one-act comedy, by E. O. Bryant, with Mr. Otho Stuart and Miss Lilian Braithwaite in the cast, and The School for Scandal will form the programme for the Thursday. Mrs. F. R. Benson will grace the performance of The Country Girl, which is set down for the Friday. Henry the Fifth and Twelfth Night, given respectively on the Saturday afternoon and evening, will complete the first week.

"The Merchant of Venice," which is announced for the afternoon and evening of Monday, April 29, will have the services of Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh in the chief rôles, and in Othello, which is underlined for Tuesday evening, the 30th, Mr. Lewis Waller and Miss Evelyn Millard will appear. Mr. Benson will be seen again on Friday evening, May 3, in an impersonation of Don Quixote, and Mr. Henry Ainley and Miss Wynne Matthison will be the Benedick and Beatrice respectively of Much Ado about Nothing, to be staged on Monday afternoon, May 6. Repetitions of several of the foregoing pieces will be given, and other productions during the Festival will be The Taming of the Shrew, Richard the Second, Hamlet, and The Merry Wives of Windsor. Thursday, May 2, will be marked by a Shakespearean Costume Ball, to be held in the Town Hall.

Mr. George Edwardes will preside at an event of the highest importance on the 29th inst., on which date his eldest daughter is to be married at the Roman Catholic Church of St. James, Spanish-place, to Mr. Cuthbert Arthur Sherbrooke, a grandson of the first Earl Cairns. Miss Edwardes is sweet and twenty, and is a good all-round sportswoman, delighting in riding, driving, motoring, and golfing. She has a fine mezzo-soprano voice, which she uses with charm and culture, and is also an accomplished amateur actress. Mr. Sherbrooke is a son of the Rev. Neville Sherbrooke, of Clifton, Bristol, and his mother was the late Lady Lilias Sherbrooke, a daughter of the first Earl Cairns. He is twenty-four years of age, and was educated at Winchester.

Mr. Laurence Irving has given a donation of £10 towards assisting Mrs. Rayner. Mr. Irving obtained for the petition for reprieve of Rayner a number of prominent names, among them being Mr. John Hare, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Mr. Basil Gill, Mr. J. Fisher White, Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mr. Stuart Samuel, M.P., Mr. Samuel Brooks, Mr. Frederick Volpe, and Millicent Duchess of Sutherland.

Mr. Alfred Bishop met with an unfortunate accident while on his way to the Playhouse on Tuesday, when he slipped and severely sprained his leg. His part in Toddles has since been played by Mr. Allen Thomas.

Mr. Edward Terry has contributed a guinea to the Daily Telegraph Shilling Fund for providing London elementary schools with the national flag. In sending his subscription the popular comedian writes:—"I enclose 21s. for the flag which I have seen more honoured abroad than I have at home. 'The pity of it!'"

Mr. Lewis Waller has forwarded to the Actors' Benevolent Fund a further batch of postal orders and stamps to the value of £6 3s. 2d., the amount having been collected by means of autographing cards, &c. Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, and Miss Mary Moore are daily sending to the secretary of the Fund the postal orders they receive in exchange for their autographs.

Mr. Edward Compton has secured a theatre for his London season, which will begin on or about August 5 next. He has not yet decided on which of his many plays he will open with, nor is he at liberty to give the name of the theatre, but everything is settled, and Mr. Compton is steadily proceeding with his arrangements.

The complete cast of Mr. Clyde Fitch's four-act play, The Truth, to be produced by Mr. Charles Frohman, by arrangement with Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, at the Comedy Theatre this evening, embraces Messrs. Allan Aynesworth, Dawson Milward, Dion Boucicault, Horton Cooper, and Donald Calthorpe, and Misses Marie Tempest, Grace Lane, Sybil Carlisle, and Rosina Filippi. The play is produced under the direction of Mr. Dion Boucicault.

Mr. Algernon Syms, who was for so long a period leading man at the Britannia, has for the last few weeks been hors de combat with a severe attack of pneumonia. Happily he has now recovered, and will fulfil his engagement with Mr. Reeves Smith in his production of The Last of His Race at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Monday.

The Managers' Club brought their first billiard handicap to a successful issue on Tuesday last, when Mr. Stanley White (scratch) beat Mr. C. M. Sofiani (rec. 35) in the final by 79 points. The prize was a handsome silver cup presented by Mr. G. M. Polini. Throughout the game both players endeavoured to get position for the famous "anchor stroke," but, luckily for the interest of the numerous spectators, neither succeeded. Another handicap has been arranged, and the heats will be shortly played off.

The part of Pedro in The Gipsy Girl at the Waldorf was not played by Mr. Laurence Wensley, as inadvertently stated last week, but by Mr. Reginald Dane, who took up the rôle at a few hours' notice.

Mr. Lester Collingwood commenced his dramatic season at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, last Monday, under most promising conditions, the house, notwithstanding the heat, being filled to overflowing at quite an early hour. Tuesday and Wednesday witnessed the same gratifying state of affairs. Mr. T. Edward Ward's Man and Wife is the current attraction, both play and players being of a high order of excellence.

The Eccentric Club has forwarded two guineas towards the J. A. Atkin memorial. Donations have also been made per Eric G. Merrie's At Cripple Creek company as follow:—Mr. Hugh Fleming, 2s. 6d.; Mr. W. G. Wesley, 2s. 6d.; Mr. Eric Hudson, 2s. 6d.; Mr. Arthur Fell, 2s. 6d.; and Mr. Merrie, 2s. 6d.

Mr. Charles Carey will on Monday produce, in conjunction with Mr. Harold Wantage, his new musical comedy The Pick of the Bunch at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, for the first time near London. This production comes from the country with a big reputation, which, no doubt, Londoners will quickly endorse. From Kingston the piece goes to Folkestone, Hastings, Tunbridge Wells, Eastbourne, and Brighton, which brings the tour up to Whit-week. The autumn dates include the best theatres in the largest towns. Mr. Carey, it should be added, has arranged four stock seasons on the South Coast during the coming season, and hopes to be able to produce several new plays.

Mrs. E. Statham Staples, professionally known as May St. Aubyn, wishes us to state that in future she will be known as May Staples.

Mr. Norman V. Norman paid a most satisfactory visit to the Theatre Royal, Hull, last week. Large audiences were attracted to the performances, which were so successful that a return date in the autumn has been arranged.

The Dutch stage has lost one of its most popular dramatists and sterling actors in Rosier Faassen who recently passed away, deeply regretted by all his fellow-professionals, and no less so by the public, whose decided favourite he had been for many a year. Although he was more than threescore and ten, and had practically retired from the stage, he was such a well-known first-nighter that his death came quite unexpectedly. One of his best impersonations was Abt Constantin, and numberless other creations in his own works. His plays were mostly of a popular and national style, and always drew crowded houses. Rosier Faassen was one of the members of the Dutch company that played in London at the Empire Theatre some eight-and-twenty years ago.

Miss Glossop Harris's Répertoire Company has met with such success that she has decided to establish herself permanently as a presenter of Shakespearean and classical plays. Next week she goes to Brighton for a fortnight, and on April 21 starts a Shakespearean Festival week at Dudley. The plays in her répertoire include Romeo and Juliet, The Taming of the Shrew, Much Ado About Nothing, Camille, and Carmen, the last being an entirely new dramatic version of Bizet's opera of which Miss Glossop Harris is part owner.

An original Indian romance, entitled The Last of His Race, which has met with considerable success in America, is to be produced for the first time in this country at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Monday. The play is by Mr. Donald Maclaren, and the production is under the direction of Mr. H. Reeves-Smith.

The Theatrical and Variety Charity sports, established under the title of The New Barmaid Fund, with the object of giving little children an outing, were brought off at West Bromwich on the 28th ult. The efforts of the members of the company referred to and of the West Bromwich Hippodrome Co. resulted in a great success, and it is estimated that a picnic to 2,000 children will be the outcome. Mr. J. P. Moore is the treasurer, Mr. Lloyd Astbury chairman of the committee, Mr. J. G. Gifford vice-chairman, and Mr. H. N. Ellison hon. secretary. The prizes were given out in the evening at the Theatre Royal, West Bromwich, between the acts of The New Barmaid by the Mayor of the town.

We call the attention of our readers to the article by Mr. Albert A. Strong on the new Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906. This Act will create great obligations on employers of labour, and should be carefully studied by all concerned.

A meeting of the Committee of the Actors' Benevolent Fund was held on Thursday at the offices of the Society, Adam-street, Strand. At a meeting held on March 21 a letter was received from the hon. secretary of the Actors' Day Fund (Mr. A. E. Drinkwater) submitting, amongst other proposals, the following:—"That the proceeds of the Actors' Day collection be combined with the yearly subscriptions to the Actors' Benevolent Fund received from actors—forming one united source of income: Actors' Saturday being thereby abolished; that the administration of this fund, to be called the Actors' Fund, be in the hands of the committee of the Actors' Benevolent Fund and an equal number of representatives of the Advisory Board; that the details of administration be jointly considered and approved on the understood condition that contributors only shall benefit, and on the further understanding that proportionate provision shall be made for the Actors' Orphanage and the Ladies' Theatrical Guild, and for any further theatrical charity that may be mutually approved."

Before sending their reply to the proposals the committee resolved they should be further considered at another meeting fixed for Thursday last. It was then decided that the following reply be sent to the hon. secretary of the Actors' Day Fund:—"Dear Sir,—The committee of this Fund have considered the matters referred to in your letter of the 18th ultimo, and respectfully state that they have come to the conclusion they cannot entertain the suggestions made.—Yours faithfully, C. I. Coltson (secretary)." Several letters were read from absent members in support of the course recommended by the committee, and those present were quite unanimous in their opposition to the proposals which had been submitted to them.

Mr. E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe have arrived in London, and will begin their first season at the Waldorf on Monday, April 22, with Hauptmann's The Sunken Bell, a fairy play that has met with a great deal of success in New York. The piece deals with the rights of genius to develop itself at the cost of neglecting the domestic responsibilities and duties of the average man. The Sunken Bell will be followed by productions of Jeanne d'Arc and Twelfth Night during the first week. The second week will be devoted to As You Like It, Hamlet, and Romeo and Juliet, and the third week a romantic play, When Knighthood was in Flower, by Paul Kester and Charles Major, will be presented.

The pursuit of the ever-popular Toddles is being carried on at the Playhouse by the ladies of the cast in new, captivating, and bewildering frocks. Worn for the first time on Monday night, the latest "creations" of Mme. Pauline Herbert are the last word in up-to-date colours, style, and materials. Miss Lottie Venne appears in the first act in shell-pink ninon, elaborately embroidered in black chenille, with a velvet belt, small elbow-sleeves, and numberless tiny bows of bebé ribbon. Charmingly effective as it is, her second dress eclipses the first, being composed of dove-coloured satin, with puffs of chiffon under lace over-sleeves, held together with gold cord, ending in cone-shaped golden and pearl tassels, the only note of colour in the soft grey being found in the shell-pink—evidently a favourite tint—fall of chiffon on the Empire waist, almost hidden under silver and pearl embroidery. In the third act Miss Venne wears one of the new shades of chiffon velvet—a peculiar red that is neither rose nor flame, although it suggests both of those gorgeous colours. It is trimmed with a bold design of flowers and leaves in silver. The sleeves are transparent, and many jewels are worn. Only a word after this need be given to Miss Venne's black lace and white chiffon costume at the end of the play.

Miss Gertrude Kingston looks her best in a champagne-coloured dress, beautified with a design of apples and green leaves, afterwards changing into an Empire gown of blue ninon and velvet, shimmering with silver. Her last entrance is made in a smart cream cloth costume, with a lace coat that is perhaps more admired by good judges than anything else worn on the stage. Luxury reaches its height in Miss Trevor's costumes, the most striking design being carried out in rose pink, worn under a cloak of the same colour, with velvet cuffs, a wide lace collar edged with gauze ribbon, a big steel buckle at the back of the waistband, and a deep flounce piped with pink silk. More quiet, but hardly less effective, is the black spotted net over white silk, worn in the first act, with its silver belt and dainty knots of black velvet. Another of Miss Trevor's long coats is in black lace, worn over a lace evening gown, and black is again to the front in a sparkling sequined net over silver gauze.

Miss Madge Titheradge looks very pretty in a girlish frock of mauve silk, with a flowered sash, the bodice being made in pinafore style, elaborate handwork embroidery filling in the yoke, the small puff sleeves hardly reaching to the elbow, and the finishing touches to the picture of sweet seventeen being shown in white shoes, long white gloves, a glimpse of fluffy pink underskirts, and a crinoline hat wreathed with small mauve and pink roses. Apropos of simplicity, little Miss Reeve—Miss Ada Reeve's sister, by the way—has a new lace frock with a pink sash and daisy-trimmed hat. Miss Sefton, as the Fountain Maid, wears a severe little black silk, with a black and white plaid bow at her throat, and a mob cap, appearing later in pale blue, adorned with faintly tinted passementerie. Miss Hoffman, like Miss Venne, wears a new colour—it suggests a dark pearl—heavily embroidered, a warmth of colour being given to the long folds of the skirt by a foundation of dull pink. In the first act Miss Hoffman appears in grey, trimmed with Cluny lace and very finely tucked chiffon. Miss Toller's prettiest dress is worn in the marriage scene. It is soft and white, dotted with small pink discs.

The hats at the Playhouse are worthy of the dresses. A plain white chip, with a quantity of pink roses, vivid leaves, and white tulle, is one of the simplest and most satisfactory. Roses and ostrich feathers are the favourite decorations. A dainty French model is made of fine net, with a wreath of lilies-of-the-valley, a twist of Gobelin blue ribbon, and a narrow band of black velvet round the brim. Chocolate-coloured chiffon and smoke-grey plumes are used effectively, without any additional trimming, on one of Miss Trevor's hats, and another is a big black "Gainsborough" with full-blown roses. Miss Toller wears a pale blue velvet model, trimmed with blue feathers and filmy lace. Of Miss Venne's four hats the most original is a combination of mauve chiffon, small plumes, and golden grapes. The same fruit, in silver and purple, is used on a smaller hat, draped in black.

Some hundred sailors belonging to the Russian Squadron attended the Prince's Theatre, Portsmouth, on the evening of the 28th ult., to see The Prodigal Parson at the invitation of Mr. J. W. Boughton, Mr. Alfred Northway, and Mr. W. V. Garrod. Proof of the appreciation bestowed on the performance was provided in the fact that all the Russians who passed out during the interval brought some of their comrades with them on their return.

We regret to learn that Mr. Wellesley Draper has been compelled to resign his engagement with Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow owing to a severe attack of appendicitis. The doctors at first feared an operation would be necessary, but, thanks to their skill and attention, an improvement has manifested itself, and Mr. Draper is now steadily recovering.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday, when there were present:—Messrs. Edward Terry (chairman), C. Aubrey Smith, A. E. Drinkwater, Misses Fanny Brough, Clare Greet, Georgina Hamilton, and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Henry Ainley, Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Fredk. Morland, Kenyon Musgrave, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Two cases of alleged bogus management were under consideration, and the secretary received instructions to file the particulars supplied for future reference. A question arising upon the report of the proceedings at the last bi-monthly meeting was under consideration, and after a lengthy discussion it was agreed that the suggestions made could not be adopted. Reports of the Finance and General Purposes Committee, and also of the Subscription Committee, were given. Maude Lacy was nominated for election, and a former member was reinstated.

The list of unpaid subscriptions was placed before the Council, and the secretary received instructions to remove from the register the names of all those members who were in arrear, with the exception of those who are abroad or who had promised payment, or whose cases had been specifically dealt with hitherto by the Council. The meeting opened at 2.30 and closed at 5.15.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, when there were present:—Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), Lewis Casson, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Rules for the regulation of committees were drafted, and left on the table for further consideration.

As a result of a special matinée at the Paisley Theatre on Saturday, when The School for Scandal was performed by the Compton Comedy Company, Mr. Edward Compton and Mr. J. H. Savile were enabled to devote the sum of £15 10s., the entire proceeds of the performance, towards the fund which has been organised for the preservation of the Auld Brig o' Ayr. The small attendance was easily accounted for by the glorious and summer-like weather, which induced many to go holiday-making.

Mr. John Cassidy, the manager of the Victoria Theatre, West Stanley, died on Saturday, after a long illness, at the early age of 40. Mr. Cassidy, who had toured for some years with Muldoon's Picnic, has only been in the district eight months, and during that time had become highly respected. He leaves a widow, but no children. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Tuesday at Stanley.

Miss Dollie Varden (Mrs. Jamie Dallas) fell from a trap while out driving the other day, and was picked up unconscious. She was found to be suffering from a dislocated shoulder and cut very badly about the face and hands. It was thought at first she would lose her right eye, but with care it is confidently expected she will completely recover.

Owing to the indisposition of Miss Eva Moore the part of Muriel Glayde, in Mr. Alfred Sutro's play, John Glayde's Honour, at the St. James's Theatre, was taken by Miss Ruth Maitland, who acquitted herself to the satisfaction of large audiences at the matinée and evening performances on Saturday.

Mr. Leonard Pagden, at the conclusion of the spring tour of Sunday, will, in conjunction with Mr. G. M. Copping, take out Jim the Penman. The title-rôle will be undertaken by Mr. Pagden, and Miss Alice Farleigh will play Mrs. Ralston. The Crystal Palace will be visited the week of April 29, and among the towns visited will be Bradford, Sheffield, and Manchester. On June 24 Mr. Pagden will produce The Second Mrs. Tanqueray at West Pier, Brighton. Miss Lucy Wilson, whose clever performance of Paula is well known, has been engaged, and Mr. Pagden will be the Aubrey.

Mr. Reginald Grant, the affable and courteous manager of the New Century Theatre, Motherwell, has been appointed manager of the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead. Though only a few months resident in Motherwell, Mr. Grant has become very popular, and carries with him in his new venture the unfailing good wishes of his many friends in Motherwell.

Mr. Overton Moyle asks us to state that there is no foundation for the rumour that he is engaged to play in the forthcoming production of Madame Tatters at the Shaftesbury Theatre. He was offered the part of the Sergeant in the piece named, but being engaged at the Savoy Theatre it was impossible for him to consider it.

An enjoyable evening may confidently be predicted for those attending the next social gathering of the Managers' Club at the Savoy Mansions next Sunday, the 14th, which will be a Ladies' Night. Mr. Frank Weathersby, who is taking the chair, is organising an interesting programme.

An example of quick study was given by Miss Maisie Gay this week at West Bromwich. On Thursday, the 28th, Mr. St. John Denton wired her to know if she could take up the part of The New Barmaid, which was vacant through illness. Miss Gay telephoned to Mr. Denton accepting the engagement, travelled to West Bromwich the same night, rehearsed the words on the Friday, practised the music on Saturday, opened on Monday, and scored an instantaneous success. Those acquainted with The New Barmaid are aware that the music of the title-rôle is heavy, yet Miss Gay sang it all and introduced her own speciality whistling song, accompanied by the chorus.

Mr. Arthur Vezin completes, on Saturday, April 27, a two and a half years' engagement with Mr. Louis Calvert's Sunday company. Thereafter he will join Mr. Leonard Pagden's Jim the Penman company, opening at the Crystal Palace Theatre on April 29.

Miss Gracie Murielle, who has been playing Miss Maud Hildyard's part in The Great Awakening at Bradford with gratifying results this week, has been approached by several important managers with a view to bookings for the play, which Miss Murielle has bought in its entirety. Amongst those who have secured this rapidly-rising young actress is Mr. Laidler, of the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, who expressed himself as delighted with the play and the artist. It is a coincidence that Miss Murielle should have followed Miss Hildyard in three of that clever lady's parts—Her Second Time on Earth, Rosy Shy (The Darling of the Gods), and now Lola in The Great Awakening.

The Queen and the Dowager Empress of Russia witnessed the performance of The Great Conspiracy at the Duke of York's Theatre on Monday evening, when, in order that the noise and realistic effects of the explosion scene might not affect Her Majesty of Russia, who is of a highly nervous temperament, its advent was announced to the distinguished visitors by an equerry. Tuesday saw the Queen, the Empress Marie Feodorovna of Russia, and the Princess Victoria and suite at the performance of The Gondoliers at the Savoy. The following evening the Queen and the Dowager Empress of Russia visited the Garrick and witnessed Mr. Bourchier's production of Mr. Sheridan; and on Thursday the Queen, the Empress Marie Feodorovna, and Princess Victoria honoured The Belle of Mayfair at the Vaudeville.

The new play, Second to None, written by Walter Howard and produced by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester, on Easter Monday, has scored a big success, and is estimated to be one of the best—if not the best—of the clever author's efforts. Among the features of the production were the exquisite and costly gowns worn by Miss Ward, who played Nellie Greystone, the lead. She wore in all five gowns, the first being an evening robe of white lace embroidered with yellow marguerites and green leaves, made up over pale yellow glacé silk in Empire style. Miss Ward's Act II. dresses were, first, a walking-dress of cream voile, trimmed with cornflower-blue silk, and cream broderie Anglaise yoke and sleeves, with Paris model hat of cornflower-blue, trimmed with pink roses and shaded ribbons. An evening dress of flowered chiffon silk, with touches of amethyst velvet and spotted net, was worn in Scene 3 of the same act. The last was a most effective bridal costume.

A new one-act play, entitled The Boatswain's Mate, adapted by W. W. Jacobs and Herbert C. Sargent from a story of the same name by Mr. Jacobs, will be put on in front of When Knights were Bold at Wyndham's, on Monday, the 15th inst. The cast will comprise Miss Ethel Hollingshead, Mr. Arthur Chesney, and Mr. Geo. F. Tully.

At the Regent-street Polytechnic on Thursday afternoon the British Empire Shakespeare Society gave a dramatic reading of Twelfth Night before a particularly large and highly-appreciative audience. Miss Wynne Matthison as Viola delivered her lines with exquisite grace and intelligence, and Miss Edyth Olive and Miss Alice Arden, in their respective parts of Olivia and Maria, were also heard to great advantage. Mr. Acton Bond gave a finely-conceived rendering of the part of Malvolio, and that of Orsino was in the excellent keeping of Mr. Walter Hampden. The Sir Toby was Mr. Arthur Whitby, and the Aguecheek Mr. Michael Sherbrooke, and in their hands the comedy scenes were not allowed to lag. Mr. Shakespeare Stewart sang the songs allotted to the Clown with beautiful effect. All the remaining members of the cast, including Mr. Arthur Applin, Mr. F. H. de Quincey, Mr. Alfred Bristowe, Mr. Reginald Maurice, and Mr. G. Harrison Carter, rendered valuable help. Miss Valerie Salburgh read the stage directions, and the reading was given under the supervision of Mr. Acton Bond.

Miss Florence Ray, who created the part of Beauty in Beauty and the Enchanted Prince, at Hengler's Circus, has been compelled, through indisposition, to resign the rôle. Miss Ray is a young actress and vocalist of much ability and charm, and was a great favourite with the company, who sympathise heartily with her. During Miss Ray's absence the part is taken by Miss Eva Kelland.

"A Country Rose" is the pretty title of a new musical play that has just been written by Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, who has already given to the stage several successful dramas, including A Sister's Sin, Bound to Win, and A Soldier's Honour, the last-named being received most favourably wherever presented.

At the Theatre Royal, Leamington, on Easter Monday Mr. Ian Maclaren produced The Free-Lance, a romantic drama in five acts, which has found considerable favour in America. A notice of the play, which is set in the picturesque period of mediæval Germany, appears in another column. On Monday a big holiday audience gave the play a most enthusiastic reception, Mr. Ian Maclaren finding immediate favour for his spirited performance in the title-rôle.

The performance of Baron Harriss's Prince of Pilsen company at the Opera House, Harrogate, on Easter Monday was marked by a little incident which afforded an eloquent tribute to the artists concerned. During the delightful comedy scene of Miss Sophie Harriss and Harry Kilburn in the second act, an elderly gentleman in the front row of the circle was roused to such a burst of merriment that he dislocated a set of false teeth, which fell from his mouth and alighted with a resounding thud on the cranium of an inoffensive youth who happened to be seated immediately underneath.

The harmony is being disturbed in several Paris theatres, and a few theatrical lawsuits may be expected. Thus, there is war between M. Samuel, the Variétés manager, and Mme. Jeanne Granier. According to that lady, M. Samuel is not adhering to the clauses of his contract with her, and she threatens him with the rigours of the law. Speaking of M. Samuel, few people know why he, a good Catholic, changed his name of Louveau into one of Semitic origin. "I had to do it to protect myself," he says. "Whilst I was in financial difficulties I always fell an easy prey to the Hebrew gentlemen with whom I had to deal. Since I changed my name into that of Samuel, they think I am one of them, and they leave me in peace!"

Trouble number two has broken out between Mme. Sarah Bernhardt and M. Henry Bataille, the author of the new Faust, wherein Mme. Bernhardt will impersonate Mephisto. At the Odéon, too, there is a dispute in connection with L'Arlésienne, which M. Antoine has just put into rehearsal. As everybody knows, the words are by Alphonse Daudet, and Bizet wrote the music. The feud is between Daudet's and Bizet's heirs. They began by trying to prevent M. Antoine from producing it, except under certain restrictions. Their joint action having failed, they now are quarrelling among themselves. This, of course, M. Antoine does not mind.

"When M. Judic took over the management of the Palais-Royal," writes our Paris correspondent, "I predicted in these columns that he would not remain long at his post. He has now gone away, leaving the poor theatre to its fate. And what a fate! A liquidator has been appointed, who hopes to find someone plucky enough to take over the lease. I am told that Fursy, from the "Boite à Fursy" in Montmartre, is a candidate. It seems incredible. His little pill-box in the Rue Pigalle is a goldmine, full every night with the pick of Paris society. The Palais-Royal is an ill-starred house, in which the public has ceased to take an interest. Under a capable management it could once more become a paying concern. M. Richemont has shown with the Folies-Dramatiques that a house, supposed to be dead, can be brought to life again. But will M. Fursy take that trouble?

Mr. Hans Andresen, the director of the German plays at the Great Queen-street Theatre, has arranged for a professional matinée on Tuesday of the Die Condottieri, a romantic play by Rudolf Herzog, to which all English actors and actresses are invited.

The Brixton Theatre has shared largely in the holiday business of the week, and the elegant house was packed from floor to ceiling on Monday, when the clever farcical comedy The Night of the Party gave unlimited enjoyment to an appreciative audience. Mr. Sebastian Smith revelled in the drolleries of the rôle of Crosbie, and kept the audience in uncontrollable laughter. Mr. Frank H. Denton won encomiums as Frank Frayne, and Mr. Douglas Munro was irresistibly funny as Mr. Flambert. A charming impersonation of Lady Hampshire was given by Miss Beatrice Mervyn, and the housemaid Paulina found a very talented exponent in Miss Lillian Williams, the other parts being all well rendered.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Bernard Shaw's Dicta.

The two volumes of dramatic criticisms by Mr. Bernard Shaw, which have just been published by Messrs. Archibald Constable and Co., are full of pithy and witty bits of dogmatism. We quote one or two from a book which is full of them.

Points and Parts.

"The majority of actresses never get beyond learning not to invent new points for themselves, but rather to pick out in their parts the passages which admit of certain well worn and tried old points being reapplied. When they have learnt to make these points smoothly and to keep quiet between whiles with a graceful air of having good reasons for doing nothing, they are finished actresses. The great actress has a harder struggle. She goes on inventing her points and her business determinedly, constantly increasing the original half-dozen, and constantly executing them with greater force and smoothness. A time comes when she is always making points, and making them well; and this is the finishing point with some actresses. But with the greatest artists there soon commences an integration of the points into a continuous whole, at which stage the actress appears to make no points at all, and to proceed in the most unstudied and 'natural' way."

Artistic Conscience.

"There are plenty of people who have either no artistic conscience at all, or else one which is very easily satisfied. Just as you have soldiers who are not frightened under fire because they have not imagination enough to conceive their danger, whilst your imaginative Napoleon or Nelson turns pale, and your serene Goethe sees yellow, so there are debutters, both on the social and theatrical stage, who get through their ordeal easily because they are only imperfectly conscious of it. And there are happy people whose artistic conscience has always been awake, and to whom sufficient conscious grace and beauty to begin with are second nature.

Playwright Critics.

"The advantage of having a play criticised by a critic who is also a playwright is as obvious as the advantage of having a ship criticised by a critic who is also a master shipwright. Pray observe that I do not speak of the criticism of dramas and ships by dramatists and shipwrights who are not also critics; for that would be no more convincing that the criticism of acting by actors. Dramatic authorship no more constitutes a man a critic than actorship constitutes him a dramatic author; but a dramatic critic learns as much from having been a dramatic author as Shakespeare or Mr. Pinero from having been actors.

The Old "Stock."

"Having been brought up on the old stock-company actor, I knew that he was the least versatile of beings—that he was still nailed helplessly to his own line of heavy or light, young or old, and played all the parts that fell to him as the representative of that line in exactly the same way. I knew that his power of hastily 'swallowing' the words of a part and disgorging them at short notice more or less inaccurately and quite unimprovably (three months rehearsal would have left him more at sea than three hours) was incompatible with his ever knowing his part in any serious sense at all. I remembered his one absurd 'combat' that passed for fencing, the paltry stepdance between the verses of his song in the pantomime that constituted him a dancer, the obnoxiousness of utterance which he called elocution and would impart to pupils for a consideration, the universal readiness which only meant that in his incorrigible remoteness from nature and art it mattered nothing what he did."

Pit and Gallery Booking.

Mr. Cyril Maude's business manager, Mr. Alfred Turner, interviewed by the Tribune, states that the pit and gallery booking at the Playhouse is an immense success. Mr. Turner admits that there was a notion among some managers that if the shilling and half-crown seats can be secured beforehand a large number of people will take them instead of stalls or upper boxes. "But," he says, "the fear is certainly not confirmed by our experience here. As a matter of fact, the better seats are as much in demand as ever. My idea is that if people are to be attracted to the theatre they must be made as comfortable as possible. Why should the man who can only afford a shilling, a sum which to him may represent more in proportion to his income than half-a-guinea to a richer class of playgoer, be made to stand for perhaps a couple of hours outside the theatre in all weathers before he is admitted? By making him endure this discomfort you do not make him pay for a stall, because he cannot afford it. You simply deter him from playgoing."

Saving the "Packers."

"With regard to the printing of the tickets, that is a very small item. In all theatres tickets are printed for every part except the pit and gallery, and in our case the extra printing bill incurred by including those parts of the house is no more than 1s. for each performance. At many theatres men called packers are kept in the pit and gallery for the purpose of making people close up, and thus make room for as many as possible. Here we have no need of them, as everyone has his own seat. One thing we did not foresee, and that is that in selling a shilling seat through the post we often have to spend 2d. on postages, so that we received only 10d. net. I certainly think that in such cases the purchaser should pay for the postages, but so far, at all events, we have not insisted upon this."

Cheap Prices.

Mr. H. R. Smith, in an interview with a representative of the Daily News, says:—"I think the minimum limit has been reached with the sixpenny gallery, as just instituted by Mr. Carpenter and myself at the Lyceum. The price might be lowered in suburban and provincial theatres, and still leave a margin for profit, because the cost of the lease, lighting, and other incidental expenses are much smaller. Here we are highly gratified at the results already obtained. On Monday we played to a house filled to its maximum capacity, over four thousand people being present. Before the week is over we shall introduce another innovation in the shape of stalls at 3s. 6d."

Mr. Fred Terry in Paris.

Mr. Fred Terry has returned from a holiday trip to Paris, where he visited some of the theatres. "My first impression," he told a Daily Chronicle representative, "was that I should find the Englishman caricatured as a Scotsman, with mutton-chop whiskers, a tweed suit, and knickerbockers. This is the usual manner in which the Englishman is depicted on the Continental stage. Happily the theatres I visited where an Englishman was supposed to take part in the piece, proved the result of a better knowledge of our customs. The Englishman was shown as an ordinary individual, whose acquaintance with the French language is somewhat limited, and therefore humorous. But there were no crudities in his apparel."

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND.

The annual meeting of this Fund was held on Thursday afternoon in the saloon of Terry's Theatre. Mr. EDWARD TERRY presided, and there were also present Messrs. R. Morand, Chas. Rock, Chas. K. Cooper, T. F. Dillon Croker, A. H. Elliott, A. B. Tapping, C. Nuthall Foreman, C. T. Burleigh, F. L. Chapuy, Brandon Ellis, G. Weathersby, Dr. Allchin, and Charles J. CHARLES J. DAVIES, Secretary.
16th March, 1907.

THE CHAIRMAN, in opening the proceedings, said it gave him the greatest pleasure to preside over the annual meeting, and he rejoiced in the continued success of the Fund in which they were all so deeply interested. They had to regret the loss of four of their members, but all of them had reached an advanced age, as most of the members did, more especially the ladies. He was, however, glad to say that they were getting new members, fourteen having joined during the past year. This showed that the Fund and the good work it did were being appreciated more and more, as it became better known among the younger members of the profession; and it was only by the infusion of new blood that they could expect to prosper. They should endeavour to bring before the younger members of the profession the great advantages they would derive from joining this old and well-established Fund. Without giving the names, he might mention four cases. One member who paid in £54, received £504; another who paid in £382, received £1289; a third, who paid in £200, received £575; while a fourth, who paid in £85, received £406. These figures were sufficient to show that joining the Fund was a very good investment. There were certain new schemes in the air, and one of these was in connection with what was known as the Actors' Day Fund. This was, he had always understood, started with a charitable purpose only, but it was now proposed to deviate from the original lines laid down and to establish a provident fund, which was, he held, absolutely unnecessary while the Royal General Theatrical Fund remained in existence. This was a proposal respecting which they had a right to feel aggrieved. His own company loyally gave their services for the Actors' Day Fund, believing that the proceeds would be devoted to the theatrical charities, but later they heard of this new proposal, which, if carried out, would injure, though, of course, unintentionally, the Theatrical Fund, which had done such good work in the past, was now doing good work, and would do even greater work in the future. It had taken many years to bring the Fund to its present position, and large sums of money had been invested in various securities. He desired to point out that a young man or young woman who became a member of the Fund, and paid 11s. a quarter, or £2 4s. a year, was entitled to receive £40 per annum after attaining the age of 60; and in case of calamity was entitled after only seven years' membership to claim that annuity. That was the lowest scale, but a payment of £4 per annum secured an annuity of £80 at 60, and £12 per annum an annuity of £120 at £60; these grants being also obtained if seven years after joining a calamity overtook a member. He did not think that the members of his profession were conversant with the advantages which joining the Fund conferred; and he must protest against any attempt, unintentional though it might be, to injure this very old-established Fund. He was reminded by reading a newspaper paragraph the other day that the late Charles Dickens advocated old age pensions when he presided over one of their annual dinners, and certainly subscribers to the Fund secured assistance in old age for a very moderate outlay. They had the balance-sheet before them; and it was open for anyone to criticise it. He was pleased to announce that for their next annual dinner they would have as chairman the Lord Mayor, Sir William Treloar, and if that gentleman was only as successful in obtaining money for the Fund as he had been in his efforts for other good objects, they would have good reason to congratulate themselves on the result.

MR. M. R. MORAND, in moving the adoption of the balance-sheet, said he thought they could heartily congratulate themselves, especially on two items in it. The first was, "amount to make up investment under separate account, £975 7s."; and the second, "balance of income over expenditure, £543 6s. 7d."

MR. CHARLES ROCK, who seconded, referred to the fact that they were now able to pay annuitants the full amount. He quite endorsed the Chairman's remarks with regard to the proposed establishment of another fund; but it would take many years to attain the position now reached by the Royal General Theatrical Fund.

THE CHAIRMAN: Has any lady or gentleman anything to say regarding the balance-sheet?

There being no response, the Chairman declared the motion carried unanimously.

MR. CHAS. ROCK proposed the re-election of the directors, Messrs. Chas. K. Cooper, T. F. Dillon Croker, and Alfred H. Elliott, and said he was sure that all present would agree with him that they could not have more representative gentlemen on the board.

MR. MORAND seconded the proposition, which was carried.

MR. C. K. COOPER, in proposing the re-election of the Hon. Medical Staff, Dr. W. H. Allchin and Dr. R. Percy Middlemist, said that in the case of illness of any member of the Fund these gentlemen could be consulted free of cost.

MR. DILLON CROKER seconded the motion, which was carried.

DR. ALLCHIN, in returning thanks, said that so exceedingly healthy were the members of the Fund that if it were more generally known to the public he believed there would be a large influx into the theatrical profession. As a thoroughly healthy profession he could strongly recommend its adoption. As to the ladies, they lived a long time, but did not get old. It gave the medical staff the greatest pleasure to render the Fund all the services they possibly could.

MR. C. ROCK proposed and MR. A. H. ELLIOTT seconded the re-election of the standing counsel of the Fund—Mr. John Strachan, K.C., and Mr. Ernest De Witt. The resolution was carried.

MR. A. H. ELLIOTT next proposed the re-election of the hon. solicitor, Mr. Theodore Lumley, remarking that they had been singularly free from lawsuits of any kind. Should any arise they could always rely upon the valuable assistance of Mr. Lumley.

MR. DILLON CROKER seconded the proposal, and it was agreed to.

On the motion of MR. M. R. MORAND, seconded by MR. C. K. COOPER, the hon. accountant and auditor, Mr. A. G. Warren, was re-elected.

MR. DILLON CROKER then proposed the re-election of the auditors, Mr. M. R. Morand and Mr. F. Weathersby.

MR. C. ROCK seconded the proposal, which was carried.

MR. ROCK said he had great pleasure in proposing the re-election of Mr. Edward Terry as hon. treasurer, for he felt sure they could not have a better guardian of the funds.

The motion, having been seconded by Mr. Elliott, who spoke in complimentary terms of Mr. Terry, was duly carried.

THE CHAIRMAN thanked the proposer and seconder for the kind things they had said about him, and said he was only too pleased to do all he could for the good of the Fund. It had a hard-working body of directors, who were anxious to do the best for it. Their thanks were due to Mr. James Welch for allowing them the use of the theatre saloon for their meeting, and to save time he would take the opportunity of thanking them for the vote of thanks to the chairman which was on the agenda-paper. In conclusion, he expressed a hope that the Press would bring under the notice of the younger members of the profession the great advantages of joining the Royal General Theatrical Fund.

This concluded the business, and the meeting then separated.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, April 2, the Drama, entitled "THE GIRL WHO TOOK THE WRONG TURNING."

The popular parts of the Borough Theatre are being well patronised this week by those local playgoers who prefer their dramatic fare served "hot and strong," and the plentiful supply of thrilling situations and exciting incidents is proving much to their liking. A company of all-round ability has been selected for the interpretation of the piece, and the scenery and mounting is excellent. Mr. Roy Redgrave, although suffering from the effects of a severe cold in the early part of the week, plays with plenty of power and virility as the outspoken British tar, Willie Mason, and looks the part well. As the sinister James Harcourt, Mr. Walter Thornton acts with fluency and conviction; and a manly presentment of Jack Fenton comes from Mr. Frank Robertson. Mr. Sidney Sarl is responsible for a sound embodiment of Bill Slater; Mr. Willie Reid is a decidedly jocular and amusing Johnny Walker; and Mr. Kenneth Black skilfully handles the part of Richard Fenton. Miss Frances Ruttledge displays much ability and resource as Sophie Coventry; and Miss Nannie Meade contributes a striking performance as Vesta Le Clere. Miss Hilda Baynton is a pretty and sympathetic Lucy Coventry; and Miss Marie Kildare plays with verve and brightness as Poppy Slater. The remaining parts in a long cast are all rendered very carefully.

"THE PALACE OF PUCK."

A Fantastic Comedy, in Three Acts, by William J. Locke, Produced at the Haymarket Theatre, on Tuesday, April 2.

Any account of Mr. W. J. Locke's fantastic comedy must be inadequate to give the impression it created on the audience at the Haymarket on Tuesday; for the printed word cannot convey the dainty glamour of the mounting and dialogue. There is a "fancy" ball in the piece, which is itself in a nature of a masquerade. "Are we in a lunatic asylum?" enquires one of Mr. Locke's Philistines in the first act; and there is a suspicion of agreeable insanity about the inmates of the "Palace" and its proprietor. The weakness of the theme—which would have passed if treated in a farcical or early Gilbertian spirit—is "shown up" when it is used to "point a moral." The fantastic City broker and his family are brought into contact with equally fantastic artists and musicians, and it is inferred that all the "joy of life" is on the side of the artists, and all the hard and unaffectionate commonplace on that of the bourgeois. Readers of Zola's "L'Œuvre," Mr. George Moore's "Modern Lover," and Madox Brown's Biography will be sceptical of the former assumption; and the experience of every-day life is sufficient to rebut the latter. The development of the idea is equally irrational. Let it be granted that the best way to inspire a stockbroker with an ardent love of his wife is to "elope"—say, from Saturday to Monday—with an artist's model, while his wife's passion for him may be kindled by another elopement with a musician, and hundreds will be eager to try the pleasing experiment. It is doubtful, however, if the plan will be found to "answer" in the end.

What pleased the audience at the Haymarket was the feeling of being "behind the scenes" at an opera bouffe theatre, the atmosphere of chaste impropriety, of art without labour, of marriage without income, in short, of pretty "moonshine." They were content to excuse Mr. Locke's ethics for the sake of his elegance, his toujours gai! painters and musicians, his charming costumes, and the movement, colour, and sparkle of his play.

The first scene is the entrance hall of a château in France, the owner of which is one Widgery Blake, the wealthy heir of a patent corn-cure proprietor. Blake's hobby is to fill his house with a number of idle and eccentric young people connected with the arts, who wear "fancy" costumes, and generally exude with gaiety and goodwill—the old Quartier Latin convention is always popular. Into this menagerie are driven, by stress of weather and circumstance, a Mincing-lane stockbroker called Podmore, his wife, and his daughter; and the action of the play consists in the couple being "Bohemianised." Rhodanthe, a seductive artists' model, is "set on" to bewitch the stockbroker, while a dreamy musician lays siege to Mrs. P. Nothing improper can be introduced; for are not all Puck's guests warranted strictly virtuous, in spite of appearances to the contrary? So the couples agree to "elope." Podmore gets ready to "fly" with the model, and the wife prepares to go off with the musician. But before they can commit themselves Puck interferes, and prevents the departures; the musician and the model pair off, as originally arranged; and a third elopement, that of Miss Podmore with a penniless artist, is condoned by the parents, still under the influence of the "joy of living."

Mr. Locke has thus managed to give us the motive of the ordinary French farce, made innocent, if not entirely harmless, by the simple process of inferring a moral; so that we get all the "fun" of the husband's entanglement with the artful "minx," and the wife's flirtation with the music-master, purified by a Purpose. And, if you accept Mr. Locke's premises, you can, with a clear conscience, laugh heartily at his jests and admire the brightness of his dialogue, his spontaneous hilarity, and his free and fantastic imagination.

The charm of the cast had a great deal to do with the success of the comedy. Mr. H. V. Esmond, in a light green suit and strapped trousers, assumed his most espiègle air to impersonate the volatile and eccentric Widgery Blake, and no other actor with whom we are acquainted could have realised the personage so well. There was a "leery" polish about his style, a spritely airiness in his carriage, which made the character credible and acceptable. Miss Marion Terry was far too charming for the typical Mincing-lane wife. Podmore must have gone out of his way to find her; and his insensibility to her attractions was incredible, despite Miss Terry's able assumption of the calm propriety of the British middle-class matron. It is hardly necessary to add that Miss Terry played the title-part daintily through all its inflexions, and gave a delicious little character sketch. Miss Beatrice Terry was delightfully fresh and natural as Elsie; and Mr. Ben Webster's many artistic abilities and advantages made the task of impersonating Max Riadore an easy one to him. Mr. H. Marsh Allen was a very good-looking and effusive Peter Dove; and Mr. E. V. Tarver played Gilbert excellently and without effort. Mr. M. Elphinstone was entirely satisfactory as Paul; and Mr. Harry Norton took full advantage of his opportunities as an impertinent chauffeur—do motorists allow their servants such "strange liberties"? Miss Miriam Clements looked bewitchingly handsome as Rhodanthe, and acted with her usual archness, tact, and vivacity; and Miss Mona Harrison was an agreeable impersonatress of the "dainty châtelaine," Myra; Miss Vera Cockburn being a bright and comely Lalage. The fact that the task allotted to each artist was a comparatively easy one gave distinction and a certain easy grace to the production, which, thanks to the popular qualities of lightness and brightness, was indulgently and favourably received. Mr. Walter Hann's scenery was worthy of that clever artist's brush; and the dresses, from D. C. Calthrop's designs, were delightful, Mr. Claude Fenigstein's incidental music adding to the "gala" attractions of the piece, which was preceded by Mr. Keble Howard's one-act comedy, Compromising Martha, in which Miss Lydia Rachel repeated her admirably characteristic embodiment of the fat and friendly Neighbour, Miss Florence Hayden being again amusingly odd and elderly as Martha and Miss Dagmar Wiehe and Mr. E. W. Tarver acting neatly and cleverly as Monica and the Curate. Mr. Bruce Smith's cottage interior was capital. The Palace of Puck is one of those odd, "out-of-the-way," and original entertainments which often catch the fancy of the public, and succeed, by sheer prettiness, brilliancy, and wilful and extravagant fantasy.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

There was a fitness in the production of Tom Jones by Mr. Robert Courtneidge at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, this being the scene of many memorable triumphs from the same master-hand. As an important and really lavish attempt to place this lyrical adaptation from Fielding's novel in the list of comic operas with a vogue, it may freely be written down as justifying by complete and immediate success the combined efforts of the authors of the book, Messrs. A. M. Thompson and Robert Courtneidge, the lyricist, Mr. Chas. H. Taylor, and the composer, Mr. Edward German. Ease, amplitude, gracefulness of dialogue and lyrics, picturesque and cheerful staging, and a pervading subtle affinity of the music with the whole produced at once a feeling of certainty that here was being unfolded a satisfying achievement of more than ordinary quality. The lawn at Squire Western's is the opening scene, which does honour to the artist, Mr. Stafford Hall, and in which the groupings of people typical of the times and the shire are vitalised by the presence of Squire Western—jovial, bibulous, and as natural as a man could be in such environment. Songs of Somersetshire strike the true local note, and quaint concoctions, fitted with music appropriate to the sentiment and the picture, are sung with gusto by characters who appear to have stepped before us out of the eighteenth century. All the important persons—excepting Partridge and Lady Bellaston—here make themselves known, and indicate their business in the plot. Blifil the contemptible and his uncle, Mr. Allworthy; Sophia and her maid, Honour; Miss Western and the squire's three servants, Gregory, Grizzle, and Dobbin, a humorous trio; and Tom Jones, the foundling, handsome and in love, all contribute to the situation which at the end of the first act sends Tom out into the world and Sophia upon her adventurous journey to London. The second act takes place in the inn at Upton, an extremely fine interior, by Mr. Conrad Tritschler. Here the rivalry of Lady Bellaston is introduced, woven into a scheme which, while providing for the reappearance of the chief characters, is so contrived that a meeting between Sophia and those in pursuit of her is avoided; and here also a misunderstanding between Sophia and Tom, on the subject of the importunate Lady Bellaston, defers the issue of the story to the third act. Incidentally, though to some purpose, Mr. Partridge makes his appearance, self-sung, as "—— a person of parts,

Versed in the healing and medical arts;
Fortune or weather prepared to foretell;
Doctor, adviser, and barber as well."

Partridge's share in the events is of a complicating character; but his interest and knowledge keep him busy—to the gratification of the audience—and bring him well into the picture in the closing act at Ranelagh Gardens, another beautiful set by Mr. Conrad Tritschler. In regard to this final scene, it is remarkable how entertaining it proved in spite of the paucity of material essential to the plot. The discomfiture of Blifil and the reinstatement of Tom in the esteem and affection of everybody are, of course, the main issues, and they are arrived at, like all the rest, gracefully, and to the accompaniment of song and delightful music.

As for the cast, nothing was spared in the way of established talent. Mr. Hayden Coffin as Tom Jones surely never looked better, nor moved with a more free and gallant air; he was a figure to captivate all hearts, and to justify especially the tender interest of the ladies, and his singing was done with a fine zest. For Miss Ruth Vincent, who had been suffering from a cold, the indulgence of the audience was asked; but her rendering of Sophia—two of whose songs, "By night and day," and "I wonder," deserve particular mention—was entirely sweet and perfect, betraying no trace of disability of the kind indicated by her recent illness. The enthusiastic confirmation of her frequent vocal triumph was one of the features of the evening. Another fine performance was that of Miss Carrie Moore as Honour. Vivacious, confident, and neat in all ways, Miss Moore had the reception of a favourite, and certainly deserved it. Her "Green Ribbon" song in the last act was especially dainty and enjoyable. As Squire Western Mr. Ambrose Manning made a distinct hit, and, apart from his excellent depiction of the choleric, jovial, masterful old English gentleman, had much to do with the success of the Somersetshire songs. Of these, "The Barley Mow" and "Uncle Jan Tappit" are memorable. As Mr. Allworthy Mr. John Morley, the owner of a fine bass voice, had, unfortunately, too little to do—a fact much to be regretted; and as Blifil Mr. Arthur Soames did well enough in a somewhat unthankful part. Miss Marie Daltra played Miss Western effectively; Miss Dora Rignold showed accomplishment and tact as Lady Bellaston; and the three servants of the Squire were impersonated very well indeed by Messrs. Jay Laurier, Walter L. Rignold, and Reginald Crompton. Of Mr. Dan Rolyat's interpretation of Benjamin Partridge, it covers much to say that laughter accompanied his every speech and movement, and it may be added that he contributed a very large share towards the gaiety of the evening and the success of the lighter scenes. Among the remainder Miss Cicely Courtneidge as Rosie Lucas acted nicely, and Miss Florence Parfrey as the hostess of the inn at Upton made all that was possible of a small part. Praise must be added for the chorus.

The audience had the pleasure of hearing the music under the conductorship of Mr. Edward German himself. Needless to say, it was beautifully rendered, and Mr. German worthily shared the ovations of the evening. No doubt existed from the first as to the success of the piece. At the end of the second act the stage was literally covered with flowers, and at the conclusion of the work the authors were vociferously called upon to acknowledge the enthusiasm of the house. Mr. Robert Courtneidge concluding with a grateful and appreciative speech.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA—1850-1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

At the Grand Opera House, Radcliffe, an enthusiastic reception was given by a crowded house on Monday night to Mrs. Morton Powell's company in When it was Dark. The exponents of the principal parts have been carefully selected, and the result is a performance of more than average merit. Mr. George H. Pitt is to be congratulated upon his studied portrayal of Constantine Schaube, and Mr. Cyril Austin Lee gives a touching and earnest representation of the Rev. Basil Gortre. The important rôle of Sir Robert Llewellyn is played with great success by Mr. Arthur B. Murray, and Mr. W. B. Summerville acquits himself well as Harold Spence. Gertrude Hunt is superbly played by Miss Elizabeth Watson, and the winsome Helena Byces finds an effective exponent in Mrs. Morton Powell. The minor parts throughout are very satisfactory.

It is rumoured in Paris that MM. Jules Lermina and Halpérine-Kaminsky intend to dramatise Tolstoi's magnificent work, "War and Peace." The play will be in five acts and fifteen tableaux; and the authors are waiting for the Russian writer's sanction to start their collaboration. It is to be hoped that it will be withheld. Those who have read this stupendous work will know that it does not lend itself at all to the stage, and it, therefore, should not be touched. As is well known, Tolstoi never claims a cent royalty from anyone adapting his novels, and for this reason he is overwhelmed with applications from people in every country, but especially from France. MM. Lermina and Halpérine-Kaminsky, by the way, refer to their adaptation in French of Resurrection, afterwards produced in England. Resurrection certainly was given at the Odéon, under M. Ginisty's management. But it had been dramatised by M. Henri Bataille, and the English adaptation was by Mr. Michael Morton. Where, then, did M. Lermina come in?

THE mystery of the recent thefts at Drury Lane Theatre has been cleared up by the arrest of Thomas Martin, a scene shifter, who at Bow-street Police-court on Tuesday pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing two costumes worn in The Bondman. It was stated that the prosecutors had no wish to be harsh, but the fact that some hundreds of pounds worth of property had been stolen from the theatre could not be overlooked. Prisoner was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

The treatment of superfluous hair is something which requires the greatest nicety and care.
X. BAZIN'S DEPILATORY POWDER is the result of much study of the cause and problem of destroying these growths without injury to the skin, or leaving a scar or the slightest disfigurement.
There is no necessity for any woman whose refinement and good breeding have made her sensitive about these unfortunate marks to be subjected to the pain of electrical treatment and the consequent eruptions.
X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder is absolutely safe, and destroys the hair without pain—a simple dainty way of effecting a cure.
The great skill and science employed in the compounding of X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder make it absolutely safe and reliable.
If some former remedy has been tried without success, it is because the right powder was not applied.

Using the "Nutshell" Stropper.

Can YOU Strop a Razor?
Not one man in twenty-five gets satisfactory results from an ordinary strop. It's the bugbear of self-shaving. It drives men to the barber—it even makes them buy "Safety" Razors, sometimes.
The "NUTSHELL" AUTOMATIC STROPPER
is a British invention which entirely disposes of this difficulty. Users have no trouble with their blades. Half-a-minute in the "Nutshell" before shaving keeps the razor in perfect condition. Regular use lengthens a blade's life.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
Another book which calls for attention is that excellent and almost indispensable work of reference, "The Era" Almanack and Annual. In this handy shillingsworth one has a complete record of the past dramatic year, and the arrangement is so admirable that no time is lost in finding the desired subject, title of play, revival, or new production, and all that appertains to the drama of the year. The same remark applies to the information concerning the stages of Paris and Berlin; and I should like to see next year the American stage included, because it is becoming so intimately allied with our own, by reason of the production of plays, the interchange of actors, and the comprehensive interests of managers. In addition to the solid pages of facts, there are included short tales and stories by well-known actors and actresses, and altogether the book is one which should find its way into the hands of all genuine lovers of the drama. —Morning Advertiser, Feb. 23, '07.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.
Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

SHAW AND IBSEN.

When a sick man visits his doctor the physician examines very carefully the state of his heart, lungs, and other physical possessions, but rarely enquires whether he has "anything on his mind," which is very often the seat of the disease. MACBETH'S insomnia might easily have been put down to indigestion, and HAMLET'S loss of appetite and general debility attributed to any cause but his prophetic worryings as to the manner of his father's death. The theatrical "bad business," of which everyone, except a few fortunate actor-managers, have been complaining of late, is attributed to the general want of money and the growing popularity of motoring. It is quite arguable that the cause is more moral than mechanical; and a re-reading of the criticisms of Mr. GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, which have just been published in two-volume form by Messrs. ARCHIBALD CONSTABLE and Co., increases our conviction on this point.

These essays were published between 1895 and 1898 in the Saturday Review, which under the acute editorship of Mr. FRANK HARRIS shone with unforgettable brilliancy. Mr. SHAW'S attitude towards the stage and the dramatic profession was essentially amicable. He believed in the importance of the theatre. "The church where you must not laugh," says Mr. SHAW in his preface, "is giving way to the older and greater church where the oftener you laugh the better, because by laughter only can you destroy evil without malice and affirm goodfellowship without mawkishness"; and he advocates the claim of the profession to be considered "not merely as actors and actresses, but as men and women; not hired buffoons or posturers, but hierophants of a cult as eternal and sacred as any professed religion in the world." But he was ready to belabour his idol for its own good. In his own words, Mr. SHAW "laid a siege to the theatre of the nineteenth century." He took IBSEN as the nearest approach to his ideal dramatist. He "postulated as desirable" a certain kind of play; and he picked holes, with the aid of a keen intellectual equipment and a curious and peculiar general experience, in everything and everybody that would not, as he says, "come his way." Mr. SHAW'S object, in fact, was to clear the ground for the growth of IBSEN by pulling up the old-fashioned flowers with which everyone had hitherto been quite satisfied.

Mr. SHAW looked forward to the coming of IBSEN as the early Christians looked forward to the approaching destruction of the world; and the result, in each case, was disappointment. In his "Quintessence of Ibsenism" Mr. SHAW spoke of the eventual commercial success of IBSEN, and of it being "inevitable" that all the best existing theatres would be converted to the use of the intellectual playgoer; and this expectation is evident throughout his essays. What Mr. SHAW expected to see was IBSEN elevated in English opinion into a classic; a new school of Ibsenian actors equivalent to the old school of Shakespearean actors; and SHAKESPEARE himself "put in his place" as an intellectual artist, his other qualities being indulgently and affectionately acknowledged.

As Mr. SHAW'S opinions had very little influence on the ways of the public, it may be asked what on earth they had or have to do with the present slump in theatrical entertainments. Such a question would show an imperfect understanding of the springs and wheels of the theatrical machine. The origins of dramatic success are the dramatic authors. The dramatists of England in the early 'nineties were doing remarkably well. They were satisfied with themselves, and their patrons the playgoers were satisfied with them. The world went very well then, and, as the soldiers say, there were "no complaints." But the combined attacks of Mr. SHAW and Mr. ARCHER and the advanced school of criticism put the authors out of conceit with themselves. They ate of the tree of knowledge, and were never the same men afterwards. The success of The Second Mrs. Tanqueray—a piece which really succeeded on the strength of its situations and of a unique performance by a rising actress—fostered hopes of an advanced drama which would be taken seriously by the public. Our playwrights looked across the Channel, and saw the authors of the "new" school admired by intellectual people, and named and famed everywhere. They heard of IBSEN being played in all the capitals of Europe; and they did their best to be "modern," advanced, unconventional, and didactic. As a rule, they only succeeded in being slightly improper. Mr. JONES took the idea of Francillon and turned it into The Case of Rebellious Susan, inferring all the while that he was preaching some scandalous doctrine offensive to Mrs. Grundy, when he was only writing a well-fitted piece for Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM and Miss MARY MOORE. Mr. PINERO produced Iris and Letty—great intellectual advances on his previous work, and now consigned to oblivion. There was an IBSEN "boom," in which a few actors and actresses were raised for a time to fame and high estimation, merely to find, when the craze had died out, that they had an immense difficulty in obtaining engagements at the ordinary theatres. We have said that the attack made by the advanced criticism had no influence on the great body of playgoers. It alienated, however, a considerable number, not only of intelligent people whose consciences were awakened, but of intellectually snobbish persons, who took their cue from the intelligents. All these were in the position of a collector who has been perfectly happy with his supposed Van Dyck, until he has been informed by an expert that it is what the burglar in the little piece at His Majesty's describes as a "dud." Some of them took to motoring; others joined the Stage Society and puzzled over the meanings of Mr. SHAW'S plays as produced at the Court.

The error on the part of both critics and dramatists was pardonable. In Paris the New Drama has conquered all along the line. The plays which are imported by the Stage Society as exotics are commercial successes on the other side of the Channel. Here in England the habit which Mr. SHAW notes of "keeping the ideal life and the practical business life in two separate conscience-tight compartments" reduces the patrons of socially-serious plays to a minority of persons who are complacently regarded by the general public as "cranks." The "progress" in public taste merely existed in the imagination of the advanced critics. If the playgoing public cannot get what it likes at the dramatic theatres it simply patronises the musical play. It is encouraging to hear that Mr. GRANVILLE BARKER is in negotiation for a larger house than the Court; so that the virus of advanced thought may be allowed full eruption, instead of remaining in the theatrical system to create "bad business."

THEATRICAL PROPRIETORS AND THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1906.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

The immense importance of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, to almost every member of the community can hardly be over-estimated. To many trades the Act of 1897 came as a revolution, and anyone who has had experience of the working of that Act knows what the new Act will mean to many a business which has so far been untouched.

Apart from any statute, under our common law a servant, as a rule, could not make his master liable for an injury sustained in the course of his service; but in certain cases he could, e.g., when the master had not provided competent fellow-servants.

Then came the Employers Liability Act of 1880, which considerably increased the employee's right of action; but this left many accidents unprovided for. Another drawback to the Act was the fact that the servant might contract himself out of the Act. This "contracting out" was very common, and in many theatrical contracts will be seen conditions that the proprietor of the theatre is not to be liable for accidents under the Employers Liability Act, 1880, &c.

This Act was followed by the Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1897 and 1900, which did not apply to theatres. Finally comes the Act of 1906.

The Workmen's Compensation Act of 1906 comes into force on July 1, 1907, and it affects everyone connected with theatres and music halls, from the wealthy proprietor (who will have to pay) down to the smallest call-boy (who, if injured, will receive compensation).

The first section of the Act contains the essence of the new law, and is worded in an unexpectedly simple manner for an Act of Parliament. It says: "If in any employment personal injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment is caused to a workman, his employer shall, subject as hereinafter mentioned, be liable to pay compensation in accordance with the first schedule to the Act."

The term "workman" does not apply only to the horny-handed one in corduroys, but includes everyone, male or female, adult or infant, who works. In short, the Act applies to all employees, with the following exceptions:—

(1) Persons employed otherwise than by way of manual labour, whose remuneration exceeds £250 a year.

(2) Persons whose employment is casual, and who are employed otherwise than for the purpose of their employers' trade or business.

(3) Members of the Police Force.

(4) Outworkers.

(5) Members of the employer's family dwelling in his house.

Now, how will this Act affect the theatrical profession?

First of all, the owner or lessee of the theatre, or whoever is actively carrying it on, will be liable to every person in his employ (other than those specified above) for personal injuries by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. And it is very important to remember that the Act cannot be excluded by any agreement.

For instance, in the case of Burr v. Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, Ltd., on which I commented in a recent issue of The Era, the contract contained a clause as follows:—"Notwithstanding anything contained in the Employers Liability Act, 1880, or any Act continuing or amending the same, the artist shall not, nor shall the artist's legal personal representative, in case of the said artist's death, have any right of compensation or any remedy whatever against the company in respect of any personal injury which may be caused to the artist by reason of any defect in the condition of the ways, works, machinery, or plant connected with or used in or out the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, or any other theatre or place of amusement wherein the artist may perform under this agreement; or by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the company at the said Theatre Royal, Drury Lane (or any such theatre or other place of amusement as aforesaid), who has any superintendence entrusted to him whilst in the exercise of such superintendence; or by reason of negligence of any person in the service of the company whose orders or directions the artist at the time of the injury was bound to conform, and did conform, where such injury may result from her having so conformed; or by reason of the act or omission of any such person in the service of the company done or made in obedience to the rules or bye-laws of the company, or in obedience to particular instructions given by the management."

Such a clause has been very usually inserted in theatrical contracts. In future it will not avail; the proprietor will be liable in spite of it.

The facts in that case form a very good instance of the mischiefs the new Act attempts to remedy. It will be remembered that the plaintiff there was injured while performing at Drury Lane Theatre by something falling on her as she was leaving the stage. She lost her case because it was held that the accident happened owing to the negligence of a scene-shifter who was in the "common employment," with the plaintiff, of the defendants. But under the new Act the plaintiff would certainly have been successful in such a case.

Equally will the management be liable for all accidents to the "workman" (remembering the extended meaning of the word), whether such accident arose through the negligence of the master, a fellow "workman," or the injured employee himself, and though if it is proved that the injury to a workman is attributable to his serious and wilful misconduct, yet if the injury results in death or serious and permanent disablement then the employer must still pay compensation. This is particularly hard on employers. For instance, if some heavy scenery is being put up or moved, and an actor about to do so is expressly warned not to cross the stage for fear of an accident, in spite of this he deliberately does so, the scenery falls on him and he is killed, the management is liable to pay compensation.

The owner of a theatre is liable, therefore, for practically all injuries to his employees, whether they are artists, stage carpenters, property men, or call-boys. The owner of a touring company is equally liable for accidents to members of his company, and the proprietor of a troupe to the members of that troupe. Of course, the accident must be one "arising out of and in the course of the employment." Under the former Act a great many decisions were given on various cases, some of which it was held did arise, and some did not arise, out of and in the course of the employment. A simple instance would be that of an accident happening to a member of a touring company who was driving, walking, or cycling for pleasure, in the interval between rehearsal and the evening performance. Here the management of the touring company would not be responsible. But if the accident happened while the artist was on his way to or from a rehearsal or performance the management would probably be liable. Again, the question has frequently arisen as to the meaning of the word "accident." It has been decided by the House of Lords that the word is used in the former Workmen's Compensation Acts (and therefore in this) in the popular and ordinary sense of the word, as denoting an unlooked-for mishap, or an untoward event which is not expected or designed.

The amount of compensation payable by the employer under the Act is to be

(a) Where death results from the injury—

(1) If the workman leaves any dependants wholly dependent upon his earnings, a sum equal to his earnings in the employment of the same employer during the three years next preceding the injury, or the sum of £150, whichever of those sums is the larger, but not exceeding in any case £300, provided that the amount of any weekly payments made under this Act, and any lump sum paid in redemption thereof, shall be deducted from such sum, and if the period of the workman's employment by the said employer has been less than the said three years, then the amount of his earnings during the said three years shall be deemed to be one hundred and fifty-six times his average weekly earnings during the period of his actual employment under the said employer;

(2) If the workman does not leave any such dependants, but leaves any dependants in part dependent upon his earnings, such sum not exceeding in any case the amount payable under the foregoing provisions as may be agreed upon, or, in default of agreement, may be determined on arbitration under this Act to be reasonable and proportionate to the injury to the said dependants; and

(3) If he leaves no dependants, the reasonable expenses of his medical attendance and burial, not exceeding £10.

(b) Where total or partial incapacity for work results from the injury, a weekly payment during the incapacity not exceeding fifty per cent. of his average weekly earnings during the previous twelve months, if he has been so long employed; but if not, then for any less period during which he has been in the employment of the same employer, such weekly payment not to exceed £1:

Provided that (a) If the incapacity lasts less than two weeks no compensation shall be payable in respect of the first week; and (b) As respects the weekly payments during total incapacity of a workman who is under twenty-one years of age at the date of the injury, and whose average weekly earnings are less than 20s., one hundred per cent. shall be substituted for fifty per cent. of his average weekly earnings, but the weekly payment shall in no case exceed 10s.

The above is a summary of the chief provisions of this far-reaching Act. Necessarily my space is too limited to go more fully into it, but enough has been said to show its great importance. Many questions of great interest to the profession will from time to time arise under it. For instance, if an acrobat gets injured while going through his performance on the stage, who is liable—the owner of the troupe or the manager of the theatre? A great many points like this will crop up when the Act comes into force.

Of course, the wise man will insure against all these contingencies—that is to say, if he runs a "show" of any sort; but he must be careful to see that his policy clearly covers him. For the insurance companies, or, at any rate, some of them, are very ready to accept the premium, but are not always ready to pay out.

ENORMOUS business has been done at Leeds this week with Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Belle of New York company, which is paying its tenth visit to the city.

"PATIENCE" AT THE SAVOY.

On Thursday, April 4, revival of the Æsthetic Opera in Two Acts, written by W. S. Gilbert, composed by Arthur Sullivan, entitled "PATIENCE, OR BUNTHORNE'S BRIDE."

Colonel Calverley ..... MR. FRANK WILSON
Major Murgatroyd ..... MR. RICHARD ANDRAN
Lieut. The Duke of Dunstable ..... MR. HAROLD WILDE
Reginald Bunthorne ..... MR. C. H. WORKMAN
Archibald Grosvenor ..... MR. JOHN CLULOW
Mr. Bunthorne's Solicitor ..... MR. RONALD GREENE
The Lady Angela ..... MISS JESSIE ROSE
The Lady Saphir ..... MISS MARIE WILSON
The Lady Ella ..... MISS RUBY GRAY
The Lady Jane ..... MISS LOUIE RENE
Patience ..... MISS CLARA DOW

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte has chosen the right "psychological moment" for her Gilbert and Sullivan revivals. What with the old friends of the Savoy, who know the operas by heart—and can even sing some of the numbers very musically while waiting for the raising of the curtains—and the young playgoers who are curious to make acquaintance with these famous works, a large clientèle exists to make her enterprise most profitable. Patience was originally produced at the Opera Comique Theatre in the April of 1881, with Mr. George Grossmith as Bunthorne, Mr. Rutland Barrington as Archibald Grosvenor, Mr. Richard Temple as Colonel Calverley, Mr. Frank Thornton as Major Murgatroyd, Mr. Durward Lely as the Duke of Dunstable, Miss Jessie Bond as Lady Angela, Miss Julia Gwynne as Lady Saphir, Miss Fortescue as Lady Ella, Miss Alice Barnett as Lady Jane, and Miss Leonora Braham as Patience. Remembrers and admirers of the original representatives of these parts can hardly be expected to do impartial justice to the merits of the present company, on account of the intrusion of the "ghosts" of the "great" cast at the Opera Comique and at the Savoy, where the opera was transported in the October of the same year in which it was produced at the Opera Comique. The performance of the opera on Thursday was admirably complete and perfect. Every word of the lyrics could be heard distinctly, not only in the solos, but also in the "concerted pieces," which were delivered with silvery distinctness. Mr. W. Raphael had painted some charming scenery, and with Mr. François Cellier's absolutely unimpeachable conducting and Mr. Albert James's careful and capable stage management the tout ensemble which has always been such a feature of Savoy productions was entirely secured. The management have been fortunate in finding such an intelligent and agreeable representative of Patience as Miss Clara Dow. She is comely, sweet, and natural, and she sings very commendably. Miss Jessie Rose has greatly improved since she has been working at the Savoy. She has, perhaps unconsciously, modified her method, and has acquired more style and finish. She made a pleasing appearance as the Lady Angela, and looked and sang very nicely indeed. Mr. Frank Wilson made a most energetic Colonel Calverley and his delivery of "When I first put this uniform on" was full of point and emphasis. Miss Louie Réné was of the suitable size and shape for the part of Lady Jane, and her instrumental accompaniments were remarkably spirited and realistic. Miss Réné did full justice to the adipose humour of the rôle, of which she gave a very creditable performance. Mr. John Clulow was "safe" and satisfactory in the character of Archibald Grosvenor, a personage who is always eclipsed by Bunthorne, who has most of the fun of the piece. Mr. Workman came through the trying ordeal of playing the famous part surprisingly well, and his reading, while full of individuality, retained all the old business, even to the Whistler make-up. Mr. Harold Wilde, for whom apologies were made on the score of a cold, nevertheless made a good impression as the Duke of Dunstable; and Mr. Ronald Greene gave a crisp and neat embodiment of Bunthorne's solicitor, Miss Marie Wilson and Miss Ruby Gray being picturesque and painstaking exponents of the rôles of Lady Saphir and Lady Ella, both artists being competent vocalists.

It would be tedious to enumerate all the encores and double encores that were demanded by the delighted audience; it is enough to say that all the old favourite numbers were received with enthusiasm, and some of them with almost frantic approbation. The principals were called at the close of the first act; and at the end of the performance, after all the leading artists had been summoned and vigorously applauded, there was a wild "ovation," in which Mr. François Cellier, Mr. Albert James, and Mr. W. S. Gilbert shared. The audience insisted on seeing Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, who, in answer to a determined demand, appeared and bowed her acknowledgments. The reception of the revival was indeed an extraordinary proof of the enduring popularity of Patience.

MR. T. EDGAR PEMBERTON relates the following story concerning John Barton, a Birmingham actor, who, although he never did anything that approached greatness, was possessed of a quaint individuality and bonhomie that made him universally popular. At one time he lived near the Five Ways, Birmingham, and in close proximity to the well-known dancing academy of Mr. Ridgway—in his time one of the most noted of harlequins. Walking down Broad-street one day, Mr. Barton met Mr Ridgway, as the latter was coming out of his house, and, striking an effective theatrical attitude, the dancing-master irrelevantly exclaimed, "Et tu, Brute!" Feeling that this salutation demanded an appropriate reply, and not to be outdone in classical quotation, the actor drew himself up, and solemnly ejaculating, "Aut Cæsar, aut nullus!" passed on.

"THERE is nothing of an authentic or credible nature to show when the first play-bill was printed or issued," writes Mr. W. J. Broadbent in his "Stage Whispers," "and therefore its date must only be a matter for supposition. That they were very early in use is shown by what is perhaps the earliest record of their existence, from an entry in the books of the Stationers' Company, under date October, 1587, which reads:—'John Charlewood, lycensed to him by the whole consent of the assistants, the onlye ymprintinge of all manner of billes for players. Provided that if any trouble arise herebye, Charlewood to beare the charge.' From this it will be seen that the right of printing play-bills was at one time a monopoly. Though what 'all manner of billes' were it is difficult to determine. Ames, in his 'History of Printing,' says that 'James Roberts in 1587 printed bills for the players.' This is quite possible, as Roberts was said to be the publisher of some of the early editions of Shakespeare's plays."

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Vesta Victoria, so it is currently reported in the American papers, will shortly be led to the altar by Mr. Bert Cooper, who is partner of a publishing concern across the "pond" known as Cooper, Kendis, and Paley. That there will be an enormous concourse "waiting at the church" of course goes without saying. The ceremony will take place in New York.

Mr. Walter Gibbons has paid the necessary deposit, and will complete the purchase on Monday of the Grand Theatre, Woolwich, which house he will control from that date. It will be remembered that Sir Henry Irving laid the foundation-stone of the theatre on October 18, 1900, and Mr. Clarence Sounes has been lessee and manager ever since the opening.

Mr. Henri Gros has been unanimously elected, for the seventh year in succession, president of the Entertainments Protection Association; Mr. J. L. Graydon is again the hon. secretary; and Mr. Joseph Davis the hon. treasurer. Mr. G. Adney Payne is the vice-president, Mr. Henry Tozer and Mr. T. S. Dickie, auditors; Mr. Walter Adney Payne, counsel; and Mr. P. J. Rutland, solicitor. The committee nominated includes Mr. Alfred Moul, Mr. H. H. Wells, Mr. T. Richards, and Mr. Oswald Stoll.

Messrs. Richard Warner & Co., Ltd., have been commissioned by Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger to submit acts for their circuit. Messrs. Warner & Co.'s American representative is the well-known Richard Pitrot, "The Globe Trotter," from whom all artists visiting New York will receive every attention.

England can boast of several colossal variety companies, but America, at present, only has two; and the war between Messrs. Keith, Proctor, and Williams and Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger is exciting much comment both in the English and American theatrical journals. Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, the millionaire magnates, are devoting themselves and their large organisation to entering the field of variety in the States, and will immediately convert no less than seventy-five of their theatres into vaudeville houses. A titanic struggle is about to take place between these gentlemen and Mr. Keith, who for many years has been the Napoleon of the vaudeville business in America.

There is an increasing demand for English stars, therefore, across the "pond." Harry Randall and Little Tich have refused handsome sums; but Gus Elen, Harry Lauder, Lockhart's Elephants, Claire Romaine, Tom Costello, Daisy James, and Rosie Lloyd are among those who have accepted contracts from Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger. Miss Marie Lloyd has been tempted by Messrs. Keith and Proctor with a splendid offer. Meanwhile, the success of Alice Lloyd, Will Evans, George Mozart, and Vesta Victoria is a testimony that there is a growing taste for English comedy in the States.

"The Devil's Sunday," which touches so boldly the canker of gambling that is eating its way into the heart of society, is a stage sermon that is being most eloquently preached this week at the Holborn Empire, where Mrs. John Lawson is repeating her triumphs as Fay Faber, her powerful acting completely holding the house.

Miss Ada Reeve, who is drawing crowded houses to the Empire Theatre, has introduced some clever new songs, which she varies with old favourites, at each performance. Perhaps her very best is "Change," which illustrates the sharp contrasts in the life of people of the hour.

Mr. J. Morton, who was for many years one of the chief comedians of the Moore and Burgess Minstrels at St. James's Hall, passed away on Saturday, March 30. The cause of death was cancer. Johnny's friends will regret to hear that the comedian's slender resources were entirely exhausted by the expenses of a long and painful illness, and if they wish to show their respect for his memory they can do so by helping his widow, Mrs. J. Morton, who has been left in straitened circumstances. Her address is 156, York-road, Westminster.

The deceased gentleman, before joining the Moore and Burgess Company at St. James's Hall, was a well-known performer in the States and in the variety halls, where he was associated with Mr. Sadler. The funeral took place on Friday (yesterday) at Brompton Cemetery. The chief mourners were his widow, a nephew and niece from Scotland, Mr. G. W. (Pony) Moore, Mr. Munnings, Mr. Chas. Pratt, Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mrs. E. Stratton, and Mrs. Munnings. Floral offerings were sent by the widow, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Pearce, Mr. Munnings, Mr. and Mrs. Miskin, the Rev. — Fisher (curate of All Saints), Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Merrie, and Mr. G. W. (Pony) Moore ("From a dear old friend").

Miss Christine Gomez, of Turner's English Opera Company, who has been winning the highest encomiums for her artistic singing in notably The Bohemian Girl (Arline) and The Lily of Killarney (Eily O'Connor), is a pupil of Mr. Egbert Roberts, and the younger of the talented daughters of Mr. Angelo Beck, a sculptor and authority on modelling well known in the world of the stage. The beauty of many of Sir Henry Irving's Lyceum stage-settings was largely due to Mr. Beck's art, and his models of Mr. Sandow are known the world over.

Miniature Marie, who attains in a few days her majority, has been on the stage no less than twelve years, appearing at the age of eight as a mimic at the South London, where her father, Frank Egerton, was manager. Her success led to her engagement at the Palace Theatre, where she worked for ten weeks. At the age of fifteen she went in for something more daring than artistic imitations, and accepted an engagement to perform "Hooping the Hoop" in a motor-car. After nine months' experience of this act, in doing which she nearly lost her life, she returned to the variety boards as a comedienne. She will soon be back again in England, and intends visiting Australia, India, and America.

The 506th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Wednesday afternoon, when the following were present:—Messrs. Joe O'Gorman (chairman of the committee), Fred Neiman, Fred W. Millis (V.P.), Harry Wright, Jack Collinson, Pat Carey, Harry Blake, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes having been confirmed, Mr. W. Mackenzie, of the Abbottsford Bar, Rose-street, Edinburgh, was appointed as agent there.

Upwards of 500 boys from the Duke of York's School, accompanied by members of the school staff and their families, were entertained at Hengler's Circus on Wednesday by invitation of the management. The boys were delighted with the fairy spectacle, Beauty and the Enchanted Prince, and at the conclusion of the performance they rose from their seats and cheered again and again until Mr. A. Coomber, Mr. Denham Harrison, and Mr. Edouard Espinosa, the author, composer, and producer of the piece respectively, appeared in the ring and returned thanks for its cordial reception.

The Kursaal, Southend-on-Sea, a fully-licensed freehold property, with a pleasure palace, a marine park, and a trotting track, is to be offered at the Mart by Douglas Young and Co. on Wednesday, May 1. The whole covers an area of about twenty-five acres.

Brighton can scarcely afford to be behind Bournemouth in its musical enterprise, and therefore the position of bandmaster to its Corporation for a season of twelve weeks, commencing July 1, should be a much-coveted one. Candidates must have had experience elsewhere in conducting large military bands, and must possess an extensive and up-to-date library of music. Application is to be made prior to 10 a.m., on Wednesday, April 10, to Hugo Talbot, Town Clerk, Brighton.

Mr. T. Aynsley Cook, secretary of the Formby Golf Club, has resigned his position to become the manager of Mr. Seymour Hicks's business arrangements. Mr. Cook, who is the son of Mr. Aynsley Cook, of Carl Rosa fame, was for a number of years manager of Moss' Empire, at Liverpool. He commences his new duties early next month, and his legion of friends in the city on the Mersey will regret his departure for the Metropolis, although wishing him every success.

Mr. Walter de Frece, who opened a variety season of five months at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh on Monday, appeared before the crowded audience during the evening and made a brief speech. He said that he had long been of opinion that Edinburgh should have another music hall, and that Edinburgh people were entitled to the best talent. In his experience of twenty-two years it had always been his aim to provide a healthy entertainment, and he thought he might say that he had succeeded. It would be his endeavour to put before the public only such performances as they could bring their wives, their sisters, and their children to. He thanked the large audience that evening for a glorious send-off.

The Royal County Theatre, Reading, was opened on Easter Monday with variety, under the direction of Mr. George Dance. Mr. Dance has placed the bookings in the hands of Moss' Empires, Ltd., having entered into a contract with Mr. Oswald Stoll by which a constant succession of well-known music hall stars will appear during the season. A licence permitting smoking has been granted by the Corporation. Two shows will be given each night, at popular prices.

The Paisley Hippodrome is now under the acting-managership of Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock, son of Mr. E. H. Bostock, sole proprietor of the establishment. The young gentleman gives every promise of fulfilling with credit the duties of the position. He has just returned from a tour in Australia with the great Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie.

Mr. Geo. F. Thompson, the popular manager of the Empire, South Shields, who has been indisposed for some time, has, through the kindness of Messrs. Richard Thornton and Frank Allen, gone for a recuperative voyage to the Mediterranean, and hopes to visit Marseilles, Nice, Genoa, and probably the historic ruins of Pompeii and other places of interest.

Thanks to the energy and interest displayed by Mr. P. D. Elbourne, the Railwaymen's Orphan and Benevolent Funds, as instituted at Birmingham, will benefit by a goodly sum, the proceeds of a concert given on Good Friday at the local Hippodrome, whereat Mr. Elbourne presides as resident-manager. The concert was contributed to by Miss Bessie Butt, Miss Minnie D'Aubyn, Miss Clara Beck, Mr. Fred Barnes, and others, and was much enjoyed, as was the augmented orchestra conducted by Mr. W. Crabtree.

At a recent meeting of the Chester Watch Committee it was agreed, at Mr. Milton Bode's request, to suspend the rule prohibiting smoking in the Royalty Theatre during the months of April to August. Mr. Bode intends running this theatre as a variety house during the summer months, on the two-houses-a-night principle, if the dates fixed up with touring companies can be cancelled. This arrangement will involve no change in the staff, and Mr. C. B. Fountaine, the popular resident-manager, will remain in charge as before.

The complete working plans for the proposed new Hippodrome, at Dundee, have been lodged with Mr. Thomson, the city engineer, Dundee, and will come before the Town Council on Monday. The site chosen for the building is in the centre of the very best part of the city. The main entrance is from Lindsay Street, and the pit entrance is also from the same street, while the gallery is reached from the Overgate. The theatre will be run on the two-performances-nightly system. There is to be a crush-room for accommodating those going into the second house, but the committee does not approve of the site, in view of the fact that there are tenements on the north, east, and south sides.

The Grand Theatre, Churchgate, Bolton, was the arena on Monday afternoon of most disgraceful conduct on the part of a rowdy portion of the audience. Four turns in succession were stopped from continuing by the disorderly conduct of certain persons. When Ben Albert, comedian, however, took the stage, he pointed out the ringleader, who was promptly seized and given in charge of the police. We understand the man, who belongs to Little Hulton, will be prosecuted. Bertie Wright, the well-known comedian in comic opera, was present in the afternoon, but in consequence of the treatment he received he did not appear in the evening.

Miss Margaret Ashton, who has this week begun her tour upon the Moss circuit, made her headquarters during the preceding week at that famous hostelry, the White Hart, Salisbury. During her visit she motored over to Bournemouth, returning through the New Forest, where the Rufus Stone and Lyndhurst Church, with its famous altar-piece, painted by Lord Leighton, were among the objects of interest seen. Stonehenge, Devizes, and Alderbury—with its ancient inn immortalised in the pages of "Martin Chuzzlewit"—afforded enjoyable drives on other days, and it was with regret that Miss Ashton's pleasant visit to the cathedral city was terminated by her resumption of engagements.

Miss Beatrice Elstree, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Young, made her debut at the Theatre Royal, Perth, on Monday, and was so successful that the management have kept her in the programme for the rest of the week.

Mr. W. J. Ashcroft, an old favourite, will make his reappearance at the Hackney Empire on Monday. Thirty years ago he was as great a draw at a music hall as Little Tich is to-day. Since then he has been theatre proprietor, manager, and entertainer. Born in far-away Pawtucket, Billy retired a few years ago from the stage. "In my retirement," he told the writer, "the great difficulty was to find something to put in my time at. I tried many things, but no matter with what I occupied myself, there was a longing for the old life—a craving, I may say, for the glare and glitter, the rush and excitement of the stage; and so when my old partner, John W. Morton, came to me and discussed the matter, I decided to return, provided it could be arranged that my work would not be of too heavy a character."

The Chelsea Palace will celebrate its fourth anniversary on Friday next, April 12, when all the principal artists have promised to appear.

Mr. Fred Reeves, who was coming to London last Monday week, has had a slight relapse, which has necessitated the lengthening of his stay at Brighton. The popular agent is, however, better, and hopes to be back in harness some time next week.

Mr. Ernest Pantzer, late of the Pantzer Brothers, has taken over the premises at 21, Green-street, Leicester-square. They have been luxuriously fitted up as a rendezvous for artists, and will open with a house-warming luncheon to-day (Saturday). Mr. Pantzer will welcome all managers, agents, artists, and other friends between the hours of 11 and 2.

We regret to announce the death on Sunday last of Mrs. George Lashwood, the wife of the popular variety star, who passed away at 83, Lansdowne-road, Cardiff, the residence of her father, Mr. Richard Williams, after an illness of only three days. The deceased lady, who was professionally known as Miss Lottie Williams, was a member of John Tiller's troupe of dancers, and it was while travelling with the members of this company that she caught a chill. Feeling seriously ill, she went to her parents' home, but though Drs. Cantillon and Neich were in constant attendance, she succumbed to double pneumonia.

Mr. George Lashwood was in the act of preparing to visit his wife, and intended bringing with him a London specialist and two nurses, when the news of her death arrived. The sad event happened only a few days after the ninth anniversary of her wedding.

Mr. William Harvey, late of the Brothers Harvey, died on March 23 at Clapham, after a long illness. He was the son of the late W. H. Harvey, a favourite Drury-lane clown, and well known on the music hall stage a quarter of a century since, with his partner, Gus Connolly. The deceased was brother of Miss Alice Harvey (Mrs. Frederick Baugh).

We regret to hear of the indisposition of Mr. Michael Nolan, one of our very few legitimate Irish comedians. He is better, but he felt that it would have been very imprudent to have risked a relapse by attending on Friday the funeral of his friend and brother-artist, Jack Camp.

Mr. Mendel, the blind musician, has just signed a further seventy weeks on the Moss, Stoll, and Thornton circuit, which will commence shortly after the termination of his present tour in July. He is meeting with flattering receptions nightly. September is booked for his first appearance at the Tivoli.

Many of our readers will be sorry to learn that the widow of the late Tom Zampi, the one-legged gymnast, is in great distress. Poor Tom departed this life two years ago, after eight years and a half's illness, which exhausted all his savings. Mr. H. Humberstone, of the Three Horseshoes Hotel, Sheffield, will be pleased to receive and acknowledge any donations which may be sent to him.

Miss Fanny Wentworth, "the Corney Grain in petticoats," opened a nine weeks' engagement at the Empire, Johannesburg, on Monday, March 4, and is growing in favour nightly with her sketches and songs at the piano. The artistic nature of Miss Wentworth's turn and her refinement are warmly recognised by the Rand Press.

The Foreign Office is inquiring into the death in Buenos Ayres of a beautiful young English dancer, Miss Lily Parker, who is reported to have shot herself through the heart on February 18 last. The deceased was one of the Palace girls in 1904, and departed for Argentina in 1905, after playing in The White Cat at Drury Lane. She was originally a pupil of Mr. John Tiller, and went to South America to fulfil an engagement with Frank Brown's Circus at the Coliseo Argentino. Her first engagement was at the Winter Gardens, Blackpool, and before coming to the Palace Theatre she had shared the success of her seven companions in Paris.

Mr. Charles G. Remeges, the popular manager of the Empire, Middlesbrough, who was well known as a zealous lieutenant of Mr. J. L. Graydon at the Middlesex, has received many congratulations on the birth of his daughter.

Mr. Matthew Brodie and company, who are heading the bill at the Palace, Blackpool, and playing Louis Cohen's Drummer of the 76th to the holding capacity, start the Moss and Stoll tour next Monday at the Empire, Holloway. Mr. Brodie's Napoleon in this seems even more popular than in The Duchess of Dantzic.

"Operas in the Halls" was the headline given by us to Mr. Chas. Fisher's productions of his own famous "miniature operas," which, with the ever-growing demand for the best lyrical art in our variety theatres, are still heading their way to the haven of popular favour.

What might have proved a sad fatality was happily averted by the coolness of Venus, the late Lord Leighton's model. With her manager, Mr. L. Austin Millais, she was coming up the Dan Bank—Stockport's dangerous hill—on Good Friday, and observed a cyclist descending at a fearful rate, he having completely lost control of his machine. Without a moment's hesitation Venus dashed at the machine, swerved it aside, and headed it for the hedge, into which it went headlong. On picking himself up the cyclist was none the worse for his adventure beyond a dislocated thumb and a few cuts. On Saturday at the conclusion of the first house at the Hippodrome, Salford, Mr. Deans, whose life had been saved, presented Venus with a handsome bouquet as a mark of his appreciation of her pluck.

Miss Lillie Dene and Charles Dawson are playing their skit, Stage Aspirants, at the Chelsea Palace and Middlesex next week.

Mr. Tom Fancourt's company, in the novel comic opera sketch, Off to Gretna Green, is "topping" the bill next week at the Queen's, Poplar. The cast is a strong one, including, as it does, such well-known names as Misses Jennie Rubie and Clara Moore, Messrs. Frank Barclay, Edwin Rutland, and Tom Fancourt, supported by a strong chorus. Mr. George Ess is the musical-director. The elegant dresses are by Messrs. J. A. Harrison.

Master Reginald Leyland, who recently scored a distinct success at the Empire, Camberwell, by his singing of "Mamma's Baby Boy" and "Hearts of Oak," although only ten years of age, is the possessor of a pure and powerful soprano voice, with a register of two octaves and four notes. He is among the list of artists who are giving their services at Mr. H. H. Wells' matinee in aid of the Lord Mayor's Crippled Children's Fund, to be given at the Paragon, by kind permission of the directors, on Thursday, April 18, when the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will attend in state. He will also sing at the fourth anniversary of the Chelsea Palace next Friday.

Mr. Harry Lyons, late general manager of the Prince's, Poplar, intends taking on tour again with a star cast the sensational sketch by Charles Whitlock, entitled The Missionary. Mr. Lyons has already secured many important bookings.

The tide of prosperity is at the flood at the Glasgow Gaiety, formerly the Tivoli, where good business has been the rule for some weeks past. On Monday an extra company accounted for crowded audiences, many being turned away at each performance. We understand the house is to be kept open right through the summer season. This must be gratifying to directors and manager alike, and we congratulate Mr. Harry Bowerman on this pleasing state of affairs.

Mr Richard Ralli, the newly appointed manager of the Palace Theatre, Bradford, and Mr. Henry Martell, of Ivegate, Bradford, were driving in a dogcart from Bradford to Ilkley on Good Friday, when, as they approached Denton Bridge, the horse shied at a heap of lime. The animal mounted a bank, and the trap was completely overturned, the men being hurled underneath. A police-officer went to the assistance of the two injured men, and a passing cyclist notified Dr. Stansfield, who found that Mr. Ralli had sustained a fractured shoulder and Mr. Martell was badly shaken.

To pierrots and concert artists Messrs. R. March and Co.'s "Pierrot Book," with fourteen numbers, should be specially interesting. "Wait for me" is a humorous selection well worthy their attention. The address of the firm is St. James's-walk, London, E.C.

The sketch All Through You, which we briefly noticed at the Shepherd's Bush Empire last week, is the joint work of Brian Daly and Jenny Lynn, the music being by J. Nurnberger. The production has been brightened, and now goes with a swing.

Two interesting novelties will be included in the programme of the grand concert which the Musicians' Company has promised to give in the Egyptian Hall, Mansion House, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Cripple Fund. The first is a new trio, "Phantasie," for violin, violoncello, and pianoforte, written for the occasion by Mr. A. von Corse, an old Royal Academy of Music student and a medallist of the Musicians' Company. The other important novelty is a remarkable setting by an unknown composer of the famous soliloquy "To be or not to be," from Hamlet. This was lately found by Sir Frederick Bridge in going through the papers in the Pepy's Library at Cambridge. It is written for a bass voice, with an accompaniment for the lute and violin da Gamba, and it is believed to date from Shakespeare's time.

It is to be sung by Mr. Graham Stuart. Among famous vocalists who have kindly given their services are Mme. Albani, Mme. Clara Butt, and Mr. Santley, who will be heard in old and new selections. Miss Hatchett-Jones, Miss Phyllis Lett (of the Royal College of Music), Mr. Kennerley Rumford, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, Miss Hevela Davies (a notable pianist of the Royal Academy of Music), Mr. W. A. Wollmann, Mr. J. Schofield (violoncellist), and Dr. E. Markham Lee will also contribute to the programme. Mr. Stabley Harley and Mr. S. Liddle will share in the accompaniments. Not the least interesting feature of the concert will be the performance of a choir under the direction of Dr. G. F. Huntley of some charming old English madrigals, with part-songs by Dr. W. H. Cummings and others.

Miss Evelyn Taylor, the popular comedienne, has just received an offer to open in America in September for nine weeks; but in consequence of her bookings in London the matter stands in abeyance until she can get her contracts postponed for the period mentioned.

At the Sheffield Police Court, before the Stipendiary Magistrate, on March 28, appeared Thomas Morris, a High-street gutter merchant, in whose possession a publisher's representative had discovered over seventy sheets of pirated music, including such different works as "Abide with me" and "By the side of the Zuyder Zee." The defendant pleaded that he didn't understand music, meaning that dealing in pirated music was a new experience to him.

Mr. Arthur Preston, on behalf of the Music Publishers' Association, having proved that the music was still covered by copyright, pointed out that the defendant had been summoned before, and on that occasion he escaped with a light fine in consideration of a promise to give up music-selling. He trusted that his Worship would inflict a heavy penalty. The Stipendiary: If I did what the publishers want I should give penal servitude. A fine of 30s. being more than he could pay, the merchant went to prison for fourteen days. The destruction of the music was ordered.

Miss Patty Yole resumed business, after her recent illness, at the Albert Hall, Southport, on Monday, and scored an instantaneous success, her dancing being a feature of the evening's entertainment.

Mr. J. C. Oliver, the original magical jester, and Mlle. Jeanetta, lady illusionist and dancer, have been booked by Mr. Arthur Carlton for pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Worcester, for parts and specialities. They have also been secured for a short autumn tour by the same management.

Miss Thierry recently produced, at the Palace, Manchester, a sketch, entitled Nancy Sykes, for trial purposes. It met with such an enthusiastic reception that Mr. Dottridge, of Oldham, immediately undertook the sole booking, and has started it this week on tour. The original verdict has been confirmed, and the sketch, which is cleverly acted, is likely to have a long run in the halls.

The Terriers annual Good Friday Dinner and social took place at the headquarters of the fraternity, the Dover Castle Hotel, Westminster Bridge-road, about seventy being present. The president, Mr. Jesse Sparrow, occupied the chair, being assisted by Mr. G. Burgess. Amongst others present were Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Millis and party, Mrs. John Moore and lady friend, Harry Wright, Nellie Gannon, Peggy Fame and party, James Stewart, George Pearson, Jack Tambo, Tom Pacher, Miss Hunter, S. N. Salter, Miss Salter, Peggy Primrose, J. C. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson, Edward Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cooke, Arthur Willson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lester, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Alexander, Lady Mansell and party, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Neiman, Master Dolph Neiman, Mr. and Mrs. Barny Hyams and party, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Larola, Miss Alice Maydue and lady friend, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Munroe, Bob Hutt, Mr. and Mrs. Ted E. Box, Tom E. Cliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Bingham and party, W. H. Atlas, Miss Vulcana and family, and many more.

Full justice was done to the special menu provided, and the social was kept merrily going till midnight. Those who contributed to the programme were Tom Packer, Miss Myer, Harry Wright, Nellie Gannon, Ted E. Box, Mr. Scott Gray, Miss Mary Glenn and accompanist, James Stewart, Peggy Primrose, F. W. Millis, and Dolly Glenville. J. C. Moore presided at the piano; Tom Pacher was the M.C., and the successful arrangements were carried out by the secretary, Harry Lester, to whom many compliments were paid.

Mr. Arthur Jefferson's sketch, Her Convict Lover, has been accepted by Messrs. Moss and Stoll for production at the Palace, Camberwell, on July 22. This is the second sketch of Mr. Jefferson accepted by the leviathan combination, the first one, Home from the Honeymoon, being booked for thirty weeks as the result of a three weeks' trial trip. A feature of Her Convict Lover is the cinematograph transference of the actual characters in sketch to the screen.

We are sorry to hear that Miss Kittie Olive is lying very ill at her residence, 61, Ringmer-avenue, Fulham, S.W.

"L'Entente" is the title of a pretty and tuneful musical spectacle written by Bert Dent, the manager of Barnard's Palace, Greenwich, S.E. It was produced on Monday at the above-named hall, and met with enthusiastic approval. It is booked as a top-liner at all the Barnard halls

Mr. Clive Darril, the gigantic Australian, did not appear on Tuesday at Marlborough-street Police Court in support of his summons for alleged assault against Mr. Fred Trussell, manager of the Hippodrome. "This summons," said Mr. Trussell, "has been taken out for purely vexatious reasons. I am supposed to have beaten this man, who is over 8ft. in height. As a matter of fact, the man was annoyed at having been refused admission to the Hippodrome. My servants were instructed not to allow him to come in, and he took out the summons for assault." Mr. Denman: There is no complainant, and, therefore, you need not trouble any more about the matter. The summons is dismissed.

Clive Darril, the absentee complainant, is the Australian giant, who has been making himself conspicuous in his public protestations of affection for Mariedl, the Tyrolese giantess, now at the Hippodrome. From his seat in the stalls he made Mariedl an offer of marriage, and, subsequently followed her to Guildford in a motor, when she was taking her week-end holiday, and there obtained an interview. As the result of Mr. Darril's demonstration at the Hippodrome he was refused admission thereto, although he had spent £2 in tickets for himself and his secretary. It was this refusal that led to the alleged assault.

Mr. Michael Connelly, the well-known musical director, is engaged (with own band) by Mr. Jules Richeux for the summer, at Victoria Theatre and Pavilion, Ramsgate.

Mr. T. J. Klee has just been appointed to the conductorship of the Paisley Hippodrome orchestra, and is filling that office with consummate ability.

Mr. Tom Lally, a native of Sheffield, where he has won a high reputation as a baritone vocalist, has joined the ranks of music hall artists, and made his début last week at the Bordesley Palace, Birmingham, where he scored an emphatic success.

Mr. Ted E. Box, who styles himself "the new comedian," has made a striking impression during the last few days upon the audiences at the Crouch End Hippodrome, where he opened a week's engagement on Monday. For one thing, Mr. Box has a style which is distinctively his own, and it has "caught on" in a manner that should augur extremely well for the future of this comedian.

Mr. Box makes his first appearance somewhat extravagantly garbed as a policeman, and, with pencil and notebook in hand, sings an amusing song, the burden of which is "I've got it all down in my book." What the copper has "got down" is interesting, if not scrupulously precise. For instance, he has had occasion to take charge of a "drunk and disorderly," and an inventory of the prisoner's belongings included such trifles as a bottle of gin, a packet of fags, and a lady's fur boa; but the gentleman in blue forgets what he got on the watch and chain.

After entertaining the house with an absurd song, entitled "My Sister," a pantomime whistling ditty, Mr. Box describes how different men endeavour to stop an omnibus. His imitations of the various tones and styles of whistling create intense merriment, and his representations of birds, dogs, and other animals are exceedingly realistic and greatly appreciated by his hearers. Mr. Box's wonderful whistling is not in any way assisted by artificial contrivances. It is a natural gift which he has developed to a really remarkable degree.

Miss Florrie Bray, who should have been appearing this week at the Palace, Hartlepool, is suffering from laryngitis, but hopes to be able to appear next week at the Palace, Halifax.

The latest quotations of music hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra, 1 7-16; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid) 1½, (10s. paid) 1½; London Pavilion ordinary 4½, preferred 5; London Coliseum, ½; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss Empire 4¾, 5 per cent. preferred 4½; Oxford, 6⅝; Palace, 10s.; Tivoli, 6; and Variety Consolidated Theatres, 9-16.

On Easter Monday 2,423 persons paid for admission to Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Hippodrome at Lynn.

The Grimsby Stipendiary Magistrate on Monday heard charges by the Musical Copyright Association against Thomas Dawson Chapman Charlton, music-seller, of Ye Olde Booke Shoppe, Victoria-street. Mr. Arthur Preston, chief agent of the association, said that for several years the defendant had been a dealer in pirated music, and had several times been prosecuted. Last week, accompanied by an officer with a search warrant, witness raided defendant's premises, and there found 144 pirated copies of music, the publication rights of which his association held.

Charlton admitted that the copies were pirated, and pleaded guilty to the second count charging him with selling pirated music. "As a pioneer of cheap music," he said, "I have been fighting the public's battle against the publishers for years. I have done it on principle, and not for private gain." The Stipendiary on the first summons, ordered the confiscation of the music, and fined defendant 7s. 6d. costs, and on the second charge, which was the first one in Grimsby under the new Musical Copyright Act, imposed a fine of £2 10s. and 11s. costs.

At Brentford Police Court on Thursday a curious application was made by Mr. O. Hanson, on behalf of a gentleman resident at Ealing. Mr. Hanson explained that his client, accompanied by his wife, attended a bioscope performance at a local place of entertainment. One of the pictures shown was the operation of skinning a hippopotamus, which, as everyone knew, was a very revolting sight. Several ladies in the audience expressed their intention of leaving if any more pictures of that nature were shown, and the complainant in question signified his disapproval by hissing. An attendant then came to him and told him that if he did so again he would have to leave. About ten minutes afterwards, though nothing further had occurred to warrant any interference, the manager went up to the complainant and ordered him to leave the hall. At the instruction of the manager, the attendant laid hands on the complainant, and pushed him out of the house, within view of the audience. Mr. Montagu Sharp granted the summons.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MESSRS. MELLOR, LAWRANCE, AND GIFFORD have just placed with the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., a dainty new number entitled "Iris, don't say farewell." The publishers have this song in press, and will shortly issue it in their popular sixpenny edition.

MISS KITTIE RAYBURN has scored a terrific success with her new song "Don't miss your chances, ladies," written by Gilbert Wells and composed by Harry von Tilzer. The publishers, Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., will grant a few permissions for the provinces only.

"IF that apple could have spoken" is the title of a novelty song written and composed by E. W. Rogers and Chas. Collins, the publishing rights of which have been secured by Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., by whom a few permissions will be granted.

MISS DORA LYRIC, the refined comedienne, who is this week starring at the Palace, Leeds, has just secured another good song entitled "I'll tell Tilley on the telephone," by Castling and Godfrey. It was produced on Monday night, and met with immediate success.

THE summer books, long expected and waited for by the multitudinous members of pierrot troupes and seaside entertainers, have at length been issued by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. They comprise three volumes, each containing fifty selected items—No. 1, humorous songs; No. 2, coon and soubrette songs; and No. 3, ballads and descriptive and chorus songs.

THE stupendous success of "My Irish Rosie" throughout the United States continues unabated, and at Boston, Mass., at the Park Theatre, on St. Patrick's Day, when Miss Hattie Williams sang it in The Little Cherub, and Jean Schwartz (who had journeyed from New York for the occasion) conducted the band during the rendering of his composition, the enthusiasm was indescribable, and the composer of "My Irish Molly" and "Bedelia" received an ovation which almost appalled him. Messrs. Francis and Day are overwhelmed with applications for this song, which shares with "Poor John!" the distinction of being a reigning hit.

THE scena Back to Barracks, in which Mr. Dennis Drew and company have appeared during the current week at the Empire, Reading, has aroused enthusiasm unparalleled in the history of the house, and the songs "Mona May," "The Beat of the Drum," and "Come and be a Soldier" have been nightly redemanded. The two latter are published by Francis and Day.

WITH very great success Miss Alexandra Dagmar is featuring "All alone in Old Cologne," a chorus number which ranks high with connoisseurs of melody. It is published by Mr. David Day's firm, who also issue Miss Carlotta Levey's present successes, "Man and wife should always pull together" (Murphy and Lipton) and "Sympathy" (Kendis and Paley).

MISS FLORRIE FORDE returned to town on Monday from her successful pantomime engagement at Bradford, and produced a new song by Messrs. Mills and Scott entitled "Has anyone seen a German band?" It went with a bang! The holiday folks at three halls joined heartily in the catchy chorus, which is likely to take the place of the same writers' famous ditty "By the side of the Zuyder Zee." Pierrots should note. The Star Music Publishing Company have professional copies of the above song ready.

THAT successful chorus singer Mr. Harry Bancroft has made a big hit in Liverpool with a new song by A. E. Richards and Maurice Scott, entitled "When the wedding-bells rang out for you and me." The Star Music Company are the publishers.

"UNDER the yew-tree," a charming love-song by those brilliant writers George Arthurs and C. W. Murphy, has just been accepted for publication by the Star Music Publishing Company. Other numbers recently acquired by this enterprising firm are "The busy bee in the apple-tree," by Macdonald and Meher, and "Swing me higher, Obadiah," by Alf Rick and Maurice Scott.

MISS KATHLEEN MAYER, the society entertainer, has made a hit with her graceful compositions, entitled "Ma sunbeam girl" and "Tears of dew," the lyrics by Frank Ridley. Miss Mayer, whose services are sought for even in the Canary Islands, will give her annual café chantant at the Wharncliffe Rooms, Hotel Great Central, on the evening of the 27th inst., and will be supported by many well-known artists. Messrs. Francis and Day have secured some of the lady's works.

MR. KARL KAPS' new two-step "Bustlin' Billy" and "Lovers' Waltz" were both included in the programme of Dan Godfrey's band at the Covent Garden Ball last night. They are published by J. Roberts and Co., of Wardour-street, who have secured the services of this well-known writer of dance music as musical editor. More than one seaside resort is seeking Mr. Kaps' services as music-director for the ensuing season.

MISS MAUD ESMOND will produce two new songs at the Palace, Leeds, on Monday, entitled "I'd like to call you sweetheart," published by Shapiro Von Tilzer, and "My beautiful Avon rose," issued by Francis, Day, and Hunter. The singing rights of both songs are completely protected. This refined burlesque artist is the original singer of several of the most popular songs of the year.

"LOVE IN SHORT FROCKS,"

a Farcical Sketch, produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, April, 1, 1907.

Mrs. Lovelocks .....MISS E. BRYAN
Timothy Toddlekins .....MR. ARTHUR BYRON
Diana .....MISS EDITH BLANDE

Humour of the broadest is the dominant note throughout Love in Short Frocks, which has come to the London variety world from America, where, we are assured, it had a large measure of success.

Diana Lovelocks, although she has arrived at the age of twenty-two is still at school at Brighton, and there is nothing unusual in her having a lover. The difficulty will be with mamma, and Diana sends her lover to London to pay court to the older lady, and so win her consent to their marriage. He does this so effectively that Mrs. Lovelocks is fully convinced that he will propose for her hand on the very day that her daughter Diana comes home from school.

She is so afraid that her admirer will prefer her daughter that she makes Diana don her short frocks again. Diana does not relish her lover seeing "so much of her," and rebels. Another admirer of Diana's, Timothy Toddlekins, has followed her from Brighton, and the widow at once accepts him as her future son-in-law. Diana overhears this, and determines to act the part of a kid of seven, and gives poor Timothy such a lively quarter of an hour that he is glad to take the widow and leave Diana's way clear to a union with her Fred.

Miss Edith Blande as the vivacious Diana cuts an amusing figure. Mr. Arthur Byron as Timothy and Miss E. Bryan as the widow work hard for success, and in their burlesque of physical culture are decidedly funny.

NEW HIPPODROME, BELFAST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Belfast, with the advent of such a beautiful and commodious structure as the Royal Hippodrome, will surely have removed the reproach that had existed of local non-support of amusements, seeing that in the past a single theatre and three music-halls sufficed for a population of about 360,000 inhabitants in a city noted for its wealth and progression. It is only six months since building operations were begun in Great Victoria-street, and lo! in this short space of time this magnificent building has been erected. It has been constructed on the newest cantilever system, there being none of the heavy supporting columns that exist in many other theatres. The seating has been arranged diagonally, so that one looks over the shoulder of the person in front. The house is a two-tier one, with the stalls and pit on the ground floor, the private boxes and grand circle on the first floor, and, above, the gallery. The auditorium is 80ft. deep by 78ft. wide, and the splendid stage—one of the largest in the kingdom—is 40ft. deep and 80ft. wide. The building is constructed to seat 2700 people, and, if necessary, can accommodate 3500, and is built in the Flemish style of brick and terra-cotta, the design reflecting much credit on the architect, Mr. Bertie Crewe, of Savoy Mansions, London. The interior decorations, which are certainly elaborate and decidedly handsome, red and gold predominating, are of the most up-to-date and modern manufacture, in the style of the French Rénaissance. The house is lighted throughout by elecricity, and the ventilation is perfect, the atmosphere being changed ten times in the hour by means of electric fans. The heating is the low-pressure hot-water system, thus ensuring a normal heat at all times. The dressing-rooms are splendidly equipped, being fitted throughout with hot and cold water. There is no danger in case of fire, for the exits are so placed that two are available from all parts of the house, and it is calculated that with a densely-crowded audience the entire place would be cleared in less than two and a half minutes. The contractors, who have done their work so admirably and with such celerity, are Messrs. J. Parkinson and Sons, the courteous and efficient clerk of the works being Mr. Charles Place. The decorations and upholstery were entrusted to Messrs. A. R. Dean and Son; Messrs. Vaughan and Cook were responsible for the electric lighting and the outside canopy; while the heating apparatus and fireproof curtain were supplied by Messrs. R. Dawson and Co., and the terra-cotta by the Shaw Glazed Brick Company. The directors of the concern are Messrs. C. W. Henderson (chairman), J. K. Black, E. K.

MR. HARRY DOWNS.

Resident-Manager, Royal Hippodrome, Belfast.

Savage, G. W. Smith, and F. Wilmot. Mr. Will Sley (of Manchester), so well-known in variety circles, is managing-director, and in Mr. Harry Downs (formerly of the New Alhambra, Belfast) the directors have secured a gentleman of vast experience, whose efforts as their manager will go very far indeed to make the theatre a solid success. It is no exaggeration to say that a finer and more handsome theatre does not exist in the provinces than this new Hippodrome, and we wish the undertaking every possible success. The two-houses-a-night system, so popular everywhere, has been adopted here, and the Hippodrome opened for the first time on Easter Monday, when, before a vast audience, Miss Elsie Savage (the charming daughter of one of the directors, Mr. W. E. Savage) appeared and sang the National Anthem amidst much enthusiasm. Then a programme of surprising excellence was contributed to by Miss Lydia Yeamans, the accomplished mimic; Mr. Horace Wheatley, the well-known Irish comedian; McCann's Irish Terriers; Leslie Brothers, eccentric musical comedians; Gillen, the smart ventriloquist; the Original Trentanovis Sisters, in their gymnastic act; O'Malley and Brown, comedians, who were so successful in local pantomime; Martelloni troupe of lady gymnasts; Webb and Edna Branston, operatic duettists; the Magic Album; and the very excellent Hippodrome pictures. The orchestra is under the skilful supervision of Mr. Edgar Haines, so well-known in local musical circles. The Hippodrome will be conducted on the strictest temperance principles, tea and temperance refreshments being always available.

EDINBURGH VARIETY THEATRE.

ENTHUSIASTIC "FIRST NIGHTERS."

"We want to cater for the people who require a pure and legitimate class of musical entertainment." Thus Mr. Walter de Frece at the opening of his five months' vaudeville season at the Theatre Royal last night. Rarely has success so spontaneous visited any venture of the kind in Edinburgh of recent years. Turn after turn of the very best succeeded one another, and after one particularly well-received item the demands for an encore grew so clamorous that Mr. de Frece felt called upon to address the audience, taking the opportunity at the same time of explaining the objects of his lease of the Theatre Royal. In his previous experience of this business, said Mr. de Frece, he had succeeded in eighteen different towns in giving an entertainment which had been patronised by the best people in the different towns. He was under the impression that the people of Edinburgh were entitled to get the best talent that could possibly be procured, and it had been the idea for a long time that Edinburgh ought to have a second music hall in the town if required. The proprietors of this theatre had asked him to put on a variety programme, and he would try his best to give them a show a man could take his wife and daughters to. He would look forward with great pleasure to meeting his Edinburgh friends five months hence and saying to them that he had fulfilled his promise. In his succeeding remarks Mr. de Frece gave an indication that rivalry of the healthiest type may prevail in the ensuing season with the "other place."

To many an old frequenter the historic house must have presented an unwonted sight: the "legitimate" displaced, vaudeville in full swing, and the incense from Havana or humbler cigarette curling roofwards to the shrine of My Lady Nicotine. Changed days, truly, but the veriest stickler by old traditions could find nothing to cavil at in the fare provided. Given a maintenance of last night's standard, Mr. de Frece may look to a succession of "bumper" houses. Last night's programme was little but a succession of "stars," there was not a weak link in the vaudeville chain. Dramtically, the strongest item was a little musical romance entitled The Power of Music, in which a gipsy fiddler seeks to steal, à la Svengali, an heiress from her lover, a rival musician. He visits the pair when together, and by the witchery of his bow wins the lady's heart, when the cast-off lover suddenly shatters the spell by the destruction of the gipsy's violin. Mr. Jan Rudenyi, a virtuoso of great executive ability, gave a marvellous exhibition of musical "pyrotechnics," together with a display of real musicianship of surpassing charm. Leo Kronau's military spectacle Our Boys in Blue was an eye-opener for incident and "hustle," and perhaps the most popular couple of the night were Jack and Evelyn, the smartest pair of young vaudeville artists who have been seen on Edinburgh boards for some time. Their wholesome humour kept the house rocking. Other admirable performances were those by Mr. John Le Hay and company in a turn which combined some rather robust humour with capital vocalisation; the Marsumas, two comedy cyclists, who climbed over each other while cycling in a delightfully free and easy style; Mdlle. Nina Martino, who sang a vocal valse charmingly; Mr. Victor Courtney, who provided a unique and laughable imitation of an orchestra tuning up; Miss Jose Collins, comedienne; Miss Joan Deering, vocalist and instrumentalist; and Hurmann, club juggler and hoop manipulator. A well-filled list was completed by the cinematograph, with some real pictorial wonders and a representation of the Grand National Steeplechase.—Edinburgh Evening Dispatch.

"CHARLEY'S UNCLE."

A Farcical Absurdity, by Lewis Honig, Produced at the Royal Standard Music Hall, on Monday, April 1.

Chas. Mendham, M.D. .....MR. BERT PHŒNIX
Dolly .....MISS ELLA DAMCOURT
Sarah .....MISS BEATRICE FISHER
Mr. Overproof .....MR. FRANK HILL

One could scarcely wish for anything more delightfully entertaining than the sketch, Charley's Uncle, which Mr. Bates-Maddison produced on Bank Holiday, for, from start to finish, the little piece is hugely diverting. Charley is a young medico whose wife is an extremely negligent and untidy person, and Charley's Uncle is a precise, orderly old bachelor, a visit from whom is hourly expected. Charles Mendham is in a state of perturbation concerning that approaching visit. Like most men who have arrived at an advanced age without having tied the connubial bonds, the Uncle has his eccentricities, and one of them is an exaggerated notion of exactitude in all things. Ergo, when it is remembered that Mrs. Mendham is a lady of somewhat slovenly habits, it can be well understood that that otherwise charming creature's husband looks forward with some misgiving to the meeting between his wife and his uncle. And, to make matters worse, Mrs. Mendham has mislaid the key of her wardrobe, and cannot get her dress. The uncle eventually makes an appearance, and Charley, with the greatest timidity, makes some references to his wife. He tries to explain in what direction her evil genius lies, but only goes so far as "She has got ——" Naturally enough, the uncle demands, "What has she got?" and still Charley seems incapable or undesirous of explaining in words what he would like to convey. So the older man makes up his mind that what Dolly has got is a fine baby. Charley leaves to attend to a patient, and during his absence his wife enters the room where Mr. Overproof, the uncle, is seated. She is in déshabillé, and the whole place resembles an augean stable. Papers and articles are strewn about in the most careless fashion. She has even torn up the MS. of an article written by her husband, in order to stick the pieces of paper outside the canary's cage, so as to protect the bird from the sun's overpowering rays. Mr. Overproof makes an enquiry as to the supposed baby, and Dolly, who has been previously warned by her husband as to the old man's idiosyncrasies, now believes that he is mad, and prepares to defend herself. The uncle, on his part, believes the same thing of her, and altogether some very lively situations ensue. In the end, Charley returns, and explains matters generally, Dolly promises to mend her ways, and everything ends happily.

Mr. Bates-Maddison's company work extremely well, and contrive to make the playlet go with a fine swing. Mr. Frank Hill as the starchy, fidgety old bachelor, and Miss Ella Daincourt as the negligent young wife, give us a couple of excellent characterisations; and Miss Beatrice Fisher as an impudent maid-of-all-work, with a host of amusing eccentricities, proves most entertaining; and Mr. Bert Phœnix as Charley affords able support.

THE spectacular reproduction of the large Johnstown flood, which has been the attraction at Coney Island and at Boston, Mass., for several seasons, and is now in working operation in New York City, is for sale at the price of $7,000. The small Johnstown flood and Mount Vesuvius in eruption may also be had for $3,500 and $1,500 respectively. Applications are to be made to the Joseph Menchen Electrical Co., the extensive manufacturers of electrical effects and appliances, 354, West 50th Street, New York.

DEATH OF JACK CAMP.

By the death of Jack Camp, which sad event occurred at his residence, 27, Gairloch-road, Camberwell, on Saturday, the 30th ult., the amusement world in two hemispheres loses one of its most highly appreciated laughter-makers, and the news, which has caused keen regret in London, will also be heard with saddened faces by the profession in New York and throughout the States, to which the deceased comedian was a most welcome visitor in 1898-99. Mr. Camp (whose real name was John Edgar Campbell) was the victim of that fell disease, consumption. He had, however, been able the week previous to his death to fulfil an engagement at the Canterbury, and though those who knew him intimately recognised the sad truth that his tenure of life would be short, they were not prepared for the startling suddenness of his death. He complained of severe pain on Good Friday, and the bursting of a blood-vessel was the beginning of the end, which came very peacefully on Saturday evening. Dr. Walker, a popular medico with the profession, attended the deceased.

Jack Camp's father was a Manchester tradesman, who viewed with much disfavour his son's great liking for the stage. When a lad, Jack was consumed with admiration for anything that had the cut of a professional, and ran away from home in order to gratify his taste for singing and dancing. He may be said to have had the rough corners rubbed off him at the free-and-easies, from which have graduated so many of our variety stars. While at a free-and-easy in Nottingham—the Crown and Cushion—he was most kindly recommended to the local Palace. He soon after gained sufficient prestige to secure some good "shops," and, coming to London, went to Harwood's, where he was warmly encouraged by the late Mr. Gus Leach. Mr. Will Oliver arranged for him his first appearance at the Middlesex, but his style did not take, and the engagement was terminated after the first night. But in after years he had many happy evenings at Mr. Graydon's Drury-lane hall.

Mr. Camp used to tell an anecdote against himself in connection with his unsuccessful début at the "Mogul." Mr. Herbert Sprake, then proprietor of Collins's, was present, and said to Will Oliver, "Is this the funny bloomer who opens with me on Monday?" Mr. Oliver said "Yes." Mr. Sprake's decision, reflected in the emphatic rejoinder, "Not in a hundred years; not at any price!" was overruled, and Jack achieved a success at the "hall on the green," which formed one of the agreeable incidents of a chequered professional career.

He went to South Africa in the autumn of 1898, and had scarcely returned when he "crossed the pond" to appear at Keith's Union-square Theatre, New York, where his success was most pronounced. The papers of the period spoke in glowing terms of the unknown English comedian, "who has succeeded where others of a greater reputation failed." He again went to America early in 1900.

THE LATE JACK CAMP.

His burlesque of the descriptive song has never been equalled, and his parodies, many of which were written by Mr. Curran, a Glasgow song-writer, were always laughable. He was proclaimed an "original" by no less a journal than the Times, which, in an eloquent criticism of his performance at the Tivoli a few years since said, "Mr. Camp must be seen to be believed; there is no describing him. The quaint melancholy of his face and long, slim figure, the extraordinary eloquence of his gestures, his primness, and the gravity with which he talks the most absolute nonsense proclaim him an original." Mr. Camp took a great interest in criminology, and incidentally in the methods of detecting crime. Among his cherished documents is a series of his finger prints published in an official form and stamped by the detective department of the Royal Irish Constabulary at Belfast.

The day before his death Jack Camp signed a contract, of which the confirmation arrived when all earthly ties were severed by the grim scythe-bearer. Such is the irony of fate. At the time of his decease he was booked three years ahead by his agent, Mr. Tom Shaw. The deceased comedian leaves a widow and two children—a boy and girl—to mourn his loss. To the bereaved ones we tender our sympathy, which will be shared by the profession at large.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at Camberwell Cemetery, Honor Oak. The remains were interred in the Roman Catholic portion of the ground, and among those who assembled around the graveside were many music hall celebrities.

The principal mourners were Mrs. Campbell (widow), Master J. W. and Miss Florence Campbell (son and daughter), Mr. J. Campbell (brother), and Mrs. and Master Campbell, Mrs. Pickford, and Mrs. Goulden (sisters), Mr. and Mrs. and Master Price, Mr. and Miss Canning, Dr. Walker, Mrs. Michael Nolan, Dr. Griffin, Mr. Tom Shaw, Mr. W. Armstrong, and Mr. Davis.

The respect in which the deceased was held was testified to by the many letters and telegrams of sympathy that reached the widow, as well as the numerous beautiful wreaths that were sent. The widow's floral tribute consisted of a harp of white roses, arum lilies, violets, lilies of the valley, and maidenhair fern. Others came from John William and Florence Campbell (son and daughter), Mr. James Campbell (brother), Mrs. Goulden and Mrs. Pickford (sisters), the Misses Margaret, Maud, Isabel, and Master Rose, Mrs. W. Neale, the Grand Order of Water Rats, South London Boyson Club, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, Mr. Tom Shaw and his office staff, Mr. Pat Egbert and brother, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Churchill, Dr. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nolan, Mr. Fred Karno, Mr. and Mrs. Knowles, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hanlon.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

Among the American turns secured by Mr. Alfred Butt during his visit to the States, none have had a more interesting career than Miss Josephine Cohan, who is quite a star in vaudeville on the other side of the Atlantic, and the member of a famous family. She has been on the stage since she reached the age of eight, and her present visit is simply a prelude to a tour through the civilised world. She finds a vehicle for her comedy in a new one-act hustling absurdity entitled The Friend of the Family. The trifle has all the quality of an ancient Adelphi screaming farce, with an American complexion. The authors are Will M. Cressy and Fred. Niblo, Miss Cohan's husband. As for imbroglio, it is simple enough. John Hobbs and Nellie, his wife, just married, are already quarrelling, but both wish to make it up. Nellie, by flirting desperately with Tom Greyland, an old friend of her husband, not only arouses John's jealousy, but exercises the mind of Bill Denver, a brother of Nellie's, who fools around with a revolver. The necessary explanation comes at the right moment, but not till after we have seen Miss Cohan execute a skirt dance with much taste. Mr. Otto Hoffmann is a humorous Tom Greyland, and Mr. John Junior is a smart representative of the husband, the conventional fire-eater of the American stage being effectively presented by Mr. Brandon Mitchell.

The sensation of the bill is Kartelli, a skater on the wire, who twirls hoops with one leg while juggling with his hands, and keeping his balance. He is simply wonderful, too, in his accomplishment of difficulties with a bicycle, and does feats that are thought to be exceedingly difficult even on terra firma. We have seen nobody quite as good as Kartelli, who has thought out an original act, which it will take years of study and practice to imitate. Mlle. Juliette's success with her sea-lions at her début at the Palace less than two years since ensured her return, and the obedient and well-trained amphibians again delight everyone by their docility and real cleverness. One of them, who catches sugar loaf hats on his snout for all the world as if he were a performing clown, is assisted in a juggling act by an equally clever companion, and laughter and applause ring through the house at the baton twirling of a third sea-lion. The show is very interesting to watch, and is never marred by the slightest tedium.

Mr. J. P. Ling's mimetic monologues find no more appreciative audiences than those at the Palace, where his imitation of the village glee party is as heartily laughed at as his mimicry of the bibulous amateur who in his recitation will mix up "The Wreck of the Hesperus" with "The Village Blacksmith." La Belle Tortajada is a firm Palace favourite, and Fred Niblo, the American raconteur, returns with new jokes and wheezes, which keep the house convulsed. Nothing in the bill is funnier, however, than Alfred Lester's sketch of the melancholy restaurant waiter, whose master goes out to dine because "he's very pertikler." Miss Lily Mills lends good assistance as the lady customer. The Palace Girls look particularly smart as les femmes cochères; and other turns include Miss Nina Gordon, the mimic; the Bensons, who should immediately cut out their inartistic perversion of that beautiful melody, "Sally in our Alley"; and John E. Coyle, comedian, who has a humorous song, "The Sea," with plenty of droll patter.

THE TIVOLI.

The joyous spell of sunshine that gladdened the hearts of those who sought primrose paths and the sound of the sea had apparently no adverse influence at the Tivoli, where on Easter Monday evening Mr. Joseph Wilson and his popular lieutenant, Mr. James Howell, were gladdened by an audience only limited by the capacity of the cosy little house in the Strand. The crowd of variety-lovers were in the happiest holiday mood when the orchestra, under Mr. Louis de Reeder, played a lively overture. They laughed full well at Mr. Phil Ray, with his ingenious abbreviations and amusing quips, and the rapid—we might say lightning—delivery of Mr. Tom Dunville, who gave what may be termed spasms of comedy, was exactly understood and vastly appreciated. Mr. George Robey unfortunately was unable to answer to his number; but a deputy was found in Miss Ada Cerito, whose humour is vivified by many droll touches of low comedy. Miss Cerito attires herself in garments that give her a ludicrous aspect, and her impersonation is lively and interesting.

"When knights were bold" is the newest song to be sung by Little Tich, who owes nothing but the title to the piece now being presented by Mr. James Welch and company at Wyndham's. It is odd to see the quaint and diminutive figure of the comedian dressed in all the bravery of a cavalier, and the heartiest laughter controls the house as soon as he appears. "The Park-keeper" has nothing more historic to talk about than the penalties of courtship and the trials of a Council custodian with the small boys. A great ovation is accorded to Mr. Harry Lauder, who has reached the zenith of his popularity. No Scotch comedian has ever before won such a high place in the esteem of Cockneydom as he, and in his revival of some of his famous successes he was quite wise. "The saftest of the family" is a character creation that would do credit to any stage, and nothing more infectiously rollicking than "Stop yer tickling, Jock," has been heard on the variety stage for many years. Mr. Lauder on Monday was delayed by a disappointment in connection with his motor car, but his opening song showed that he was in the best of voice, and that his comedy is as effective as ever in its mirth-provoking qualities.

Mr. Harry Fragson, who has just finished at Drury Lane Theatre, recommences his variety season with a capital song in "Statues on the spree." We are not referring to the Berlin river, but to the imaginative gambols of the celebrities in stone that are to be found in various parts of our overgrown metropolis. "The bandbox girl" has a lilt and a charm of melody that make it a popular number, and another favourite selection is "Chin Chin Loo," a fascinating heroine from the Flowery Land. Humour is again in the ascendant with the arrival of the Poluskis, who have returned to their legion of admirers after a successful session in pantomime. Their particular form of entertainment is now called "The Provocator," which is another vehicle for amusing cross-talk. Miss Alexandra Dagmar's fine voice is heard with genuine pleasure, and her anecdotes are heartily laughed at. Mr. Harry Tate exploits to the sounds of constant hilarity a new edition of Motoring, which exemplifies the axiom that it is but human to rejoice at the mishaps of others. Miss Alice Yorke and company present A Yacht for Sale, the dialogue of which contains much amusing equivoque; Miss Abbie Mitchell, the Creole plantation vocalist, is an interesting turn; Miss Madoline Rees opens the entertainment with comedy; and Miss Dorothy Drew is a dainty little dancer.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

All the elements of popular entertainment are contained in the current week's programme at the South London, the old-established hall of variety so ably overseered by Mr. Wm. Payne. There is the customary dramatic sketch, which in this case really deserves to be called tragic, and the enthusiastic reception which awaited its representation by Mr. Fred Winn's company was thoroughly earned. The playlet is called The Light in the Window, and boasts neither hero nor villain, but is just an episode of life irresistible in its appeal and thrilling in its effect. It tells of the waiting of an aged mother for the return of her son, who was reported to have been shipwrecked many years before. During his absence his daughter has grown up and become engaged to a warder at the neighbouring convict settlement. The boom of a gun announces the escape of a prisoner, who presently seeks safety in the cottage, and proves to be the old lady's long-lost son. The joy of the reunion is dashed by the sight of the broad-arrow, which the fugitive has concealed in a long coat, and the old woman falls dead at his feet. His daughter and her warder lover enter, and when the prisoner reveals his identity the warder, for his sweetheart's sake, urges flight, but the convict summons the rest of the officers of the law and gives himself up in despair. A "happy ending" in the ordinary sense is not secured, but it is a highly dramatic one nevertheless, and a state of tension exists among the audience during its portrayal, broken at the end by long-continued applause. The effect obtained is contributed to largely by Mr. Rothbury Evans, who is admirably made up as the convict, and acts with power and intensity. A sound performance is also supplied by Miss Daisy England, who faithfully reflects the wistfulness of the fond mother, who has waited long years for her son's return, and affectingly portrays the joy which comes of his return. Mr. Tom Blacklock acts earnestly and with more than a suspicion of drollery as the warder, and Miss Agnes Paulton is comely and refined in the part of his sweetheart.

A favourite of former days, but no less potent at the present period, is Chirgwin, whose stock of witticisms is being constantly replenished. Nothing comes amiss to the comedian, who is equally at home in dealing in rhyme with events of topical interest, in singing a song full of homely sentiment, or in rendering a melody on one of the many instruments of which he is master. "The White-Eyed Kaffir" maintains his position in the front rank of the army of mirth-makers after long years in the service, and, though the leanness which distinguished him of old has long since departed, his humour is as light and buoyant as ever. His one-stringed fiddle now rejoices in the addition of a funnel, which increases its tone to a wonderful extent, and adds materially to the effect of the old familiar air, "She wore a wreath of roses." Holiday japes and jests flowed abundantly on the night of our visit, and kept the audience in a constant titter. A more than usually strong desire was manifested for "The Blind Boy," until the comedian was obliged to accede to the demand, and was rewarded by tumultuous applause. Favour is also showered upon My Fancy, in whom the poetry of motion is exemplified. Her step-dance is watched with rapt admiration expressed in constantly recurring cheers, but it is when she assumes the silver shoon and flits about the sanded stage that her powers are most fully displayed. Every known variety of dance, and many hitherto unknown, seem to be employed, and the complexity of her steps is only equalled by the speed and rapidity to which the pretty danseuse attains.

A pathetic tale of the sea is told by Mr. Ernest Ball, who sings a ballad of "The Storm Bell," in which the death of a lighthouse-keeper's little girl is described with all the actor-vocalist's well-known graphic power. The sentiment has the true ring, and touches a responsive chord in the hearts of all. Mr. Ernie Mayne broadens the humour of the parodies of "Put a little bit away" and "In the Shade of the old Apple Tree" by phenomenal facial play and other eccentricities, and fun is also liberally provided by Farr and Farland, who have deputised for the New York Nippers. An "extra turn" has been provided in Mr. J. H. Romer, who makes up realistically as a Chelsea pensioner, and obtains the ear of the house for a fine rendering of "The Death of Nelson," which is loudly applauded. Pictures of salmon fishing in Scotland and a very diverting film illustrative of the flight of time are included in Ruffell's Bioscope series, and the programme also contains the names of Miss Jessie Nesbitt serio and dancer, Miss Jeanette Hall, soubrette, The Tatlers, vocalists and dancers, and Archy Cray, the young comedian

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

The festive spirit has been thoroughly maintained at Camberwell, where holiday-makers have availed themselves of the liberal opportunities for enjoyment provided at the Palace. An attraction of irresistible potency is the "episode of exposure," Sally in Our Alley, which Mr. John Lawson has revived with all its pristine elaborateness. Mr. Lawson has a wonderful eye for scenic effect, and the setting of the artist's studio is more than usually harmonious. The popular Hebrew actor has a warm reception when he appears as the wealthy "reformer," whose sentiments with regard to a number of burning questions are expressed so vigorously that abundant cheers are bestowed. A company admirably chosen for their respective parts supports Mr. Lawson, and the production proves so enthralling that the audience remain engrossed to the end.

The notes of comedy and pathos are impressively struck in the little coster sketch, Me and 'Er, with which Duncan and Godfrey have travelled far and wide since their last appearance at Camberwell. The reception of the clever couple is more cordial than ever, and the laughter that crowns the homely humour of the scena does not prevent a wave of sympathy for the touch of tenderness at the end. Miss Carlotta Levey, resplendent in a dress of glittering jet, delivers in her own distinctive style the ballad of "Man and Wife," the sentiment of which receives added effect from the dramatic manner of its delivery. The tuneful refrain is taken up with alacrity, but still more ardour is manifested in the singing of "All I got was sympathy," in the chorus of which quite a crescendo of sound is gained by the audience. Miss Levey has managed to strike out a new line of descriptive song which in other hands might fall short of its mark; but the clever singer gets home completely to the hearts of her hearers, whose enthusiasm is boundless.

Remarkable additions continue to be made to the skilful act of the Five Bogannys, the "lunatic bakers," whose acrobatics are a source of wonder and delight. The Risley act performed by the head of the troupe, who tosses a boy playfully with his feet, is loudly acclaimed, and the somersaults, hand-springs, and eccentric tumbling of the rest of the combination are comically effective, as well as incredibly difficult. A series of flip-flaps in a skipping-rope, and a number of somersaults while enveloped in a sack, are not the least daring of the exploits to be placed to the credit of the troupe, whose efforts are most exhilarating and obtain many recalls. Miss Daisy Dormer does much to deserve the distinction conferred by the programme of being "an artist to her finger-tips," her singing of the coon ballads, "I wish I were you" and "Dreaming" being made attractive by her dainty promenading round the stage, and by a dance, of which a sidelong high-kick is a notable feature.

Parodies of popular ballads are offered of Mr. Austin Rudd, who enhances the effect of the words by a quaintness of expression and movement that cannot be resisted. "The shade of the old apple-tree" and "The Zuyder Zee" both come in for burlesque treatment, and win the favourite comedian gratifying popularity. Another popular return is made by Mr. Lawrence Barclay, over whose appearance as a kilted Scot, who sings of "Ria" to the tune of the "Soldiers' chorus" from Faust, the house grows hilarious. Still greater effect is exercised by Mr. Barclay's presentation of "The pet of the ballet," whose short skirts allow of the exhibition of remarkable physical embellishments, which provoke roars of laughter. Mr. Harry Ford, with his quaint policeman song, and his impersonation of the eccentric gentleman who "Wonders," is as popular as ever; and Mr. Mark Sheridan adds to his singing of "Good-night" a quantity of "patter" of no limited degree, and a dance that is filled to the full with eccentricity. Mr. Percy Curry takes up the rôle of a rag-and-bone man, and causes much amusement by his scenes with small boys, and with an irate lady of the humbler class, who wrecks his stock-in-trade; and the pictures presented on Vernon's Bioscope make largely for mirth, and fully succeed. Mr. P. A. Lennon is the esteemed manager at the Palace, the orchestra of which acquits itself with every credit under the leadership of Mr. Leon A. Bassett.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

Mr. Lew Lake heads the bill here this week with the successful sketch entitled My Pal Jerry, in which Mr. Lake as Nobbler proves himself an actor of considerable merit, both in comedy and pathos; the death scene in the snow after the escape from Portland is very impressive, and brings tears to many eyes. Jerry is an excellent companion picture to Nobbler, and the part is well embodied by Mr. Bob Morris. Mr. Harry Laverne plays Justice Down very well, and Mr. Charles Graydon is imposing as the King's Counsel Kurtle. Miss Kitty Wilmore is excellent as Edith Arlington; the same may be said of Miss Fay Gueling as Bella Brass. The scenery and appointments are appropriate. Mr. Mark Merry entertains the audience with his exposition of mirthful melancholy, and wins considerable applause. Miss Ruth Lytton, the Scotch comedienne, looks very handsome in full Highland dress, and sings in spirited style about the doings at a Highland wedding; this is a very bright and attractive turn. Phil and Nettie Peters, who come next, cause much laughter by their brisk little entertainment consisting of patter, comedy, trombone playing, singing, and pleasant fooling. Leipzig proves himself to be a marvellous manipulator of coins and cards, and performs many wonderful sleight-of-hand tricks, which he proceeds to explain the working of in a manner that leaves the onlookers more puzzled than ever. Syd May has had a warm reception, which is well deserved; his turn is a capital one, opening with imitations, excellently done, of such popular favourites as Gus Elen, George Robey, and Harry Lauder, and closing with a comedy wrestling match between himself as Hackenschmidt and a dummy figure, which he manipulates very cleverly. The Jackley Trio are great favourites here and score a success with their comedy speciality, introducing the Whistling Comedian, George. Miss Elsie Claire, soprano vocalist, is well received in her pretty and ably rendered songs. The American Bioscope exhibits some new and amusing pictures, including the series entitled "A Sunday School Holiday," which evokes roars of laughter. Last on the bill, but by no means least in point of interest, come Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery in Would-be Actors. The subject is not new, but the treatment is, the acting of Mr. Carter Livesey as the manager being remarkably clever, natural, and amusing. Laughter accompanies the sketch from beginning to end. Mr. Livesey is admirably assisted by Miss Lilian Rosebery as the heroine and Mr. Albert Mason as the villain. Mr. Ernest Brigden's control of matters in front of the house here continues to win and retain popular favour. The band is still under the admirable direction of Mr. Louis La Rondelle, and "discourses most excellent music" both in the way of overtures and in the accompaniments.

THE DUCHESS PALACE.

Manager Ross should be more than satisfied. The programme that he presented last week for the approval of his patrons was absolutely without a weak spot. At the top of the bill was Joe Elvin, who was giving his amusing sketch, Trespassers Beware! which gives ample scope to this inimitable comedian for the exercise of his fun-making abilities. So great a hold has he on Balhamites that the very signalling of his number is a sign for applause of the most deafening description. This sketch has been previously described in these columns, and it is sufficient therefore to say of its present performance that the amusement it causes may be likened to a river, which, gathering force as it proceeds, eventually breaks into a mighty roar. As the erstwhile caretaker, Joe is absolutely great, and the end comes all too soon. On concluding he is the recipient of the most generous applause, and has many times to bow his acknowledgments.

Rose Cabani, a comedienne with a charming manner, is also the possessor of a tuneful voice. In her number "I want no mansion" she appears to exceptional advantage, and is also an excellent dancer. On the night of our visit time did not permit her acceptance of the encore so unanimously given. The Carlyles, described in the programme as whirlwind dancers, are paying a return visit, and their show is meeting with every sign of approval. They are presenting many pretty and novel dances, and altogether their entertainment is well worth watching. George Young, a blind collier boy, proves himself a very capable musician. He chooses Chirgwin's popular "Blind Boy" for his first number, and in response to an encore gives Sousa's "Uncle Sammy" on the concertina. He works hard, and, on concluding, is the recipient of well-sustained applause.

Larola is a comedian as well as a juggler and acrobat—a rare combination, indeed. Whether he is juggling or jumping over chairs, &c., he always manages to introduce many little funnisities, and generally with excellent results, and they all add to the attractiveness of this turn. As a juggler especially he shows himself quite a master, and deserves well of the house, which shows its appreciation in a most generous manner. Will Godwin, a comedian, is giving a couple of capital numbers, entitled "All I want is a girl" and "If those lips could only speak." In the latter number he has the assistance of his daughter, a little girl of about eight, who sings the chorus from a box. The effect is very pretty and pleasing, getting plenty of applause. Starr and Leslie are making one of their periodical visits to this hall, where a hearty welcome always awaits them. On the evening of our visit Miss Starr was in excellent voice, and it is a long time since we heard her to such advantage. The pair's club-swinging act, judging by the applause awarded them, is still as much appreciated as ever. Lena Verdi, fresh from her successes at the Crown, Peckham, pantomime, is appearing here with much success. Her two numbers, "The ship you are waiting for has gone down" and "I'm going back," are both excellent, and she is to be commended for her choice of songs. At the conclusion of her second she treats the audience to some clever dancing, and has many times to bow her acknowledgments. One of the most pleasing items on the programme is the Bioscope, and the pictures that are being shown this week are well up to the average. One that is followed with much interest is that depicting "The Grand National," a clear and realistic production. Mr. Bertram C. Ross, although without an acting-manager, works untiringly for the benefit of his patrons, and his efforts are much appreciated.

The anniversary of the Queen's, Poplar, takes place on Tuesday, April 16. Any artists desirous of helping on the occasion should communicate with Jack Woolf, Wonderland, Whitechapel.

The sad news comes to us that Adelaide, of the team known as Adelaide and Lilian Martini, trapeze artists and gymnasts, has died in Luxemburg. She was but 31.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your report for the Gaiety, Blyth, last week, you mention us as Olgo and Rochelle; it should have been—Yours faithfully, Clyo and Rochelle, in An Actor's Antics.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Vesta Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

Subscribed to date, 2212½ shillings.

THE HIPPODROME.

On Monday, April 1, the New Sensational Spectacle, in Four Scenes, written by Alicia Ramsay and Rudolph de Cordova, with Music by Carl Kiefert, entitled

"THE TYPHOON."

George Clifford .....MR. HARRISON BROCKBANK
Dick Sandford .....MR. CECIL MORTON YORK
Chi Chen .....MR. J. G. GRAHAME
David MacGregor .....MR. BERT GILBERT
Ling Fu .....MR. J. WINDHAM GUISE
Kate Vincent .....MISS MARY ALLESTREE

The reputation which the Hippodrome has won for its spectacular and sensational productions bids fair to be considerably increased by the latest addition to its programme, The Typhoon, which was presented as the big holiday attraction at both performances on Monday. Packed audiences witnessed the new production, and expressed unqualified approval both of the ingeniously worked spectacular effects and the general representation of the piece. Once more has Mr. Frank Parker, the producer, achieved a notable success by cleverly availing himself of the opportunities which the Hippodrome offers for remarkable realistic stage effects. The authors, Miss Alicia Ramsay and Mr. Rudolph de Cordova, are also to be congratulated on the excellent manner in which they have performed their share of the work; while the music, by Mr. Carl Kiefert, is tuneful and appropriate.

The heroine of the love-story, which is, as it were, the framework of the new production, is an English girl, Kate Vincent, who has been abducted by a rich mandarin named Chi Chen, and conveyed to a Chinese temple. The man to whom she is engaged to be married, George Clifford, a young English merchant, fortunately discovers the whereabouts of his sweetheart, and contrives to rescue her. The couple are entered as passengers on board the steamer called the Albatross, which is on the point of departure from a Chinese port. This vessel is a prominent object in the first scene, which is full of animation and picturesque detail. Chi Chen, it appears, is not prepared to allow the Englishman to get the best of him if it can be helped, and so he disguises himself as a priest, and, together with a number of followers he can depend upon, and a sacred joss, he becomes a passenger on board the steamer, the captain being induced, by a substantial bribe, to consent to the arrangement, which, however, meets with the disapproval of David MacGregor, the Scotch engineer on board the Albatross. The vessel has not proceeded very far on her homeward voyage when the disguised Chinamen suddenly attack the crew and overpower them. They and the officers are made prisoners, and Kate is again in the power of Chi Chen. But the Chinaman has not reckoned on the elements upsetting all his plans. There are signs that the much-dreaded typhoon is approaching, and both sky and sea assume an angry aspect. A thunderstorm breaks overhead, and the vessel has to meet the increasing fury of the gale. The Chinese on board are no sailors, and they are compelled to release the English crew to navigate the storm-tossed ship.

The cinématograph vividly depicts the steamer with the waves breaking over her bows, as she cuts her way through the troubled waters. Then the curtain rises again, showing the fate of the Albatross, which has become a wreck; while in a lifeboat is seen Kate and her sweetheart, who have escaped from the doomed ship, and who, we may anticipate, will ultimately reach a haven of safety.

Mr. Harrison Brockbank plays the part of the hero in a bold, dashing style, which is quite in keeping with the part. He also introduces a song with good effect. Miss Mary Allestree is a pleasing representative of Kate Vincent. Mr. J. G. Grahame plays well as Chi Chen, the villain of the piece; and Mr. Cecil Morton York gives useful assistance as Dick Sandford, the Captain of the steamship. The comedy element is well supplied by Mr. Bert Gilbert as David MacGregor, the engineer, who assumes a broad Scotch accent, and is not indifferent to the fascination of the drink usually associated with bonnie Scotland. Mr. J. Windham Guise as a Chinaman completes the cast. At the first performance Mr. Frank Parker appeared in response to the hearty applause which the latest Hippodrome sensation evoked.

The Easter programme also includes the Lukushimas, in their original Japanese pot-pourri; the Mezzettis, who are responsible for a very smart comedy bar act; the Stein-Eretto Family, who greatly distinguish themselves as table jumpers and vaulters; Prince Kokin, the Japanese who performs wonderful juggling feats; A. D. Robbins, a trick cyclist, who wins much applause; and Tina Clementina, in her sporting act, with highly-trained horse and dogs; the Schenk Brothers, head and hand balancers; Helene and Emilion, gymnasts; the Renard Trio, acrobats; Lavater Lee, the favourite funny man; and last, but by no means least, Mariedl, the "largest lady in the world," whose abnormal height excites much astonishment. Altogether, Easter holiday-makers who have patronised the Hippodrome, have had excellent value for their money. Mr. Fred Trussell is the popular acting-manager here.

"A JAPANESE LOVE STORY."

A Musical Scena, in One Act, by Fred Cooper and Alf Lezor, produced on Monday, April 1, at the Empire, Camberwell.

Lieut. Vernon .....MR. STEPHEN HARLAND
Princess Gryson .....MISS LINA FRANKS
Wishee-Washee .....MR. W. S. POWER
The Mikado .....MR. FRED COOPER

Set in a strikingly pretty Japanese lantern scene of The Mikado's Garden, this charming miniature musical comedy is brimful of tuneful music, delightful songs and duets, and fascinating dancing, and tells how Lieut. Vernon, of H.M. Navy, loves, and is beloved by the Mikado's dainty and pretty daughter, the Princess Gryson. Being her birthday, the Mikado tells his daughter that he can refuse her nothing, and leaves her with her waiting maids to enjoy herself in the garden, but enjoins the Chinaman Wishee-Washee not to allow any intruder, on pain of losing his head. The Princess's English lover soon comes in search of his lady-love, and easily bribes the wily Chinee to keep watch while he wanders with the Princess. The Mikado's return surprises the lovers, and the exalted one threatens the beheadal of both the Lieutenant and the Chinee, but the Princess reminds him of his promise, and eventually he consents to the union of England and Japan.

Miss Lina Franks as the Princess is charming, and infuses the spirit of mirth into her renderings of "My Rickshaw Queen," and into her duets with the Lieutenant, "My Girl of Japan" and "Far from my homeland." As the Lieutenant Mr. Stephen Harland makes a manly and ardent lover, and renders with much expression "The Star of my Life," the pretty and tuneful chorus of which eagerly caught the fancy of the audience. As the wily Chinee Wishee-Washee Mr. W. S. Power gives a careful character-study, and makes his mark in his song and dance, "Let me be your Chinee man." Mr. Fred Cooper has little to do as the Mikado, but does that little effectively. The four Mikado Girls display artistic ability in song and dance.

ONE space on the Sands at Muston, Filey, is vacant from July 1 to Sept. 30, and the Foreshore Committee invite offers from open-air entertainers, Pierrots included. Tenders are to be forwarded not later than the 24th inst. to Mr. F. H. Read, 14, Dean-road, Scarborough.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Crowded audiences have been attracted to the Lyceum this week to see The Beauty of Bath, represented by Mr. Seymour Hicks, Miss Ellaline Terriss, and company. The main point about a piece in which Mr. Hicks appears is that he shall have scope for his exuberant, irresistible humour, and in the part of Lieut. Richard Allington, R.N., the actor enhances his reputation for contributing to the gaiety of playgoers. Miss Ellaline Terriss plays with the freshness and charm which appeal to the most blasé habitué of the theatre, and the clever, versatile comedians who support the principals enter very heartily into the spirit of the play. Mr. Lawrence Caird is an amusing Lord Quorn; and Mr. William Lugg, Mr. Stanley Brett, Mr. E. W. Royce, Mr. J. C. Buckstone, and Mr. Cecil Kinnaird give capital pieces of acting. Miss Sydney Fairbrother's lively, entertaining impersonation of Mrs. Goodge adds another to the list of humorous portraits of this ingenious comedienne; and Miss Maudi Darrell as Miss Truly St. Cyr and Miss Florence Lloyd as Mrs. Allington deserve high praise for meritorious work. Master Valchera is very droll as Lemon Goodge; and others who make a favourable impression are Miss Marion Lindsay as Lady Bun and Miss Nell Carter as the Hon. Dorothy Quorn. The performances of chorus and orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Carl Kiepert, are thoroughly good, and the play is splendidly staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The entertainment at the Theatre Royal this week passed from drama to vaudeville. Under the direction of Mr. Walter De Frece a season of five months' variety performances was begun on Monday last. Mr. De Frece made an excellent start with his opening programme, which was strong, and full of interest from first to last. The theatre was crowded, and enthusiasm ran high. Mr. John Le Hay, Miss Mary Duggan, and Mr. Chas. Cantley appeared in an amusing sketch entitled Poor Beggar, in which Mr. Le Hay gave a clever bit of acting as a cheery mendicant, and sang with effect. Loud applause, again and again renewed, greeted the fine rendering of several violin solos by Mr. Jan Rudenyi, in a clever dramatic piece The Power of Music; Miss Dora De Winton and Mr. John D. Saunders gave admirable support. Jack and Evelyn scored a great success in their smart comedy sketch, and were several times recalled; Miss Joan Deeming sang expressively and played the violin well; Miss Jose Collins, who possesses a fresh, clear voice of much sweetness, delighted the audience; Mlle. Nina Martino made a hit by her effective interpretation of a French ballad and the well-known "Every morn I bring thee violets"; Mr. Victor Courtenay supplied an attractive turn, with imitations on the piano; Mr. Fred Terry was a capital comedian; Les Marsumas displayed wonderful daring and not a little humour in their trick bicycling feats; Hurmann, as club juggler and hoop manipulator proved himself an expert performer; and Leo Kronan's military spectacle, Our Boys in Blue, was carried through with great dash. Pictures shown by the Bioscope completed an admirable bill of fare.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company appear this week in a special revival of that exceedingly lively facical comedy A Night Out. A large house assembled on Monday night to welcome this favourite piece. Mr. Edward Thirlby as Pinglet, the master builder, kept the fun going in rattling style; and Mr. Charles Sugden, in his original character of Paillard, was quietly effective. Mr. Mark Lester as Mathieu, the stammering notary, Mr. Geoffrey Saville as Maxime, and Mr. Dare Austin as Brochard, the police inspector, all contributed to the gaiety of the performance; while Mr. Charles Sugden as Marcelle, Miss Constance Groves as Angelique, and Miss Lilian Stafford as Victorine carried off the many diverting situations with brightness and skill. The piece was preceded by The Ruby Heart, a one-act play by Josephine Rae and Thomas Sydney, in which Messrs. Austin, Lester, and Saville, and the Misses Lilian Stafford and Lilian Elen, along with other members of the company, distinguished themselves.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—A capital Easter holiday programme is being presented at this house twice nightly. A great attraction is Clive Darrell, "the jilted giant," 8ft. 8in. high, whose love affairs have caused a good deal of talk. The Ten Loonies appear in Dotty, a mad musical sketch by the mad musicians, in which they cause no end of fun. The Three Amaranths are girl dancers, who give a very graceful speciality turn; Kitty, Marion, and Lizzie Fletcher are comediennes of undoubted merit; as a singer Mr. Arthur Lennard has long been a great favourite here, and his songs are as taking as ever; Chris Richards and his moving antics prove to be a source of great amusement; and Goggin and Davis as comedy acrobats are also very clever and comical. In their novelty tit-bits the Only Two Bostons provide a turn of unique interest; and the remaining item on the programme, the singing and dancing of the Neilson Sisters, is very well done.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—The Royal Quintette of international dancers hold first place here this week, and their turn is an excellent one; the Sisters Clare are delightful singers and dancers, and arouse much enthusiasm; Mr. Carl Howard is very droll in his blend of comicalities and conjuring; Lindsay and Harte give a capital musical sketch; and Miss Marie Yorke, Miss Lily Foy, Mr. Dan Noble, and Mr. Tom Laurel are also in the programme, to which views shown by the Alhambrascope lend further variety.

BRIDLINGTON MUNICIPAL ORCHESTRA

The inauguration of the season 1907 at the above thriving seaside resort took place on the evening of the 28th ult. in the new Grand Pavilion of the Royal Prince's Parade, which has gradually increased in popularity since the management was placed in the hands of Mr. Charles Palmer, who has never ceased to urge upon the committee who have charge of the entertainment part of the Corporation's property the necessity of a first-class orchestra for this fashionable resort. This year the musical arrangements have been placed in the hands of Mr. Joseph Sainton, who comes with a reputation as a conductor of the London County Council orchestras and Crystal Palace Theatre, and he has got together a clever band of soloists. There was a crowded audience on the evening of the 28th ult. in the Grand Pavilion, when Mr. Sainton was introduced by the Mayor (Mr. Alderman Sawdon), and he received a true Yorkshire welcome, which was further emphasised when his finely-balanced orchestra had given the audience a taste of their excellence. The chairman of the Entertainment Committee (Mr. Councillor Southcott) and the manager (Mr. Charles Palmer) assured the audience that they had secured the best candidate from the hundreds of applicants for the position, and Mr. Palmer gave a brief outline of the engagements which he had made for the entertainment of the visitors during the coming season.

THE Apollo Music Hall, Paris, of which Mr. F. King, of 5, Rue Lafitte, is the sole booking agent, now in course of erection, is announced to open to-day.

CHAT WITH MR. J. W. EDGAR.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Mr. J. W. Edgar who is in his eleventh year of management at the Metropolitan Music Hall, Edgware-road, can boast an interesting, and at one period an exciting, career.

Mr. Edgar's first insight into matters affecting the conduct of entertainments was gained as a soldier in India, where he used to organise concerts and the production of plays for his own regiment, the 7th Hussars. He returned home from India in 1870, after twelve years' military service, and was engaged at the Oxford in 1872, and remained at that house for twenty years. He was the counsellor of the late Mr. J. H. Jennings, until the lease of the house was sold to Mr. J. Kirk, who parted with his interest in 1892 to the Syndicate. On leaving the Oxford Mr. Edgar entered into partnership with the late Mr. Graff, the Continental agent, of Leicester-square, and was instrumental in introducing to the public such now famous artists as Miss Connie Ediss, Miss Ida René, Miss Millie Lindon, Mr. George Robey, Miss Amy Clevere, Miss Maud Mortimer, and the Colibris Midgets, besides which he was the first to give a series of dates to Mr. Dan Crawley and Mr. Dan Thomas. He it was, too, who initiated the form of entertainment known as tableaux-vivants, which proved so successful at the Palace Theatre some years ago. It was to Mr. Edgar's sound judgment and foresight that the engagement at the Alhambra for a period of forty-two weeks of Ganivet, the French eccentric comedian, was due. Mr. Edgar saw Ganivet on his first appearance in London, and at once realised what an attraction he would prove.

[Photo by Whiteley.

After being approached by Mr. George Adney Payne to take over the management of a London hall, Mr. Edgar sold his agency business, and on Mr. Payne's recommendation to Mr. Henri Gros, became manager of the Metropolitan. The old "Met." was formed into a limited company and then rebuilt, Mr. Edgar being retained in his former capacity. "In the first year of reopening," says Mr. Edgar, "we paid a dividend of 15 per cent. The next year the profits were the same, but we were able to pay, in addition, a bonus to the old shareholders. Last year, which was a very bad one for the music-hall business, when several of the largest halls in town paid no dividend, we were able to announce 5 per cent."

"Artists' salaries have a great deal to do with declining dividends," he goes on to remark. "Many of the performers receive excessive remuneration in consequence of the keen competition. We are being overrun with music halls, and no further new variety establishments are needed for the present, and probably for a long time to come, in the Metropolis at least. So far as our own hall is concerned, I am proud of the good opinion in which it is held by the local people."

A full share of exciting experiences fell to Mr. Edgar's lot during his service in India. In an engagement with the Afridis at Shub Kuddur he was wounded in the leg and had his horse shot under him. At that time Colonel (now Lord) Roberts had charge of the troops on the North-West Frontier, and some hard fighting took place between the British troops and the rebellious natives. For the campaign referred to Mr. Edgar received a medal and clasp. No doubt Mr. Edgar's acquired discipline as a soldier has been used to good advantage in the management of the Metropolitan.

The "Met." is situated on an historic site. According to old records, in the year 1524, when Henry VIII. was King, there existed in the "pleasant little rural village of Padynton" (now Paddington), about a mile from Tyburn Gate, where commences the Edgware-road, a celebrated hostelry yclept the White Lion. Wayfarers and villagers, as well as merrymakers from the adjacent Paddington Green, made it their rendezvous, and here, to the accompaniment of pipe and tabour, the happy country folk would make holiday. To-day the White Lion still exists, but upon and around its site is built the Metropolitan Theatre of Varieties, the inn being snugly enclosed, as it were, by two of the entrances of the music hall. It is said that the old sign which hung in front of the tavern was painted by George Morland, who used to carouse there with his friends. The ancient White Lion was a coaching-house (until it was rebuilt in 1837), and attached to it was a livery stable, the foreman of which was a Mr. White, whose daughter was the celebrated "Wiry Sal"—Mlle. Sarah, we believe she first called herself—who was one of the first to introduce the can-can in England. It was from a small room, capable of accommodating about 150 people, that the present great Metropolitan Music Hall sprang. The house was reconstructed in 1865, and purchased by Mr. Henri Gros in 1892. For five years he ran it most successfully, and in 1897 it was closed for rebuilding. The foundation stone of the new house was laid by Mr. John Aird, M.P. for Paddington, on Aug. 17, 1897, and on Dec. 22 of the same year it was reopened as the present magnificent palace of varieties.

AMUSEMENTS IN LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Mr. William Greet is deserving of thanks for the excellent company he has sent here this week with The Earl and the Girl. Jim Cheese is most ably played by Mr. William Stephens; Mr. Arthur Harrold, with his fine voice and careful acting makes a perfect Dick Wargrave; Miss Frances Earle wins a flattering reception for her delightful Elphin; Miss Jennie Richards gives evidence that she thoroughly understands the part of the brusque, merry-hearted Liza Shoddam; Miss Beatrice Anderson fits the rôle of Mrs. Shimmering Black to a nicety; Downham was capitally presented by Mr. W. Norman; and Mr. Percy E. Wright does justice to Boodle.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Love that Women Desire is the attraction at this house. Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company includes Mr. J. O. Stewart, whose Squire Abingdon is well conceived; Mr. Alfred Brandon, who plays with discretion as Richard Abingdon; Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson from whom comes a delightful picture of the Farmer Carnaby; and Miss Lalla Stanhope, a good Sybil Thorburn.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Despite many repetitions, the drawing powers of A Royal Divorce seem to be undiminished. Miss Edith Cole is again the Josephine and Mr. Frederick Victor the Napoleon. Miss Agnes Imlay is a capital Marie Louise.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A programme of exceptional talent has drawn good business during the holiday week in spite of the fine warm weather. Charles Majilton and company hold the premier position in an amusing sketch entitled The Scotsman in Paris; Sterling and Love are clever both as vocalists and instrumentalists; the Sisters Melba come in for a full share of the applause for their pleasing songs; Emmie Anness is a delightful comedienne; Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston are good in their sketch, Practical Joking; Fields and Lewis are clever; Harry Bancroft is also good.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Wep-Ton-No-Mah is on a return visit here. The work of Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk as the Indian mail carrier, is greatly admired; Mr. C. W. Charles does excellently as Colonel Stockton; and a sufficiently villainous Manuel Lopes is found in Mr. Edward Leroy.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—The beautiful tableaux shown by Henriette De Serris and company occupy a prominent place in the programme here this week. An acceptable turn comes from the El Tampico trio of Mexican troubadours; a deal of merriment is aroused by the comedians Cedar and Elgar; Nell Emerald renders several songs in pleasing style; Barrington Foote and company have a neatly presented episode, The End of the Story; Sam Spira sings and patters at the piano; Talberto and Douglas are eminently amusing with their talk and antics; as comedy acrobatic equilibrists the Two Falcons prove very enjoyable; and others in the list are Arthur Royce, comedian at the piano; and Woolmer Young, vocalist.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. Good business continues to be done here by the "Royal" Stock Company, who this week are producing Walter Howard's A Life's Revenge. Mr. Percy Boucher proves exceedingly funny as Nicholas Bobliskioff; Mr. Sydney Grant plays with effect the rôle of Prince Boris; a manly Paul comes from Mr. Harry Tresham; and Mr. Robert Wilton handles the part of Maurice Trevor with credit; Miss Beryl Ravenswood is a dignified Marcia; Miss Florence Palmer earns popularity for her Princess Vanda; and satisfactory work is also done by Mr. Cecil Ravenswood (Colonel Tumbleoff), Mr. Leo Montgomery (Clarence Chesterfield), and Miss Florence Cameron (Acoulina). The Royal Bioscope has the latest pictures.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The "Royal" Stock Company are here this week, presenting E. Hill-Mitchelson's drama, When the Lights are Low, the principal parts in which are held by Messrs. Charles Herberte (Admiral Goldsworthy), Frank S. Strickland (Captain Goldsworthy), Wallace Campbell (Guy Goldsworthy), H. G. Brandon (Ikey), Francis E. Wybert (Macpherson), Miss Gladys Hastings-Walton (Nan), Miss Nina Nazeby (Violet), and Miss Evelyn Kingston (Stella). The latest pictures on the Royal Bioscope are a feature of the programme.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Top of the programme here this week are Gladys and Alber, a humorous couple, who present a novel comedy tumbling act; the dancing Gilberts earn loud applause; Loudon Cameron has some mystifying conjuring tricks; the Melroses submit a funny sketch, The New Page; as a comedian Bob Williams raises many a laugh; and Violet Ashcroft has some papular songs.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—In big type here this week is The Duchess of Tooting, a capital musical comedy presented by Sydney Bacon and company. The wonderful diving feat of Kearney P. Speedy was watched with breathless astonishment; Albert Whelan came in for a cordial reception on account of his smart all-round entertainment; a pretty show, entitled The Punch and Judy Girl, produced by C. S. John Denton and George Rowland's company of juveniles, including little Marjorie Lawrence, was appreciated; Bert Harrow provoked great laughter with his songs and patter; the Robertys proved themselves exceedingly clever juvenile whirlwind dancers; Tom Lally, possessing a rich bass voice, rendered songs in good style; Frank Couch was full of new patter; and Blanche Vincent, comedienne, acquitted herself with credit. "Across the Atlantic in Ten Minutes" was the title of the attractive bioscope film.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Wilkie Bard, at the top of the bill here this week, has proved as big a draw as ever; Lil Hawthorne, a favourite in Liverpool, earned a flattering reception for her latest songs; Fernie's Juveniles, including the Sisters Herbert, created great fun; Arthur Aldridge rendered most pleasingly several tenor songs; much laughter followed the acrobatic work of The Tupps; Isobel Dillon and child presented a neat singing and dancing speciality; the somersault work of the Huxter Brothers won loud applause; an attractive dramatic episode, The Mystery of the Cliff, by Will Evans and Tom Craven, was much appreciated; and Tray and Rich, black and white comedians, were exceedingly diverting.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—Another attractive bill is offered here this week, at the head of it being the Three Olympiers, whose beautiful posing has aroused a deal of appreciation; Terry and Lambert, an able comedy couple, came in for hearty applause by reason of their smart burlesques; Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls earned encores for their neat songs and dances; some excellent pieces were rendered by the Five Casinos, brass instrumentaliste; Chas. J. Johnson, the black diamond, proved as amusing as ever; Georgina Leonard had a number of popular songs, and creditable turns came from Maud Esmond, vocal comedienne; Dan Whitley, comedian; and Harry Wenburn, comedian.

HAYMARKET.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—The prolonged engagement here of Harry Calden and company continues, the dramatic sketch this week being A Romany's Trust, or, the Reward of Crime. Variety turns are given by Chris Masters, who has some taking songs; Nell Brough, vocalist and whistler; and Joe Perry, speciality artist. The Haymarket Bioscope shows excellent films.

THEATRE MODERNE.—Licensee, Mr. Gooes.—This place, formerly known as the Parthenon Music Hall, is doing good business with its excellent selection of bioscope pictures.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

The principal attraction at this popular home of vaudeville this week is the production of "a musical incident" entitled The Punch Bowl. The curtain on rising discovers a group of old English gentlemen gathered round the festive board, and, after a number of songs, the episode concludes with their departure for bed at cockcrow. Nothing in the shape of a connected story is attempted, but the music of the vocal numbers, of which there are some half-dozen, displays considerable merit, both from a melodious and musicianly point of view; and Miss Constance Gippett, who is responsible for the score, is to be congratulated on her efforts. Messrs. G. P. Huntley and Herbert Clayton, whose company present the trifle, have not spared expense in mounting it, the scene and hunting costumes strongly reminding one of Mr. Aldin's hunting pictures. Messrs. John Donald, Aubrey Carter, Albert Chapman, Robert Selby, Milroy Cooper, Albert Sims, and Ralph Nairn, who portray the various characters, all work well, particular mention being due to a study of the old Squire, a neat little sketch. Applause of a hearty nature followed the progress of the novelty, which from its original and pleasing features should make no uncertain bid for popular approval. The Gothams occupy the other position of honour this week, and in their singing and humorous business make as good an impression as ever. Frank Leslie in "The Kerbstone Millionaire" meets with a good reception. Dion Wade does well with his song, "What do you want to talk about it for?" and his imitations of Harry Lauder and George Robey (particularly the latter) are very clever, his reception being very gratifying. Mlle. Ameda, a speciality artist, submits a clever and entertaining turn, her concluding business with three large balls displaying considerable skill, and her act gains much applause. Mr. Thomas E. Finglass, a delineator of negro life, has two very good songs; the first, "My Burma Belle," is a pretty song, and was cordially greeted, and his second item, "Idaho," in which he was assisted by Miss Gracie Persse and a girl quartette, is very bright and attractive, a feature being the dance at the finish. A very hearty call rewards his efforts. The Macarte Sisters give a very skilful performance on the tight wire, and their ability as musicians and dancers is displayed to advantage. The turn finishes with a sensational serpentine dance performed by one of the trio on a slack wire suspended from the teeth of the other two, who are hanging from a trapeze. A well-earned call at the close testifies to their success. Alexandre and Hughes in gag and melody cause some genuine amusement, their ability as musical entertainers also being much in evidence. Frank Bertram and Co., in a comedy sketch, The Chaperon, are responsible for some hearty laughter. The plot turns on the assumption by a man-servant of the rôle of a mother in order to respect the scruples of Mrs. Grundy during the visit of his master's fiancée. The situations that are thus created lend themselves to hilarity, a fact of which Mr. Bertram and the lady and gentleman who support him take every advantage. The reception of the sketch was very cordial, and the call undeniable. The Bioscope continues to be an attraction.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Amusement-seekers whose tents are pitched in Canning Town have every reason to entertain sentiments of gratitude towards Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, proprietor and manager of this go-ahead establishment, for the excellence of the entertainment he places before them. Even on such a record-breaking day—climatically speaking—as Easter Monday, when the glorious weather offered almost irresistible temptations to holiday-makers to enjoy themselves out of doors, the three complete performances presented by Mr. Hunt were of a sufficiently attractive nature to lure thousands of his patrons within the walls of his cool, cosy, and comfortable hall, there to enjoy a programme that would be difficult to surpass for mirth-provoking qualities. The bill is topped this week by Leonard Mortimer and his clever company, in the interesting sensational sketch, The Country's Cause, which tells the story of an English officer who, in the face of great temptation, does his duty nobly for his country. The sketch is a cleverly-constructed piece of work, carried out in dialogue at once pointed and appropriate, and commendably free from bombast. Mr. Mortimer himself, with his well-known breeziness of manner and his engaging personality, makes an attractive figure of the hero, entirely succeeding in enlisting the sympathies of his audience. The chief actor is well supported in every part; but as the programme does not supply the cast we are unable to award individual commendation to the ladies and gentlemen engaged. Suffice it to say that all work loyally in support of "the chief," and richly deserve the applause which accompanies their performance. The piece is effectively staged and dressed.

Mr. Johnny Fuller, described as "the great little cat on the wire," dances, leaps, and walks the wire, with wonderful dexterity, at the same time preserving an almost lifelike fidelity to the habits of the domestic pussy. Mr. Charles Ulrick astonishes his audience with his performance as a barrel and "trancka" wonder. The Brothers Ashley contribute a comedy boxing sketch, Next, Please, which goes with a perfect roar of laughter from beginning to end. The humours of the sketch are simply irresistible, and it is played for all it is worth by Messrs. Harry Ashley and Wag Ashley, who indulge in a boxing match, W. Barnes, and Frank Yapp. A pretty, original, and interesting sketch, entitled Captain Hamilton, V.C., deals with the remorse of a would-be burglar when confronted with the innocence of a little boy. Whimsical Walker gives a close, delicate study of the "waster," and is well seconded by Miss Molly Moore, who plays the part of the boy with an artistic taste and refinement that are really wonderful in one so young. To Mr. Tom Collins is, perhaps, due the credit of introducing to the élite of Canning Town the newest dress for "dandy" men, and his immaculate frock costume of purple suits him admirably. Not more so, however, than his two songs, the latter of which, the popular "Fly Away," goes remarkably well. The finishing touch, "Fly away Bannerman, come back Joe," meeting with the approval that clearly indicates the political views of the majority of the audience. Vernon and Burdell repeat a success as speciality artists that has won for them success wherever they have appeared. The Burnells, in their popular sketch, On the Links, are responsible for uproarious hilarity, which is as spontaneous as it is well deserved; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux show some clever films. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. J. Stark, plays an admirable overture. Mr. Alfred Levy, assistant-manager and secretary of the Palace, works well for the comfort and convenience of the audience, and Mr. A. G. Everitt proves himself an able stage-manager.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Mr. Ben Greet and his company are fulfilling an engagement at the Garden Theatre, presenting a series of Shakespearean plays after the Elizabethan manner. Despite the lack of scenery and the accessories, which are commonly deemed indispensable to present-day dramatic enterprises, the performances given by Mr. Greet and his excellent company have been uniformly successful. The first play of the present series, The Merchant of Venice, was given for one week to a very satisfactory attendance. Macbeth is the current offering, with Julius Cæsar and As You Like It to follow. Everyman, with which Mr. Greet's name will always be associated, is to be the appropriate Easter attraction.

Mr. George Bernard Shaw's satirical comedy, Widowers' Houses, was produced for the first time in America last week by the Messrs. Shubert, at the Herald-square Theatre, and the piece is being presented as an afternoon attraction. The cast includes Mr. Herbert Kelcey, Miss Effie Shannon, Mr. William F. Hawtrey (specially engaged), and Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk. It will be remembered that the action of the comedy, largely used as an excuse for clever dialogue, is intended to satirise the greed of London tenement house landlords.

"Mrs. Warren's Profession," theatrical fare which the authorities pronounced too unsavoury for popular consumption when it was offered at the Garrick Theatre last season, has been dished up again at the Manhattan Theatre without let or hindrance. According to the announcements, three thousand people were turned away on the opening night. Miss Mary Shaw appears in the title-rôle, as she did in the original production, and the cast includes Miss Catherine Courtiss and Mr. E. J. Ratcliffe.

Mr. E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe have lately divided their time between Jeanne d'Arc, Romeo and Juliet, The Sunken Bell, and Twelfth Night. Large and appreciative audiences have been the rule, thanks to the finished art of the principals and the general excellence of the supporting company, of which Mr. Rowland Buckstone is a particularly popular member.

"On Parole," a four-act play, by Louis Evan Shipman, lately produced by Mr. Henry Miller at the Majestic Theatre, met with a favourable reception. The scenes are laid in Virginia during the period of the Civil War. Constance Pinckney is the bearer of secret dispatches to General Lee, and Major Dale, of the Federal Army, is in pursuit of her. He traces her to a rude dwelling, where she has quickly doffed her riding habit and put on a gingham dress belonging to Lucy Cress, the daughter of the humble house. There is a capital scene of cross-questioning and parrying, and the soldier is completely hoodwinked. The girl describes a short cut to her own home, knowing that he will disbelieve her, and take the longer road. This enables her to ride home first, and when they meet again she appears before him as the well-gowned and high-bred daughter of a distinguished Southern family. In the meantime she has sent word of the Northerners' coming to her brother, an officer in the Confederate Army, and undertakes to detain her visitor until troops arrive. The pair fall in love, but Major Dale discovers the trick that has been played upon him, and to prevent the girl from giving further aid to the Southern cause, puts her "on parole." This she agrees to, and tries to countermand her order to her brother, but is too late, and the Northern officer is trapped. His predicament, he thinks, is due to the Southern girl's duplicity, and not until a year later, when he saves her brother and brings him back wounded to the old Southern homestead, are the lovers brought together again and made happy. As Major Dale and Constance Pinckney, Mr. Vincent Serrano and Miss Charlotte Walker won the sympathey of the audience, playing their parts in a capable manner. Among the supporting company, Mr. Robert Cummings distinguished himself by his lifelike representation of a crippled soldier, on whom devolves the heart-breaking task of announcing Grant's victory and Lee's surrender.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

Dr. Walford Bodie is here this week, and with him a company of variety artists. Dr. Bodie gives an effective exhibition of the passing of electricity through his body, and this is followed by a humorous interlude, in which any member of the audience is invited to join, though few seem anxious to experiment. Those who do venture on the stage make the house roar with laughter at their evident surprise and discomfort, as they get unexpected "shocks." A wire is passed round the audience, and they are invited to have a shock; but here, again, few seem to desire an intimate acquaintance with electricity. Then the serious part of the performance commences, and some former patients come on the stage and give expression to their thankfulness to Dr. Bodie for the cures effected. Subsequently Dr. Bodie proceeds to treat a new patient. On the evening of our visit a young lady with paralysis of the leg was operated on, and after a few minutes' application of the electric current, she walked off the stage, carrying her leg-irons under her arm. Dr. Bodie is supported by a very capable company of variety artists, including Russell Reed and company, in a farcical comedietta, entitled Binks's Blunder; Bella Skene, burlesque actress; Clarence Mignon, an expert banjoist; Tom W. Mills, an actor-vocalist with a capital patriotic song; the Musical Acmes, in a drawing-room entertainment; and Belford and Mars, singers and dancers.

FOOTBALL.

The Bristol XLCR, Bristol Early Closers, Bristol XLCR Second, Harry Hare's Orchestral Band A.F.C., and Music Halls A.F.C. arranged an enjoyable ramble in the country for Good Friday. In the afternoon a football match took place. The following were the teams:—

Harry Hare's XI.—H. Beldings (goal); A. Hamlin (captain), and J. Lewis (backs); H. Slade, F. Harrison, and A. Mattock (half-backs); H. Edwards, E. Bowman, J. Aubrey, E. Belding, and P. Hewlett (forwards).

J. Pacey's XI.—F. B. Nicholls (goal); A. Cox and B. Elmore (backs); F. Thorne, J. Lacey (captain), and D. O'Connor (half-backs); H. C. Douglas, J. Leonard, M. Leonard, P. Reardon, and H. Clements (forwards).

Referee, H. Hare. Linesmen, G. Hedges and W. J. Horton. Result: Harry Hare's XI., nil; Joe Lacey's XI., four goals. J. Aubrey (two), J. Lacey and J. Lewis scored for the winning team.

The match was followed in the evening by a concert of an appropriate character.

Visitors to the Crystal Palace should not fail to see an entertainment which is now being given by Mr. Howard Crispin and his clever daughter in the Egyptian Court in the North Nave. It is almost sufficient to say that for seven years the Crispins were connected with Maskelyne and Cooke's entertainment in order to secure the interest of the public. Miss Crispin is mesmerised and blindfolded. In absolute silence she will then carry out any suggestions made to Mr. Crispin by members of the audience. Ladies are still continuing to take a keen interest in the Ostrich Farm, which is a feature of interest at the Crystal Palace, and the sale of feathers and boas is daily increasing. It is interesting to note in connection with this show that the birds are all reared from incubators and fed by artificial means. On Saturday next, the last night of the season of the great Asphalt Roller Skating Rink at the Crystal Palace, the popular rink superintendent, Mr. Albert T. C. Bridge, will take his benefit. A grand gala programme has been arranged, and Mr. Bridge will introduce his little son Cecil age three years, assuredly the youngest child skater in the world.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"PIQUE DAME,"

Opera, in Three Acts and Seven Scenes, by P. Tschaikowsky, produced at the Royal Opera, March 20, 1907.

Hermann	Herr Gruening
Count Tomsky	Herr Hoffmann
Prince Jeletzky	Herr Griswold
Czekalinsky	Herr Philipp
Saurin	Herr Krasa
Tschaplitzky	Herr Assmann
Narumoff	Herr Nebe
Gräfin	Frau Goetze
Pauline	Fraulein Rothauser
Gouvenante	Frau von Scheele-Mueller
Lisa	Fraulein Destinn
Mascha	Fraulein Lindemann
Festordner	Herr Alma
Knabe	Fraulein Jansen
Chlos	Fraulein Dietrich
Plutus	Herr Hoffmann
Daphnis	Fraulein Rothauser

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, Thursday, March 28.—The first production here of Pique Dame—to which we had so long looked forward—cannot be entirely recorded as a success, although its reception was not lacking in cordiality. Of this opera Tschaikowsky himself wrote in 1890—on its completion—that it was probably a "heartily bad" work, if it did not appear so to him at the moment. This would, however, be saying too much; there are passages of great beauty, and a master-hand is visible throughout, but it is wearisome in many places, and fails where it should be impressive or dramatic. A perfectly delicious bit of composition is a rococo number in the second act, which compensates for a good deal of disappointment. The libretto is extremely poor, and utterly unworthy of Tschaikowsky's music. A brother of the composer is responsible for the ridiculous book. An old Gräfin of doubtful reputation has acquired in no very honourable manner a big fortune by gambling. Her "secret" has made her famous at the tables, where she is known as the "Queen of Spades" (pique dame). Lisa, her pretty grand-daughter, is betrothed to a Russian Prince, and beloved by an officer, Hermann, whose poverty is proverbial. The latter determines to wring the old Countess's secret of luck from her, in order that he, too, may make a big coup and cut out the Prince. He forces his way to the bedroom of the Queen of Spades, but she dies of fright at his threats and takes her secret with her. Shortly afterwards the Countess's ghost appears to Hermann to give him the desired information, and he rushes to the tables to put the system to the test. He finds that the ghost has cheated him—not unnaturally, in the circumstances—and in despair he commits suicide. The interpretation was most creditable. Mr. Griswold scored tremendously, the American artist being applauded by open stage, and Fräulein Destinn, needless to say, made the best of the rôle of Lisa. Frau Goetze gave a good account of the name-part, and praise must be accorded to Herren Hoffmann, Gruening, and Krasa. Kapellmeister Blech conducted with customary skill, the chorus and orchestra acquitting themselves splendidly.

"DER GOTT DER RACHE,"

Drama, in Three Acts, by Schalom Asch, produced at the Deutsches Theatre, March 24.

Schepschowitsch	Herr Schildkraut
Sara	Fraulein Wangel
Riwkele	Fraulein Eilienschutz
Hindl	Fraulein Durieux
Manjka	Fraulein Burger
Bassia	Fraulein Berger
Resl	Fraulein Kupfer
Schlojme	Herr Hartan
Reb Elje	Herr Herzfeld
Reb Aron	Herr Pagay
Jude	Herr Gottowt
Jüdin	Fraulein Wismar

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, Thursday, April 4.—Of all the realistic plays we have had the last year or two this perhaps depicts most drastically the seamy side of life. Schalom Asch is a Russian dramatist of the younger generation, and his plays—unlike those of his compatriot Gorki—have been very favourably received in his own country. The God of Vengeance has been translated from the Russian Yiddish into German, and is supposed to be typical of Russian lower-class criminal life; but, for the matter of that, the circumstances might fit the depraved classes of any nation. The play has some similarity with Sudermann's Die Ehre, and it may at once be stated that the reception accorded to it was an enthusiastic one. The author, who was present, was called again and again on to the stage to receive the plaudits of the large audience—composed largely, it must be admitted, of his own countrymen. A few words will be sufficient to depict the plot, which is as follows: The Jew, Jankel Schepschowitsch, is the proprietor of a house of ill-fame, upon the proceeds of which he has acquired a fortune. His wife Sara he had selected from the ranks of the same class, but his young daughter Riwkele he hopes to keep from all knowledge and contact with evil. Schepschowitsch—who is responsible for the misery and ruin of so many girls—worships his own child, who knows, of course, nothing of her father's "profession." Vengeance overtakes him, and a terrible one. Riwkele, in her girlish innocence, has conceived a violent affection for one of the girls "down below"—that portion of the house of which Schepschowitsch's daughter is to be kept apart. Her romantic nature leads her to go for a secret walk with her friend one May night, when she—Riwkele—is supposed to be sleeping. The poor girl is shamefully duped and seduced, and the father learns of the disgrace. He understands now how the father's sins are visited on the children, and his desperation increases until he loses his reason. He curses his child and thrusts her from him to join her ill-fated sisters beneath. This is a bare sketch of the plot; the lines may be filled in at will.

At the Lustspielhaus on Thursday a new one-act serious play was produced for the first time, sandwiched in between the merriest of farces. Its title is Halover, and the author is a lady—Frau Brock. There is but little to say in its favour, and the reason of its production is not easy to solve. The plot is most obscure, and what might be in other circumstances passable dialogue is rendered unintelligible by the mixture of dialects. The scene is laid in Friesland. An honest old ferryman—but obstinate withal—has forbidden his son Suno to have anything more to do with a neighbouring family named Ufinger, the reason being, as far as one can make out, lack of dowry on the part of the maiden whom Suno loves, and to whom he was once, with his father's consent, engaged. The elder man is ill in bed, Suno has charge of the ferry; but when the call "Hal ower" comes he is absent, having gone secretly to see his sweetheart. His father, in a fit of rage, gets up and obey's duty's call, but is brought home dying. Poor Suno is forced to promise to give up the girl of his heart, but we feel, as the curtain falls, that some day nature will be too strong and he will break his word. The little piece was cordially received, but will hardly see many more performances.

The Komische Oper produced Berlioz's Damnation de Faust recently with a good deal of success. Every justice was done to the beautiful music, Fräulein Artot in particular making a hit in the rôle of Margarete. Offenbach's charming Hoffmann's Erzählungen is still given two and three times a week, so that there is but little call for novelties.

Auzengruber's inexhaustible comedy, Der G'wissenswurm has been revived at the Luisen Theatre. The famous dramatist's plays will live for all time in this country and his native Austria, and Der G'wissenswurm is one of his best productions. It made its customary mark, being excellently interpreted in the principal characters. Herr Bach as Dusterer, Frau Witte-Bach as Horlacherlies, Herr Ruff in the part of Grillhofer, and Herr Merker as Wastl gave faultless renderings, and were frequently applauded by open stage. The amusing piece is running successfully through the holidays.

Herr Benno Jacobson has scored again by his four-act burlesque Der Triumph des Weibes, produced at the Apollo last week. Herren Helmesberger and Lincke have furnished some bright music to it, and the interpretation is a capital one. The plot is not easy to detail; in fact, there is hardly any plot worthy of the name; but the scenes are all brimful of fun, which is the chief thing after all in a piece of this kind. There are the usual number of couplets or topical patter-songs, all of which were received with frantic applause. Artists, authors, and manager were called repeatedly, and the piece will certainly enjoy a lengthy run.

The managers have done, as usual, excellent business during the Easter holidays. Popular pieces were given, mostly of a cheerful type. The Kleines, it is true, gave on Easter Sunday and Monday an afternoon performance of Maxim Gorki's gloomy tragedy Nachtasyl, but this piece has always, strangely enough, held a warm corner in the hearts of the Berliners. At the Residenz Theatre the broad farce Haben Sie nichts zu verzollen drew a crowded house at each performance. It has been given on fifty consecutive nights, and there is no diminution of popularity at present.

LADIES AT HOCKEY.

Miss Cecilia Fowler's Eleven v. Miss Winifred Bradley's Eleven.

Played near Clifton Downs on March 23. Miss Lilla Carter, although not quite recovered from her injury received in the match last Saturday, very pluckily turned out for her club. The following were the teams:—

Miss Fowler's Eleven:—Miss Ethel Bowman, goal; Miss Lilla Carter and Miss Ivy Bowman, backs; Miss Cecilia Fowler (captain), Miss May Dadley, and Miss Lillie Belding, half-backs; Miss Minnie Leonard, Miss Gracie Leonard, Miss Trixie Maynard, Miss Amy Bernard, and Miss Lillie Clayton, forwards.

Miss Bradley's Eleven:—Miss May Fisher, goal; Miss Alice Gibbs and Miss Rosie Davies, backs; Miss Edie Lawrence, Miss Gertrude Thomas, and Miss Nell Lawrence, half-backs; Miss Winifred Bradley (captain), Miss Irene Bradley, Miss Kit Montgomery, Miss Maudie Burgess, and Miss Minnie Hamilton, forwards.

Referee: Miss Nesta Beaumont.

Result: Miss Cecilia Fowler's Eleven, nil; Miss Winifred Bradley's Eleven, 1 goal. Miss Rosie Davies scored the goal.

Miss Cecilia Fowler's XI. v. Miss Winifred Bradley's XI.

Played near Clifton Downs on Saturday, March 30.

Included in the former team was Miss Nellie Bailey, a former member of the club, recently returned from Canada.

The following were the teams:—

Miss Fowler's XI.—Miss Ethel Bowman, goal; Miss Ivy Bowman and Miss Lilla Carter, backs; Miss Cecilia Fowler (Captain), Miss Lillie Belding, and Miss Nellie Bailey, half-backs; Miss Trixie Maynard, Miss Amy Bernard, Miss Florrie Hooper, Miss Bertha Godfrey, and Miss Alice Mitchell, forwards.

Miss Bradley's XI.—Miss May Fisher, goal; Miss Rosie Davies and Miss Alice Gibbs, backs; Miss Nell Lawrence, Miss Edie Lawrence, and Miss Gertrude Thomas, half-backs; Miss Irene Bradley, Miss Winnie Bradley (captain), Miss Kit Montgomery, Miss Minnie Hamilton, and Miss Lucy Norris, forwards.

Referee: Miss Maudie Burgess.

Result: Miss Bradley's XI., 1 goal; Miss Fowler's XI., nil. Miss Rosie Davies scored the only goal.

MELBOURNE, Feb. 20.—Theatre Royal (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant).—The sensational melodrama of Australian life entitled The Squatter's Daughter has evidently hit the public taste, and it is attracting large audiences nightly. Miss Eugenie Duggan as the heroine is pleasing and natural, and is ably supported by Mr. George Cross and the rest of Mr. Anderson's company. The scenery is on a lavish scale, and, taken on the whole, The Squatter's Daughter is undoubtedly one of Mr. Anderson's best productions this season.

Opera House (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—A strong bill is being presented just now, the chief attractions including Charles Leonard Fletcher and his clever impersonations, King and Benson, Charlene and Charlene, the Four Kwerries, Cora Casselli, Annie Laurie, Ada Saddler, Leonie Dixon, Rochefort and Hart, and Joe Lashwood; while other acceptable "turns" are given by Olive Robinson, Brightie Smith, Maud Florence, Eileen Lyons, and the Gaumont Chronophone. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Rickards, with his customary generosity, gave his theatre and the services of his entire company free for a matinée performance, in aid of the two little children of the late Mr. Frank Clark, who are in destitute circumstances. The performance was well attended, and it is understood a substantial sum has been raised for the two unfortunate children.

AMUSEMENTS IN BRUSSELS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Although spring has sprung upon us in a most unexpected manner, our theatres have been exceptionally well patronised during the Easter festivities.

The Royal Opera House (la Monnaie) plays to packed houses every night. Mary Garden is singing Manon, or Pelleas and Melisande, and Richard Strauss's splendid opera Salomé, translated from the words of Oscar Wilde, is in the bill. The first performance in Brussels took place last week, and the reception was enthusiastic.

The Parc has staged Daudet's Arlésienne ("The Love that Kills") with G. Bizet's tuneful score, and, needless to say, has found the revival financially successful.

The Olympia is crowded every night with people anxious to follow the innocently risky adventures of Paul Gavault and Robert Charvay's heroine, Mademoiselle Josette, ma Femme, so finely acted by Jane Delmar, Normand, and especially Treville, an actor not unknown in England.

The Alcazar has a very attractive item in Louis Forest's farce, Amour and Cie.

The Vaudeville, after 100 performances of Nothing to Declare? has revived Madame Mongodin for the fêtes, and is now playing Nos Omles s'Amusent, another farce of the usual Palais Royal type.

The Molière, having a host of good singers, has given us a few comic operas of the not too ancient style, such as Si j'étais Roi, Adam's gem, and Auber's well-known Domino Noir and Fra Diavolo, and is now billing Hirchmann's Petite Bohéme, pending a fine revival of Audran's Miss Helyett.

The management of the Galeries St. Hubert are giving revivals of their old successes before their retirement. Mme. Maugé and her son, who have conducted this favourite house for years, have come to the end of their lease, and the theatre will reopen next season under the able direction of M. Fonson, the Olympia's most artistic manager.

The Scala announces the last performances of Norman French, Dixon, and the gorgeous operetta Les Vierges du Harem. Their season has been particularly good.

Easter Eve witnessed, as every year, one of the principal events of the Brussels season, namely, the reopening of the Palace d'Eté, that unique establishment in Belgium which, since its opening, has steadily prospered under the clever management of Messrs. Malpertuis and Outshoorn. The hall has still been improved this year. The stalls are on a fine rake now to the end of the promenade, and one can see well from every seat, and even the top galleries have been provided with tip-up seats. As for the programme: The Sanderos, acrobats; the Three Sisters Rüderer, charming Tyrolese singers; Ganivet II., an eccentric comedian; the Friemel, on the parallel bars; Temkin Bulba, an artist who skilfully plays the accordion; the Elgonas, comic acrobats; the eccentric Thorn; the Nine Yankee-Doodle Girls, very clever in their dances, songs, and march past à la Tiller; the Three Seldoms, a beautiful representation of marble statues à la Marcel; and the lovely and graceful Dora Parnès, in her new original act, "the animated postcards." All these contributed to amuse and interest a record house, where predominated the English-speaking element.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The arbitration proceedings in the music-hall dispute will be resumed on Wednesday next. The artists expect to finish their case on that day and the proprietors' reply will occupy the remainder of the week. The following Monday the case for the stage employés will be opened by the evidence of witnesses, so it may be assumed that the next two weeks will finish the proceedings.

To-day (Saturday) will be the eleventh week for which dispute pay has been paid to members of the N.A.T.E. involved in the dispute. There are about forty still in receipt of an allowance.

A meeting of bioscope operators was held on Friday last in the office of the National Association of Theatrical Employés to consider various suggestions regarding the formation of a society for operators of living pictures, &c. Some propose that a separate society be formed, others that the V.A.F. be asked to admit operators, and others prefer that a separate branch be formed in connection with the N.A.T.E. These proposals will be submitted to the whole body of operators, and those interested in the matter are advised to write Mr. William Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

The Sothern-Marlow company, which will shortly open at the Waldorf Theatre, have brought quite a crowd of members of the American Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés, no less than ten members being with the company. Mr. J. O'Brien, a member of the New York Branch of the Alliance, is the master carpenter, Mr. Santray is the electrician, and Mr. Gupbolt the property master. Mr. Gupbolt is the only Britisher, and he worked at the Old Princess's Theatre, Oxford-street, many years ago. Not one of the members of the Alliance is in receipt of less than £5 a week, and some are receiving considerably more!

The committee formed to organise the Theatrical Regatta is now at work, and a meeting will be held on Sunday evening to proceed with the arrangements. In reply to inquiries respecting the Theatrical Sports, it may be said that no decision has been arrived at pending the consideration of a suggestion that they should be combined with the Sports it is proposed to give on Federation Day at the Crystal Palace in connection with the celebration organised by the Variety Artists' Federation. Next week some information may be available.

RE "THE JUDGMENT OF PHARAOH."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I observe that Mr. Alfred C. Calmour is shortly produced a play, entitled The Judgment of Pharaoh, dealing with the Children of Israel in Egypt. I have myself just completed a play on the subject of the Exodus, and as I am not so well known as Mr. Calmour, I should dislike to be accused either of plagiarism or the appropriation of that gentleman's ideas. I might mention that my play—A Daughter of the Pharaohs—was inspired by Sir Alma Tadema's picture, "The Finding of Moses," and was begun by me nearly two years ago, after seeing that celebrated painting in the Royal Academy. I might further mention that Mr. Ernest Lipschutz, the concert agent of New Bond-street, read the scenario of my play, the prologue, and a portion of the first act, over twelve months ago, and he will, no doubt, verify the accuracy of my statement. As I hope ere long to submit A Daughter of the Pharaohs to the public, either through the medium of a publisher or that of the stage, I beg that you will be kind enough to insert this letter, in order that I may avoid any subsequent friction that might arise over so remarkable a coincidence.—I am, Sir, yours respectfully,

DUSE MOHAMED.

PURITANS AND THE PLAYHOUSE.

The unreasoned criticism which is in some quarters being poured out upon the theatre and allied amusements recalls to mind an illustration of the bigotry which is common among the unsophisticated given by Mrs. Alec Tweedie in her book "Behind the Footlights," published by Hutchinson and Co.

There was, says Mrs. Tweedie, an old Scotch body—an educated, puritanical person—who once informed me, "The the-a-ter is very bad, very wicked, ma'am."

"Why?" I asked, amazed yet interested.

"It's full of fire and lights like Hell. They just discuss emotions there, ma'am, and it's morbid to discuss emotions and just silly conceit to think about them. I like deeds, and not talk—I do!"

"You seem to think the theatre a hotbed of iniquity?"

"Aye, indeed I do, ma'am. They even make thunder. Fancy daring to make thunder for amusement as the good God does to show His wrath—thunder with a machine—it's just dreadful, it is."

The grosser the exaggeration the more readily it provokes conversation. I was dying to argue, but fearing to hurt her feelings, I merely smiled.

"Have you ever been to a theatre?" I ventured to ask, not wishing to disturb the good dame's peace of mind.

"The Lord forbid!"

That settled the matter; but I subsequently found that the old body went to bazaars, and did not mind a little flutter over raffles, and on one occasion had even been to hear the inimitable George Grossmith in Inverness, when—

"He was not dressed-up-like, so it wasn't a regular the-a-ter, and he was just alone, ma'am, wi' a piano, so there was no harm in that," added the virtuous dame, complacently folding her hands across her portly form.

Wishing to change the subject, I asked her how her potatoes were doing.

"Bad, bad," she replied, "they're awfu' bad, the Lord's agin us the year; but we must jist make the best of it, ma'am."

She was a thoroughly good woman, and this was her philosophy. She would make the best of the lack of potatoes, as that was a punishment from above; but she could not sanction play-acting any more than riding a bicycle on the Sabbath.

Dealing with the stage as a career, Mrs. Tweedie writes with a sympathetic pen:—

There are many perils on the stage, to which of course only the weak succumb; but the temptations are necessarily greater than in other professions.

Temptations lie open on all sides for the actor and actress, and those who pass through the ordeal safely are doubly to be congratulated, for the man who meets temptation and holds aloof is surely a finer character than he who is merely "good" because he has never had a chance of being anything else. What an amount of work and experience, too, is necessary to ensure a satisfactory ending, more particularly upon the boards, where all is not gold that glitters. At best the crown is only brass, the shining silver only tin, and in nine theatres out of every ten the regal ermine but a paltry rabbit-skin. Glitter dazzles the eye. Nevertheless, behind it beat good hearts and true; while hard work, patient endurance, and courage mark the path of the successful player. Work does not degrade a man; but a man often degrades his work.

If, as the old body said, it be morbid to discuss emotions, and egotistical to feel them, it is still the actor's art, and that is probably why he is such a sensitive creature, why he is generally in the highest spirits or deepest depths of woe, why he is full of moods and as varying as a weathercock. Still he is charming, and so is his companion in stageland—the actress. Both entertain us, and amusement is absolutely essential to a healthy existence.

When one considers the wonderful success of women upon the stage to-day, and their splendid position socially, it seems almost impossible to believe that they never acted in England until the reign of Charles I., when a French company which numbered women among its players crossed the Channel, and craved a hearing from Queen Henrietta Maria. One critic of the time called them "unwomanish and graceless"; another said, "Glad am I they were hissed and hooted"; but still they had come to stay, and slowly, very slowly, women were allowed to take part in theatrical performances. We all know the high position they hold to-day.

In 1660 there were only two theatres in London, the King's and the Duke of York's, the dearest seats were the boxes at four shillings, the cheapest the gallery at one shilling. Ladies wore masks at the play, probably because of the coarse nature of the performances, which gradually improved with the advent of actresses.

In days gone by the playhouse was not the orderly place it is nowadays, and the unfortunate "mummers" had to put up with every kind of nuisance until Colley Cibber protested, and Queen Anne issued a Proclamation (1704) against disturbances. In those days folk arrived in sedan chairs, and their noisy footmen were allowed free admission to the upper gallery to wait for their lords and ladies, added to which the orange girls called their wares and did a brisk trade in carrying love-missives from one part of the house to the other. Before the players could be heard they had to fight their way on to the boards, where gilded youth lolled in the wings and even crossed the stage during the rendering of a scene.

It was about this time that Queen Anne made a stand against the immorality of the stage, and ordered the Master of the Revels (much the same post as the Lord Chamberlain now holds) to correct these abuses. All actors, mountebanks, &c., had to submit their plays or entertainments to the Master of the Revels in Somerset House from that day, and nothing could be performed without his permission.

The stage has a curious effect on people. Many a person has gone to see a play, and some line has altered the whole course of his life. Some idea has been put forth, some tender note played upon which has opened his eyes to his own selfishness, his own greed of wealth, his harshness to a child, or indifference to a wife. There is no doubt about it, the stage is a great power, and that is why it is so important the influence should be used for good, and that illicit love and demoralising thoughts should be kept out of the theatre, with its mixed audiences and susceptible youth. According to a Swiss report:

"The Berne authorities, holding that the theatre is a powerful instrument for the education of the masses, have decided that on two days of the week the seats in the theatre, without exception, shall be sold at a uniform price of fivepence. 'Under the direction of the manager,' writes a correspondent, 'the tickets are enclosed in envelopes, and in this form are sold to the public. The scheme has proved a great success, especially among the working classes, whom it was meant to benefit. To prevent ticket speculators making a "corner," the principle of one ticket for one person has been adopted, and the playgoer only knows the location of his seat after he enters the theatre. No intoxicants are sold and no passes are given. The expenses exceed the receipts, but a reserve fund and voluntary contributions are more than sufficient to meet the deficit.'"

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Manchester Easter Fairs.

COTTONOPOLIS had its ancient fairs, but these were all absorbed in the great Knott Mill Fair, held in Campfield, at the end of Deansgate, at Eastertide. Knott Mill Fair dated back to the year 1761, and lasted in undiminished glory for over 100 years. It had its origin in the festivities attending the opening of the Bridgwater Canal—a notable Manchester event commemorated in one of Ford Madox Brown's famous pictures that now adorns the walls of the City Hall in Albert-square.

Memories of the Past.

BEFORE its abolition in 1876, Knott Mill Fair was one of the best Corporation controlled fairs in the country, and marked the beginning of the show season in the cotton districts. From Shudehill to Deansgate, and then right away to Liverpool-road, gaily-decked stalls lined the streets. On Campfield itself the whole of the Corporation fair-ground was taken up with the best shows in the country—such shows as Wombwell's, Manders' menagerie, Pablo Fanque Circus, Calver's marionettes, Williams's mechanical show, Lomas's juvenile mummers, Day's menagerie, and smaller concerns by such well-known showmen as Chapman, West, Gregory, Buckley, Sedgwick, and others.

The Passing of Knott Mill Fair.

AFTER 1876 efforts were made to continue the fair at Pomona Gardens. When the gardens were sold to the Ship Canal Co. the showmen were compelled to divide their forces and to make the fair in the city suburbs at different points outside the one mile radius. The same Act of Parliament that abolished Knott Mill Fair also established that no fair could be held within one mile from the Town Hall at all points. Those were the bad days when showmen were unorganised, and there were no means of trade defence.

The Easter Fairs of To-Day.

THERE are now three or four fair-grounds in and around Manchester at Eastertide, and these draw together a much vaster crowd of patrons than even attended Knott Mill, and are provided with up-to-date shows and machine novelties that in the aggregate far outnumber and outshine the best and palmiest days of old Knott Mill Fair.

Queen's Road Fair.

MR. JOHN COLLINS, the proprietor of this capital fair-ground, has provided a splendid array of novelties for his Easter Week patrons. His own machines include the steam yachts, the twin ships in the air, and the four-abreast galloping horses. The other riding masters and machine owners are Messrs. George Green, with motor cars; James Hibbert and Sons, Newmarket riding school; Harrison Bros., with the American novelty ride and the Alpine flight; Royle, with horses, swings, and yachts; R. H. Williams, with tunnel railway; and gem sets of motors and horses by Messrs. Cardwell, Mercer, Humphries, Chaplain, and Montgomery. At the head of the show list stands Col. Clark's Classical Coliseum of Cinematographie, followed by Bailey's circus; Professor Gibson's Gem Empire and Temple of Occult Mystery; Harry Hughes's school of boxers and military tournament; Wall's freak exhibition; Eagle Davis, in knife-throwing demonstrations; Prof. Blakey, second sight and conjuring show; Mrs. Hughes, up-to-date peep-show; and Wm. Gibson's novelty booth. The minor novelties—always a big crowd at this fair—include shooting galleries, throwing games, football frames, variety stalls, and coker sheets by numerous caterers, amongst whom were Messrs. Mercer, Chaplain, Ingham, Jewell, Humphries, Horton, Clough, Dixon, Royle, Whatmore, Dunwell, Johnson, E. Dixon, and Cunthorpe with photo booth.

Trafford Road Fair.

THE lessee of this ground, Mr. W. Holmes, is also to be congratulated on the excellent variety and novelty of its attractions. Here the shows are James Norman's cinematograph theatre, Layland's marionettes, Samuel's living pictures, Priest's two ground booths (the performing sea lions and the armless lady artist), E. Ball's Queen Lilliput, Hague's black and white boxers, and Traynor's novelty booth. The machines are J. W. Waddington's motor cars, Wm. Holmes' jumping horses, Wm. Mitchell's motor track, T. Hurst's racing roosters, Isaac Richards' steam yachts, Shuttleworth's gem horses, motor cars, and swing boats, Brierley's gems and horses, and Henshaw's juvenile horses. The shooting galleries were by Messrs. Sedgwick, Marsden, Burton, Henshaw, and Harison. The throwing games and cokers were by Messrs. Whatmore, Henshaw, Beckett, Lorenzo, Black, Turner, Fearns, Crick, Traynor, Jones, Hart, Dearden, Holmes, Brannan, Jewell, and Connor.

Ordsall Lane Fair.

UNDER Mr. John Whiting's management, was occupied to the full of its limited capacity by a capital aggregation of fair-ground novelties, headed by the lessee's magnificent set, the Japanese cars from Tokio; Dennis's variety circus, Dobson's racing yachts, swings, throwing games, and shooters, Massey's swings, the variety frames, throwing games; and minor novelties by Messrs. Harrington, Varden, R. Holmes, Stanley, J. Leonard, Mrs. Whiting, E. Stanley Newall, J. Harrington, R. Harrington, and others.

Northenden Fair.

AT this pretty riverside Manchester suburban resort the fair was well maintained by John Walker, with steam horses, aerial flights, and other varieties; coker sheets by the Smith family; pannum stalls by R. Newall and local caterers.

Acorington Fair.

HERE the principal shows were Payne's Royal Bioscope, Green's Cinematograph, Prof. Blakey's occult mysteries, Gal Hague's school of boxers, Shaw's fine art gallery, and Ling's novelty booth. The machines included sets by Messrs. John and George Green, Mrs. Holden and Son, Mitchell Bros., Peter Makins, and Walter Shaw. The other caterers of popular amusements were T. Slater, Geo. Cornwell, Hughes and Martin, Ingham Bros., J. Richmond, Lorenzo Crick, Butterworth, Taylor, Grant, Harrison, Cummings, and others.

Tombland Fair at Norwich.

THE ancient Tombland Fair at Norwich opened on Maundy Thursday, and was continued on Monday and Tuesday of this week. There was a capital attendance of van-dwellers; the fine weather attracted the citizens as well as holiday-makers from the country to the fair, and good business has been done. Messrs. Barker and Thurston engaged the Agricultural Hall, and their mammoth motors did a roaring business. They also had another outside equally successful. The most attractive shows were Mr. Charles Thurston's Slipping-the-Slip, and a similar one of Mr. Holdsworth's. Mr. Chrichton's and Mr. Chas. Thurston's cinematograph shows were very popular. Among the other shows were the Prince of Mudie mysteries, Florence Seymour's curiosities, and C. Wheatley's boxing saloon. Among those who had rifle saloons were H. Parken, W. Abbott, G. Hearns, H. Westropp, J. Westropp, S. Stubbs, R. Parkens, W. Cheeseman, C. Wheatley, and J. Neale. With doll saloons there were C. Abbott, W. Westropp, J. Abbott, John Holmes, Jas. H. Norman, J. Osborne, W. Gray, E. Thompson, Lucky Odds, T. Bonds, C. Summers. With heads and bottles, T. W. Bond, W. Holmes. Other attractions were Aspland's motor-cars, F. Barnes' horses, Sydney Stock's, George Holmes' roundabouts, C. Barnes, Cheeseman's and Underwood's swings, Mackintosh, R. Spinks, Mrs. Rolfe with sweet stalls, North's weighing-machines, Chas. Summers' football, and A. Stocks; and others with toy bazaars, and notably Poulton, with Cracco, this being the forty-eighth annual visit.

A Showman Worthy.

EASTER Monday was the first anniversary of the death of a famous showman—Henry Hammersley—professionally known as Professor Wall, whose phantoscope show was justly celebrated on British fairgrounds.

GUILD subscriptions, 1907:—Per Mr. Shuttleworth: T. J. Court, 5s.; T. H. Newbold, 5s.

Blackburn Easter Fair.

HERE were gathered together, as usual, some of the best shows and machines in the British Empire—shows like Kemp's, Relph and Pedley's, Geo. Green's, Buff Bill's, Prof. Haydn's, and side-shows like Walter Shaw's and Charles Relph's take front rank of their kind in the world of shows. Then the machine list is always great and good—J. Green's motor-cars, Makin's flying motors, George Green's ostriches, and similar sets by Mrs. Holden and Wm. Mitchell, jun.; steam yachts and steam swings by Wm. Mitchell, Walter Shaw, and Mrs. Holden; big boats and highfliers by Messrs. Makin, Howarth, Slater, and J. Smith; shooting ranges and rifle galleries by Messrs. G. Cornwell, Barker, White, Starkie, and Mrs. John Cornwell; and the minor novelties—throwing games, stalls, &c.—were by Messrs. White, Harrington, Pickles, Slater, Wilson, Shorrocks, Ingham, and a crowd of local caterers.

Todmorden Fair

HAD for its entertainers—Prof. Matrillo, with conjuring; G. Marshall, with motor-cars; W. H. Taylor, with gallopers; H. Holland, with swings; and Messrs. Bentley, J. Sharp, E. Thomas, W. H. Taylor, and Holland, with minor attractions.

Middlesbrough Eastertide.

CROW'S cinematograph and galloping horses, O'Brien's Winchester range and varieties, Willey's swings and Emma sheet, Rich's swings and throwing games, and minor novelties by Messrs. Harker, Watkins, Rowley, Crow, Nichols, Peacock, Williams, Burroughes, Whitworth, Harris, Johnson, Smith, and Turton.

April Fair at Gainsborough.

DR. LAWRENCE'S cinematograph, Eva's varieties and picture show, Holland's cinematograph, and Smith and Warren's gondolas, switchback, and Winchester range and shooters, swings and varieties by Messrs. Tuby, Ball, Holland, Barwick, Smith, Illingworth, Gilliatt, and Eva made an excellent fair.

Bakewell Holidays

WERE well maintained by the local caterers, Messrs. Hall Bros., with shooters and other varieties.

Exeter Fair.

THIS famous Western city made merry this Eastertide with the high-class shows and novelties at its ancient fair. These were—Anderton and Rowland's palace of varieties and up-to-date films; Anderton and Rowland's gondolas and switchback; C. Heal's horses and flying motors, Winchester range, and varieties; and swings, throwing games, &c., by Newcombe, Morgan, Russell, and Heal.

News from Scotland.

THE fair at Dunfermline had for its principal attractions McIndoe's gondolas, Burton's galloping horses, Stewart Bros'. athletic show, Clark's Winchester range and big boats, Redpath's highfliers and swings, and other attractions by Messrs. Burton, Ellis, Clark, McIndoe, and Morris.

Notes from Wales.

AT Pontypridd Mr. Jacob Studt had his fine new motors and racers; also his up-to-date bioscope. Buttin's juvenile racers and Taylor's various amusements are also in the fair. Messrs. Wadbrooke were in the Park-yard, and did excellent business, some grand new pictures under the guidance of Mr. Jeffreys being shown.

STOLL'S Panopticon, in Cardiff, was full of amusements, while Mme. d'Arc, the Tussaud of Wales, had several new novelties.

MR. JOHN STUDT, with strong new amusements, is on his Welsh round.

THE clever Fossett family are on their annual tour, and Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie are doing good business throughout South Wales.

MESSRS. HY. STUDT AND SON are at Aberavon with their newest machines. Messrs. Dooner and Sons' bioscope is having a successful run with the newest pictures. Our old friend Gus makes a capable guide.

OTHER old friends are also at Aberavon—J. North and Sons, James Day, Boswell, and others.

AT Barry Dock good old John Johnson is breaking all records; also Mr. Ebley at Senghenith, Mr. Wm. Haggar at Neath, and Messrs. Johnson at Brynmawr.

MESSRS. HAGGAR AND SON'S bioscope shows are in the Mountain Ash district, and are, as usual, up to date.

MESSRS. CRECRAFT'S bioscope and lion show is doing good business on the Welsh ground.

Aberavon Fair.

THIS bi-annual flannel and pleasure fair was held on Easter Monday and Tuesday, and the general consensus of opinion of the stallholders and showmen was that it was the most successful that has been held in the town. The flannel portion, which is always a big attraction here, did very well, and got higher prices than last year. The pleasure-seekers were well looked after by Messrs. Henry and John Studt, with their magnificent motor-cars and zoological specialities; Messrs. Dooner's and Chipperfield's cinematographs; Baker's circus; Johnny North's shooting galleries, &c. When I mention that two-thirds of the cocoanut saloons had to shut up on Monday night owing to the large numbers patronising the fair it proves the huge success it was.

Carmarthen.

AT Carmarthen Park on Easter Monday, in connection with the Carmarthen Attractions Committee's grand sports, Capt. Spencer (of Messrs. Spencer Bros., Crystal Palace) made a successful balloon ascent and parachute descent, although the balloon did not rise to a very high altitude. Lieut. Chard's canine hippodrome was one of the attractions, and the troupe of trained dogs gave a really clever performance. Messrs Hess and Lisbon also appeared in trick and fancy roller skating, and in their grotesque performance, The Jumbo Policeman, and both items took well with the immense crowd.

Londoners at Play.

EAST LONDON has many fairs at Eastertide, but the greatest of these is Wanstead Flats, the glorious open space on the fringe of Epping Forest, at Forest Gate. East Londoners in their tens of thousands crowded their much-appreciated playground on all the days of the Easter Holidays. The immense quadrangle of the fair was occupied by the shows, machines, throwing games, varieties, and stalls, that all pleasure-seekers delight in. Chief amongst these were Wm. Taylor's magnificent cinématograph theatre, Ball's electric bioscope, J. Barker's Coliseum of pictures and varieties, and Walter Payne's living pictures. The machine novelties were Swale and Forrest's Japanese airship, Thurston's motors, switchback, four-abreast gallopers, and their combined set of motors and horses, Marshall Hill's motor track, W. Symonds's switchback, and Smith and Whittle's switchback; swings, football games, variety frames, coker shies, and throwing games in great profusion, by Messrs. Bolesworth Bros., Harris Bros., Forrest Bros., Taylor, Parker, Davies, Powell, Bond, Jones, and photo. booth by C. Brooke.

Wormwood Scrubs.

THE Western Londoner enjoys his fair just as much as the East-ender. To prove this, go any Bank Holiday you like to Wormwood Scrubs, and see the toilers from the West and the North-west at play on the breezy expanse of the Scrubs. Notice how the showmen provide just the kind of open-air entertainment that Londoners require—the shows, the merry-go-rounds, the swings, the variety games—and all these obtainable at the people's price—the ready penny. Hastings and Whayman's theatre of animated photography, Edward Elliott's school of boxers, Wilson's galloping horses, Bailey's switchback, Wm. Beach's set of horses and cars, thirty sets of park swings, one hundred variety frames, throwing games, shooters, and novelty stalls, thirty coker-nut sheets, and six sets of juvenile horses and motors, the principal providers of these novelties being Messrs. Bond Bros., Hussey Bros., Manning Bros., Smith Bros., Wm. Bedford, H. Pickard, C. Andrew, A. Whittle, Elliott, and with these were quite a crowd of local caterers.

Bostock and Wombwell's Menagerie

VISITED Merthyr Tydfil on Good Friday, and remained over the Easter Holiday. Throughout the visit immense crowds visited the show, highly delighted with the fine collection of animals. The band, under the direction of Mr. Joe Mills, proved a big attraction.

Wolverhampton Great Easter Fair

WAS situated on the Market Ground, where P. Collins's roundabouts reigned supreme, consisting of Collins's racing motor cars, slipping the slip, wheeley whirley, electric theatre of living pictures, Wright's grand Winchester shooting range, cocoanuts by J. Humphries and C. Dobson, aunt sallies by Cooper, and other stalls too numerous to mention, the whole of the amusements brilliantly lit by electricity, and, owing to the grand weather, doing record business.

The Chronophone Before Royalty.

AT the special request of H.R.H. the Queen, the Chronophone, which is now running at the London Hippodrome, was exhibited before Her Majesty at Buckingham Palace on the afternoon of Thursday last. Besides Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, there were present the Dowager Empress of Russia, the Prince and Princess of Wales, with their children, and a brilliant assembly of aristocracy and nobility. The programme was an excellent one, including a choice selection of Chronophone subjects, among which were "This little girl and that little girl" (The Little Michus), "The laughing nigger," "The serenade" from Faust, in French, "Tit Willow" from The Mikado, "The Miserère" from the grand opera, Il Trovatore, "Twin Brothers" (The French Maid), "Chorus, gentlemen," and the "Captain" chorus from the light opera, H.M.S. Pinafore. Needless to say, Messrs. L. Gaumont and Co. took every precaution to make the performance a success on this unique occasion, and it is pleasing to note they gained their object. The distinguished company were highly pleased with this novel form of mechanical entertainment, while the young Prince Eddy continues to ask for more singing pictures. Now that our gracious Queen has been pleased to patronise this ingenious invention, we may anticipate that the Chronophone will feature largely at fashionable functions, and become more widely popular than ever.

THE new animated photographic films, produced and published by Mr. Robert W. Paul, of New Southgate, and High Holborn, include "The Knight-Errant," a romance of the Middle Ages, in seven years, showing how a swaggering little hunchback, who makes love to a young and lovely princess, but is rescued from his unwelcome attentions by a handsome young forester, who eventually is rewarded by the hand of the charming damsel. Other characters introduced are a good fairy, a witch, and an ogre, whom the forester slays.

"SAVED BY A SAILOR" is a little drama, depicting the adventures of a country maiden whose sailor lover returns from a voyage to find an unexpected rival in the village squire, who induces her to leave her home. However, her lover, discovering that the girl is in the clutches of the villain, attacks him fiercely. A terrible struggle for life and death ends in the sailor proving the better man, and he leaves the villain senseless on the floor. Throwing the girl over his shoulder, he climbs down the verandah in safety. A thrilling picture, and one pointing a moral lesson.

"A MOTHER'S SIN" is a picture that makes a direct appeal to the humane sentiments of the beholder. The comic element enters largely into "The Chef's Revenge" and "How to Make the Time Fly," "Woman Supreme" and "His First Top Hat," and "A Tragedy of the Ice." "The Signalman and the Train Wreckers" tells an exciting story of the wrecking of two trains by some scoundrels who overpower the signalman at his post, and cause a collision for the purpose of robbing the mail.

ON Monday Lord John Sanger ond Sons, Ltd., circus visited Bedford, and gave two performances in a meadow on the outskirts of the town. The mid-day procession through the town was watched by thousands of persons from town and country, and at both the afternoon and evening performances the large tent was well filled.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following particulars have been supplied us by Messrs. Hughes and Young, Patent Agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all matters relating to the protection of inventions, designs, and trade marks.

Messrs. N. Power, of 115, Nassau-street, and B. Morton, of 253, Broadway, both in New York, have invented new improvements in and relating to cinematographs. A moving picture machine is provided with fireproof spool boxes with cut-off devices to prevent the spread of fire, and a two-part pulley on the spindle of the receiving spool constructed so as to allow the driving band to slip when necessary, to preserve a uniform tension on the film. The fire-proof boxes have outlet and inlet shoots respectively provided with pivoted weighted cut-off flaps to prevent the spread of fire into the boxes. Gearing operated by a handle and mounted on a carriage transmits motion to guides and feed rollers and to a pulley on the spindle by a belt passing over guide pulleys on a bracket adjustably clamped to a bracket. Rollers carried by an arm are pressed against the film by a spring. To allow the speed of the spool to decrease as it fills and maintain a constant uniform tension on the film the pulley is made in two parts, one which is fixed to the spindle while the other is loose on the spindle.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD MEETINGS AT MANCHESTER.

The Rev. T. Horne began his summer itinerary of the fairs at Manchester this week. He visited Queen's-road, Trafford-road, and Ordsall-lane Fairs, making Queen's-road his centre this year. The rector of the parish in which Queen's-road is situated heartily co-operated with the showmen's chaplain, and members of the church choir assisted at the Guild service in the evening. The rector, the Rev. Fenwick Ward, M.A., closed the service with the Benediction. Colonel Clark's beautiful show-booth was the "church" on the fair-ground. A most devout and attentive congregation attended the service, the singing was hearty and congregational, and the sermon, based on the Resurrection of Christ—the theme of Easter Day—was preached by the chaplain.

The afternoon business meeting of the Guild committee and members was attended by Colonel Clark, V.P., Wm. Gibson, S. Mercer, and J. A. Ingham (members of the executive committee), R. Deeks, and other showmen.

The Rev. T. Horne, referring to the absence of Mr. T. Hurst (hon. secretary), said that he felt sure that all would be sorry to hear of Mrs. Hurst's death, and that all their sympathy would be with Mr. Hurst and his family in their time of sorrow. He would take upon himself the sad duty of conveying to Mr. Hurst the sympathy and sincere condolences of his fellow-members, and, in fact, show folk in general. They had met that afternoon at extremely short notice; the reason why was because the important question of the Chester County Council bye-laws had only been decided a day or two ago. He thought that all would agree with him that so urgent and important a matter should be announced at once, and especially at Manchester, where so many showmen were vitally interested. He then read the bye-law with regard to organ music, as given in full in the "Showmen World" columns of The Era, and the correspondence between Lord George Sanger, as president of the Guild, and the Home Secretary, and explained how wide the saving clause was, added to the original bye-law on the petition of their Society. Not only were wakes, fairs, and feasts exempted from its provision, but also Bank Holidays and festivals. He could only add a word or two with regard to this eminently satisfactory conclusion of their negotiations with the County Council of Chester, and that was to testify to the great courtesy with which they had been treated by the County Council and by the Home Office. Their Guild was now recognised as the accredited representative trade society of showmen. Their objections to, and criticisms of, proposed inimical bye-laws, were now accepted and considered with that attention and respect due to a large and important industry.

He had also a message to deliver with regard to the Rawtenstall Fair and the Bill promoted by the Rawtenstall Corporation, to give the borough monopoly powers over markets. The Committee of the House of Commons, known as "The Referees of Private Bills," had decided in their favour that fairs in Rawtenstall, whether on Corporation or on private ground, were not threatened by the Bill; that in the Rawtenstall Bill fairs were neither mentioned nor intended to be touched by its market monopoly clauses. This, of course, he added, was satisfactory; but, at the same time, he must regret that the Corporation had not made that clear at first, and so obviated the expensive procedure of petitioning and appearing by counsel, to get the matter definitely settled. They had now the assurance that the fair would be continued, and that private business would not be interfered with; and that, in the peculiar local circumstances, was all they could well expect. The dispute with Rawtenstall, he was glad to say, marked the end of their Parliamentary defence work in the present Session.

The executive committee at Manchester in January last outlined a scheme for obtaining the necessary funds for the work of the Guild. Its Parliamentary work, in particular, was in need of immediate help. He had come to Manchester that Easter week in order to organise the first of a series of benefit nights on the fair-grounds of the country for trade defence. Amongst the lessees of ground, showmen, and fair-ground traders who had cordially taken up the scheme were:—Messrs. J. and P. Collins, J. and G. Green J. Whiting, H. J. Wallis, Wm. Holmes, Geo. Kemp, Wm. Clark, T. Hurst, Wm. Gibson, Wm Mitchell, J. H. Geoghegan, S. Mercer, Ralph and Pedley, J. Ingham, Wm. Chaplain, H. Hughes, E. Farrar, T. Payne, and many others. The first benefit night would be on that ground, and would take place on the Wednesday following. He felt sure that the plan of self-help in trade defence would commend itself to all engaged in the show business.

The chaplain's address was followed by a discussion on the amended Chester bye-laws, the Rawtenstall Bill, and other matters, by Messrs. Clark, Ingham, Wm. Gibson, S. Mercer, and R. Deeks. Messrs. Mercer, Gibson, Ingham, and Chaplain were appointed a sub-committee, to assist the Rev. T. Horne in the benefit arrangements. In the evening, at six, the annual business meeting of the Lancashire and Cheshire Stallholders' Society was held, at the Robin Hood Hotel, Queen's-road, and important business engaged the attention of the executive and members.

GUILD FUNDS BENEFIT.

Despite the utterly bad weather of Wednesday evening, and the unfortunate fact that a great number of the concerns had pulled down on account of the change in the weather, the financial returns are quite satisfactory, and prove conclusively that showmen will help their own cause, if properly appealed to. There are still a few subscriptions and returns to come in, and when these are to hand, the sum total received will exceed £20, the principal benefactor of the Fund being Mr. John Collins, the proprietor of the fair-ground, who generously increased the total takings of his two machines to the handsome sum of £10. Colonel Clark gave £3 6s. 7d., the receipts in full of one performance.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. T. HURST.

The well-known and highly-esteemed honorary secretary of the Showmen's Guild, Mr. T. Hurst, and his bereaved family have the heart of showland with them this week. Mrs. Hurst passed away, after a long and most painful illness, on Good Friday afternoon. Mrs. Hurst bore her long time of wasting illness with the utmost fortitude. She was until quite recent years in capital health, but pulmonary consumption developed, and for the past six months and more she had been under constant medical treatment. All was however unavailing, the fell malady could not be stayed. She died in the bosom of her family at their home, Broadhurst Farm, Clifton Pendlebury, Manchester, and was interred in the family tomb at Clifton Parish Church on Wednesday last, April 3, aged 52 years.

In strict accord with the known wishes of the deceased, the funeral was of the most private character, and limited to the immediate relatives of the family. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. T. Horne, Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild, assisted by the Curate of the Parish, the Rev. Charles Davies.

Owing to the inclement weather, the greater portion of the service was taken in the church, the prayers of committal and the blessing being said at the graveside. The floral tributes of esteem and respect were beautiful in design and numerous, and included wreaths from prominent showmen, the various societies, and many from members of the Hurst family and their friends.

The coffin bore the following inscription:

"Annie Hurst,
Died March 29, 1907,
Aged 52 years."

Mr. Hurst and family wish to thank their numerous friends for telegrams and letters of condolence and sympathy, and also the kind friends, as under, for their beautiful wreaths:—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Green, Mr. and Mrs. John Green, Mrs. Holden and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Mitchell, Mr. Ravenscroft and family, Miss Violet Ravenscroft, Messrs. Ralph and Pedley, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dixon, Colonel Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Marsden, the members of the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union, Norman and Lizzine, Mr. and Mrs. Waters (sister and brother-in-law), Pollie and Bertha (sisters), Mr. and Mrs. Harris (sister and brother-in-law), Mr. and Mrs. Brown (daughter), Mrs. Sweetlove and George Sweetlove, Mr. and Mrs. Huddart (sister and brother-in-law), James Evans (brother-in-law), Miss Dodgin Friend, James Hurst, Robert Jeffart, and numerous others.

THE DRAMA IN ROTTERDAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, APRIL 1. — A new and original play, from the pen of the young and rising Dutch writer Willem Schürmann has been produced at the Grand Theatre by Manager Van Eyseden, and has had a most favourable reception, well-filled houses greeting each performance. The title of the play is Het Dubbele Leven (The Dual Life), and it possesses a special interest for the Rotterdam public, as the argument is based on incidents which occurred here in real life a number of years ago. The scene of the play is given as a large seaport, but it is tacitly understood that Rotterdam is the seaport in question. The leading and, indeed, the part of the play is that of Walter van Essen, a widower with one daughter. He is a merchant of prominence and influence, and with a spirit of enterprise that prompts him to undertake numberless plans for the improvement and aggrandisement of the city, where he holds a position second to none. His plans, however, require time and funds, and to obtain the latter he commits a succession of frauds and embezzlements, which, however, escape detection. For his fellow-citizens and for his family he is the promoter of the wealth and prosperity that await the town, but in reality his existence is one of torture, self-reproach, and constant fear of discovery. Being unable to keep up the struggle, he at last confesses the truth, and the curtain falls as he is on the point of blowing out his brains. As has been said, the play is founded on a case of embezzlement which took place here some years since. The defaulter was also a man of high standing, whose aim was identical with that of the merchant in Het Dubbele Leven; but, instead of committing suicide, he left the country before his arrest was achieved. Mr. Tartaud, in the difficult and trying part of Walter van Essen, gave a striking and artistic portraiture, his by-play, intonation, and general conception and make-up being worthy of unstinted eulogies. Favourable mention should be made of Mesdames Van Kerckhoven and Tartaud as the sister and daughter respectively, and of Mr. de Jongh as the daughter's suitor; a kindly word of appreciation being due also to Mrs. de Jongh for the feeling and tact displayed in the few lines of her secondary, and yet sympathetic, part.

ONE of the "off-nights" at the Grand Theatre has been taken up by the dramatic company of Manager Van Lier from Amsterdam with a performance of Schakels. At the time of its original production I spoke of this play of Heyermann's, and need only repeat that the public was enthusiastic and generous in its applause, Mr. de Vries and Mrs. Van Lier receiving repeated calls. This week the same company will be seen on another "off-night" in the well-known play from the German, Voerman Hentschel.

AT the Tivoli Theatre the Brondgeest Ensemble gave the initial performance of a Dutch version of Oscar Wilde's fantastic comedy Bunbury! The version seems to be taken from a German translation of the comedy, and is defective as such, the interpretation being, besides, a rather weak one, so that the entire production met with little or no success.

Lockhart, in his "Life of Sir Walter Scott," relates how "On the 29th of March, 1817, John Philip Kemble, after going through the round of his chief parts, to the delight of the Edinburgh audience, took his final leave of them as Macbeth, and in the costume of that character delivered a farewell address, penned for him by Scott. No one who witnessed that scene, and heard the lines as then recited, can ever expect to be again interested to the same extent by anything occurring within the walls of a theatre, nor was I ever present at any public dinner in all its circumstances more impressive than was that which occurred a few days afterwards, when Kemble's Scotch friends and admirers assembled around him—Francis Jeffrey being chairman, Walter Scott and John Wilson the croupiers."

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY COSTUMES.

"A fixed convention," says Mrs. Clement Parsons, in her amusing account of "Garrick and His Circle," governed the way the elder actresses dressed their parts. Empresses, queens, and Roman matrons wore black velvet. "Diamonds" were as much the tragedy garnish for women as fur was for men. However a character might have met his death, his spectre came on blood-"bolter'd." Murderers' faces were chalked, and their black periwigs heavy with the "gorgon buckle." There was to be no mistaking the "willin" of the piece. Actual records corroborate Sheridan's sarcasm in The Critic when Tilburina is set down to enter stark mad in white satin.

"Sneer.—'Why in white satin?'

Puff.—'O Lord, Sir, when a heroine goes mad, she always goes into white satin . . . . it's the rule.'"

At Glasgow, when Mrs. Bellamy declined to play Lady Macbeth because her regulation black "vestment" had been burnt in a fire, she was assured that the ghost of the actual Lady Macbeth walked every night at Dunsinane Castle in white satin, on which inducement she "played the character out of the usual form." Garrick, for his own wear, made an end of the feathered toque by which tragedy heroes, whether Danes, Turks, Greeks, Romans, or Scots, were generically recognisable. Kemble, and—more curiously—Macready, revived this hearse-like badge.

Convention is but symbolism frozen hard. In Garrick's day, white for maids and velvet for mothers had become conventions; but "when Burbadge played" they were short cuts to the imagination of an audience, clearing its way, that it might concentrate itself on the glories of the poet's diction.

There is no need to dwell on the contempt for accuracy in dress evinced by Garrick and his circle. Everyone has smiled to think of his playing Hotspur in a laced frock and a Ramillies wig. The effect must have been (though in one sense only!) more like that of a Shakespeare recitation than anything the spoiled and sated modern sightseers at His Majesty's could logically designate a theatrical exhibition. Not so venial an offence as playing Macbeth temp. George II. was that of playing a Greek of the golden age, Lysander, in Home's Agis, dressed as a gondolier, as, we are told, Garrick did. If it were so, it was a grievous fault. It was the merest trifle then, though an indicative one, that, in Dance's portrait of Garrick as Richard III., that monarch appears with the star of the Order of the Garter which Charles I. added to the insignia.

All the actors were in a tale. "Gentleman" Smith (the original Charles Surface) complained of the shabbiness of his Richard III.'s hat, and asked if he could not have the one Powell wore as King John. Hale insisted on wearing a full-bottomed wig as Charles I. Henderson boasted of having played ten characters in one season in the same dress. They gloried in their anachronistic shame.

They had an inkling of humorous aspects of the situation. In the anonymous "Essay on Acting" (1744), ascribed, on internal evidence, to Garrick's pen, the writer comments on the inapplicability of Macbeth's saying to Banquo's ghost, "Never shake thy gory locks at me," when the ghost is wearing a "neat Tye Wig," and suggests "Tye" being substituted, or, "if the word Wig is thought more Poetical, it will be equally good, as they are both Monosyllables." Tate Wilkinson, on the other hand, goes into the question with gravity. He is for "strict propriety of habiliment," but does not see his managerial way to it, because "handsome women" will never consent to appear "in a farmer's daughter, witch, or servant maid" without "a French head, white silk stockings, and white satin shoes."

The actresses never dreamt of spoiling their finery by falling, at the close of a tragedy, on bare boards. "Laying the cloth is not a more sure indication of dinner," says Goldsmith in The Bee, "than laying the carpet of bloody work at Drury Lane."

As the dresses, so were the scenery and "props." A stony indifference to archæology prevailed throughout stageland. Certainly, no one committed the crime of burying the play under a suffocating mass of decoration, though Cumberland wrote entreating Garrick to have his adaptation of Timon of Athens "equipped with splendour," and Loutherbourg received £500 a year as scene-painter to Drury Lane. When Garrick retired, his managerial successors offered Loutherbourg half his previous salary. He refused it, and invented the Panton Street Eidophusikon, that interesting panorama, lighted from above, before which Gainsborough sat, night after night, spellbound. To judge from W. H. Pyne's chapter in "Wine and Walnuts" on the Eidophusikon, Loutherbourg must have been a remarkable experimenter in scenic contrivances, including "the picturesque of sound." From our twentieth century conning tower we are probably a little too ready to suppose that during the eighteenth century the back cloth composed the stage picture, and "two supers made a rabble rout." Even then there were critics to condemn the concessions made to the spectacular cravings of "the many-headed monster of the pit." Pope was one.

"Booth enters—hark! the universal peal!
'But has he spoken?' Not a syllable.
'What shook the stage, and made the people stare?'
Cato's long wig, flower'd gown, and lacquer'd chair."

The instance betrays how unelaborate the appeal to the eye was, after all. Murphy quoted to Garrick a brother-dramatist who had complained of being "fobbed off with a touched-up palm tree," and, on another occasion, making an opening in the back of his theatre, and showing (with disastrously smoky and cold-catching results) a "real" bonfire outside in Drury Lane. New plays seldom had anything but stock scenery. A street, a bed-chamber, a parlour, a hall, a park with trees, a garden, these, in wings and flat, were the six general-utility sets, and so much the worse for any action that could not fit itself in with one or another of them. There were a few tricky devices to assist favourite bits of business. Garrick, as Hamlet, in the scene with his mother, in order, at the Ghost's entrance, to throw down his chair sharply, had one made with tapering legs placed so far under the seat that it fell at a touch. Also there were incongruities, as where Quin as Falstaff, after the fight near Shrewsbury, instead of showing himself a warrior taking his rest on a felled trunk, sank into a crimson velvet fauteuil, with gilt claws and blue fringe, pitched conveniently on the battlefield. The cock in Hamlet, by the way, was a recognised piece of action, entrusted to a competent performer, and extremely critically received by the gallery.

Garrick, who, in the fashionable and lettré society he loved, was the life of pleasure and the soul of whim, became serious and strenuous from the moment he set foot in his theatre. In the general decadence just before him, artists had been unpunctual at rehearsals and careless about their words. He put a stop to their dreaming idleness and jolly negligence. Goldsmith, in The Bee, makes the playhouse critic deride the dirty-shirted guards rolling their eyes round upon the audience instead of keeping them fixed upon the actors. There was no such want of discipline under the rule of "the little great man of old Drury."

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

WONDERFUL FLAMES.
Code Word, CAISSON.

Wonderful flames. Lovely girls representing butterflies; also a demon performing all kinds of weird exercises. Very pretty. Splendid quality.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.
Coloring £2 10s. 6d. extra.

AN UNSKILFUL SKATER.
Code Word, CAMISOLE.

Screamingly funny pictures of a beginner learning to skate.

DISTRESS.
Code Word, CALEBASSE

Thrilling story of a father and daughter. The man steals a loaf and is imprisoned; subsequently escapes, and goes to look for his little girl, who has been sent to a home for children. Great joy when father and daughter meet. Later on he is tracked by the police. In preference to being taken again he throws himself from a great height and is killed. Very pathetic scenes, and full of interest.

610ft. The Subject £10 3s. 4d.

MODERN BURGLARS.
Code Word, BUVEUR.

Amusing struggle between burglars and police, performed by the Price troupe. Ridiculous situations, causing shouts of laughter from start to finish.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

REIGN OF TERROR IN RUSSIA.
Code Word,

Most impressive scenes. Attempt to kill the governor. Struggle between soldiers, police, and Nihilists. Offices of the Chief of Police blown up. Huge excitement. This is one of the most wonderful films ever put on the market.

545ft. The Subject £9 1s. 8d.
Tinting 12s.

THE RUNAWAY MOTOR CAR.
Code Word, CHIFFON.

A couple of bad boys start a motor-car in the chauffeur's absence. The car goes off at a great speed; travels all over the country; only stops for a cripple. It is extraordinarily funny to watch the antics of the populace trying to stop the car.

320ft. The Subject £5 10s.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHER.
Code Word, CAMPHRE.

He buys a camera; insists on taking everybody and everything; constantly gets in hot water; very droll and keeps the observer amused all the time.

248ft. The Subject £4 2s. 8d.

THE ELECTRIC BELT.
Code Word, CANAPE.

The husband has a bad pain in his back. His wife gets an electric belt; puts it in his overcoat; it makes him jump all over the place and want to kiss every woman he meets. He is arrested; the magistrate accidently puts on the coat and goes through the same performance; many amusing complications follow. This is one of the most humorous films we have ever produced and is bound to be a large seller.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

BABY'S FIRST OUTING.
Code Word, CHICANE.

The careless nurse takes baby out and speaks to many people on the way, and keeps on colliding with various obstacles. Eventually a naughty boy ties the pram to a dog, who rushes off with it, followed by an interested crowd of spectators. Finally the pram is precipitated into a pond, but baby is unhurt, and is brought back to her parents in triumph by a kindly policeman.
Fine quality and really amusing.

THE GOLDEN BEETLE.
Code Word, BUREAU.

An old wizard succeeds in capturing a golden beetle, which he casts into a melting-pot, from which there immediately appears a most beautiful form, succeeded by fountains of water and displaying lovely girls. This water then throws off splendid coloured effects, rising higher and higher, eventually turning into a regular cascade, the centre of which is a glorious fairy.
Splendid trick film, beautifully coloured.

165ft. The Subject £2 15s. Colouring extra £2 2s.

A VISIT FROM A MOTHER-IN-LAW.
Code Word, CHIC.

The young husband determines that as he does not want his mother-in-law to stay with them, he will get rid of her quickly. Bribes the servants, and they each, without seeming to do so, cause her some trouble. Finally, he takes her out in his car, and bumps her out. She, in disgust, returns home again, to the intense joy of the husband. A very amusing subject, and some very funny effects.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

THE COSMOPOLITAN DANCERS.
Code Word, BURINEUR.

A series of rapid changes in costume and dancing made by two dancers, who exhibit the styles of Jack Tar, Spanish, French, Japanese, Italian, Russian, &c. Beautiful colouring effect.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.
Colouring extra, £3.

Re THE WONDERFUL ELECTRIC BELT.

We find that one of our contemporaries has considered this film worth copying. Imitation is the surest flattery, but we are the original producers of this film, which was put on the market some three weeks ago.

By Royal Command

THE CHRONOPHONE

At Buckingham Palace, on the afternoon of Thursday, the 4th, by the Royal Command, the Chronophone was exhibited before H.M. Queen Alexandra; there were also present the Dowager Empress of Russia, the Prince and Princess of Wales with their children, and a brilliant assemblage. The performance was a great success in every respect. The young Prince Eddy is eagerly asking for more Chronophone.

The New Converts to the Chronophone are Proctor and Kemp, the famous and successful showmen, who, after examining and trying various imitations offered on the market, are decided there is only one Singing and Talking Picture Machine—THE CHRONOPHONE.

TO PROFESSIONALS.—NOTICE.—

This week all our Film subjects are advertised at our new net price—at 33⅓ p.c.

PIRATING ELGE FILMS.

We note that one of our business contemporaries has made it a practice to copy our subjects wholesale, and the latest piracy of Elge Films is a poor and weak imitation of our powerful and sensational film,

No. 1590. THE REIGN OF TERROR IN RUSSIA.

Length 740ft. Price £12 6s. 8d. net.

Which was produced and advertised by us a month ago. We deplore the fact that a well-known firm is so lacking in enterprise and originality as to find it necessary to copy, advertise, and place on the market as theirs pictures which they are well aware are deliberate and barefaced copies of another firm's originals.

TRADE WITH THE FIRM WHICH PRODUCES ORIGINAL SUBJECTS, DO NOT BE PUT OFF WITH POOR AND WEAK IMITATIONS.

PAUL'S
NEW FILM.
HIS FIRST TOP-HAT

A picture which will appeal as much to adults as to juvenile audiences. It tells the tale of an Eton boy's first silk hat. His father, a man of military appearance, brings him to the hatter's. The boy causes considerable amusement by his antics with some old-fashioned hats which are displayed as curiosities. The boy being duly fitted, shows disgust with his new head-gear. He lags behind his father as they go down the street, making as though he would get rid of the hat at the first opportunity. Father bids him good-bye, son is accosted by a butcher boy, who jeers at him, and throws a cabbage, which he finds close at hand, knocks off boy's hat, and a lively fight and scramble ensue, during which the combatants collide with an elderly gentleman, causing an accidental exchange of hats as they lie on the ground. The old gentleman walking away has his attention attracted to the misfit, and runs off to recover his own hat. A young girl of the boy's acquaintance meeting him, has her bag snatched from her by a thief while they are talking. The boy chases thief, and loses the hat of the old gentleman, who now arrives on the scene. The boy recovers girl's bag, but the hat lying in the road is run over by a motor-car, and the rightful owner finds it a complete wreck. The boy's father is compelled to pay the value of the old gentleman's hat, which is finally seen in possession of a tramp, who decides it is not good enough for him.

URBAN PRODUCTIONS

THE FILM OF THE MOMENT.

ROUMANIA: ITS CITIZENS AND ITS SOLDIERS.

The Peasants' Rising in Roumania, which has almost assumed the proportions of Civil War, renders the production of this series particularly opportune. Pictures of enthralling interest and photographic perfection are presented, which include ROUMANIAN VILLAGE and CITY LIFE; Street, Market, and Bazaar scenes; Palaces, Tropical Gardens, Public Parks, and a beautiful procession of children on their way to instruction in tree planting.
STIRRING MILITARY SCENES, specially arranged for this series by command of the Roumanian Minister for War, illustrate the Infantry of King Charles drilling, manœuvres of the splendidly horsed Field Batteries of Artillery, and a March Past of Lancers. These give a complete epitome of the Roumanian Field Forces, and are therefore of paramount interest at this juncture.

UNSTINTED APPLAUSE WHEREVER SHOWN.

No. 1979. Code "Roumania." Length 420ft. Price £7.

THE LATEST MAGIC FILM. AN ALHAMBRA SUCCESS.

COMICAL CARTOONS. BY THE HAND OF THE ARTIST.

The former picture, "The Hand of the Artist," proved one of the most successful magic films ever published, its sales being phenomenal and its reception most enthusiastic. Upon this the present series is a great improvement and forms a departure in an entirely new direction. "The Hand of the Artist" draws outline faces in chalk upon a blackboard; the outlines gradually fill and assume living form and movement. They eat, smoke, drink, whirl, express pleasure and satisfaction without leaving the blackboard, after which the images are removed by an ordinary duster. One head is divided from crown to chin, and from its interior are produced cigars, cigarettes, champagne, and glasses; the head is rejoined and once more becomes human and vivacious. Many other illusions are included in this marvellous series, which, in its absolutely perfect photography is the greatest "Trick" Film that has been placed on the market.

An Amazing, Mystifying, and Most Attractive Subject.

No. 1964. Code "Cartoon." Length 285ft. Price £4 15s.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

A capital shilling's worth is the "Era Annual," with its valuable lists of new plays produced during the year in London, the provinces, Berlin, and Paris. In contains, also, many readable articles by stage favourites, notably a characteristic contribution, "How I Spend My Day," by Miss Ellen Terry.—Daily Express, Feb. 2.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

To anyone connected with the stage, from the call-boy to the "star," and from the electrician to the manager, the "Era Annual" makes an appeal which it is very hard to resist. The number of stories and anecdotes contributed by well-known members of the theatrical profession are always bright, breezy, and fresh, and, as usual, the photographs are excellently reproduced. The calendar is arranged so as to give an interesting theatrical event, with the year of occurrence, for every day in the year. The tables of plays produced at the various London and provincial theatres provide an interesting story of successes and failures, and in every respect the Annual for 1907 is well up to the usual standard. It is published at one shilling by "The Era," at 5, Tavistock-street London.—Dublin Express. Jan. 28.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

That invaluable annual, "The Era" Almanac, has just made its appearance for 1907. In addition to its usual record of the important productions and revivals of the past twelve months in London and Paris, there is a series of bright contributions by Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and other well-known members of the profession.—Sunday Times, Jan. 27

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 is up to its usual standard—in fact, it is, if possible, smarter than ever. There is an excellent budget of articles from the pens of Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Cicely Richards, Miss Pollie Emery, Messrs. Frank Cooper, Arthur Collins, Charles Collette, Frank Curzon, Edward German, Cliff Ryland and many others. The illustrated obituary, the alphabetical list of plays produced in London and the provinces, and all the other valuable features of the Annual are as complete as ever, and make this handbook extremely useful not only to members of the profession, but to the infinitely wider circle interested directly or indirectly in the drama.—Whitehall Review.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

That welcome little book, "The Era" Annual, has just appeared for 1907, issued from the offices of "The Era," and costing, as usual, 1s. It is always worth a welcome, and is as good this year as ever. In addition to the usual pages of theatrical statistics, there are a number of stories and sketches by well-known actors and actresses, signed with their autographs and illustrated with their photographs. The first, and one of the best, is a description by Miss Ellen Terry of an average day in her busy life. Most of us have, at one time or another, in our artless way, sighed for the glory and triumph the popular actor and actress enjoy. Alas! Miss Terry gives us a peep behind the scenes which takes the gilt off the gingerbread with a vengeance. If this describes the average day of a great actor or actress, better, a thousand times better, to be a man of no importance!—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

A compendium of great value to all interested, professionally or otherwise, in music and the drama is "The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual, the issue for 1907 of which has just been issued (London: 5, Tavistock-street. Strand, 1s.). Especially attractive are the stories told by some twenty artists, whose photographs and autographs are included.—Glasgow Herald, Jan. 31.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 will be cordially welcomed by the profession, as well as by all who are interested in the modern theatre and concert-hall. It contains some racy little sketches by Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Pollie Emery, Mr. Charles Collette, and other well-known artists; much useful information and many illustrations.—Leicester Daily Post, Jan. 23, 1907.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.

Once more, stuffed with good things, "The Era" Annual appears from its office at 5, Tavistock-street. The edition for 1907 is as nicely got up as its predecessors, and, in addition to a calendar and other theatrical memoranda, contains two lists of the year's productions, one arranged under the names of the theatres and the other alphabetically. In addition there are a number of striking or humorous contributions by leading actors and actresses—Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and Mr. John Lawson are among those who have contributed bright experiences to this up-to-date shilling theatrical handbook.—Star, Jan. 22.

The Greatest Episode Ever Produced since "Humanity" and "The Fighting Parson."

FOUNDED UPON
FATHER VAUGHAN'S
RECENT SERMONS.

SCENE:

The Flat, Grangecourt Mansions, KENSINGTON, S.W.

ARGUMENTS:

The Double Life of Young Girls. Man's Foolish Extravagance for his Wife. Assignation synonymous with Scandal!

FATHER VAUGHAN says:

"She must pay her debts. Where is she to turn for the money? To her father, her mother? No! To her friends? No! In her shame she dare not, until some Devil in human form MAKES HIS BARGAIN and the debt is paid!"

This Episode was specially written for Mrs. Lawson, and produced at a cost of £250.

Her acting held the house spellbound. . . . The delineation of the weak-headed wife was one of the finest bits of acting we have been treated to for a long time. —NOTTS PRESS.

The piece owes its success to Mrs. Lawson's remarkable acting as the wife.—REFEREE.

A truly great performance. . . . Mrs. Lawson as Fay Faber carries all before her.—SUN.

A remarkable study of the frivolous wife. . . . Great triumph for Mrs. Lawson. —THE ERA.

Mrs. John Lawson (who we remember as Cissie Russell) displayed great talent as Fay Faber. . . . A study worthy of a Bernhardt.—NEWS.

Mrs. Lawson thanks Messrs. Oswald Stoll, Walter Gibbons, J. de Frece for accepting the episode, and Messrs. J. L. Graydon and H. Day for offering Middlesbro' and Bristol.

April 4, 1907.

Dear Mr. Dayton,

This is your third engagement with me during my management of the Palace, and I certainly should not have booked your new show, "Le Rendez-vous," at an increase of salary, had I not have had proof of your old act being a drawing number. Seeing you have ten members in your new act "Le Rendez-vous," I sent you contract, and I am pleased to say you have again been most successful, and I should certainly advise anyone wanting a trump card to book your new act.

With best of wishes,

Yours very truly,

Dr. WALFORD BODIE
at the PALACE, STOKE NEWINGTON.

HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY.

Dr. Bodie concluded a most successful engagement at the Palace, Stoke Newington, on Saturday. The house was packed at both early and late performances, and many pounds were turned away on account of lack of room. Every seat in the theatre was occupied, and every corner from whence a view of the stage could be obtained had its crowd of tenants, and by 10 o'clock late comers found it impossible to get even a glimpse of the performers. Dr. Bodie was undoubtedly the big attraction, and as many of his patients were personally known to the audience, his work and methods scored a veritable triumph. There were many members of the medical profession present—one of whom had a lively experience of the strength of the current used by Dr. Bodie in the cure. His turn lasted an hour and ten minutes, and plenty of fun was caused by the antics of the "electrocuted" members of the audience who had the temerity to respond to the invitation to assist on the stage. Two afflicted ladies—one at each house—were relieved of their suffering from paralysis (after many years), and were glad to leave the instruments with which they had been provided in the care of Dr. Bodie. One former little patient gave a neat step dance to show the progress she had made; and a young woman and a lad related their experiences at various hospitals, and of their gratitude to Dr. Bodie after having received his treatment. They would not have a word said against their benefactor, and were most enthusiastic in voicing his praise, while the various institutions where they had been patients came in for much adverse citicism.—Vide North London Guardian.

Dr. WALFORD BODIE

. AT THE .

EMPIRE.

Packed Houses at Every Performance.

Dr. Walford Bodie's fame as a bloodless surgeon has gained him renown throughout the kingdom, and during his brief visit to Bristol, at the Empire, this week, it is safe to say he will draw a packed house at every performance. There are many sceptics who regard the results that attend his treatment of cases as merely momentary. That this is not so was amply evidenced last night, when several of his former patients, whom he has treated in Bristol, appeared on the stage to testify to the permanence of the cure. In one case, the father of a young girl, who was cured of paralysis four years ago, publicly expressed his thanks to Dr. Bodie. After performing a number of interesting electrical experiments, in which he passed thousands of volts through his body without turning a hair, and in which he was assisted by a jury from the audience, whose comical contortions when electrified highly amused the audience, Dr. Bodie performed some wonderful cures in cases of paralysis. One case was that of a pretty bright-eyed little damsel of tender years, whose right side was paralysed, and who wore ugly leg-irons. The little maid was promised a "dollie," and evinced much interest whilst Dr. Bodie manipulated her limbs. Within a few minutes she was toddling off the stage, tightly hugging her reward. Dr Bodie is undoubtedly possessed of remarkable powers, and, no doubt, will effect many more such cures whilst at the Empire.—Vide Bristol Mercury.

Cheered to the echo nightly. Recalled again and again. The vast audiences amazed, staggered, and bewildered at the wonderful doings of a wonderful man. The talk of Bristol. "It's simply marvellous."

AMUSEMENTS IN LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence. — Mr. Martin Harvey opened here on Monday with The Breed of the Treshams, and a well-filled house followed the adventures of the daring Keresby with all the old-time interest. Miss N. De Silva repeated her admirable impersonation of the lively Batty; Miss Coleridge was a sweet Margaret Hungerford; and worthy support came from Messrs. Charles Glenny, A. E. Raynor, P. Hewland, C. J. Cameron, Leonard Craske, and Fred Wright, senior. The other plays of the week were The Only Way and The Corsican Brothers.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Walter Howard's excellent play, Man and Wife, is staged here this week by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company. Mr. John F. Traynor plays with dramatic strength as Paul Revere; Miss Kate Hallam distinguishes herself in the rôle of Marcelle; Mr. Wilson Coleman does every credit to Captain D'Esparre; Miss Violet Temple is a sympathetic Ruth Revere; Miss Ethel F. Greene, as the crippled boy Jean, finds favour; and other well-sustained rôles are those of Colonel Latour by Mr. Edward Van Biene, Sergeant Jacques by Mr. Ambrose Horton, and Rosette by Miss Pollie Denville.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The New Aladdin paid a first visit to Liverpool this week, and was received with every favour. Mr. George Edwardes sent an excellent company, while the dresses and mounting were charming. Mr. George Gregory, on whose shoulders rested the bulk of the work, provoked endless laughter with his Tippin, being ably assisted by Mr. Frank Leslie, jun. (Genie of the Lamp); Miss Ida Rene, as the captivating Princess, sang and danced excellently, and received an ovation; Miss Cressie Leonard did capital work as Tally; Mr. Harry Taylor's lost constable provoked roars of laughter; Miss Nellie Lonnen danced pleasingly as Laolah; and other well-held parts were those of Cadi (Mr. William Spray), Ebenezer (Mr. Frank Hector), and General Ratz (Mr. Ernest Maher).

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—This week's programme is headed by Le Diabolo, a daring and intrepid performer, who, in the first place, loops the loop, afterwards cycling down a steep incline; Barney Vox, ventriloquist, is witty; the Emilions are clever acrobats; Tom Lloyd is extremely funny; T. E. Hughes, another comedian, does well; Clair Greta is a capable songstress and dancer; the Westwoods give a clever cycling turn; and the Columbia Trio delight everyone with their songs and comedy. Maxford and O'Neil cause much laughter.

STAR THEATRE. Proprietor, and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The Little Bread Winner is presented here by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company. In the name-part Little Emmie Thomas displays talent, and gains approval; Mr. Eugene Santley provides a capital picture of Lord Dorrington; Mr. Alfred Maurice gives satisfaction as Joseph Prior; Mr. Stanley Leedham does well as Charles Prior; Miss Emil Leslie is seen to advantage as Margaret Daventry; Miss Nellie King makes a good impression as Bobby Trott; and Miss N. Thorne-Hallam interprets the part of Kate Cherry with every satisfaction.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —Top of the bill here this week is the popular Arthur Prince, whose capital ventriloquial turn is much enjoyed. The musical comedy, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, presented by Arthur Watson and Co., meets with every favour; the soprano singing of Sam Morrison is listened to with much attention; a funny duologue, Saucy Maud, comes from the Brontes; a turn which gains loud applause is that provided by the Five Brewsters, lady vocalists, dancers, lance, and Indian club experts; the singing and dancing of the juvenile Boden and Bell earn cordial recognition; and others in the programme are Spencer and Marks, speciality comedians; Harry Conlin, comedian; and Cullen, Cluly, and Carthy, whose comedy act arouses endless laughter.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —An acceptable version of East Lynne, from the pen of Mr. Percy Boucher, is presented here this week by the "Royal" stock company, the principal characters being undertaken by Messrs. Harry Tresham, Sidney Grant, Robert Wilton, Cecil Ravenswood, and Misses Evelyn Kington, Beryl Ravenswood, Florence Cameron, and Florence Palmer.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery. —The "Royal" stock company here are this week giving their patrons an interesting sporting drama Riding to Win, the principal characters being in the hands of Messrs. Frank S. Strickland, Charles Herberte, Wallace Campbell, Francis E. Wybert, H. G. Brandon, H. Hesslegrace, Miss Florence Barnes, and Miss Lina Nazeby.

PARK PALACE.—Proprietors, Lancashire Vaudeville Syndicate, Ltd.; General Director, Mr. Walter De Frece.—The stock dramatic company here is this week presenting Mysteries of London, the principal parts in which are undertaken by Messrs. Albert Sember, Hugh Carmichael, Walter Foster, Miss Lilian Burns, Miss Nelson Ramsay, and Miss Violet B. Clarke.

WESTMINSTER. — Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The Gondolier Glee Singers head the programme here this week, their refined and humorous selections proving a source of much pleasure; as comedians, patterers, and dancers, Farrell and Miller afford every satisfaction; Vardon, an able ventriloquist, and his "caddie," cause a deal of laughter; a smart comedy speciality act of juggling, dancing, &c., is given by Welda and Wynne; other artists appearing being Phil Rees, comedian; and T. C. Callaghan, character comedian.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—George Lashwood tops an attractive bill here this week, and has a good reception for his taking songs; Kearney P. Speedy puts in a second and final week with his daring diving; roars of laughter follow the farce Hello, submitted by Frank Bernard and company; an uncommon act comes from the lilliputian Piccolinis, clever shots and cyclists; Die Vier Provinzen, Dutch lady vocalists and dancers, present a neat show; the ever-popular Missouris have a rousing reception for their sketch of Captain Kettle and His Mates; a pleasing scena, Let Bygones be Bygones, by Hurley and Cole, earns warm approval; and others in the list are the Fitzroys, society gymnasts; the Kirbys, comedy artists; and Alice Blandford, vocalist.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—That droll duo, Bella and Bijou, are at the head of the bill this week, charming everybody with their latest songs and business; Mabel Bardine and company present a popular theatrical sketch, Nell of the Music Halls, which is well produced; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden have a diverting duologue in Two to One; George Ridgwell sings several catchy songs, which are received with favour; Kate Traill, seated at the piano, gives a very pleasing turn; The Morning Mail is a lively and well-rendered speciality act by the Anartos; and other able artists who appear are Frobel and Ruge, aerial comedians; the New Macs, very funny comedians and patterers; and the Dorrells, duettists and dancers.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—Top of the bill this week are Haley's Juveniles, with their carnival scene, in which the small duettists, "Dot" and "Spot," take part; Claude Ginnett's Rejected Remounts, prove a source of great fun; Les Sousloffs make a first appearance in Liverpool, and delight everybody with their wonderful dancing; Jose Collins displays considerable talent as a comedienne; a deal of originality is shown by Burt Shepherd while seated at the piano; Mike Cray provides a capital turn as an eccentric juggler; Edna Seaton is a smart little Dutch girl; and the programme also has the names of Dan Robans (the possessor of a capital voice) and Fred Hallam (comedian).

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Lion and the Mouse is here this week. Mr. Leslie Carter plays most impressively the part of Burkett Ryder and Miss Nita Faydon is equally successful as Shirley Rossmore; Mr. Martyn Roland gives an excellent portraiture of Jefferson Ryder; Mr. Herbert Chown is good as the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley; and Miss Margaret Nybloc makes a most attractive Kate Roberts.

Palace Theatre.—Managing Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Pat Rafferty, who makes his first appearance in Aberdeen, quite captivates the audiences with his irresistibly amusing songs; the feats of Marx, the strong man, are as marvellous as ever; the Three Royal Dreadnoughts give a remarkable display of rifle shooting, and Gorman's Juveniles also score a decided success; Miss Edna Reeve and company play cleverly a strong dramatic sketch, Her Shattered Idol; the fine singing and graceful acting of the Nettas is much admired; Miss Ena Compton is a sprightly comedienne; the St. Johns contribute a highly amusing entertainment; and Mr. Bob Stephenson's quaint turn is likewise well received. The Bioscope series of pictures vividly represent various phases in an "Alpine Disaster."

ABERTILLERY.—Theatre Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas. — An attractive variety programme is submitted here this week. Mlle. Florence, the noted London to Brighton globe-walker, heads the bill, and attracted large crowds on Monday; Abex, apparently a youth, performs some wonderful feats of strength; Fred Ace plays on some wonderfully sweet-toned instruments, and is much appreciated; Erom and Charlotta submit a thoroughly mystifying cabinet trick with every success; Harry Keeble, comedian, with up-to-date songs and business, is heartily encored; Hoozee, in a clever ventriloquial turn, is very entertaining; R. Lomas, the "man monkey," provides a clever turn; the Onyx Duo, quick-change dancers, cause a furore with their speciality turns; the Ottawas provide an original cowboy musical and variety turn; Miss Gladys Wells, with songs; and Alton and Lois, comedy jugglers, complete a most pleasing bill.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Chalmers Mackey's company opened here on Monday with The Wearing o' the Green, and was greeted by a large audience. Mr. Chalmers Mackey did full justice to the part of Barney O'Hea; Mr. David M'Farlane gave a powerful impersonation of Connor Martin; Mr. Herbert Summers was good as S. McDermott; Mr. John S. Chamberlain must be highly complimented for his portrayal of Michael Kenny; Mr. H. Saintsbury cleverly depicted Sir George; Gerald Courteney was in the safe hands of Mr. John Stuart; Mrs. E. Mackey made an ideal Norah McGrath; Biddy McGlinn was a bright and sparkling performance by Miss Nana Flensberg; and the remainder of the parts were in capable hands.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—A good bill is provided here this week. Rosina Cassell, with her wonderful midget dogs, tops the bill; Elton and Elma are here again with their evergreen and funny performance on the bars; the McKays are also a very clever turn; the smart conjuring of De Lil is well received; Hulbert is warmly applauded; and Harry Bancroft wins hearty commendation. The Bioscope showed some excellent pictures.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—What is termed an historic and romantic drama, entitled Napoleon the Great, written by Mr. F. Thorne, is being played here this week. Mr. Hugh Montgomery assumes with marked success the rôle of Napoleon; Miss Leslie Warner sustains with much vigour and feminine diplomacy the character of Marie Walewska; the part of Mère Dumont is entrusted to the capable keeping of Miss Florence Thorne; and good delineations of Mlle. Leonie Marbœuf (Miss Maud Russell), Marcelle Choupin (Miss Marie Harcourt), and Lisette (Miss S. Porteous), are given. Prominent male characters receive capable treatment from Messrs. Oliver Birrell, Phil Harper, B. Garth, Frank M. Thorne, A. Sinclair, R. W. Ellis, Acton Dix, T. A. Jones, and others.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Good business is the order of the day here. The great Schiavonis Troupe of acrobats engage interested attention, the business for the most part being of a diverting order; very dainty is Olive Armadale as a sweet-singing comedienne; Hilda and Leigh and company create much merriment in a comedy sketch, Another Man's Wife; Vowles and Bryan furnish delight for a limited space with song and story in a garden; a troupe of Oriental conjureres and illusionists, under the title of Simbri, introduce some mystifying optical illusions; the Australian Nugget, Harry Grey, is a good turn; Billy Richardson, stump orator, is revisiting this week with speeches up to date; the sporting comedians, Harris and Worth, and Juan and McQue, knockabout artists, have each their admirers; and the Bioscope shows "The American Convict's Escape."

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaughton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. A. Wordsworth.—The Imperial Animated Picture Company is again providing the attraction here, and, judging by the measure of support accorded, this class of entertainment is highly popular. A judicious and varied selection of pictures is presented, interspersed with beautifully illustrated songs ably rendered by Miss Ray Royal.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—The excellent programme here is headed by Mr. Harry Tate's company in the mirth-provoking sketch entitled Fishing; an excellent turn is that of N. T. Kioto, Japanese equilibrist; Miss Lilian Rigby, in a musical speciality act, is most interesting; Mr. E. C. Clayton's popularity is shown by the manner in which his "Attergraph" pictures are applauded; Miss Lilian Hodge is to be congratulated on her efforts as a ballad-vocalist; Mlle. Spada, Franco-English chanteuse, possesses a sweet voice, and her songs are ably given; Mr. James Alston is good as a vocal-comedian; and Kendrick and Laura contribute a pleasing turn as entertainers and dancers.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, with her specially selected company, opened a six nights' engagement on Monday, with her own production, From Washerwoman to Duchess. Mr. Bandmann-Palmer, a powerful actress, who has the ability to clothe her characters with subtle touches of humanity, is admirably suited to the part of Catherine, and has capital support from the members of her company. Marechal Lefebvre is impressively played by Mr. Robert Pittard; the Fouché of Mr. F. Skein is carefully and well acted; and Mr. Leonard Cheetham plays the part of young Lieut. Adrian. Lefebvre artistically. As Princess Pauline, Miss A. Barker is typically disdainful; Mme. De Staël is portrayed by Miss More Dunphie with art and grace; and Miss Rita Sponti makes the most of the character of Rosalie. In the prologue, Miss Katherine Herbert as Melaine de Lavizne makes an impression by her fine acting. The dresses are splendid, and the staging of the piece complete in every detail. For Tuesday, Mary Queen of Scots, Wednesday East Lynne, Thursday Sapho, Friday School for Scandal, and Saturday Jane Shore was billed.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—The New Sapho Syndicate Co., Ltd., present Sapho here this week. Miss V. St. Lawrence, in the title-rôle, contrasts the emotional and the gay with artistic skill; and Mr. Otto Minster is a typical provincial Jean Gaussin. Mr. Oliver Rogers is a good Father Legrand, Mr. Geo. Antley an admirable Cesaire le Fenant, and Mr. Pringle Roberts a clever Eugene Flamant. As Caoudel Mr. H. Langford is well suited, the Paul Dechelette of Mr. Roy Milton is admirably conceived, and Joseph is pleasingly played by Miss Gena Lindon.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. and Mrs. Routledge are presenting The Idler this week. Mr. Cecil Freeman gives an admirable study of Mark Cross; and Miss Hettie Machin plays Lady Harding with commendable skill. Mr. W. E. Peacock submits a well-balanced representation of Simeon Strong; and Miss Shirley McVeigh is a more than pleasing Kate Merryweather. Mr. C. B. Beveridge, Mr. W. H. Taylor, Miss Nance Comissiong, Miss Annie Silverwood, and Mr. W. Sydney Robinson also call for notice.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—Leo Dryden is making a welcome return here at the top of the bill, his vocal character numbers being exceedingly well received; the Fitzgeralds give a clever and dexterous club act; Dot Hardy is a talented character comedienne; Elsie Earle is irresistible with her song-scena, "Holly and Mistletoe"; Les Uniques give a very pleasing and clean acrobatic show on illuminated ladders; and some capital pictures are displayed on Vernon's Bioscope.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Closed for this week, reopening Monday next with Miss Annie Hughes and Co. in Tommy.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The gymnastic display given by the Two Krags secures them rounds of applause. Equally clever is the equilibristic performance of Lise Rolland; T. W. Rawson and Lilly Bertram present the sketch, The Would-be Actors, which is well received here; John Macauley, a fine character actor, meets with much favour; Charles Mildare maintains his high position as a whistler and imitator of birds; Rell and Butt provide a laughable time as comedians, patterers, and dancers; Chas. Torbay, silhouettist, is watched with interest; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux unfold a splendid film of the legend, "The curfew shall not ring to-night."

Assembly Rooms.—On Monday the Charles W. Poole's Myriorama commenced another successful visit. In addition there are Woolford's stage circus, Harry Raymond, Funny Chef, The Fordyces, Dane's Marionettes, and Sydney Bush, and a capital series of animated pictures. Mr. John R. Poole pilots the audience as guide in a fashion that gains him much goodwill.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—During this week Bedfordians have again had an opportunity of witnessing the ever-popular Charley's Aunt, which, produced by Mr. Brandon Thomas's company, has drawn full houses. Mr. Sydney Compton was natural and convincing as the Colonel; and Mr. Walter Beaumont was an excellent Spettigue. The parts of the three undergraduates were in the able hands of Messrs. Hastings Lynn, Richard B. Mason, and Spencer Trevor, the last-named causing roars of laughter as the pseudo-aunt; and Mr. M. A. Wetherell was a capital Brassett. As the real aunt, Miss Lena MacNaughtan acted with grace and dignity; Miss Ruth Nightingale was good as Ela Delahay; and Miss Bertha Northam and Miss Ida Vynall enacted with vivacity and skill the parts of Kitty and Amy respectively. Fourchette and Co. was the title of the curtain-raiser.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Notwithstanding the success of the Easter pantomime, Goody Two Shoes, Mr. Fred W. Warden is compelled to withdraw the same to-night owing to other important engagements.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The top of the bill here is occupied by Galatea, "La Statue Humaine," in a series of beautiful reproductions of sculpture; Chirgwin, "the White-Eyed Kaffir," is paying a successful return visit to this city after some years absence; Terry and Lambert appear to great advantage in their comedy act; the songs of Mr. T. W. Barrett are much enjoyed; Imro Fox has proved a great draw with his conjuring act; Mr. T. P. Carroll's tambourine performance is certainly smart; and Mr. Victor Courtenay's capital act at the piano is worthy of special mention. Also here are Miss Flo Cecil, comedienne and dancer; and the Palace pictures.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Belfast Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Downs.—The success of the opening of this beautiful theatre has been most pronounced. Another fine bill has been presented this week, the chief feature being the acrobatic performance of the Lorch Family (nine in number), which is certainly a triumph of excellence, their feats being simply marvellous; the violin solos by F. Voelker have been rendered with fine technique; and a hit has been made by the Tan Kwai troupe of Oriental acrobats, jugglers, &c.; a novel turn has been provided by Henriquette Maude in her illustrated lectures, which are decidedly interesting; the College Boys have been heard to the utmost advantage; the Royal Quintette of international dancers and pipers furnish a most entertaining performance; and Miss Molly Doon is a charming comedienne; the Two Kays appear in a capital vocal scena; and also here are the Olmars (statuary acrobats), Mr. Watt Tyler (character vocalist), Mr. Arthur Woodville (vocalist and dancer), the Rollars, and the Hipposcope with its most attractive pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Walker.—The chief feature of the bill this week is the smart musical comedy, The Duchess of Tooting, presented with much success by a clever company. Miss Minnie Hunt and Mr. Rhys Thomas present with great effect their sketch, Her Birthday; Stevens and Rennior make a hit with their comedy act; Forest and King are a capable comedy duo; Stave, the electrical comedy artist, appears in his novel act; the Dixons are expert bâton swingers and banjo artists; and also here are Messrs. Allan Hanbury and Fred Fane, comedians.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—This week the Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, stage with good effects the well-known play, The Streets of London. Mr. Tom H. Holly has been most successful as Badger; congratulations are due to Mr. Horace Denton for his clever assumption of Mark Livingstone; Miss Nina Blake-Adams plays the rôle of Lucy with much grace and charm; and Mr. Cyril Grier's character-sketch of Puffy would be difficult to surpass. Miss Kathleen Magee—a newcomer—although only arriving in Belfast on Monday, at short notice, made a hit as Alidia Bloodgood; and Mr. E. M. Heanley sustained the rôle of Gideon Bloodgood with undoubted skill. Mr. Elmore Frith's assumption of Captain Fairweather reflected much credit on this experienced actor; and Miss Mattie Crawford (who is especially clever in boys' parts) plays the rôle of Dan irreproachably. Mr. Ed. Smyth sustains the rôle of Paul Fairweather with no little skill; and Miss Alice Clarke makes the most of her opportunities as Mrs. Puffy; Mr. J. E. Davies as Edwards completes the cast. Mr. Tom H. Solly is responsible for the admirable stage-management. The Alhambra bioscope, under the direction of Mr. W. E. Newlove, presents a funny picture this week, entitled "Saved by a Stray Dog."

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company are performing As Midnight Chimes here. Chief among the cast are Miss Maud Hastings as Mary Stannard; Mr. Dalrymple as Dave Stannard; Mr. Herbert Belmore as Luke Dezzard; and Mr. Herbert Pearce as Ezra Gamble, all of whom act effectively. The comedy parts, Suzette and Spavvin, have very good representatives in Miss Madge Beresford and Mr. James Salter.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company commenced a return engagement on Monday, with a fine performance of Much Ado About Nothing, with Mr. Henry Herbert as Benedick and Miss Dorothy Green as Beatrice. On Tuesday Romeo and Juliet was produced, and during the week As You Like It, The Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, The Rivals, and Macbeth have been played. The company has an excellent reputation in this town, and has been cordially received on the present occasion.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Fred Karno's comedians, in Early Birds, are a prominent attraction. Mr. Neil Kenyon, Scotch comedian, is on a highly successful return visit; and the Soho Trio, in their song and dance entertainment, achieve distinction. Miss Millie Payne is an exceptionally clever low comedy artist; and a capital company includes Mr. Jack Lane, mimic and patterer; Mr. A. G. Spry, a comedian of resource; Miss Venie Clements, a talented comedienne; Chorley and Connor, amusing patterers; Miss Gertie Cunningham, a charming soubrette; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The spacious Royal is crowded nightly, the attraction being Mr. Louis Calvert's production of Amasis, which with one exception he presents with the original London cast. Mr. Calvert has taken up Mr. Rutland Barrington's part Pharaoh, which he plays in an admirable and jocose spirit which tickles the audience immensely; Mr. Reginald White imbues Ptolemy with clever senile humour; Mr. Lauri de Frece as Sebock proves an admirable comedian; Mr. Roland Cunningham as the lover, Prince Anhotep, looks the part well, and sings finely; and vocalism of the highest order is vouchsafed by Messrs. Whitworth Mitton, Norman Salmond, and Frank Perfitt as respectively Cheiro, Nebenchari, and Psamtik. Miss Constance Drever delights the audience with the brilliance of her singing as Amasis; Miss Madge Vincent acts with charming cajolery as Natis; and Miss Winifred Hart-Dyke is much admired for her graceful posturing and dancing. On Monday the performance concluded amid much enthusiasm and cries of "Speech," to which Mr. Calvert responded, and expressed his thanks.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird's visit has been one of unqualified pleasure and success. Mr. Irving on Monday and Wednesday essayed his father's rôles of Lesurques and Dubosc in The Lyons Mail, which by the depth and intensity of his acting he is fast making his own. Miss Baird's portrayal of Janette gave a capital impression of this charming and talented actress; and Messrs. E. Harcourt Williams, Chas. Dodsworth, Frank Tyars, Fewlass Llewellyn, Eric Mason, and the Misses Sybil Noble and Ada Mellon played their parts with excellent point and discretion. On Tuesday The Bells showed Mr. Irving in another famous rôle, from which he emerged with signal success, his impersonation of Mathias being in every respect admirable. Miss Baird shone as Annette, while that always interesting and charming actor, Mr. Harcourt Williams, distinguished himself as Christian. Charles the First was down for Thursday (matinée) and Friday, and King René's Daughter, as a curtain-raiser, has also been in the bill.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—That favourite and always magnetic comedian, Mr. Harry Starr, appears here in Carl the Clockmaker and Otto the Outcast, and in the former rôle his clever protean powers come out in bright array. The support is headed by Mr. Edwin Firth, whose acting as the anarchist scoundrel, Maurice Helmore, is well done. Miss Madge Blundell secures much sympathy in her admirably rendered part of the victim, Madge Ryder; Miss Kate Norris acts in good style as Lena Harrigan; Mr. Fred W. Graham scores as a disguised tramp, Arthur Attwood; Mr. Chas. Gabb is successful as Hans Conrad; and Mr. Will Hee, as the Count, Mr. Bernard Mostyn as the detective, Mr. William Miller as Narkey Nabbs, and Miss Lizzie Jacobs as an up-to-date lady-help do well. As Otto, Mr. Starr introduces his clever reincarnations of Napoleon and Lord Nelson, with striking tableaux depicting the battles of Waterloo and Trafalgar.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's famous drama, A Wrecker of Men, is meeting with much success in its present environment. Miss Ruth Zillwood has charge of the titular rôle, Risca Malison, which she enacts with a full grasp of all its requirements. Mr. Eric Campbell reproduces the characteristics of the Sloger, Jim Murley, with splendid fidelity; Mr. Milner Noble is a striking figure as Pharosaphus; Mr. Miller Anderson acts impressively as Railton; Mr. Stanley Vivian assumes the rôle of Guise Strange in the most perfect manner; Mr. Thompson Carruthers, under whose direction the play is presented, makes a good part of Eric Melville; Miss Gwendoline Talbot renders the rôle of Doris Melville gracefully; and Miss Marie Halton, Mr. Harry Melton, and Mr. Henry Meores supply good performances. The humour of the piece is well sustained by Mr. Leslie Ross as Verincourt and Miss Beatrice Reynolds as Slopper; while as the Jew (Isaacs) and later as a Mummy, Mr. Chas. Earle is very successful.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company excel here in The Spider and the Fly. Mr. Benson North meets with much success and admiration as the hero, Cyril Girdlestone; Mr. Ellis J. Preston simulates the villainous character of Welby Girdlestone in the most complete manner; Miss Nina Vaughton gains the audience's good will with her clever acting as Edith McAlister; Miss Amy Venimore realises her chances as Stella in the utmost degree; and great diversion is caused by the well-timed and clever efforts of Mr. Charles Russell as Romolous Roe, Mr. Charles A. Preece as Remus Roe, and Miss Ada Palmer as Jane Ellen Scriver. The other rôles are well played, and the scenery is excellent.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Mr. Fred Karno's popular musical extravaganza, Saturday to Monday, takes the public fancy here to a large extent. Mr. Rolando Martin, a comedian of an undoubtedly clever stamp, makes a hit as John Willie Jaggs; Mr. V. H. Crawford disports humorously as John Willie, junior; Miss Amy Rogerson acts in a becoming and charming manner as Clarinda, the bride; Miss Ethel Beech lends valuable support as the bride's sister, Violet Blake; Mr. J. Fletch is commendable as Spinks; Miss Ada Maskell is diverting as the Aunt; and Mr. J. W. Bradbury as the bride's father, Mr. Dick Harcourt as the best man, and the Misses Lily Olive, Lucy Walden, Mabel Clarke, and Kathleen Dennis as the bridesmaids lend variety and charm to the show.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The bill here includes The Isle of Ooma, a most attractive spectacle. In the part of the imperturbable Englishman, and also as the dancing girl, Arthur Rigby is very diverting; Howard and Harris, the well-known Americans, are amusing in The Adventures of a Happy Hooligan; Bessie Butt has a most cordial reception; Marzella's collection of trained birds accomplish some remarkable feats; C. Randolph King meets with his usual success; while the Wartenburg Brothers, in their double-foot speciality, are remarkably clever. Charles Vincent, comedian; Percy Honri, the joking concertina-player; and the Celtic Comedy Trio are also responsible for pleasing turns.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—An excellent musical turn is provided by the Tampico Trio, the Mexican troubadors; W. J. Churchill scores a marked success with his quaint songs and patter; Will Vay's Juveniles give a most realistic performance in their scena, Life in the Slums; the Falcons, comedy acrobats, set the audience marvelling at their clever feats; Walter Emerson is a most diverting comedian; Wyndham and Waters are amusing in their sketch, The Professor and his Pupil; Regan and Ryan, in a comedy act, are very successful; Keen and Waller present a novel eccentric act; and Mlle. Pollo, lady gymnast, Stan Aubrey, legmania comedian, and Ada Fawn, burlesque actress, complete an interesting programme.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—At the head of the bill this week is Auguste van Biene, the popular actor-musician, in his sketch, The Master Musician; Lily Burnand has several ditties which she sings with great vivacity; Harry Marie is a clever dancer; the Four Royal Welshmen, the original Rhondda Valley Glee Singers, have an enthusiastic reception; Tom Owen is a smart Welsh comedian; Helene and Emilion are clever gymnasts; and Olive Tree is loudly applauded for her illustrated songs.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—The Power of the Cross is being presented here this week by Lingford Carson's company. As Baron Wolfe Curzois, Mr. Geo. A. de Gray impersonates a difficult rôle in an able manner; Gerald Fairfax has a worthy exponent in Mr. Charles E. Linney; Dr. Leslie Fairfax is well undertaken by Mr. Alexander J. Haviland; and David Kingsley is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Read. As Margaret Seaton, Miss Marie Menzies is painstaking; Blanche Kingsley is prettily played by Miss Phyllis Vaughan; Miss Cicely Desmond gives a convincing interpretation of the Adventuress; and Benjamin Hawke is successfully presented by Mr. Frank Stephens. The comedy is supplied by Mr. Richard E. Nugent as Timothy O'Dowd and Miss Etta Turner as Dolly Gray.

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings were occupied by Mr. H. A. Saintsbury and his company in Anna of the Plains. Mr. Saintsbury is successful in his part of Tom Matthew. His acting is always forceful and convincing, and in the last act his work was very fine. He is splendidly supported by Miss Dorothea Desmond, who, as Anna, acts charmingly. The other parts are also in good hands. The remainder of the week is to be filled by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, who present The Housekeeper, A Tight Corner, and The Ironmaster.

New Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in A Broken Heart are appearing here.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray; Deputy-Manager, Mr. W. Bradbury.—The entertainment here is given by Gustave Fasola, the Indian fakir; Mooney and Holbein, vocal and dancing comedy artists; the Primrose Male Quartette (who deputise for Helen, Charles, and Flo Burris); the Four Herbertins, knockabout comedians; Johnny Dwyer, comedian; Diamond and Beatrice, musicians; T. C. Jacques, comedian; and the Sisters Hall, vocalists.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is giving a representation of The Eternal City here. A painstaking performance of Baron Bonelli is given by Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp, and Mr. Oswald Gray's impersonation of David Rossi has merit. Bruno Rocco has an efficient exponent in Mr. Charles McCann, and Mr. Wernham Ryott proves his fitness for the part of Commendatore Angelelli. Miss Eva Moss contributes a clever portrayal of Donna Roma, and the numerous smaller parts are also played with considerable ability. Songs are pleasantly rendered by Miss Phyllis Castleton and Miss Violet Campbell during the progress of the play.

Grand Theatre. — Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson. — The Master Builder is the fare provided here this week by Mr. Leigh Lovel and company. Mr. Lovel undertakes the title-rôle, and proves himself a very clever actor, and Miss Octavia Kenmore scores a distinct triumph as Hilda Wangel. Alice Solness handles the part of Aline Solness in exactly the right spirit; and Mr. Arthur McCullock as Doctor Herdal, Mr. A. Collins Rolfe as Knut Brovik, Mr. Wilson Gunning as Ragnar Brovik, and Miss Dora Levis as Kaia Fosli also give evidence of careful study.

Palace.— General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The programme here this week is contributed to by Simms and Simms, a pair of clever comedians; Oswald Williams, a wonderful conjurer; Sid Cotterell and company in a sketch; Carson Hicks, coon delineator; Jessie Merrilees, vocal comedienne; Leo Tell, a very able mimic; Mabel and Winnie Brooke, duettiste; The Firmans in a sketch; and the Australian quartette of lady vocalists.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody.—Miss Mary Neil, supported by a good company, has presented a new drama, entitled Her Luck in London, which has met with a favourable reception, Miss Neil sustaining the part of Nellie Harborne with success.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee, Mr. G. E. Good.—Alf. Bishop, who tops the bill here, presents a capital turn; Arthur Wade as a baritone renders some good numbers; Sill and Silcott in their sketch, Lively Luggage, create roars of laughter; and the bioscope continues to be a draw.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Tudor.—Pictures and variety turns are still the attractions here, and meet with liberal patronage.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal (Ltd.)—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Messrs Hardie and Von Leer's original company are presenting Two Little Vagabonds this week. The little vagabonds are represented by Miss Edie Marton, as Dick, and Miss Josie Beltram, as Wally, the delicate nature of the latter being as well portrayed as the hearty health of the former. Mr. Arthur E. Melborne as George Thornton, Miss Grace Heywood as his trouble-haunted wife, and Miss Rosslyn Vane as Barbara Scarth, help to maintain the interest of the piece; while Mr. Sydney Vautier as Captain Darville and Mr. Dunstan Haye as John Scarth add their quota to the more solid element of the production. Mr. Lionel Ellis is entitled to special mention for an admirable character-sketch as "the Gaffer" of a gang of thieves, among whom are Dido Bunce, represented by Mr. Frank Moore, and the Cough Drop, enacted, with many touches of humour, by Mr. Dick Winslow. Miss Evelyn Shaw is excellent as Biddy Mullins. Other smaller parts are well filled.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon. —At this house the popular comedienne, Kate Carney, Queen of Coster Comedy, appears in her successful scena, "'Liza Johnson," supported by fifty auxiliaries. Harry Lawson, a truly eccentric comedian; Lopez, an exceptionally clever dental athlete; Miss Violet Morgan a good character mimic; and Sammy Shields, Scottish comedian; Jessie Barlee and Phil Smith, in their amusing episode, The Rehearsal; Mark Leslie, coon impersonator; Loudoun Cameron, conjurer; and the original Cee-Mee Family, in their sensational comedy stage aerial act; and the Imperial Bioscope, also appear.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Miss Bonwin Carleton's company is this week presenting the comedy-drama, entitled The Plucky Nipper. Mr. M. Maud gives a capital rendering of Captain Frank Leslie, and Mr. H. J. Butler is well placed as Colonel Fenwick. Miss Bonwin Carleton gives a refined and amusing performance in the titular part, while the representation of Bill Burgess by Mr. E. Surrey is worthy of favourable comment. Miss Esther Lamont plays sweetly as Ina Fenwick; Mr. Syd Morton scores as Tommy Atkin. The rôle of Richard Vanbrugh is capably played by Mr. Wm. Heilbronn.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Mr. Arthur Roberts, supported by his own company, forms the chief attraction this week with The Woman Who Was. Mr. Roberts makes a great success as a chauffeur, and is ably supported by Miss Ruby Celeste and a very competent company. Little Cliff is accorded a flattering reception, which he well deserves, for his clever singing and dancing; as an imitator of animals, Carl Lynn is one of the best, his reproduction of the noises in a farmyard being life-like; Saxo is a versatile instrumentalist; Sadie Seymour is a chic comedienne and clever dancer; Fred Collins excels as a Scotch comedian; the Sisters Reno score in their speciality dance; and interesting pictures are shown on the Biograph.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—The Dairymaids, played by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's excellent company, is here this week. It would be difficult to find two more delightfully droll comedians than Mr. E. Statham Staples and Mr. Harry Dent, who easily bore off the leading honours of the evening. Mr. Forbes Dawson as Dr. O'Byrne, and Mr. George Desmond as the Lieutenant were capital; while Mr. Alec Fraser sang and acted well in the part of Fred Leverton. Miss Violet Lloyd represented Peggy with considerable skill; Miss Cissy Sephton played Eliza with a fascinating degree of pertness and a due regard to a North Country dialect; Miss Beryl Vaudrey as Helene used a sweet voice to advantage; while Miss Edith Blanche as Lady Brudenell and Miss Rhoda Gordon as Winifred were well cast. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Albert Bartlett, must be specially mentioned for its admirable work.

Shaftesbury Hall.—West's Pictures are again here. On Monday many new films were introduced. Messrs. Gordon Wilde and Williams appear at each performance in sleight-of-hand and musical impersonations; Miss Clara Buchanan is at the piano; Mr. Mackenzie Henderson is the raconteur; and Mr. G. Hastings Philip the clever cinematographist.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Robin Hood was presented on Monday night by Mr. Lewis Waller's company. Robin Hood is represented by Mr. Robert Minster with the requisite spirit and vigour for so commanding a figure in the story; the robust Little John is realised perfectly by Mr. Leslie Rea; Mr. Augustus Wheatman's Friar Tuck is an effort brimful of humour; and there is nothing lacking in the vigorous impersonations submitted by Mr. Stockwell Ward as King Richard, Mr. Bellenden Clarke as Prince John, Mr. Arthur Willerby as Fitz-Alwynne, and Mr. H. Elliott Ball as Hugo de Longesper. Miss Marie Polini as Lady Marion de Vaux presents a charming and thoroughly convincing performance; as Adela, Miss O. Moore-Lane aids her well. Miss Mabel Young plays Queen Eleanor with power; and the other parts which stand out prominently in the cast are the Allan A'Dale of Mr. E. Edwards, the Will Scarlet of Mr. L. Tessier, the Sir Aymer le Botelier of Mr. Val Glynn, the Abbot, represented by Mr. C. B. Winston, and Adison Much, played in winsome style by Miss Lilian Lait.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. William Maclaren is here this week with Claudian, and he gives a fine performance of the title-rôle. Miss Lily C. Bandmann's histrionic powers fit her well for the trying part of Almida. The audiences are not lacking in their appreciation of Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner's quaint performance of Belos, Mr. Douglas Earle's acting of Agazil, Mr. Ulick Burke's efforts as the Holy Clement, or Mr. Weston Hubbard's representation of Alceres; and in minor parts Mr. Owen Chambers, Mr. E. Grogan, and Miss Maud Garth are distinctly noticeable. The very striking scene of the earthquake is one of the many fine bits of stagecraft which elicit great applause during the representation.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The remarkable Kremo Family of Risley performers and acrobats are commanding unstinted applause for their sensational feats, and as comedy acrobats the Tupps are amusing; Ryder Slone's song-scenas are novel and very quaint. In her scena Rosie is Waiting Gladys Mavius, the Canadian dancer, scores successfully; Charles Robinson's baritone songs are well rendered, and illustrated; as a raconteur, the smart juvenile, Boy Glenn, displays ability; with sand-dancing and comedy Hughes and Elliott are entertaining; and with comedy boxing and knockabout business the Brothers Lang elicit laughter. In Zululand is a very thrilling incident of the late Natal rising, dramatically depicted by Leicester Cooke and company; and there are some fine pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten;

well played by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Miss Grace Chalmers acts admirably as Glory Quayle; Mr. Frank Tennant is a powerful and convincing John Storm; Mr. Frederick Scarth and Mr. Frank Beresford are both excellent in their respective parts of Lord Robert Ure and Horatio Drake; Miss Vashti Wellborne is a capital Polly Love; and Miss Molly Hayden presents a good study of Mrs. Callander. The remaining parts are all very carefully played. Mr. Crowe, who is leaving to undertake the acting-management of the Lyceum, had a benefit on the 5th inst., when the house was packed, special attractions being provided.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Miss Ella's troupe of forest-bred lions, who occupy the leading position on the bill, are admirably trained, and go through an effective performance. Whit Cunliffe, vocal comedian, obtains general appreciation; Rowland Hill, comedian, is amusing; Daisy Morell does a pleasing turn; Frank Cumminger scores as a sand dancer; Mountford and Walsh are smart society entertainers; J. C. Scatter, patter comedian and dancer, is successful; Rezene and Robini, knockabout comedians, are good in their line; and the performance concludes with "Hooligans of the West," depicted by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Jack Collinson and company have an amusing sketch, The Topsy-Turvey School, in which some smart dancing, &c., is introduced to advantage; Dora Lyric, comedienne, has some pleasing songs, which she renders effectively; Lillie Mayfield, comedienne and dancer, does a pleasing turn; Bock Pylades is successful in facial impersonations; Ivey Rose and Frank Calvert present a refined comedy act; Harry Russon, comedian, does a good turn; the Four Jumels are successful in their musical act; Alec Kendal, patter comedian, has a quaint style; Johnson and Bert are clever knockabouts; and the performance concludes with an interesting display of animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—Walter Jeffs' New Century pictures and variety entertainment is continuing to be attractive. This week the operatic company is appearing with success in a pleasing song-scena, After the Hunt.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. George Alexander's company in the comedy His House in Order is the attraction this week. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart as Hilary Jesson gives a clever portrayal of this delightful character; Miss Dorothy Grimstone submits a charming performance as Nina; Miss Elaine Sleddall is excellent as Geraldine Ridgeley; and Miss Augustus Haviland is sufficiently acid as Lady Ridgley. Filmer Jesson is capitally undertaken by Mr. J. Edward Pearce, and Mr. Charles Tyrel is good as Major Maurewarde. Mr. Herbert Lomas as the venerable Sir Daniel Ridgeley presents a clever portrait of this despicable character, and Mr. Ernest R. Holloway is very good as Pryce Ridgeley. Miss Doris Champion as Derek, Miss Jean Cadell as Mlle. Thomè, and Mr. Luke Forster as Doctor Dilnott are worthy of praise.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A smart gymnastic performance is given here by The Three Pattersons. The Arthur Lloyd Trio provide a clever sketch, Little Charley, and a funny acrobatic knockabout turn is given by the Smarte Brothers. Raffo is applauded for his neat hand-balancing, in which he is assisted by Ella. Sid Bandon, with new songs, is most acceptable; Ted Karno and Co., in a pantomime absurdity, are productive of laughter; Georgina Leonard is applauded for her song "After the Victory"; and "Baby's first day out" is the subject of a funny film by the New Empire Theatroscope.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company, with In Sight of St. Paul's, is the attraction here this week. Miss Gussie Everitt portrays with dramatic power an adventuress of the accepted type; Miss Cissie Bellamy evokes much sympathy as the heroine; the Tom Chichester of Mr. Ernest R. Allen is a performance of exceptional ability; villainy, as represented by Mr. Herbert Cecil (Captain Gridston) and Mr. Henry Gilpin (Blidstein), is sufficiently repulsive to rouse the ire of the audience; and the comic business between Mr. Herbert Colley (Jim) and Miss Sybil Hammersley (Becky) is clever and amusing.

BURY (Lancs).—CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mr. Culling is making a change in the bill this week, animated pictures occupying nearly the whole of the evening. Other attractions are Miss Maudie Ray, a talented little Bury lady, who sings and dances charmingly, and The Lynches, whose songs are accompanied by coloured illustrations.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—A good programme includes Haley's production, "The Garden of Girls"; Haptmann Marquis Itoyne, in a capital sketch, entitled Fun on a Bivouac; Harry Lee, mimic; Cyril Carl, actor vocalist; Fortune and Fame, a clever couple; Donald Douglas and Lil Gordon, comedians; George and Edwards, comedians; C. B. Baker and M. Lindsay in a musical sketch, and the Czar's Royal Russian Troupe of Dancers.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—The Ticket-of-Leave Man is presented here this week by Mr. Montefiore's own company, the title-rôle being played by Mr. Chas. O'Connor with distinction; an admirable impersonation of Hawkshaw comes from Mr. Riddell Robinson; Mr. Frank Bradley's Dalton is a capital piece of acting; and the same remark applies to the Melton Moss of Mr. Joe Bracewell; Mr. William Rokeby and Mr. Claremont Gaskell acquitting themselves well as Jones and Mr. Gibson. Miss Violet Hammersley wins appreciation as May Edwards; Miss Dorothy Mayhew looks charming in the part of Emily St. Evremond; and Miss Helena Rigby and Miss Florence Moore are successful as Mrs. Willoughby and Dan.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—This entertainment includes a successful turn by Ara, Zebra, and Vora, wonderful juggling by Staffo, and a horizontal bar performance by Les Blancs. Miss Daisy Reed is a clever dancer; Grant and Allen give a mirth-provoking scene; Fred Elmont contributes two songs; and Jury's pictures are entertaining, as usual.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—A praiseworthy representation of the Silver King was given here on Monday night by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company. Mr. Fred D. Daviss gained golden opinions by a clever performance of Wilfred Denver; and Nellie was charmingly played by Miss Daisy Scudamore. Mr. Edward J. George, in the part of Jaikes, was as good as ever; Mr. L. St. George Lowther was a capital Spider; and Miss Viola Holland a charming Olive Skinner; Mr. Arthur Wright made an excellent Elijah Coombe; the children, Cissy and Ned, were faithfully rendered by Miss Flossie Hall Daviss and Master Douglas Thomas.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—What the Butler Saw was presented here on Monday to a full house. Mr. Lionel Rignold's impersonation of the butler caused endless fun; Miss Ada Blanche as Mrs. Barrington gave a delightful performance; Mr. Charles Fawcett as Jack Barrington portrayed the light-hearted Irishman with much effect; as Sir Charles Foden Mr. Louis Lingard was most capable; the fiery General Dunlop had a clever representative in Mr. Victor Widdicombe; Professor Shale was a particularly amusing character as enacted by Mr. Roy Byford; and Mr. H. H. Rignold (Abraham Weinstein) and Mr. Leo St. Clair (Sydney Clifford) were effective; as Miss Foden Miss Clara Russell's help is valuable.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—The Power and the Glory was presented on Monday. Mr. Francis Chamier as Ferdinand Crayle made a capital villain; Miss Bessie Elma did well as Kate Goodluck; the part of Harry Goodluck was capably undertaken by Mr. George E. Clive; the difficult rôle of Harold Hartree was in the clever hands of Mr. Ernest Chesney; the blind girl Linda was pathetically delineated by Miss Flo Florence; and Miss Olive Fulton made an interesting Lizzie Medwin.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—A strong programme is presented at the Queen-street house, headed by the sketch The Little Stowaway. In the title-rôle Miss Eva Lumley is deserving of much praise; Mr. John K. Walton makes a manly Captain. The deck scene used in the piece is exceedingly good. Lockhart's Elephants provide a popular interlude; a pleasing item is that presented by the Boccaccio Minstrels; the Bros. Horne are clever and amusing in their pugilistic entertainment; and Ross Loader, the musical slavey at the piano; May Evans, character comedienne; Lady Fauntleroy, ventriloquist; Andrew Roy, a fine tenor, with illustrated songs; Allis and Cassati, in comedy and dancing; and Bioscope pictures complete a fine programme.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr Thos. Courtice and Mr. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Wm. J. Miller's company opened a three-nights' engagement here on Monday in The Throne of Terror. Mr. Miller as Robespierre has a fine part, of which he takes every advantage; Mr. Edwin Turner as Roquefort was especially good in the trial scene; Mr. Carsdale as the spy contributed a capital character-study; and Gerald Byrne's Eugène was a thoroughly sound and artistic performance. The heroine was in the safe hands of Miss Katherine Maude Davis, an emotional actress of considerable ability; Mr. Wallis Bentley appeared with success as Robespierre's accomplice; and Miss George Whyte and Mr. Bert Ellis were responsible for the humorous side of the piece.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The top of the bill is occupied this week by Dinah Morris and company in a musical comedy sketch, entitled The Lost Coon, an attractive and popular performance. Fraser and Mac gain the favour of their audience in their clever comedy business and concertina and banjo playing; Gus Garrick, in his versatile and clever imitations of music-hall performers makes a big hit; Mr. Wilson Blackledge has a refined and interesting contribution; Miss Katie Marsh is a smart dancer and vocalist; Ariel and Astarte are clever gymnasts; and The Wheelers, in a funny cycling act, add much to the success of the entertainment.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—A capital audience greeted the opening performance of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, in Two Little Drummer Boys. The staging is excellent. From Mr. Edward Bikker comes a vivid portrayal of General Kingston, V.C.; as Captain Frank Carsdale, Mr. Fred Emery gives a genial and manly performance; and Mr. Ed. Warden as Captain George Darrell duly emphasises the unscrupulous villainy of the character. Miss Violet Langley plays engagingly as Alma Kingsley; Mr. Finlayson is amusing and soldierlike as Quiney O'Quirke; and his rival for the affections of Molly is humorously impersonated by Mr. Harry Lyndon, who makes Timothy Trimmer a very comical personage. The scenes with this pair and Molly (brightly played by Miss Edie Macklin) are responsible for a good deal of laughter. Miss Maggie English speaks her lines with intelligence and clearness as Eric Carsdale; and Miss Maudie Douglas merits much praise as Jack Smith. Miss Mildred Eversleigh plays Margaret Rivers with a considerable amount of intensity; and Mr. H. Harley is decidedly good as Lieut. Allen Kingsley.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; Business-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The great attraction of this week's bill is Lilith, a mystery, in her palace of roses, who makes a big impression on the audience; Cyrus and Maud, with their performing donkey, Bess, keep the house in a continuous state of merriment; Frank Newbury soon whistles himself into favour; the Brothers St. Clair give a capital exhibition of a football on bicycles; Miss Lilian Warren sings in a pleasing style some illustrated songs; Robert Beevers causes much fun as a comedian; the Comicscope, with funny songs and pictures, captivates; and the animated pictures, by the Loyal Dominion Co., are received with much applause.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. P. Ridley.—Messrs. Cartwright, Lawrence, and Topping's company is here in Mr. H. Kellett Chambers' version of David Copperfield. Mr. Charles Cartwright's Dan'l Peggotty is an undoubtedly skilful performance; Mr. Lionel Belmore makes a decidedly good impression as Ham; Mr. Gerald Lawrence's Steerforth is a finished impersonation; Mr. Stanley Harrison is a popular exponent of the title-rôle; Mr. Charles Collette makes a delightful Mr. Micawber; and Mr. A. B. Tapping's Uriah Heep is thoroughly appreciated. Miss Lillie Cavenagh gains sympathy as Martha; the Misses Helen Vicary and Ethel Sarjient prove highly amusing as Aunt Betsy Trotwood and Mrs. Gummidge respectively; and Miss Lorna Lawrence is deserving of much praise as Little Em'ly.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—John Henderson and company are contributing a thrilling sketch, entitled Under the Maple Leaf. Little Barney scores with his patter; the Four Sisters Victoria come in for a goodly share of applause for their musical act; Maxwell and Frances are on a welcome return visit; A. J. Hill scores as the living Lilliputian; the Carlyles contribute some very spirited dances; Mr. Lacey continues to find new subjects for his Erascope; while the talk of the evening is the daring aerial display given by the Edgertons.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company are here this week in Peter's Mother. Mr. Henry Renouf sustains the rôle of John Crewys, Q.C., in a masterful manner; Miss Lilias Earle contributes a beautiful study as Lady Mary Crewys, the title-part; the Peter of Mr. E. F. Mead is an admirable performance; Mr. Ernest Ruston as Sir Timothy is convincingly narrow; Miss Evelyn Shelley and Miss Celia Gordon are excellently placed as the sisters Lady Belstone and Miss G. Crewys; Mr. A. P. Kaye is good as Dr. Blundell, and Mr. Maitland Dicker excellent as Canon Birch; Miss Hilda Sims is an attractive and sparkling débutante as Sarah. Chalk and Cheese is the curtain-raiser, in which the Misses Mildred Cottrell and Hilda Sims and Mr. Kaye appear to advantage.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The stage here was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and their company on the first three nights of the week. On Monday was presented The Elder Miss Blossom. In the rôle of Andrew Quick Mr. Kendal has a part which suits his personality to perfection. A capital study of the sturdy country gentleman was furnished by Mr. Ernest Hendrie; Mr. Bassett Roe was eminently successful as Major Twentyman; Mr. C. W. Standing scored a decided hit as the Rev. Arthur Leacroft; it would be impossible to better Mr. Metcalf Wood's study of Withers; Miss Jessica Thorne made a sweet Sophia; Mrs. A. B. Tapping presented a well-studied sketch of Cooper; and Mrs. Kendal's Dorothy Blossom closely held the attention of the large audience which gathered to greet her. The Housekeeper was presented on Tuesday, and on Wednesday The Ironmaster was staged. Miss Winifred Maude's company in The Stowaway and The Convict came here on Thursday.

CHORLEY (Lancs.). — GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly is here with his company in the Trail of the Serpent. Mr. Kelly undertakes the dual rôle of Gerald Kingston and Old Jack with excellent results. Mr. Frank Lyndon being effective as Ralph Hammond. Mr. George Porteous is good as Sir Gerald Kingston; and William Higgins is capitally rendered by Mr. J. R. Tyrell. Miss Phyllis Elton charmingly presents Ethel Maynard. Miss Nana Cameron giving a strong interpretation of Rachel, a gipsy, and Miss Jenny Risley vivaciously enacts Rose Wilson.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—The attraction here this week is Mr. A. W. B. Kingston's répertoire company. On Monday was presented the Scottish drama Jeanie Deans to a good house. Mr. Kingston submitted a careful rendition of David Deans; as the outlawed Geordie Robertson Mr. James Sommerville displayed histrionic abilities; Mr. Harry Egan was an amusing Laird o' Dumbiedykes; Jas. Ratcliffe found a good exponent in Mr. F. Kellard; the Duke of Argyle was well portrayed by Mr. Ashley Carrington; and Mr. Tom Armitage did good work as Mr. Sharpitlaw. Effie Deans received every justice from Miss Emily Peel; Jeanie was safe in the hands of Miss Carrie Henderson; Miss Clarice Jenner was worthy of high praise for her fine impersonation of Madge Wildfire.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company presented The Sin of Her Childhood on Monday, and gave a capable rendition of the piece. Mr. James Duncan played the Rev. Allan Grey with more than average cleverness; and as Mary Haysel, Miss Stanley Burt acted with much power. Mr. Wilson Summers as the modern Borgia, otherwise Stephen Haysel, received flattering notice from the upper portions of the house; whilst the bottle-loving Maria Haysel was depicted in characteristic fashion by Miss Clara Santley. Mr. Frank Liston represented in soldierly style the manliness of Captain Thornton; but the most distinctive hit appeared to be made by the juvenile part of Hannah Spry, as portrayed by Miss Lessa Young. Mr. Hugh Brady as Barney O'Reilly was undoubtedly a genuine humorist, and received great assistance from Miss Nellie Whyte as Eliza Muggins.

HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Peggy Pryde heads this week's bill, and is as popular as ever with her quaint songs and sallies; Percy M. Stephenson and company present a comedy sketch, aptly entitled The Muddle Up; Martinengo, solo 'cellist, is loudly applauded for his intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana and other selections; and Henry Hilton goes well with his smartly-finished conjuring. Frank Dunlop scores decidedly with an anti-Suffragette song; and Louie Belrose makes a hit with some capital coon dancing.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and company are occupying the boards here this week in a well-chosen répertoire. On Monday night Hamlet was presented. Mr. Allan Wilkie as the Prince gave a fine rendering; Mr. G. Alexander Marsh was an excellent Laerties, and Mr. George Munro a capital Polonius. Miss Ine Cameron did full justice to the part of Ophelia; and the Queen was well played by Miss Carrie Baillie.

CORK. — OPERA HOUSE. — Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—The D'Oyley Carte principal Répertoire Opera Company opened a week's engagement on Monday in The Gondoliers. Mr. Charles R. Walenn, an amusing Duke of Plaza-Toro, was much appreciated; Mr. Fred Billington, an old favourite, was warmly applauded as the Grand Inquisitor; Mr. Pacie Ripple and Mr. Albert Kavanagh as Narco and Giuseppe acted and sang well; Miss Hope Hastings (Gianetta) and Miss Lulu Evans (Tessa) were both charming; Miss Theresa Rassam made a dignified Duchess; and as her daughter Miss Mabel Graham scored. Patience, The Mikado, The Pirates of Penzance (followed by Trial by Jury), and The Yeomen of the Guard are also in the répertoire.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—Ada Gatley, swinging wire artist and juggler, gives a pleasing performance; George Prince sings some capital comic songs; Gillin is a clever ventriloquist; Holden's Mannikins give an interesting and amusing turn; and The Milton Rays in The Cruise of the Calabar furnish a light and humorous entertainment.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A large house gathered on Monday to welcome the return visit of Mr. T. H. Taylor's company, in The Worst Woman in London. Miss Olga André is responsible for the part of Frances Vere, and the manner in which she portrays this difficult character draws forth the warmest applause; Mr. F. Vernon Travers is seen to advantage as James Milford; Mr. George Gaisford is successful as Jack Felton; and Miss Elizabeth Watkins as Ruth Milford and Miss Polly Marsh as Matilda Parker, leave nothing to be desired.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. Geo. Rand.—Harry Roxbury and company are appearing here in a musical mélange, entitled The Prince of Monte Carlo, which is highly successful and amusing; another capital turn is that of Victor Newman, who gives "Napoleon's Farewell to his Troops" in an admirable manner; the Montagu Brothers are responsible for a charming representation of living statuary; Clarence C. Corri's company give a clever little episode called Heart-strings; the Three Careys, a trio of Australian entertainers, are appreciated; Harry Simms, comedian, and Kathleen Cogan, comedienne, are both clever; and the usual bioscope pictures are shown.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John H. Morton.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's company is here in The Naval Detective. Mr. Leslie Austin and Miss Louie Fountaine divide honours in having most of the work to do. The former, as the Naval Detective, sustains three characters, acting in a style peculiarly his own, and gaining constant applause. Miss Fountaine also has three parts to fill, which serve to show her versatile powers, and in one of which she charms the audience with her powerful voice. Mr. Roland A. Bridge as Dr. Schreiner evidently has a part to his liking; Mr. Walter T. Hybert is very funny, and causes much laughter as the Hon. Bertie Fairlox; Mr. George Whillis makes a first-rate Captain Hustle; Mr. Charles Burns deserves special mention for his rendering of Hans Winklepump; Mr. Joe Plant makes a good Sergeant Duncan; Miss Gladys Claney is well placed as Maud Mashem; Miss Edith Claris fills the part of Susan Scrubbs in a chic way; Miss Francesca Strickland as Lulu Kaufmann shows taste and feeling; Miss Lily Seymour as Rebecca Gentle deserves praise; Miss Amy Shaw as Pearl dances to perfection and to the delight of her audience; Miss C. Yorick has a lot to do as Ruby, and acts with much force and ability.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—This week Mr. Augustine Knight presents E. Hill-Mitchelson's drama, The Assassin, which is well staged. Mr. Knight portrays Prince Demetri with powerful effect; Mr. Edward E. Ashby gives a realistic rendering of Impanoff; Mr. Theo. Balfour's representation of Duke Karl is an admiarble piece of acting; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond gives a good account of himeslf as Baron Alphonse; Mr. Chauncy Morris makes a good impression as General Nichol; Mr. Edwin Jenner capably sustains the rôle of Captain O'Neil; and Mr. Tom J. Taylor plays Peter in a humorous manner. Miss Ella Vane displays exceptional dramatic ability as the Countess Wanda; Miss Hettie Senior's impersonation of Conie Jonathan is in true American style; Miss Frances Waring is good as Nita, and Miss Marie E. Robertson as Katrina contributes much to the success of the play.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. E. St. Alban's Opera Company is here this week with Les Cloches de Corneville, the performance on Monday being in aid of the L.B. and S.C.R. Servants' Benevolent Fund. Mr. William Everard is excellent as Henri; Mr. E. St. Alban submits a really fine character sketch of Gaspard; Mr. Charles Ross is well placed as Grenicheaux; Mr. Fred Dark is very quaint as the Bailie; Mr. Richard Martin makes the most of his opportunities as Gobo; Miss D. Rhodes is commendable as Christophe; Miss Marion Ayling makes a charming and sweet-voiced Germaine; and Miss Madge Roberts is full of life and spirits in the rôle of Serpolette. The chorus is well balanced, the dresses are admirable, and the scenery is appropriate.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Herrick.—Revisiting here this week is Messrs. Garside and Knowles' company with The London Fireman. Mr. Edward L. Garside and Mr. J. Forbes Knowles both give admirable performances of their respective parts; Mr. S. Herbert Humber ably impersonates Viscount Fleming; Mr. Lionel Thomson makes the most of Abel Fortnum; and Mr. Philip Renouf as Nixey Stinger is responsible for the humorous element. Miss Nellie Waddington does well as Countess Fleming; Miss Beatrice Sinclair as Grace Curtiss gives a good rendering of her part; Miss Nellie Garside is very good as Polly Bramble; and Miss Nellie Shirley is an attractive representative of Ida Curtis.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—An exceptionally fine entertainment here is drawing crowded houses nightly. A big sensation is made by John Leopold's smart acrobatic pantomimic company in The Houseboat; Victoria Monks brings down the house with her invigorating songs; Shirley and Ransom just touch the right note in the comedy-act Arf a Quid; Orpheus, instrumentalist, is uncommonly good; George Gibbey's songs and droll patter cause roars of laughter; Barton and Franklin are capital in vocal and instrumental turn; Rosie Archer is a dainty and clever mimic; the Brothers Hayes are humorous comedians; Johnnie Fuller deserves warm congratulations for a first-rate performance as a cat on the wire; and the Imperial Bioscope hits the popular taste.

DARLINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Charles Macdona's company is here this week in The White Chrysanthemum. As the Admiral Mr. St. John Hamund is good; Mr. H. Langdon-Bruce plays in admirable style as the Admiral's son; Mr. H. E. Garden is a capable Lieut. Chippendale Belmont; Mr. Jamie Dallas makes an interesting Chinese Cook; and Miss Muriel George in the title-rôle is most delightful. Miss Dorothy Sephton as Betty Kenyon is charming; Miss Wilmot Karkeen is a typical American woman. There is a full chorus, which is aided by the Japanese Strolling Singers (Mesdames Eileen Victoria, Alice Sands, D. Harries, Alys Collier, Alice M. Dunn, and Gertrude Chadwick).

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—The attraction here this week is Mr. J. Koffler Reynolds and company in Conscience and Siberia, two short plays in which Mr. Reynolds is seen to advantage. He is ably supported by Miss Maude Yarrell, Miss Hilda Stanley, Mr. C. Vivian Charles, Mr. Stanley Douglas, and Mr. Arthur Dandoe. A good variety entertainment is also given by Miss Flo Manson, a charming soubrette; Miss Maud La Blanche, comedienne and dancer; Halsey and Bowers, patter comedians; Billy Renton, a funny singer of funny songs; Mons. De Lacey, speciality artist; and Harold McGill, the singing newsboy.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Langley Wyatt.—Miss Lydia Donovan and company are appearing here in Her One Great Sin. Miss Donovan is a success in the title-rôle; and the part of Arnold Thornhill is well played by Mr. C. Quinton Fulford; while Mr. G. Edward Hall does well as Reuben Warhurst. Other characters are capably impersonated by Mr. C. E. Lambert, Miss Louie Walters, Mr. Fred Hodson, Miss Nellie Lambert, Miss Phyllis Damian, and Miss Maude Lambert.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The top line turn this week is supplied by the Venturinis in a remarkably clever illusion, "So-Da," which consists of producing two ladies from an apparently unoccupied glass tank of water. The act, which introduces some clever sleight-of-hand, is thoroughly enjoyed. The Alskarno Trio are risley acrobats of a high standard, their neat tricks meeting with well-deserved applause. As a comedienne, Chas. Sloman makes a decided hit; H. Pawson, necromancer and rag painter, submits a most amusing exhibition of shadowgraphy; Carr and Rose, speciality artists, appear to great advantage in a comedy vocal scena; York, Mac, and York, comedy boxers, cause hearty laughter; and Lena Willard is a vivacious little comedienne and dancer. The Grand National film projected by the bioscope completes a good programme.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—A dramatised version of Dumas' ever-popular Monte Cristo is being played to large houses here. Mr. Julius Booth undertakes the title-rôle with conspicuous success; Miss B. Boyle makes a hit as Mercedes, whose son is well played by Mr. S. Doyle.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—An attractive variety bill of fare is provided here this week.—Harry Sanson, comedian, is deservedly popular; Milford Brothers, triple trapeze artists, are agile; Hannaway Brothers, with their patter, dancing and burlesque boxing, are warmly applauded; Miss Ada Lucerne is a charming vocalist; George Bernard has made a good impression as an actor vocalist; the Dayton Family are especially clever; and their Le Rendezvous, a scene in Hyde Park, is well received; the Cecilian Family, musicians and dancers, give a pleasing turn; the concluding item, Johnny Groves, Sansom and company, in a comedy sketch, being one of the most attractive features of the programme.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Fred Southern and company still tops the bill, this time with a well-played sketch, entitled Lost at Sea. Herbert Madden has a good voice, and sings in a pleasing manner; Chester and Lees introduce a cleverly-manipulated marionette entertainment; Constance Juno has a catchy song in "Wine, wine, wine"; a very pretty turn is contributed by Miss Frederica's intelligent and highly-trained dogs and pony; a most hilarious farcical sketch is played, with a full appreciation of its opportunities for broad comedy, by Fred Southern, Miss May Emery, and company; and an admirable ventriloquial turn is given by Charles Argo. Some striking films are shown on Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is here in the comic opera See-See. Mr. W. H. Rawlins distinguishes himself as the retired merchant Cheoo, and as Yen Mr. Leonard Mackay acts well, and his excellent voice is heard in several numbers to great advantage. Mr. Frank Danby has plenty of scope to display his humour in the character of Hang-Kee; Miss Lily Elsie submits a pleasing and effective portrayal of See-See; Miss Amy Augarde is admirably suited as Mai-Yai; Mr. Myles Clifton fills the part of Hoang Wang with credit; and the Mandarins are well played by Messrs. E. D. Wardes, Francis Rayne, Cameron Carr, and E. Freshwater. Miss Topsy Sinden, as So-Hie, contributes some exceedingly clever and graceful dances; Miss Alice Hatton is most acceptable as Lee; and the Misses Sybil Grey, Octavia Barry, and Lilian Hewitson are very good as Cheoo's wives; and Miss Adeline Lester as Mrs. Hoang-Wang, and the Misses Clair Marsden, Violet Hollam, Bertha Callen, and Julita Dumas contribute most satisfactorily as "the Pearls beyond Price."

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The premier attraction in this week's bill is Mrs. Brown-Potter and company in the dramatic episode Mary Queen of Scots, which is most artistically played and heartily enjoyed. Seeley and West, in their musical turn, introduce some fine harmony as well as pleasing humour, and Lena Brunton, comedienne, meets with a good reception; Barney Armstrong, comedian, is as popular as ever in his quaint songs and dancing; Lennie and Hast, in an entertaining sketch, The Sea Nymph, are well received; Rhoda Brothers give a smart acrobatic display; and G. H. Keith, actor-vocalist, has made a decided hit. Clever mimicry is introduced by Florence, and an extra turn is supplied by a troupe of capital dancers. The Empire pictures are of more than usual interest.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Yinlians troupe in their highly finished acrobatic feats are at the head of the bill here this week; O'Malley and Brown, in a comedy sketch, entitled You're Still a Friend of Mine, are highly amusing; and A. Ba-Bee's picture postcard album is an interesting item. Webb and Cranston are accomplished operatic vocalists, and the singing and dancing of May Geraldine are heartily approved. Johnny Holland and company cause great laughter with their sketch My Friend Boots, and Will Walton, comedian, has several taking songs. Others appearing are C. H. Charlton, conjurer, and Kyoto, with his comedy Japanese box, and the Bioscope pictures complete a capital entertainment.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon.—Mr. Russell Rosse's company commenced a second week's engagement here on Monday, when the farcical comedy The Guv'nor was presented. Mr. David James and Mr. Russell Rosse as the Boatman and the Guv'nor kept the audience highly amused; and others deserving of mention are Miss E. Nolan O'Connor as Mrs. Butterscotch, Miss Ida Phillips as Kate, Mr. Norman Clark as the M'Toddy, and Mr. J. Boyd Pearson as Freddy. On Thursday night Mr. David James's benefit took place, when The Money Spinner and His Last Legs were on the bill.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The attractions here include: Professor and Madame Elba, second-sight artists; Hilda Hazel, ballad vocalist; Harry Garbutt, actor-vocalist; Charlie Cooper, comedian and dancer; and the new cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The Swiss Express is running as successfully as ever here this week, the Brothers Charles and Frederick Renad being exceedingly droll and introducing much original business. Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon works hard to make a success of the part of Dr. Gondimar Gull; and he is ably assisted by Miss Celestine Brandon, who plays Virginia in a pretty and engaging manner; Mr. Basil Reynolds as Bob Rollingstone and Mr. Alex. Wylie as Dudley Green make the fun fast and furious; and all other parts in a long cast are excellently filled.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—At the top of the programme this week we have Les Montaldos, continental equilibrists—a very clever turn; the Claymores, in a good speciality, are strong favourites; as also are Carta and Mitzani, in a speciality act; and U. C. Ugo, assisted by Veletta, in "Mirthful Mysteries." Tom Parker, comedian, keeps the house convulsed with his jokes and songs; and Harry Bold is another good comedian; Mabel Moss is a pleasing and refined vocalist; Ted Hord, vocal comedian, does well; and the Empire pictures are still a great attraction.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter. — Georg Hackenschmidt, "the Russian lion," is top-liner, and is proving a big draw; Albert Windsor, a Scotch comedian of ability, finds much favour; Martine and Son provide pleasant entertainment; and other contributions to a good programme are from Kent and Keith, duologue artists; Sisters Mackenzie, vocalists and dancers; Francis O'Flynn, an expert banjoist; the Davis and Gledhill Trio of Cyclists; and Vernon's Bioscope.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The Seven Savonas are retained for another week, their entertainment being entirely different from that of last week. Their delightful rendering of the Tannhäuser overture is in itself worth going to hear; the Four American Comedy Singers have made a good impression; Mark Anthony, an old-established favourite here, scores a hit; J. H. Anthony, Scotch comedian, gets a flattering reception; and other numbers in a capital bill are Oakley and James, a versatile couple; Ted Young, character comedian; Ada Twibell, burlesque artist; and the Platt shows ability as a comedian; and Mr. Robert Corray does some smart dancing in the part of Norman Popple. Miss Cora Lingard, a young Edinburgh lady, who continues to make excellent progress in her profession, delights the audience by her fresh, girlish style of acting as Violet Brinton, and she sings with expression. Mr. Robert MacLachlan, a pleasant vocalist, is a capital Jack Kenyon; and the remaining parts are capably filled, a special word of praise being due to Mr. Edwin Herbert, who plays Alfred, a lift attendant. The orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Mr. Julian Rutt, do admirable work.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—In an excellent programme here this week, Mr. Fred Karno's pantomimic excerpts from The House that Jack Built, a popular Glasgow production, is the principal item. The selections form a bright little piece—full of go—in which Mr. Fred Kitchen surpasses himself by his genuinely comic performance of Dame Trot. Mr. Harry Lappo is a nimble, clever cat; and Miss Aggie Morris, Miss Luna Love, and other members of the company render efficient support. Miss Arabella Allen impersonates with versatility some character sketches from Dickens; Miss Edie King dances gracefully; Miss Beatrice Bonnie is an attractive comedienne; Miss Gertrude Bradshaw is really admirable as a singer; and Mr. Frank Darwin, actor-vocalist, makes a favourable impression. The Vasilescu troupe of acrobats infuse much humour into their clever performance on the horizontal bar; Stylo is marvellous in his hoop-manipulating act; Darc's Marionettes give successful impersonations of music-hall stars; and the Howards (Ralph and Nelly) are amusing and skilful in an act in which they introduce good and effective cornet playing.

Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—A first-rate programme is presented here this week. Messrs. Bennett and Martell are entertaining in their burlesque sketch, The Lost Mariners; Mr. Harry Bent, society humorist, gives a clever turn; and Henriette and Selina supply a capital musical performance. The farcical duologue, Married or Photographed, is admirably acted by Mr. F. Warden Reed and Miss J. Stevens; and other interesting performances are given by Mr. Frank Whiteley, comedian; Miss Carlotta Lunn, American comedienne; Mr. Jack Brindall, humorist; and the Alhambrascope.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company is appearing here this week in Monsieur Beaucaire and A Marriage of Convenience. Mr. Norman Macowan as Monsieur Beaucaire and as the Comte De Candale quite upholds his reputation, and he and Miss Violet Sterne as Lady Mary Carlisle and the Comtesse give finished portrayals of their parts. Mr. Murray Hathorn as the Duke of Winterset and as the General is excellent; Mr. Harold Weston as Major Molyneaux and as Chevalier de Valclos proves a distinct success; Mr. George Traill's portrayals of Mr. Bicksett and Jasmin are all that can be desired; and the same may be said of Miss Mary Masters as Lucy Kellerton and Marton.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—This is the last week of the season, and the attraction is The Female Swindler, effectively presented by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. The accomplished actress Miss Grace E. Leslie appears in the title-rôle; Mr. Joseph Millane has a capital part in Jack Coulson; and that of May Andrews is very nicely taken by Miss Florrie Kelsey. Mr. J. Knox-Orde makes a despicable enough villain; Mr. A. Kenyon Gray is dignified as the retired merchant; and Mr. Guy P. Ellis, as Harold Travers, acts his part well. Mr. Henry Wright, as assistant to the detective, and Miss Mary Dawson, in the capacity of a servant, prove themselves comedians of considerable merit. Mr. John Belton's representation of the Jew is very good. The drama is skilfully staged and prettily dressed.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company opened here on Monday in The Private Secretary. As the Rev. Robert Spalding, Mr. Donald Price Evans evokes continual laughter; Mr. W. T. Elworthy figures well as Mr. Marsland; Mr. James P. E. Hussey as Harry Marsland is admirable; Mr. W. Hargreaves as Mr. Cattermole causes much fun; Mr. Randolfe distinguishes himself in the part of Douglas Cattermole; Mr. Vivian Gilbert is well placed as Mr. Gibson. Mrs. Alfred Davis portrays Miss Ashford successfully; Miss Cecily Wade is seen to advantage as Mrs. Stead; Miss Beth Elliott makes a charming Eva; and Miss Dorothy Shawe ably acts the rôle of Edith Marsland.

Leas Pavilion.—Miss Dorothy Payn, an old favourite, is appearing here this week, and scoring her usual success in songs and imitations; Miss Muriel Fane and Mr. Will Gane render duets in an able manner; Mr. Eric Davidson is accorded well-deserved applause; Miss Florence Croft's vocal efforts are well received; and Mr. Robert Tattersall is a good ventriloquist with smartly-manipulated figures.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—The leading line here this week is filled by Hanvarr and Lee, who submit an excellent act, which comprises acrobatics and comedy juggling; Sylvia Du Barry, the South American vocalist, has a host of admirers; Les Two Cabiacs win loud applause for a capital comedy gymnastic display; Ben Harris introduces his quartette of accomplished children in a sketch entitled A Promising Pupil; Hans and Lux are capital patterers; Nash and Noel are a pair of clever comedians and dancers; Madge Allen, vocalist and dancer, and the King's pictures complete a good entertainment.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—An old favourite, in The Midnight Mail, has been welcomed by large audiences at this house. Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company (under the direction of Mr. James Willard) presents the drama in an excellent manner. Mr. George Harvard is still the Harry Steyne, a character which he sustains with great skill; a more meritorious character sketch than Mr. Fred G. Evison's Billy Brewer has not been presented here in recent years; Mr. Harry Emerson makes a capital Donald Craig; Mr. Magill Martyn plays Hassan Padisha with credit; Leonard Royle is carefully depicted by Mr. Austin Mortimer; the emotional acting of Miss Ada Oakley in the part of Mary Steyne leaves a deep impression; Miss Nesta Sandford is well placed as Lady Phyllis; and Miss Mildred Carr as Nancy Brewer makes the most of her scant opportunities.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Mr. Ed. McLean's company, in The Hero of the Flag, forms the fare at this establishment. Mr. McLean supplies a capital embodiment of Jack Lawrence; Paul Mansfield is well embodied by Mr. Ernest Wangfield; Mr. Leslie Vyner scores in the part of Stephen Clifford; Mr. Johnny McElroy is amusing in the part of Johnny Truckle; Miss Gladys Vernon is a dainty Mabel Forrester; Miss Lilian Beaumont portrays Ruth Clifford with skill; and Miss Amy Randolph is diverting as Jenny Stubbs.

GILLINGHAM. — Hippodrome.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—The animated pictures continue to attract here, and chief interest centres in the Passion Play, which is being presented this week. Owing to her great success, Miss Laurie Hayden has been retained for a second week, and is delighting all with a new selection of ballads.

GLOSSOP. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe and Miss Ethel Griffies' company in Lady Godiva are here this week. Miss Griffies is extremely popular in the title-rôle; Miss Barnet as Lady Aldyth gives a sound reading; Mr. F. B. Woulfe handles the part of Tom of Coventry in a skilful manner; Mr. Cecil Renton does ample justice to the rôle of Edgar; Mr. E. Holland Day stands out prominently as Leofric; Mr. Clifford Rean as Algar acts with intensity; whilst Mr. Edward Dunstan as Unwolf Unwolfson makes a good compatriot. Mr. Bob Anderson as Robin Shackleton (with songs) and Miss Edith Lorraine as Elfrida are responsible for the comedy element, which is well sustained. Jane Shore is also in the répertoire of the week.

GLOUCESTER. — Palace. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Zertho and his dogs are a distinct novelty in training; the Four Goldinis in their electrical spinning, dancing, and juggling act win applause; the Du Gros Trio of gymnasts on the trampolin submit a comic and clever performance; Miss Millie Denham is a pleasing serio; Mr. Tom Stuart gives us burlesque character sketches from plays and novels in excellent style; an interesting equestrian act is contributed by Miss Sylvia Martin; Mr. Harry Albery is an entertaining comedian; the Brooklands are dainty vocalists and dancers; and a clever society entertainer is Miss Lilian Payne. The Bioscope is up to date.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—A return visit is being paid by Mr. Horace Stanley and company with the sensational drama, The 10.30 Down Express. Sam Wagstaffe is played in played in true comedy fashion by Mr. Stanley; and Petty Potts is brightly and humorously depicted by Miss Kate Kilpack. Mr. George Beverley is manly and earnest as Jack O'Mally; James Inderwick is capitally represented by Mr. Chas. Burden; Mr. Alaric Burton is excellent as Cuthbert Leigh; Bessie Leigh is pleasingly portrayed by Miss Elsie Capell; Miss Evelyn M. Walton gives a clever character-study as Letitia Leigh; and other members of a long cast render adequate assistance.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, the Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The stage here this week is in possession of the Greenock Amateur Operatic Society, whose initial production of The Yeomen of the Guard has proved quite successful. The professional coach and stage-manager is Mr. Lindsay Harman, who has justly earned unanimous praise for the excellence of the performances. An excellent chorus and largely-augmented orchestra are under the bâton of Mr. Frank Smith. The proceeds of the production go to local charities.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholl's company is appearing here with great success in The Battle of the Belles. Other attractive turns are provided by the Saletos, who submit some skilful balancing; and the Lavello Brothers, a pair of clever and quaint acrobats. Amy Elcock, comedienne and acrobatic dancer, are also successful; and some capital pictures conclude a good all-round entertainment.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—This week's programme is of the usual good quality, with plenty of variety, and includes Mr. Harry Tate's company in the laughable sketch entitled Motoring. The Musical Markies submit a novel turn, which is well received; Cliff and Kean are popular comedy artists; Wm. C. McPhie, vocalist, has a cordial greeting; Ruby Bijou is responsible for some clever dancing; and Hettie Chattell's vocal items are much appreciated. The Pavescope pictures are also interesting.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The Earl and the Girl is brighter and more attractive than ever. Mr. Alfred Donohoe is again seen as the showman Jim Cheese, and extracts the maximum of fun from the part; Miss Ida Stratham also repeats her former success as Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Gertrude Simpson is equally pleasing as Elphin Haye; whilst Miss Kathleen Gerard admirably realises the part of Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Lena Hicks finds ample scope to display her ability as Liza. Excellent vocal work is accomplished by Mr. Thomas Kennard as Dick Wargrave, and also by Mr. Leslie Owen as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. Greville Hayes gives a breezy impersonation of A. Bunker Bliss; Mr. Ernest Plumpton is a capital exponent of Downham; and Mr. Sam Lysons is thoroughly amusing in the quaint character of Mr. Tulk.

Curry's Tivoli.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Kelly and Ashby accomplish novel business in their acrobatic billiard board speciality; Miss Georgettee Thierry's sketch, Nancy Sykes, a notable episode from Dickens's "Oliver Twist" is dramatically portrayed; the Elimans present an artistic and refined instrumental act; Hallam and Stanton pleasingly combine comedy with good singing; Gus Hindell introduces a song scena which has novel features; the Waldrons cause laughter with their farcical sketch; Alma Aubrey sings popular songs; and Bob Baxter dispenses original comedy.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. C. Shread; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—The Gotham Comedy Quartette are an entertaining combination, as, besides being clever laughter-makers, they are excellent vocalists. Frank Elliston's company appears in a highly amusing sketch, Aunt Matilda; Pueblo and Cropp are smart sand dancers; the Katos successfully manipulate living marionettes; the Raymond Trio display versatility as dancers and mandoline and banjo soloists; Hurley and Melton are responsible for much merriment; gymnastics are neatly performed by the Walonells; and the Sisters Selwyn sing nicely and dance prettily.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Charles Macdona's No. 1 company opened here on Monday in Dr. Wake's Patient. Mr. Lawrence Grant carried the honours of the evening for his superb interpretation of Dr. Forrester Wake; while a consummate study of Andrew Wake was submitted by Mr. George Howard. Mr. Paul Lovett acted with virility and refinement in the rôle of the Earl of St. Olbyn; while Mr. Allan Pollock was soon a prime favourite as Puff Wynterden. Miss Fyfe Alexander was at her best, and made an impressive Lady Gerania; but the finest acting came from Miss Kate Osborn, a lovable old lady, who presented with infinite tenderness the passive mother of the young practitioner. Miss Georgie Trewman subtly enacted the potent Countess; while the other members of this brilliant organisation proved an acquisition to the performance.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—Miss Lil Hawthorne's bright singing and sprightliness has given satisfaction to all. Miss Lilian Dundas, Mr. Lawrence Leyton, and Mr. Harry Kendal are responsible for the presentation of The Doom of Delilah, and the thrilling incidents in which the episode abounds are most realistically conceived by these artists. Cedar and Elgar prove diverting in a comedy scena, Ye Days of Olde; while James Stewart, the man who dances at the piano, meets with acclamation. Nada Moret gives "Two little boys" tastefully; while Jimmy Shields is favourably received for a couple of songs; and Edith Sylvesto also participates in the programme successfully.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—A powerful attraction is provided by Fred Ginnett and company in Dick Turpin's Ride to York. Like the company, a massive gee-gee, Black Bess, has been trained in a masterly fashion; Florrie Bray has acquired the happy art of keeping the audiences in good spirit; Bert Danson is a patter comedian; the balancing of Lombard Brothers is excellent; and Nancy and Edie Coalvilles sing and dance smartly; while, as before, a variety of pictures are thrown on the screen.

HANLEY. — Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Jerome's artistic and interesting play, Tommy, is staged this week. Miss Annie Hughes has a fine all-round company, and the piece is well received. Miss Hughes as Tommy scores a distinct success, acting in a manner which is delightful; Mr. Evelyn Vernon's Hope is a clever piece of acting; and Mr. Willie Hartill as Clodd is admirably well suited to the part. As Flipp, the office boy, Mr. Reginald F. Beech is remarkably successful; Miss Winifred Pearson has a good presence, and plays the adventuress finely; Miss Vera Pole contributes a touching and effective reading as Honour; and Mr. Rupert Lister is well placed as the young Irish gentleman, Dick Danvers. The piece is nicely mounted and dressed.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—The Boissets are retained in their screamingly funny sketch, viz., The Wild West; Joe Reicher, with his three dogs, contributes an astounding turn; Chas. R. Whittle scores a great success in his song; Wee Mona Vivian is heartily applauded for her excellent songs and dances; the Lowenwirth Brothers, comedians and patterers, are well received; Burns and Bentley are a clever pair of vaudeville artists, their speciality dancing being capital; the Sisters Redfern, banjoists, vocalists, and dancers, meet with success; Robert Gilmore is a comedian of merit; and the pictures are, as usual, excellent.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—On the first three nights of this week Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company appeared in The Perfect Lover. As Lord Carden, Mr. Bernard Limpus was in every way excellent; Mr. W. Lemmon Warde as William Tremblett hit off the domestic bully to the life; and Mr. John Detvil gave a clever study of a drunken "sponger." Miss Edith Dent as Martha Tremblett was admirable; and the same remark applies to Miss L'Estrade as May. Miss Gertrude Sterroll was excellent as the outspoken Hon. Susan Lesson; Miss Amy Sangster was well placed as Lilian Tremblett; Mr. Harold V. Neilson played Joseph Tremblett with success.

HARTLEPOOL. — Empress. — Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—A capital bill of fare is headed by Captain Max Gruber, whose wonderful elephant, horse, and pony give an excellent performance; the Mackweys introduce some smart equilibristic feats in a fast and furious comedy acrobatic act; The Red Letter, an episode of New York society as played by Mr. H. Leslie Bell, proves of much interest; the acrobatic comedy by the Three Moxons causes much laughter; the illustrated songs by the Lovelaces are popular; George Westland, Scotch comedian, scores with his songs and patter; Gracie Bard, a neat coon speciality artist, and the Bioscope complete a capital programme.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow and company are here this week in Lord and Lady Algy. Mr. Blow's Lord Algy, masquerading at the fancy dress ball as the Duke of Marlborough, is very comic; and he is cleverly supported by Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as his jockey, who, for the nonce, is the Young Pretender. Miss Molesworth's Lady Algy is presented with well-defined characteristics; Mr. Henry Bute as Brabazon Tudway and Miss Gertrude Netherville as Mrs. B. Tudway, act very effectively. Mr. Henry Doughty plays well as the Marquis of Quarmby. A curtain-raiser, Aunt Rebecca, is well played.

Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter. — An amusing lever de rideau, entitled Lady Kitty, precedes the farcical comedy, Twins, which Mr. J. D. Hunter and his company are producing here. As the twins, Mr. Hunter creates great fun, one being a professor, the other character being an ordinary waiter at a grand hotel. The great similarity of the two is the cause of numberless ludicrous mistakes. Mr. Herbert Maule makes the most of his retirement as a merchant; his son is capitally represented by Mr. Charles Hawker; Mr. Maule Cole makes a typical Irishman; as Mrs. Billings Miss Eva Bayley is excellent; Miss Helen Anderson and Miss Violet Graham are very natural in the respective parts of the Hon. Mrs. Granby and Edith Granby; Miss Blanche Bayley as Matilda Spinach is a good piece of acting; Miss Violet Agnew is equally convincing in the part of Lydia O'Haversack.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Mr. Walter Norman, who has an excellent voice and good style of singing, kindly appeared as a substitute for one artist; a singing scena, by Miss Ida Katherina, "The Dolly Girl," and her automaton dance, is very novel; Mr. Charles Harvey, eccentric comedian, contributes a good turn to the bill; All Through the Christening is a very smart musical comedy, given by Percival on the piano; Miss Nellie Lewis sings some pleasing songs; the exponents of burlesque comedy, the Brothers Allison, are an acquisition; some special exhibition films from the Bioscope are much appreciated; Mr. Dave Laird as a ballad singer gains great applause; the Mysterious Mahatma astonishes her audience by her remarkable power of second sight and thought transmission.

St. Leonards Pavilion Theatre.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The Smart Comedy Set are giving a musical entertainment the first part of the week. They are excellent artists and vocalists; their songs and style of singing are thoroughly appreciated. Mr. H. Vivian Fisher and Miss Bessie Watson engage in a humorous musical sketch; Mr. Wallett Scott is a comedian of ability; Mr. Bert Forss is an impersonator of character; a white coon is seen in Mr. Felix Bone, whose drawing-room songs are much applauded; a pleasing soprano is found in Miss Edie Edwardes. The artists conclude with the laughable farce, The Wrong Box.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. Barnsley.—The United Opera Company, under the direction of Mr. F. S. Gilbert, is here this week. The company opened on Monday before an appreciative house with Maritana. Miss Elsa May in the title-rôle rendered with taste "Scenes that are brightest." Mr. F. S. Gilbert was an excellent Don Cæsar, Miss Doris Gilbert a fascinating Lazarello, and Mr. F. C. Silverstone portrayed Don José with distinction.

HORWICH.—Prince's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Lewis. — The Apex Picture Company are giving a grand entertainment this week with their Chronophone, on the same lines as the performance before the Queen, Dowager Empress of Russia, and Prince and Princess of Wales last Thursday. This being a railway centre, the electrical apparatus has excited much curiosity, and is very highly spoken of.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—The sterling merit of The Still Alarm keeps it well to the front amongst the attractive dramas touring. The well-known situations are capably handled by the excellent company organised by Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond. Both gentlemen are in the cast as Jack Manley and Doc Wilber respectively. Mr. George Arthur is thorough as the scamp Bird; Miss Maude Warburton is refined as Elinor; and Miss Gertie Reid is sprightly as Cad Wilber.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Very pleasant entertainment is provided by Miss Hilda Jacobsen, whose finished singing of some pretty songs is highly appreciated; Bert Lytton, light comedian; Miss Addie Spencer, a clever mimic and accomplished pianoplayer; Kisbey, the call-boy, whose humours are really diverting; the Lorrisons, in a funy duologue; Fentoni, cartoon and shadowgraph artist; Lambert and Hands, duettists; Mr. Eade Montefiore's little company, in a charming and pathetic sketch entitled The Little Colonel; and new pictures on the Bioscope.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mrs. Russ Whytal began her second week here with her version of Twelfth Night. Her rendering of Viola was a pleasant surprise for the ingenuity and unconventionality she imparted into the lines. The Malvolio of Mr. Titheradge was an intelligent reading of the rôle; Mr. Eardley Turner's Sir Toby was brimful of fun; as Olivia, Miss Ada Mann rendered efficient aid; and Miss Mabel Knowles was a capital Maria. Much Ado, Romeo, and The Merchant of Venice have been among the plays included in this week's répertoire.

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Peter Pan remains a delight to Hull playgoers for a second week; Miss Zena Dare still contrives to add to the reputation she has so swiftly acquired in the Third Port; Miss E. May cannot be praised too highly for her delightful conception of the rôle of Little Wendy; a striking feature in the show is Mr. Lionel Mackinder's Chief of the Pirate Crowd. The beauty of the mise en scène has been a very commendable feature in so fine a production.

Alexandra Theatre. — Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton. — That ever-striking play, The Grip of Iron, pays another visit to this city. Simmonet is portrayed by Mr. Fred Powell with his customary power; a clever Loustalot is Mr. Geo. Denham; the Cora of Miss Rosabel Dodd is very acceptable; and the remainder of the cast are highly efficient.

The Hippodrome.—Lessees, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The Martelloni Troupe of acrobats top the bill. Will Driscoll is a very good swell comedian; the Melroses do well in The New Page; Goodfellow and Gregson, Hull pantomime favourites, make a hit; other turns include Florrie Fuller, Charles Austin, and The Broughtons.

The Palace.—Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Tom Costello is a welcome star turn here; the Jonghmanns' harmonious singing brings down the house; Ed. E. Ford creates a good impression; Lily Tiso is a smart comedienne and dancer; other artists include the Three Tauberts, Kroney Bros., Carney and Armstrong, Billy McClain and company, and J. Alexander and company.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Scottice Waifs and Strays, in a humorous and pathetic ballet, are a good top turn; Maisie Fuller is a charming serio and dancer; whizzing the whirl creates much amusement; other artists include Chas. Lestree, T. E. Johnson, Penrhyn Parke, Little Dot Moss, and the Bioscope.

The Circus.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson. — Animated pictures are drawing crowded houses.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Sledge Hammer is being put on here this week, the players being the company of Mr. George Henry. Mr. Alfred Burrows achieves success as Everard Derrick; Miss Jessie Hope is a pleasing exponent of Rose Maywell; Mr. Frank Litchfield appears as Tom Walker, a part which he handles with excellent results; Miss Kitty Chambers does well as Catherine; Miss Lottie Davis is effective as Martha Derrick; Mr. Richard Cass makes the most of his chances as John Marlo; Mr. F. Litchfield, jun., gives a good reading of Dr. Clarke; Mr. Joe Cliffe is worthy of mention as Ezra Walker; and Mr. Victor C. Rolfe is an amusing Sammy Shaw. Mr. L. Henry as Jacob Derrick is powerful; and Mr. Stephen Crossley is responsible for a good performance of Simon Derrick.

Queen's Palace of Varieties.—Licensee and Manager, Mr F. Knightall.—Evered and Vaughan, in sketches and duets, are proving an attraction; Messrs. Terry and Snowdon are equally successful in song and patter; Chas. Bush, eccentric, is well received; and Clarice Vere, serio, Cecil Rorke, comedian, Grace Day, vocalist, Edwin Fay, lady impersonator, Tom Carr, comedian, and Little Doris Jeff, quick-change artist, are other capable turns.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—On Monday Raffles was presented here by Mr. Reginald Dance's company, Mr. Dance himself appearing most successfully in the title-rôle. Mr. Edward Irwin in the part of the American detective gave a forcible rendering; Miss Katie Yates was a graceful and pleasing Gwendoline; Miss May Brooke an accomplished Mrs. Vidal; and Misses Mildred Orme and Constance Hamilton did well as Lady Melrose and Lady Ethel respectively.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Tom Leamore, the well-known comedian, heads the current week's programme, and his latest songs please immensely; a pleasing and effective turn is that of Lady Mansell and her juveniles; the Albertos Troupe introduce novel feats as equilibrists; and Ronald Bagnall is an amusing comedian. Other items include Harry Weldon, described as a "swell entertainer"; Fred Casburn, comedian; Lea and Lovell, singers and dancers; and the Haverleys, American song illustrators.

JARROW.—Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ernest Adrim.—The following artists are here this week:—The Zerbini Troupe, in an excellent musical scena; Mr. George Glenville, eccentric comedian; Pallete, cartoonist, with his trained dog Max; Miss Jeannie Evans, comedienne; Colin and Irene, in a second-sight act; Harry Rylton, swell comic; La Bella Rosa, solo mandolinist; the Hippodrome Bioscope, with up-to-date pictures; the Nelson and Thomas Trio, in a successful sketch, entitled A Fight for a Fiver.

JERSEY.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Marris.—On Monday night a crowded house gave an enthusiastic welcome to The Duchess of Dantzic, played here for the first time. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on Miss Blanche Lynd, whose sans gêne kept the audience alternating between laughter and tears throughout the entire evening; Miss Ethel Ward's winsome personality well fitted the part of Renée; Miss Norah Melton was a vivacious Lisette; and the ladies of the Court were efficiently represented. Mr. George Blunt acquitted himself with distinction in the trying character of Napoleon; Mr. Tom Payne was a delightfully droll Papillon; Mr. Brimston Williams, who is responsible for the production, did well in the rôle of the Vicomte de Bethune.

KEIGHLEY.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Carson.—Baron H. Harriss's chief company is here in The Prince of Pilsen. Miss Sophie Harriss is a bewitching Mrs. Maddison Crocker, and sings and acts with a charm that is quite refreshing. Mr. Harry Kilburn brings to the part of Hans Wagner much ability, which makes for a distinct success; Mr. Frank Crump, as the Prince of Pilsen, possesses a fine stage presence, and his song, "A passing cloud," is given with telling effect. Miss Connie Leon is a charming Sidonie, and her song "The Zuyder Zee" is encored nightly; Mr. Roy Sydney plays Lieutenant Tom Wagner in an acceptable manner; Mr. Bernard Russell scores as the Earl of Shrimpton; and Mr. Ernest Gifford provides a highly diverting performance as François, the French waiter. Miss Ada Watson's voice is heard with pleasure; and Miss Alice Nixon is a satisfactory Nellie Wagner.

KIDDERMINSTER.—New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—This week the boards are occupied by a good company in The Shulamite. Simeon Krillett, a Boer farmer, is in the capable hands of Mr. Algernon J. Hicks; Mr. Chas. Fancourt is equally good in the rôle of Robert Waring; Jan Vanderberg is well portrayed by Mr. Geo. Rommell; Deborah is strikingly played by Miss Ruth Shepherd; and Miss Emily Levettez in the rôle of Tante Anna is realistic.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—The attractive programme presented here this week includes Mlle. Fontainbleau, with her troupe of somersault and high-leaping dogs, a turn highly deserving of the applause accorded it; Gulliver, in his exceedingly clever ventriloquial novelty, is a distinct success; H. E. High is intensely funny in his speciality. Crazy on Skates; and the Forsyths are responsible for a comedy sketch, The Tramp in the Nursery. The Two Daniels give a smart exposition of dancing, &c.; and Jury's pictures help to complete a good programme.

LANCASTER.—Athenæum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—The Stowaway was the attraction the first three nights this week, being capitally presented by Miss Winifred Maude's company. Mr. Victor Du Cane as Dicky Dials was the life and soul of the piece; and he received able support from Miss Jenny Hackett as Chucky. Miss Winifred Maude appeared with much success as Althea Dale.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack Martin.—The Craggs are again here, and their reception each night is enthusiastic; the Brothers Lillian are clever gymnasts, and the violin solo contributed by the younger brother is highly appreciated; Ray and Calden are paying a return visit; as also are Ford and Hanson, in a pleasing musical turn. Edie Tennis and Gertie Laune sing nicely; Charley Bowen, comedian, does well; and Miss Maude Vera sings and dances pleasingly. "Her First Pancake" and other pictures on the Hippograph cause roars of laughter.

LEAMINGTON. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Leamington playgoers are being provided with an exceptional treat this week in the form of pretty romantic costume plays, which are being given by Mr. H. F. Maltby and company. On the first three nights The Youngest of Three was presented, and met with hearty approval. Mr. H. F. Maltby played the part of George Wendover in a very able manner; whilst the character of his son, Gerald Wendover, was portrayed with much intelligence by Mr. Wyn Weaver; Miss Mara Maltby as Lucy Dulley was charming; whilst her elder sisters found competent representatives in Miss Janet-Hodson and Miss Grace Richardson; Mr. W. R. Favell was exceedingly good as Philip Radford; and an excellent character sketch was Mr. F. Stoney's Samuel Johns.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Though seen here on very many previous occasions, The Geisha loses none of its popularity, and the presentation this week by Mr. F. Mouillot's company has been witnessed by full houses. Miss Louie Collier plays the part of O Mimosa San with rare charm and vivacity; Miss Fiorrie Saunders brings a fine presence and much vocal ability to the rôle of Molly; and Juliette is a clever effort by Miss Violet Kenyon. Mr. Cyril Thompson, with a good voice, generally scores well as Reginald Fairfax; Mr. Edward Carlton is vastly amusing as the irrepressible Wun-Hi; Mr. Lionel Braham presents the Marquis Imari in a style that leaves nothing to be desired; and Mr. J. Mansell Stringer is effective in the part of Captain Katana. For Friday evening The Greek Slave was announced.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. Sam Duckworth's company is responsible for a stirring presentation here of an interesting drama, Her Nameless Child. The central figure is that of Anthony Ford, the village blacksmith, and Mr. J. W. Evelyn's strong presentment of the part creates a deep impression. Some fine emotional acting is done by Miss Florence Hall in the character of Bessie Brookes; valuable assistance is rendered by Miss Grace Jones as Lady Woodville; and Mr. Herbert Evelyn and Mr. Ellersley Pine also do strenuous work in prominent parts. Mr. Fred Danvers finds plenty of scope for his comedy abilities in the rôle of Tom Rivers.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—That drollest of comedy purveyors, Wilkie Bard, again leads the Empire bill, and a flattering reception is accorded him nightly. Herbert Shelley himself plays all the five characters in a thrilling sketch, Dan, the Outlaw, and the performance arouses much enthusiasm. Sidney James's Strolling Players find a ready reception of their capital entertainments; Fred Elton hits the public taste with an attractive vocal scena; Speedwell's clever lightning sketches are a novel and interesting feature; and the magician Sylvesta contributes a mystifying entertainment. Daisy Mayer is a favourite with a clever coon speciality; Drew and Alders are doing a new act with success; charming Margaret Ashton has many admirers of her vocal abilities; and Jeannie Mackay, another vocalist of merit, completes an attractive programme.

Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—A good house gathered on Monday in joyous anticipation of the appearance of popular Florrie Gallimore, but the famous comedienne was ill, and unable to answer to her number; an effective deputy was secured in Collinson's company, whose comedy sketch went with rare gusto. The Juggling Geraldos are exceedingly smart; John Le Hay is the principal actor in a dramatic sketch which makes a big impression; comedy acrobatics by Wild, Willie, and West prove uproarously funny; Harry Wenburn is smart and amusing; the Three Ettenas present their unique globe speciality with success; and Josie Delaine, in vocal scena; Maud Esmond, comedienne; and Mabel La Blanche are also popular.

Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—The Great Roland, a clever illusionist, is the star of this week's bill, and his entertainment is truly mystifying. The Bros. Griffiths dispense broad comedy; the Meynotts are doing well in a similar line; Queenie May is a juvenile artist of ability; Elmo and Rego, with comedy acrobatics, are a strong line; the vocal contributions of Percy Hannan are received with favour; a novel musical act by Sylvo is much enjoyed; some good impersonations are given by Letine; Am

Forster's company appeared here in The Officers' Mess. Mr. Harry Emeric as Thomas Rugg contributes largely to the success; Miss Nellie Sheffield as Rose Smith is excellent, her singing and dancing evoking loud applause; Mr. L. Cadwaladr as Major-General Sir Adalbert de Beaune is well placed; as also is Mr. George Ellis (Captain the Hon. Claude Melville). Sybil Carruthers is in the capable hands of Miss Edith Harmer, her winsome manner and sweet voice being much admired; Mr. Charles D. Cleveland as Antonio Wilkins is all that can be desired; Miss Marcella Hudson (Timothy Tiptop), Miss Clara Nicholls (Lady Constantia), and Mr. Harry Victor (Rienzi Poorpoori), complete a good cast.

PIER PAVILION.—Secretary, Mr. Samuel Hughes.—The grand orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Walter Haigh, has commenced for the season, the vocalist for this week being Miss Ida Kahn.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company in A Soldier of France is the attraction here this week. Mr. Hinton undertakes two parts, both of which are admirably played; Mr. Travis Green in the rôle of Judas Belaras, and afterwards as Count D'Laban, is seen to great advantage; Mr. Victor Millard in a double part is also excellent; as the Duke D'Laval, Mr. Arthur Lowery gives a fine performance; Miss Leila Zillwood as Pauline Lorraine submits a refined rendering; and Miss Lydia Audre is good as Rita. Other parts are capably played by Miss Jennie Clare as Margot, Mr. Wilson Drury as Pollyput Jollyboy, and Miss Dolly Turner as Master Louis Lorraine.

LOWESTOFT.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—This week the Chronophone, that was exhibited at Buckingham Palace, by Royal Command, on the 4th inst., is a powerful attraction here; and, in addition, there are a number of excellent films, and an exceptionally strong variety company, including the Cumberland Family of athletic, acrobatic cyclists; J. H. Crew is immensely popular; as are Wisper, the cimic juggler, and Miss Beattie Bloom.

MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Miss Winifred Chalmers's company is paying a first visit here, with the drama The Master Criminal. In the title-rôle Mr. Henry L. Osmond presents a clever study, and acts throughout in a most accomplished manner; a capital performance of Philip Manners is given by Mr. Harold C. Macartney; Messrs. J. C. Carlyle (Ben Beandy) and E. Noble (Gentleman Jim) are both suitably placed; and Mr. H. Cooke submits an amusing sketch as Tommy Dala. Miss Winifred Chalmers is highly successful as Cecile, and praiseworthy are the Messrs. Kate Somerville (Mable Manners), Mabel Tremere (Peggy Perks), and little Miss Lizzie Power (Winifred Manners).

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's No. 1 company, in The Gay Parisienne is delighting Luton playgoers here. Amongst the performers must be mentioned specially the Imperial Glee Singers, Mr. Cecil Lawrence in a whistling medley, Miss Lilian Talbot as Julie Bon Bon, Miss Madge Souttar as Ruth, Miss Holford Beringer as Mrs. Honeycambe, and Mr. Harman as Mr. Honeycombe.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—A crowded house welcomed Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company on Monday in The Silver King. Mr. Horace B. Herbert played the part of Wilfred Denver with excellent effect; Miss Florence Radcliffe acted with quiet pathos as Nellie Denver; Mr. Seton Bernard was well placed as Daniel Jaikes; Mr. Paul Becket gave dramatic force to the part of Captain Skinner; Mr. Ralph Leo as Henry Corket, Mr. William Dempsey as Eiljah Coombe and Mr. William Allison as Cripps contribute in no small measure to the success of the play. Miss Dorothea Black ably filled the part of Olive Skinner; Miss Dorothy Love as Cissie and little Josephine Mackintosh as Ned were very neat; whilst Mr. Laurie Hunter as Geoffrey Ware and Mr. Alex. Begbie as Samuel Baxter lent able support.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—A second week of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company opened here with a delightful rendering of Carmen, Miss Doris Woodall in the title-rôle, Mr. Edward Davies as José, and Mr. Charles Victor as Escamillo. A big house applauded, and the event was noteworthy as a brilliant reproduction at a cost of over £1,000. On Tuesday Fidelio was performed in fine style, and with a superb cast, including Mme. Lucille Hill and Mr. Julius Walther. Further opportunities occurred to other distinguished members of the company during the week, in Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, Don Giovanni, Tannhäuser, and The Merry Wives of Windsor, and the fortnight's visit has proved highly popular and successful.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The second week of Tom Jones has been attended with convincing proof, in the shape of huge audiences and enthusiastic applause, that Mr. Courtneidge's production has come to stay. It is a long time since so signal a success was achieved in Manchester.

GAIETY THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—The performance of San Toy here this week, by Mr. John Hart's company, has delighted big houses nightly. A good cast is headed by Miss Gertrude Gilliam, who plays the title-rôle charmingly, and Mr. Horace Mills, who repeats his old-time success in the part of Li. Mr. Frederick Hobbs gives a capital rendering of Fo-Hop; Mr. Colin Coop is seen once more as Yen-How; Mr. W. J. Mannings as Sir Bingo Preston is another old favourite; Mr. Edmund Sherras is quite satisfactory as Bobby Preston; and as Lieut. Harvey Tucker, Mr. Alfred Majilton acts and sings well. Among the ladies, Miss Sylvia May as Poppy is notable; and on Monday Miss Olive Crellin was successful as Dudley, the maid, a part which should have been played by Miss Lulu Valli, who unfortunately sprained her ankle. The piece is brilliantly staged.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company, in Second to None (produced last week in Manchester), is delighting good audiences here with their smooth and effective rendering of Mr. Walter Howard's successful play.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. — Messrs. John B. Shinton and Alexander Greenwood's company is here in the Russian drama, The Price of Her Soul. The piece is interesting and exciting. Mr. John B. Shinton acts splendidly the part of Lord Rolfe Mandeville; Miss Ada M. Ryder is very good as Countess Inez; Mr. Archie Gear gives a capital impersonation of General Lanovitz; and Mr. Arthur Pringle renders Major Skoboloff with satisfactory results. Miss Maude Yorke gives a clever delineation of Olga Lanovitz; and others worthy of praise are Mr. George Marriott, jun., Mr. Maurice Le Sage, Mr. Reginald Taylor, Mr. Larry Clements, and Miss Ethel Rainforth, the two latter providing humorous relief.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Messrs. Power and Kirby's company is here this week in Man's Enemy, a strong and entertaining drama. Prominent parts are notably well handled by Miss Clara Reid as Polly Harris and Mr. John Power as Tom Drake; while rôles essential to the story are in the safe hands of Mr. Norman A. Overton, Miss May Grayce, and Miss Constance Medwyn. The long cast is, however, entirely capable, and the performance as a whole goes briskly and well.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's company is appearing here this week in the successful domestic play, The Shadow of a Crime. Mr. William Matthews as Jim Murdock has a capital part, and plays it well; and equally good is Miss Nellie Howitt in the corresponding rôle of Loyale Norman. Mr. Hugh Mewburn gives a strong sketch of the villainous Ralph Esmond; Mr. J. B. Murray is good as Sir Edward Bullington; Mr. W. Ruddle-Brown scores distinctly as Harry Bullington; Miss Bertha St. Ruth makes a satisfactory Sarah; and excellent comedy is provided by Mr. Fred J. Little, Mr. Sidney T. Russell, and Miss Nita Langford.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Clive Darrell, the jilted giant, and an interesting example of abnormal growth, is "walking round" here this week; another star turn is provided by the Robertys, exceedingly clever juvenile whirlwind dancers; while other good business is forthcoming from Alice May and company, in Tranquillity, a clever sketch; Tom Lally, a fine bass vocalist; the Merrions, entertainers; Denton and Rowland's company of Punch and Judy Girls, a very smart combination of juveniles; the Huxter Brothers, a wonderful somersault-throwing trio; May Glenn and Leonard Griffiths, in a well-sung operatic duologue; and Bert Harron, a brisk comedian. The Bioscope is as good as usual.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—That beautiful spectacular production, The Treasure Ship in Fairy Seas, remains the chief attraction here another week; another big turn, which is extremely funny, is Henry Cadle's company of comedians, in The Casey Circus; dainty Mabel Green, of Little Michus fame, sings her songs in her usual pleasing style; Hall and Earle, comedy acrobats, are heartily received; and Blanche Vincent is a smart comedienne. Enjoyable items are also those of Frank Couch, whose patter is good; and Grahame, the human marionette. A novel turn is submitted by the famous billiardist, Tom Reece, in an exposition of difficult "shots"; and the programme is further strengthened by the inclusion of a "Nautical Overture" (Haines), by the choir and orchestra; and an illustrated song, rendered in fine style by Mr. Thos. Grundy.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry. — John Tiller's company in High Jinks forms one of the principal attractions here this week; and another is Irma Lorraine, who poses in a series of beautiful tableaux vivants. Excellent turns are added by Mlle. Renee, instrumentalist; Johnson and Pelham, comedy artists; the Five Casino Girls, instrumentalists; Les Trombettas, in their protean pot-pourri; the Max Milan Trio of equilibrists; and Chas. J. Johnson, the "Black Diamond." The Palace pictures portray the latest events.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. — An excellent programme here this week comorises Harry Daniels and company, in Rent, a comic and elaborate sketch; the Woodwards, in their marvellous cycle act; Doris Myddleton, a clever mimic; Bob Best, eccentric comedian; Macdonald and Huntington, American duo; Alf. Davies, actor-vocalist; the Jollions, harmonising vocalists; Herbert Bates, the silver-voiced tenor; Lila Lingard, a talented male impersonator; and Cleland, in a smart comic act.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—"Venus," Lord Leighton's model, introduced by Mr. L. Austin-Millais, is the attraction here this week, her artistic poses being greatly admired by large audiences; The Galley Slave, a powerful and interesting sketch, is presented by Howell Webb and company, with great dramatic force; and very entertaining are Windermere and Manifield, in a comedy duologue, A Narrow Squeak. Emma Don and her black and white comedy team, are good singers and dancers; H. Nelson, comedian, has some good patter; the Three Behans are well received; Sidney Lee is a smart conjurer; J. H. Dundas, actor-vocalist, is clever; Greener, the pit lad, has a good reception; and Eustace and Eyre provide a smart ventriloquial turn.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Millie Lindon remains here another week, and charms with her new song-scena, "My girl in the picture-frame," and other songs; the Great Weiland, assisted by Mlle. Carlotta, is a wonderfully clever juggler; and the Elvio Comedy Team are exceedingly funny in a sketch, entitled Those Troublesome Slaveys. Vere and Royal are capital vocal comedy artists; the dancing absurdity of Will and Alice Vokes is clever and amusing; and Tom Yorke is a good coster comedian. Other successful turns are contributed by Edith St. Clare, burlesque artist; Tray and Rich, comedians; and Irene Meldon, comedienne and dancer. Raymond's Vivagraph, good, as usual, completes an enjoyable programme.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son. — The Nelson Newsboys' Quintette, who head the bill here this week, sing very sweetly; the figures introduced in the miniature circus by the Sisters Petram are manipulated in a wonderfully life-like manner; Halma is a smart juggler; Leo Trainor, vocal comedian, Marie Blythe, contralto, and Charles Santon, male soprano, each provides a good turn, and is well received; Les Zelovas go through a clever acrobatic performance; Gilroy and Gross are expert sand-dancers; Little Dando is an amusing comedian; and the Musical Keiths are good. "The Haunted Hotel" is a screamingly funny film shown on the Bioscope.

GRAND.—Jasper Redfern's pictures, with vaudeville interludes, still provide an attractive entertainment here.

MANSFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—During this week Mr. W. Graham Arthur's company have been presenting the drama, When a Man Hates, to good houses. In the rôle of Danelli, Mr. W. Graham Arthur plays excellently; as Laurence Hastings, Mr. Arthur Jarvis is well placed; Mr. Ernest Turner gives a capable interpretation of the part of Peter Pimple; and Mr. George P. Pleons is a shrewd detective. Miss Mabel Leston admirably impersonates Letty the "white angel"; and Miss Jennie Hallworth is quite at home in the part of Dolly Dimple; as Olga Gwynne, Miss Maud Burleigh is very successful; and Mr. Herbert M. King as the half-witted Paul is excellent. All the other parts are admirably sustained, and the staging is praiseworthy.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Captain Cecil Clayton.—On Thursday the Mansfield Amateur Operatic Society produced The Pirates of Penzance for the benefit of the Mansfield and District Nursing Association.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh. — The stock company has made a welcome return this week, and has been playing successfully the amusing piece Our Flat. In the rôle of Reginald Sylvester Mr. Robert Grey plays in a humorous manner, and obtains able support from Mr. Wallis Clark, as Clarence Vane. Mr. A. Austin-Leigh, as Nathaniel Glover, the theatrical manager, together with Miss Emmie O'Reilly, as Bella, the general servant, provide a great deal of the fun; Mr. H. G. Mason is quite at home as Mr. MacCullam, and Mr. Richard Trieve is capable as Stout; Miss May Saker, a new member of the company, has quickly become popular with the audiences, and her playing of Margery Sylvester has given every satisfaction; Miss Mabel Archdall sustains with vigorous emphasis the rôle of the Bond-street modiste, Mme. Volant, and Miss A. Mercandalli is good as Lucy MacCullum; Miss Belle Travers plays briskly as Clara Pryout.

HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietors, Messrs. F Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—In this week's variety programme are Raynor and Reece, who, as a comedy duo, are much appreciated; Henri Bekker is, as an exponent of sleight-of-hand, particularly good; Beattie Kent, comedienne, is a dainty dancer as well as a pleasing vocalist, and Lily Flexmore also shows marked skill as a contortionist and speciality dancer; Tom Collins, comedian, is exceptionally good; Theo. Hardeen, the handcuff king, proves a decided attraction. The pictures this week are very amusing.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Mr. Lionel Vaughan's company tops the bill here in the comedy sketch, In Trouble; Otto and Olga are exceedingly clever; Lindon's Vaudeville entertainers are highly divering in a musical mélange, Monks at Play; Mark Henton is a quaint comedian; Jolly Crissie Cross is very popular; Edouards and Dacre afford amusement in their comedy duologue, "What a Life"; and Harry Clifford is an excellent comedian. The Bioscope pictures are up to date.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Chas. Morritt opened here on Monday night, when, in addition to placing a man in the hypnotic state for a week, he also operated on local subjects with amusing results. As an illusionist, Mr. Morritt is in the front rank, and his work in this direction won him loud applause. Supporting him are the Blind Man of Memory, Mme. Beulah, fitly described as the marvel of mental telepathy; Blanche and Diacoff, on their great cycle whizz; Boy Sampson, youthful athlete; Magna, the mysterious suspended lady; Hines, coloured speciality artist; Flemine, a clever hand balancer; and a fine series of animated pictures.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—The Woman who Gambles is being played here for the first time in Middlesbrough this week. It is presented by Mr. Horton Powell's company. Miss Louisa Peach appears in the title-rôle, and gives a natural and womanly rendering of a difficult part; as Count Steinbach Mr. Alex. Alexander plays with an artistic restraint which is always effective, and Miss Florence Hulton infuses much sweetness into the character of Cora Gouldhart; Mr. Horatio Sinclair does full justice to the part of Baron Cratzlaw and Miss Lily Malvern is pleasing as Stella Melakoff; Miss Violet Wilson is good as Mlle. Zeyelda, and Lieut. Cizarteriski finds an able representative in Mr. Reginald Fox; Miss Brenda May is effective in the rôle of Zaneta, and Mr. Alfred Richards as Hon. Bray, Mr. James Welch as Paul Slivanovitch, Mr. Ernest Clarke as M. Stamboloff are all that can be desired.

OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company occupies the boards here this week with the play Held Apart. Mr. H. K. Ayliff as James Douglas and Miss Ruby Loueraine as Sybil Grey are the two principals, and much of the success achieved is due to their exertions; Miss Ethyle Murray acts with considerable force as Countess de Castre, and Mr. Leonard Lawrence acts with great distinction as John Douglas; Miss Winifred Love is charming as Lady Grant, and for the part of Hugh Trevor a clever representative is found in Mr. E. G. Batley; Miss Gertrude Homewood is pleasing as Lily Stark, and Mr. A. W. Norman does full justice to the part of Captain Ford.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Kembyes.—Mme. Irma Glasen's living art bronzes provide the star turn here this week; Damewell Rutland and company create roars of laughter in their comical caper entitled House Full, and Harry Thorpe and Zoe Coe score a great success in their comedy episode, My Burglar; Conway and Garland do well in their absurdity, Left in Charge; and Charles Russell pleases in his latest song scena, "It's a wonder what music will do"; the Sisters Stratton, duettists and dancers; Fred Lincoln, comedian; and Nellie Chandos, comedienne and dancer, also add attractive items to a capital programme.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—Arthur Lennard, a great favourite with the Tees-siders, pays a welcome return visit here this week, and his sympathetic rendering of "Skylark" and "Mother" wins for him complete success; Harwood's Juveniles score in a series of pretty songs and dances, and Harry Levaine is a quaint comedian; Selby and Myers provide a clever dancing turn, and Lizzie Fletcher, comedienne, pleases. Other turns are provided by Betsy Baker, serio, and Odeyne Spark.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—Mr. Robert Perris's company commenced on Monday a three nights' engagement in the sensational American melodrama, A Fight for Millions. Mr. Alec Grant gave a good delineation of the scoundrel Richard Dudley; Mr. William Mackready was a manly hero; Miss Winifred Symons a charming Pearl Rivers; and Miss Elma C. Turner a sympathetic Helen Dudley. Fred Karno's Mumming Birds came on Thursday.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—Mr. E. Lockwood and Mr. R. Crossman's company has made its first appearance here this week in the musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, and crowded houses have each night witnessed a capital performance. The title-rôle is filled by Mr. E. Russell in an eminently satisfactory manner; whilst as Crookie Scrubbs, Mr. T. A. Shale keeps the audience in constant merriment. His facial expressions and acting generally are particularly worthy of note, whilst he does justice to the musical portion of his work. Mr. Tom Shelford as Michael Brue adds greatly to the dash and swing of the performance; Miss Mabel Keith makes a charming Aurora Brue; Miss Edith Housley can be credited with good accomplishment in the rôle of Lady Bickenhall; and the part of Daisy, the servant, is in the capable hands of Miss Constance Berkley. As Mr. Crank, the magistrate, Mr. Henry Chichester is well received.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—The musical play The Lady Dandies occupies the boards here for the first time. Miss Anna Hickish sings with entire acceptance as La Merveilleuse, and Miss Deborah Volar proves a good exponent of the rôle of Illyrine; much of the success of the piece rests on an able interpretation of the part of Dorlie, and in better hands than Mr. W. Talleur Andrews' it could not well be placed, his singing being a distinct success; very funny is Mr. Eric Thorne, a great Newcastle favourite, as the Prefect of Police; and splendid support is given him by a sound comedian in Mr. Lennox Pawle, Mr. Robert Hale, Mr. Jack Cannot, and Mr. Willie Ward, jun.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The bright and amusing musical comedy Sergeant Brue is paying a welcome visit to the Tyne Theatre this week, the company being Mr. Robert Crossman's. Capital comedy is contributed by Mr. Arthur Reynolds as the Sergeant and Mr. Clarence Ibbetson as the ticket-of-leave man; Miss Cissie Raymond figures smartly in the part of Lady Bickenhall; Miss Mary Hay is a pleasingly vivacious Aurora Brue; while Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy is seen and heard to great advantage as the Sergeant's son. To her song of "Instinct" Miss Raymond adds a smart verse on "The Suffragettes"; and amongst the most appreciated items is the well-known number "Under a Panama," as rendered by Miss Hay.

GRAND THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—The Coal King, a most interesting drama, is presented here this week by Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company. A well-balanced company includes Mr. Lauderdale Maitland, Mr. Chas. Whitlock, Mr. Escott Robson, Mr. Frank Dalton, Mr. Alfred Terris, Mr. Fabian Lock, Miss Gertrude Valentine, Miss Enid Ross, Miss Sinna St. Clair, and Miss Eveline North.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Richard Thornton.—Mr. Mike S. Whallen occupies a prominent position on the programme here this week. The Egbert Brothers made a decided hit in their amusing sketch, The Happy Dustman, and Miss Nellie Coleman, "the only lady comedian," renders character songs in capital style; the Delevines, in a mélange, Flipp and Flopp, score a well-merited success, and Sinclair and Whiteford contribute an interesting duologue, "Getting Even"; a clever juvenile comedian and dancer is Nipper Lupino Lane, and the Lupino Brothers are responsible for a capital comedy speciality act; Miss Fanny Erris, comedienne, and Dome, comedy clay modeller, are also worthy members of the company. The Bioscope depicts many of the chief incidents of the England and Scotland Association match played at Newcastle last Saturday.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Acting Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman—Coram, a capital ventriloquist, gives one of the leading turns in a good all-round entertainment at the Pavilion Theatre this week; Kronan's Boys in Blue provide a picturesque military spectacle, and Mr. Edwin Boyde's humorous and well-rendered songs prove as popular as ever; Walker and May, coloured comedians and dancers, provide first-class amusement, and Blake and Granby contribute a mirth-provoking sketch entitled The Man in Possession. Others in the programme are Arthur Royce, Robbie Roy, Dale and O'Malley, Miss Nell Emerald, and Geo. Barron.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Wm. Mollison and Co. are here, and on Monday Macbeth was presented. Mr. Mollison's Macbeth was a great interpretation, perfect in elocution, and wanting in nothing to make the character ideal. Miss Evelyn McKay's Lady Macbeth was full of fine touches, marked by fire and scorn and overmastering ambition, and later, at the banquet scene, she was queenly and womanly. Other parts are in good hands, and the tragedy was well dressed and mounted. The Merchant of Venice, Richard III., Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush, and As You Like It are included in the week's bill.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallaghar; Assistant, Mr. Page.—Mr. Fred Storey and Co. present a version of Rip Van Winkle, and all through the audience showed its appreciation of the charming sketch; Carlos Minard is a violinist of a high order; Arthur Gill, "the Original Yokel," gave a pleasing musical turn; and J. W. Rickaby, who sang some good burlesque songs, was a prime favourite. Ruby Dahl, with the "Merry Manikins," gave a clever and amusing performance; the Renard Trio evoked hearty applause with their acrobatic feats; and Clarke and Glenny, in The Haunted House, caused much amusement. In conjunction with Gaumont's Chronophone there were some amusing pictures shown on the Bioscope.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. Ian Maclaren is paying us a first visit in a round of Shakespearean plays, commencing on Monday with Hamlet, in which he was highly successful in the title-rôle, giving a clear and consistent rendering of the part. Miss Katherine Harrington was sweetly charming as Ophelia, and Mr. W. S. Hartford lent valuable support as Claudius. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice was played. Othello, Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, and Macbeth are also in the répetoire.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—A good, all-round show is being presented here. Mlle. De Rose, contralto, is a great favourite; Mabel Mavis, with glassophone solos, gains great favour; the Yansons give a smart display of trapeze feats; the Kurios produce a mixture of pantomime and mystery; Arthur Aiston and Co. appear successfully in a comic sketch, Duck Hunting; J. H. Hawtry, actor-vocalist, sings with good effect; Lily Hales pleases as a comedian and dancer; Harry Desmond is a character comedian of ability; and C. Vincent completes a good programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—A short variety season was commenced here on Monday, when large audiences assembled. The programme is headed by Mr. Charlie Green, champion heavy-weight wrestler, who met with appreciation; Mr. Fred Ramsdale's musical comedy company in The Squire's Daughter had a hearty reception; the Sauteron Wonders, in their jumping act, made a great hit; Miss Nellie Nora, instrumentalist, was loudly applauded; and Mr. Frank Senior, descriptive vocalist; Miss Louie Desmond, vocalist; Mr. Joe Marsden, Mr. Billy Bretton, and Mr. H. Stanley Howard, comedians; Miss Jessie Thorne, comedy artist; and Mr. Bob Campbell, comedian and one-legged dancer, appeared successfully.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—A good bill of fare is attracting capital houses here. The Four Andys present an amusing pantomimical sketch, which is much enjoyed; and Messrs. Hall and Wilson in their cycling act are heartily received. Prince Ismael and Mme. Valeria, magicians and illusionists, are very smart; Messrs. Doyle and Gibson, comedians, are great favourites; Mr. Bert Fisher, swell comic, is popular; and Miss Lillian, vocalist; Mr. Alex. Robson, clog danger; and the Bio-photoscope also meet with favour.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—A powerful company under the direction of Mr. Haldane Crighton in A Soldier of Fortune is here this week. Lieut. Rupert Clive is portrayed by Mr. Godfrey Tearle in a masterly manner; Mr. Baliol Holloway as Sir Stephen Cunningham is very good; Mr. Alfred Gray is successful as the Earl of Annandale; whilst Mr. William Lowe is good as Dr. Thorn; Mr. Edmond T. Sayers is a humorous Boniface; and Mr. Charles C. Ommaney deserves mention as the Roundhead Captain. Freeman is well suited as the Crown Prince Leopold; and Mr. Edward Fletcher gives satisfaction as Lieut. Eugene Von Strelsburg. Mr. Ernest E. Imeson works well as Capt. Rudolph Von Scarsbruck. Merriment is caused by Messrs. E. Page, Vernon Paul, and Algie Spalding; and Miss Ada Champion adds considerably to the enjoyment as Kathie. The Princess Astrea Von Strelsburg is for tunate in having such a capable exponent in Miss Annie Saker, whose impersonation gains quite an ovation.

Pier Pavilion.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Mr. Harry Liston is proving immensely popular here this week in his bright and merry programme. Miss Lord Lumley assists him in the very enjoyable sketches, and her talents are well revealed. Miss Avey sings and dances delightfully; and Miss Adelaide Chadwick is well received in her artistic renderings of good songs.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Fred C. Summerfield's company is here in the romantic drama The Tyrant. Miss Marie Dagmar, in the rôle of Tisbe, pleases the audience by the excellence of her acting; Mr. Fred C. Somerfield is seen to great advantage as Homodei; and Mr. Roy Fortescue acts powerfully as Angelo. Rudolph is pleasingly portrayed by Mr. Lionel Atwill; Miss Millie Ford makes a charming Lady Katherine; and Miss Lallah Shelton arouses sympathy as Eulie Homodei's sister. The comedy is supplied by Miss Olive Lloyd as Reginella, Mr. Percy Brown as Victor, and Mr. Albert Rogers as Nobbo. Mr. Alec Findlater is good as Lieut. Taska.

Empire Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Chas. Kitts and Rhoda Windrum and company, in a military comedy, The Cuckoo, are very entertaining. A farcical episode, entitled Cockie, is presented with great success by Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright; Billy Farrell's songs and patter are well received; a clever horizontal bar performance is submitted by Mezzetti and Mora; the Cambrian Trio contribute an enjoyable musical turn. Other excellent attractions are Sadie Simpson, coon comedienne and dancer; Bessie Benson, dainty comedienne; and the Bioscope, with excellent films.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Jos. Sweeney; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns. — The D'Ostas, mental telegraphists and second-sightseers, are mystifying the audiences here. The Four Maisanos, musical eccentrics, are accorded a good reception; Sandy and Carl, speciality comedians, have lost none of their popularity; and the Prinellas, in their cornfield and farmyard scena, A Country Flirtation, score heavily. Dolly Denver is an exceptionally clever dancer; and Ben Jones, vocalist, and the Tivoli Bioscope also attract.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre. — Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—This week's entertainment is being provided by a combination touring under the title of Colin's Excursions, which exhibits a varied series of animated pictures, descriptive of scenes in all parts of the world. Interspersed between the different sets of films are variety turns. Fred Lyndo is a popular comedian with local audiences; and Soros, the mystery, Wrangler, the Wrangler, and a laughable sketch entitled, Her Shattered Idol, presented by Miss Edna Reeve and company, are also successful.

STAFFORD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—An excellent variety programme is presented here this week. Mme. Ada Colley, the Australian nightingale, is the star turn, and the enthusiastic reception accorded her is in every way merited. Lytton and Bland give a very acceptable turn; Lillian Sivado proves a clever trapeze artist; the sketch, Charlie's Indian, is very laughable; Globella, globe walker, is exceptionally good; Harry Plowden, comedian, with patter, meets with success; Harry Whitman sings some good illustrated songs; and the animated pictures are also interesting.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—A Beautiful Fiend is paying a return visit here. Mr. Montague Beaudyn gives a sound and impressive rendering of Ivan Paulovitch, major of the Russian police; Miss Sydney Crowe as Wanda Lubinoff displays the requisite dramatic force in the difficult part of the adventuress. She is ably supported by Mr. Herbert Skardon, who appears to great advantage in the part of Count Karateff; and Mr. Matt. Russell is excellent as Strogoff. Mr. Harry Oates and Miss Annie Clunn cause continuous laughter by their performance in the comedy parts; and an admirably-balanced cast is completed by Mr. Robertson Foulis, Mr. John Baxter, Mr. Lionel Carteret. Miss Irene Munro, and Mr. J. Burnett. The play is well mounted.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Vic Carnell.—Miss Marie Loftus makes her first appearance in St. Helens this week, and had a magnificent reception for her three numbers; another capital turn is that of the Narrow Brothers, trick cyclists; Sterling and Love present an original musical mélange; Newco and Sulls cause plenty of amusement, their dancing being exceptionally good; Flo Wood, comedienne, is successful with her song, "My Octoroon"; Harry Mantle, a capital descriptive artist, and the Orchids, in an amusing vocal scena, complete a fine programme.

STOCKPORT. — Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—The return visit of Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests has been a distinct attraction here this week. Mr. George Hester gives a very amusing impersonation of Sergeant Lightning; Lord Easem is capably sustained by Mr. Frank Morton; Mr. Charles Usher makes a capital Mr. Miffins; and Mr. Sid Kearns is mirth-provoking as Mr. Minks. Miss Leonora Castelle is charming in the character of Lady Maud Easem; and Miss Edith Ager pleasingly fills the part of Miffins' daughter, Dolly.

Empire. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black. —J. W. Hall, comedian, heads the bill here this week, and has delighted everybody with his amusing patter. Entertaining and clever are Gold and Sterling, in their scena, The Welsh Girl and the Artist; Frank Coyle, comedian, is much applauded; Whimsical Walker, in a sketch Captain Hamilton, V.C., assisted by Miss Molly Moore, is highly successful; and among others who command appreciation are Field and Lewis, in a pot-pourri act; the Wedburns, instrumentalists, vocalists, and comedians; Gertrude Lytton, vocalist; and W. T. Ellsranger's comedy sketch, The Peacemaker.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Hippodrome Theatre. —Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—The Aurora Troupe of cyclists are here this week, and fully maintain their reputation; Beatrice Worth is a pleasing character vocalist; and Sam Shipley causes great amusement in his character of a policeman. Addie Dorina, lady protean artist, is greatly appreciated; Sands and Vincent are popular comedy artists; Clown Barker, with his trained dogs, is loudly applauded; while Tom Kelso and company fairly bring down the house with their humorous sketch, The Silly Burglar. The pictures complete an excellent programme.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Alburtus and Millar head the bill this week, and as a funny pair of comedians are greatly appreciated; Luigi Salvino is a youthful musical prodigy; the Brothers Durant cause amusement in their comedy act; and H. O. Wills, an old favourite, is well received for his humorous songs. Amy Anderson and company present a funny sketch, The Banana Queen; Ross and Lewis score with their patter; and Tennyson and Wallis are accorded a good reception for their up-to-date duets. The pictures are interesting.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Miss Lole Esmond and company are here for the week, appearing in The Anarchist Terror and The Sorrows of Satan. On Monday, the first-mentioned was presented in capital style. The leading artists are Messrs. Fred Cherry, J. McCaigh, Edward Neville, Herbert Carrington, Coleman Davies, and Misses Lola Esmond, Jennie Croft, and Rosie Neville.

SUNDERLAND.—Avenue Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—The second and concluding week of Mr. F. R. Benson's welcome visit here has been devoted to a répertoire of plays, opening on Monday with The Taming of the Shrew. Mrs. F. R. Benson once again delineated the well-known character of Katharina with all the histrionic ability for which she is noted. Mr. Benson also submitted his vigorous rendition of Petruchio; Mr. George R. Weir was well cast as Grumio; and Mr. George Buchanan efficiently portrayed Lucentio. As You Like It, Hamlet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, The School for Scandal, Macbeth, and The Merchant of Venice were also in the week's répertoire.

King's Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. E. Stevens and Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Carlo.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's No. 1 company, in A Royal Divorce, never fails to provide a powerful attraction, and with Miss Edith Cole as the Empress Josephine success is doubly assured. Mr. Fred Victor as the Emperor Napoleon adds to his reputation; Miss Agnes Imlay scores as the haughty Marie Louise; and Miss Gertrude Entwhistle is seen to advantage as Stephanie; Mr. Alfred Grenville is amusing as General Angerau.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Go-Won-Go Mohawk is here with Wep-Ton-no-Mah, in which she powerfully portrays the title-rôle. Mr. C. W. Charles is strong as Col. Stockton; and Mr. E. Leroy capably fills the part of Manuel; Messrs. Guy Hackney and Dan Ryan provide amusement as Sam White and Carry Cullen respectively; and a word of praise is due to Miss Blanche Leroy for a pleasing portrayal of Nellie Stockton.

Palace of Variety, Ltd.—Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—The premier position is this week held by the Harmony Four, in their smart musical comedy; Belle Davis and her Chicks provide another turn of merit; and Little Yanty scores with his funniosities. Others contributing to the programme include Onda and Artell, in a gymnastic act; Madge May, comedian; Burley and Burley, comedians; Jay Winton, ventriloquist; with the usual display of pictures as a finale.

SWANSEA.—Grand Theatre.—The attraction at the Grand this week is the film of the famous fight between Battling Nelson and Gans, shown by the American Pictures Company. The pictures are wonderfully clear, and all details are well shown. A really excellent variety company includes George Russell, Tommy Hayes, the Levans, and Will Doran and company.

Empire.—Packed houses gave a hearty welcome on Monday to Chung Ling Soo, who heads a powerful variety company at the Empire this week. Miss Madge Gray, dialect comedienne, gives an unique turn; and Geo. Newburn, mimic; Herbert Rule, comedian; Lillieth Leyton, supported by Mr. John Leyton, in a comedy interlude; Russell Brandow, acrobatic dancer; Roma and Romani, musicians; Ethel Ra Leslie, a charming vocalist; and the American Bioscope complete.

The Star.—Mr. Chas.

Kimberley Boys are as funny as ever; and some excellent pictures are shown by the Hippodrome lantern.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather—The Compton Comedy Company is at all times assured of a hearty welcome in West Hartlepool, and the present visit is no exception to the rule. The répertoire this week includes Davy Garrick, Edmund Kean, The Gentleman in Grey, and She Stoops to Conquer, the leading rôle being taken by Mr. Compton in that masterly style for which he is so justly noted. Valuable work is done by Miss Mackenzie, who has previously gained considerable popularity in the town.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—This week the spectacular performance All Scotch, by W. Selkirk's Juveniles, is a great attraction, and Flo Chevalier, a tasteful soprano, sings with engaging sweetness; Rich and Rich are old favourites, as also is Elsie Robey; Bruce and Hemsley, in the clever musical comedy act Fun in a Music Shop, introduce some smart dancing; Charlie Williams, the Scotch nigger, is an attraction, and Vera Mayne, comedienne, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux contribute acceptable turns.

WHITEHAVEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—A strong attraction is provided here in the visit of Mr. Jack Haddon's company, in the drama, Under the Russian Flag. Mr. J. Haddon appears as Michael Romanoff, and plays the part in a creditable manner; and Mr. Chas. Stafford acts in a manly way the character of his brother, Ivan. Mr. Sydney Arnold has a soldierly bearing as Captain Demetrius; and Mr. Templar is amusing as Alexis. Mr. Hal Forde is good as Peter; and Miss Molly Hackett causes much laughter as Ogarita. Miss Violet Lytton is a charming Vera; and Miss Marie Rayner acts powerfully as Luke Marishla. Other characters are well represented, and the scenery deserves mention.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Hilliard Vox's company is here in the thrilling American drama, Alaska. Mr. Percy Ballard is an admirable Skookum Jim; Mr. R. Naylor Grimson is villainous enough to satisfy the most fastidious; Mr. Stenson Liddiard is a clever Baptiste; Mr. A. Ferris as Pompey causes much fun; a fine character-sketch of Father Bernard is given by Mr. James Fox; Mr. Gilbert James is a desperate-looking Malmite Kid; and Mr. J. Howard gives a very satisfactory delineation of Lieut. Harding. Miss Ethel May is well placed as the irrepressible Topsy; Miss M. Palmer plays winningly as the good-natured Widow Casey; Miss Muriel Vox is a charming heroine as Jessie Dalton; and Miss Violet Craufurd makes the most of the sympathetic part of Alaska, the faithful Indian. The play is very nicely staged, and the knife fight over the burning crater of a volcano provides a great thrill.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and company have won warm encomiums for their admirable presentation of The Lady of Ostend. Mr. Henry Hampson as Dick Whortles and Mr. Percy Marshall as Joseph Carbury enact their respective parts with delectable humour; Mr. Lawrence Brough is most amusing as the Frenchman; Miss Marian Ripley cleverly takes the part of the Lady of Ostend; Miss Bessie Harrison is successful in that of Matilda Carbury, and Miss Kate Wilford as Dorothy Whortles, the neglected wife, impersonates the character with due dignity.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Datas, the man with the remarkable memory, and the Leslie Bros., comedy musicians, are the chief turns in a good programme. Gilbert's Circus, Marstro and Oretto (tumblers), and the Three Seabornes (acrobats) are popular; and excellent comedy is provided by Neon and Norris, Bob Hamilton, Ruby Aston, Sterling and Cashen, F. S. Hulme, and the Three Coopers.

WORKINGTON. — Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—On Monday night Mr. Dickie Clare's company presented Lucky 'Liza to a large and appreciative audience. As Silas Slim and aliases, Mr. Clare worked arduously and successfully; Mr. T. W. Benson was excellent as the irritable Petitoe; and was well matched by Mr. B. Collins as Blatherwick. Mr. S. Hind as Paul played effectively and danced splendidly; as the Scotchman he was heartily applauded. Mr. A. W. Thompson's brogue as Biffens was amusing; Miss M. Brownie sang well and danced gracefully as 'Liza; Miss Vesta Brownie was piquant as Virginia; as Marie, Miss B. Russell gave satisfaction; the dancing by Miss N. Buckley, Miss M. Gordon, and Miss Q. Bell was effective.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Herbert Balland's company was here for the first three days of the week, presenting La Poupée. Mr. Fred Seymour as Hilarius was excellent; Miss Mysie Devine as Alesia also was excellent; Mr. Arthur Cozens as Lancelot put in good work; Miss Edith Hunter did well as Mme. Hilarius; the remaining characters were all in good hands.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Beauty and the Barge is paying a welcome return visit, and delighting large audiences. As Captain Barley, Mr. Blake Adams repeats his unique performance, which draws forth warm applause; Miss Mary Pemberton is a particularly pleasing Lucy Dallas; much amusement is caused by Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite as Mrs. Porter; and as the irate Major Smedley, Mr. Walter Pemberton never misses a point. Mr. Edward Coventry is smart and polished as Lieut. Seton Boyne, and Mr. Fred Knight is sufficiently unctuous as Tom Codd. The mounting of the play is excellent.

Opera House and Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Minnie Cunningham has rapidly sang herself into favour this week, giving a neat and clever show. Valvo, a ventriloquist of more than ordinary merit, has created a favourable impression; and the Howes give a clever exhibition of second sight. Violet Ashcroft is a sweet singer; and the Stowe Brothers are smart equilibrists; Dusty Rhodes tells some funny yarns; Mr. E. is a clever patterer; and the fine performance of the Alexandroff Troupe is greatly admired. The Evalos and the Bioscope complete the bill.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 8, the Drama, entitled
"A NOBLE BROTHER."

This well-known drama is nightly attracting large audiences at the Lyric. Mr. Charles Carte as Jerry the Tramp presents one of the best character studies to be seen at the present time on the melodramatic stage. In both the pathetic and humorous scenes Mr. Carte is excellent. His company, a very good one, includes Miss Doris Brookes. Miss Brookes is admirable as Nana Leigh, the heiress, and in the second act introduces a clever song. Miss Nora Kingsley makes Mrs. Leigh, the Colonel's wife, an interesting old lady. Mr. Howard Thorne as Colonel Richard Leigh is effective; his nephew, Henry Travers, is powerfully played by Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin; and Mr. A. H. Gilbert makes a manly Jack Elsworth. The sermon of "The Strange Preacher" is well delivered by Mr. Gerald Weston. One of the best performances is that of Miss Winnie Rose. Her Rosie Rapid, the servant, is a lively little person, and her song in the first act is well sung; and in the second act Miss Rose gives a clever dance, which is much applauded. The others parts are Moss, a policeman, played by Mr. Payne Reynolds; and Claire Florence, embodied by Miss N. Faithful, who are both good in these small parts. The piece is well mounted.

The drama is preceded by a clever farce, entitled All the World Over, and is followed by Mr. Charles Carte in two descriptive songs, with appropriate scenery. The first is "Follies of the day," and the other "Across the bridge." Both songs are admirably rendered and much appreciated by the audience. Mr. Newman Maurice, Mr. James's new manager here, has been carrying out certain decorative additions, and has made the theatre more cosy and attractive than ever.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In your notice of No Cross, No Crown, at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross, this week the name of the child playing Sir Francis Lutrell's daughter should have been, not Elsie Cook, but yours faithfully, Little Madge Gillard, 97, Bravington-road, St. Peter's Park, W., April 6.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Judging by its reception at the first performance, this new play promises to be as popular and money-making as any of the the other "girl" title dramas that have been produced. The story deals with the vicissitudes of twin sisters, Violet and Madge Harvey. They are the daughters of Sergeant Harvey, an old soldier and V.C. man, rendered blind while engaged in saving the life of a comrade at Ladysmith. Violet is the home-bird, who looks after and is devoted to her afflicted father. Madge has spread her wings and gone to London, and by all accounts is married to a man of means there. In reality she is an abandoned woman, and a decoy in the gambling rooms of Rupert Murdock and Zara Lestrange; but that is not known in her native village, except to Zara, her maid, and "Dr." Adolphus Boomer. Zara is an unscrupulous adventuress, but has fallen in love with Frank Julian, who has proposed to Violet and been accepted. Zara, seeing Violet, at first takes her for Madge, for the twin sisters are so much alike that they cannot be distinguished from one another. After Violet's marriage Zara finds out that Violet is not Madge, but her sister, and from the likeness forms a diabolical plot to compel Madge to impersonate her sister. Maddened by drink, Madge agrees to this, and Frank Julian is convinced that his wife is a woman who drinks and is of light conduct when away from him. The adventuress and her lover Rupert connive to make out that Frank is a drunkard and a libertine, and bring his superior officer, General Finnegan, to see him in a drunken stupor, but "Dr." Boomer, disguised as a female, spoils their plans. Zara, robbed of her prey, returns to Hazeldene as a nurse to Sergeant Harvey. She puts arsenic in his medicine, intending to place the crime on Violet, but Boomer again appears and saves the old man's life. Zara has almost succeeded in luring Fred into her net, but the timely arrival of a messenger announcing his child's illness breaks the spell. Then follows a very pathetic scene—the death of Frank and Violet's child, the father and mother coming together over the child's deathbed. In Act 4 we find Madge broken down in health and at the end of her gay career. She realises how terribly she has wronged her sister, and resolves to put matters straight by writing a full confession to her father; and this she does and gives to her landlady to deliver. No sooner has she done this than Zara and Rupert appear. After a violent altercation, Zara fatally stabs Madge. In the next scene a complete reconciliation of Frank and Violet takes place. He knows that it was Madge he saw in Zara's room, and that it was to save her father from the knowledge of his pet daughter's fall that Violet had kept the secret. In the last scene we find Rupert and Zara at variance. Zara attempts to stab Rupert, and a very exciting fight takes place between them which make a most original and weird ending to the drama. Zara gets through the window to escape, but Rupert pulls her back by her hair and shuts down the window, which in its descent catches her by the throat. The thrill this caused was marked, and as the curtain fell the applause broke out, and could only be satisfied by a special call. The piece is enlivened with clever and original comedy, dealing with Molly and her lovers, one Jeames Yellowsocks, a footman, and "Dr." Boomer, a quack.

The drama was very efficiently played by Mr. Fred Bulmer's company. Mr. P. Horton presented an excellent portraiture of Frank Julian, his acting throughout being characterised with much energy and earnestness. Mr. G. Robey as Rupert Murdock was an ideal scoundrel, hardened and impenitent; and Mr. T. C. Glenville played with quiet dignity the rôle of the old veteran, Sergeant Harvey. Mr. Evan Rowland's "Dr." Adolphus Boomer was a clever impersonation, and caused the audience to exercise their risible faculties to a very large degree. Miss Sybil Haughton was a bright and vivacious Molly Bucks; and Mr. Walter Clarke caused roars of laughter as Jeames Yellowsocks. Miss Chrissie Dunbar depicted with boldness and emphatic effect the hard, selfish character of Zara Lestrange; Miss Gladys Hawthorne doubled with marked ability the rôles of Madge and Violet; and Little Zara Dare intelligently interpreted her lines as Lily. The minor characters were well handled.

"AT HOME" AT DUNDEE.

The second anniversary of Mr. R. A. P. Williams' lesseeship of the Gaiety Theatre, Dundee, was taken advantage of by the staff to hold their first annual "At Home," and at the same time to present their genial "governor" and his wife with tangible tokens of esteem. The function, which took place in the Thistle Hall on Friday, the 5th inst., was presided over by Mr. Philip Sefton. Included in the company were gentlemen representatives of the trades and professions in the city, while the theatrical profession was represented by gentlemen from Mr. H. B. Irving's company (at Her Majesty's) and the variety artists by the Savonas and Elliotts, who have been doing great business at the Gaiety; Ina Lorimer, the Sisters Kilner, Mark Anthony, Jack Nell, and others. The "top of the bill" came on after supper, and was introduced by the chairman, who, after making a passing reference to Mr. Williams' high standing among the Dundee public, and also to the fact that Mrs. Williams, as a result of her kind yet at the same time business manners, was a general favourite with music-hall frequenters in the city, asked their acceptance of tokens of prosperity from members of the staff and a few friends. In handing over to Mr. Williams a beautiful dressing-case and to Mrs. Williams a magnificent gold curb bracelet with an inscribed medallion the chairman, amid cheers, remarked that with such a management as existed at the Gaiety at the present time there was no need to fear other than its continued success, even if fifty theatres should be raised in the city. Mr. Williams, who on rising was received with the "Jolly Good Fellow" chorus, in a very appropriate speech returned thanks both on his own behalf and on that of Mrs. Williams. Mr. Powell, the popular manager of the Royal Hotel, also returned thanks on behalf of Mrs. Williams, and his remarks were followed by "An Ode to the Gaiety" by the editor of the City Echo. Thereafter Mr. Jas. Lockhart moved a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman and others, which was heartily accorded.

Dancing, which was then commenced, was kept up for several hours, the capable masters of ceremony being Messrs. Rollo and Fraser. Several members of the company rendered songs during the evening, and the gathering, which proved a great success, reflected great credit in the committee who had charge of affairs.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS-ROLFE.

Mr. Arthur Collins-Rolfe, who has lately been impersonating the Marquis of Steventon in The Walls of Jericho, is the son of the late Captain Rolfe, and nephew of Sir Arthur Collins, K.C., who recently retired from the Chief Justiceship of Madras. Mr. Arthur Collins-Rolfe studied under the guidance of the late Mr. J. N. Ellaby, B.A., the well-known Shakespearean reader; also under Mr. J. N. Ohlson, from whom it may be mentioned Mr. Pinero received his first lessons in the elocutionary art.

After a short experience as an amateur, Mr. Collins-Rolfe drifted to the professional stage, playing small parts in such dramas as The Ladder of Life, A Woman's Revenge, &c. Then followed an engagement with Mr. Ben Greet in Hearts are Trumps, remaining with that production until its transference to Mr. Henry Dundas, who afterwards re-engaged him for Dr. Blake in The White Heather, a part he retained for several tours. Shortly after, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge secured him for the eccentric artist in their farcical comedy, All Through Arabella, and the young Nihilist in The Ghost of the Past, sharing the honours of the latter with the late Mme. Dittini. Then followed several tours with Mr. Frederick Mouillot with The Night of the Party and A Message from Mars, after which Mr. Frank Lindo engaged him for the Duke of Ancaster in Home, Sweet Home. One of his happiest engagements was with Miss Olga Nethersole during her Adelphi season in Sapho.

Mr. Collins-Rolfe has also played various character-parts in Sowing the Wind, A Bunch of Violets, The Master Builder, The Professor's Love

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS-ROLFE.

Story, Guilty Gold, &c. It may be remembered that during the first tour of the Lancashire drama, The Coal King, he enacted the title-rôle.

For charitable purposes Mr. Collins-Rolfe often gives recitals from the poets, including in his répertoire selections from Shakespeare, Tennyson, Longfellow, Kingsley, &c.

ECCENTRIC CLUB CONCERT.

The Eccentric Club gave their ladies' afternoon concert at the Hotel Cecil on Tuesday last. The concert was a great success, and everyone was delighted. Messrs. Jack Harrison and "Billy" White (as his many friends love to call him) were tireless in their energy in securing for the ladyguests "a real good time"; and a veritable bank of flowers awaited the artists. Mr. Norfolk Megone's fine orchestra of fifty performers commenced the programme with a new march, "The Eccentric Club," by Norfolk Megone, the nature of which may be judged from the following synopsis: "Big Ben Chimes—12 o'clock strikes: The Club Opens—The Eccentrics March—What's the matter with Jack Harrison, Tom Fraser, "Billy" White, Walter Beard?—Big Ben Chimes—4 o'clock strikes: The Club Closes—Finale." The choruses were sung out in spirited style by the instrumentalists, and a burst of applause greeted Mr. Megone at the conclusion of the march. The concert opened with a song from Mr. J. M. Hay. Mis Clara Jacks gave in true racy style that clever poem by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, "A Groom's Story." Miss Jecks delighted all present by her humorous method, and her speech had the real stable-boy twang. The stage lost a rare artist when Clara Jecks became Mrs. Wigley. Miss Evie Grene, looking very pretty, sang admirably, and gave as an encore "The Irish Girl." Miss Ruth Lincoln was in fine voice. Mr. Louis Bradfield contributed "My first cigar"; Mr. Gordon Cleather accompanied himself at the piano to a spirited marching song; Mr. Walter Walters sang about "Algy" in his peculiarly humorous way; Mr. William Devereux supplied a powerful rendering of "Gunga Dinn"; Mr. Leon Rogee, a clever imitator of instruments, finished with some remarkable whistling on two fingers; Mr. Albert Whelan told his "bear-shooting" story neatly; and gave a clever imitation of Harry Lauder. Mr. Bransby Williams evoked applause by his recitation of "Jim Bludso." Mr. Sam Welsh caused amusement by his "Talk at the Piano"; and Mr. Eugene de Kerpley supplied an excellent violin solo. Mr. Will Edwards's humorous ditty about "Girls" was appreciated; Miss Phyllis Legrand's "Ferry" song was applauded; Miss Marie Shultz's "Little things that tell" was pleasantly rendered; Mr. Richard Green sang superbly; Mr. George Robins's imitations of a mandoline and a German band were realistic; Mr. Charles Wreford told some very funny stories about West Country parsons; and Mr. Willie Rouse's vocalised humour proved very effective. Several other artists appeared, including Mr. Tom Clare. Both the luncheon and the concert were capitally managed; and Mr. J. A. Harrison, Mr. Ernest Stuart, and Mr. H. Yardley may be congratulated on the results of their efforts, assisted by Mr. W. H. White and an able entertainment committee.

Presentation.—A pleasing little ceremony followed the close of the performance at the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, on the 22nd inst., when Mr. Chas. Pell, who is severing his connection with the theatre where he has been acting-manager, was made the recipient of an address and a gold sovereign purse from the staff of the "front of the house" and a number of friends. Mr. Pell suitably acknowledged the gift, which he accepted as a token of esteem and good feeling. In the address reference was made to Mr. Pell's courteous, business-like, and gentlemanly manner, and gratification was expressed at the fact that he does not intend leaving the town.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, April 3.—The Tattooed Man, a comic opera with Mr. Frank Daniels in the rôle of Omar Khayam, jun., is one of the liveliest and most attractive offerings on Broadway, and is playing to big houses nightly at the Criterion Theatre. The scenes are laid in Persia. Omar is the Shah's weather prophet, and is called the "Tattooed Man" because of a peculiar birthmark on the back of his neck. He is anxious to marry a lady named Leila, who regards him with aversion and loves a big Bedouin chief, Abdallah. To add to his troubles, Omar is pursued by Fatima, an unattractive damsel, who means to marry him willy-nilly. Abdallah plans an elopement with Leila, but Omar hears of it through Fatima, and the Bedouin is seized by the guards and imprisoned. In the meantime Omar's daughter, Alma, returns from a visit to America, accompanied by Algy Cuffs, a "matinée idol," whom she is anxious to convert into a husband. Algy doesn't please Alma's papa, and Omar decides to "kill two birds with one stone," or, in other words, to treat the populace to a double execution. At the last moment, however, birthmarks similar to the one on Omar's neck are discovered on the necks of the two prisoners, whereupon Omar stops the execution, and decides that the best of everything is none too good for them. It turns out that the "birthmarks" were the handiwork of the artful Fatima, whose pursuit of Omar is ultimately successful. As the jovial and amorous fakir, Omar Khayam, jun., Mr. Daniels cuts capers that cause constant laughter. Miss May Vokes, as the forlorn spinster Fatima, is particularly diverting in the song "Nobody loves me"; and others who handle their parts successfully are Miss Sallie Fisher, Miss Gertie Carlisle, Mr. W. P. Carleton, Mr. Harry Clarke, Mr. William Pruette, and Mr. Nace Bonville. Mr. Victor Herbert composed the music, and the book was written by Messrs. Harry B. Smith and A. N. C. Fowler.

Signor Ermete Novelli, the noted Italian actor, began an engagement at the Lyric Theatre on the 18th ult., under the management of the Shuberts. Originally limited to a fortnight, the engagement has proved such a pronounced success that it has been extended for one week. That Novelli is nothing if not versatile may be judged from the fact that he brought with him the scenery for nearly half a hundred plays, and is said to be sufficiently familiar with as many more to present them after a day's rehearsal. The performances given by the Italian actor and his company have been uniformly well attended, the entire standing-room on several occasions being occupied. Novelli speaks in Italian, and is supported by a company using the same language. It was natural, therefore, that the audiences should be chiefly composed of Italians. During the last two weeks Novelli has appeared in Papa Lebonnard, King Lear, The Merchant of Venice, Louis XI., La Morte Civile, Il Burbero Benefico, Othello, Alleluia, Œdipus Rex, Povera Gente, and The Taming of the Shrew. For his opening Novelli selected Papa Lebonnard, a drama by Jean Alcard, originally written for Coquelin. Papa Lebonnard is an easy-going old watchmaker, who has made a fortune at his craft and who still loves to tinker among clocks, while he mixes with the common folk who have always been his friends. He loves his family no less than his work, but he has small patience with his wife, who aspires to high social life, and schemes to wed her daughter, Jeanne, to Count de Martinac, a disreputable nobleman. The other member of the family is Robert, a haughty youth, who, like his mother, has social aspirations. Jeanne is deeply in love with Dr. Andres, a physician who has brought her through a severe illness, and would marry him even when he tells her that his birth resulted from a social sin. The father does not hold this against the young man, for he is true and sincere, but the mother and son are loud and violent in their refusal to sanction the match. The distress of the girl and her utter hopelessness suddenly turn Lebonnard from a mild-mannered old man into a demon of fury, and he bitterly denounces his wife, telling her that for over twenty years he has known that he was not the father of Robert. He produces proof of her infidelity just as her son enters. Then the father turns upon the young man, and shows him that, so far as birth is concerned, he is in the same class as Andres. The violent fit of passion having spent itself, Lebonnard realises that his outburst has brought nothing but unhappiness, and he appeals to his daughter to heal the family wound. This she eventually succeeds in doing, and the end of the play finds all the members of the family happily reunited. After the play Signor Novelli appeared in evening dress, and gave a monologue in which he imitated several types of theatre-goers.

In Paolo Giacometti's four-act drama, La Morte Civile ("The Civil Death"), Novelli appears as the escaped convict Corrado, who, after serving thirteen years in prison for killing his brother-in-law, has returned to his old home in search of his wife and daughter. The daughter, Emma, has been adopted by Dr. Palmieri, and the wife, Rosalia, is living in the house as Emma's governess. Through the aid of a bishop Corrado discovers the couple, and accuses his wife of living with the doctor as his mistress. The doctor explains how he has taken care of the woman and the girl, and Corrado then agrees to go away with Rosalia, leaving his daughter in ignorance of his relationship to her. The pain of losing the daughter, for whom he has broken out of prison, proves too much for him, and he dies.

In Alleluia, by Marco Praga, Novelli appears as Allesandro Fara, an eminently respectable and highly-beloved member of a provincial Lombardy family, and a man who has endeared himself to the entire community by his generosity, his good-heartedness, and his simple, democratic ways. They call him "Alleluia" because of his seeming joyousness. When the play opens various neighbours and friends are about to celebrate his silver wedding anniversary. Apparently all is happiness, but it develops that Fara has for years been nursing a secret sorrow. His wife has been unfaithful on one occasion, and he has never been able to overcome the sorrow and shame of the discovery. Now, however, she comes to him on her knees begging for forgiveness. Her pleadings move him to pity, and he is about to take her in his arms when an old servant bursts into the room with the news that Fara's daughter has been discovered by her husband in a similar intrigue. There is a powerful scene, in which the mother pleads for her daughter, asserting the girl's innocence, in which she firmly believes. When Eva arrives her father upbraids her, but in face of her positive denial of any wrong-doing is ready to forgive. The second and third acts are largely devoted to Fara's efforts to satisfy himself and his son-in-law of the truth of Eva's assertions of her innocence. The husband, urged on by his brother, who is an emphatic champion of the Continental code of honour, insists that nothing but a duel will satisfy him. The father protects, finally revealing the secret of his own unhappy life. He urges that until there is positive proof there must be no public scandal, as there is the child to be considered. When the curtain rises again Fara enters, worn, dejected, his face pale and drawn with suffering. He has seen letters which have convinced him that his daughter has lied. She comes into the room, trying to create sympathy by the presence of the child. Fara turns on her in passionate frenzy, taunting her with her sin. The shock is too much for him. A few moments later the son-in-law enters. He gathers from Fara's emotion that the worst has happened, and is about to rush from the room to confront his wife. There is a cry from the old man, and with a shudder he sinks to the floor. When he rises one side of his face and body are rigid and the other twitching convulsively. He staggers to the door, trying to call out for his wife and daughter. His voice is thick; Eva's husband leads his child away. Then Fara suffers a second stroke, falls, and dies.

In Franco Liberati's three-act play, Povera Gente (Poor People), Novelli impersonates Zakar Polrovsky, a Russian Government officer, and a weak, spineless specimen of humanity, who has married a second wife, who despises him and Petruka, his son by a first marriage. She carries on an intrigue with Ivan Tromenskoi, a Commissioner of Police, and together they plot to ruin the old man by accusing him of the theft of Government papers. The son, in the meantime, has been one of a band of student revolutionists. Zakar is forced to resign his office, and takes to drink. Then, while in a maudlin state, and being led to talk by the faithless wife, who still maintains her influence over him, he betrays the secret meeting-place of his son and the other revolutionists. The young men are all sent to prison. When Petruka comes out he is in the last stages of consumption. In the final act his last moments are depicted, and the spectacle is anything but exhilarating. The father, who by now has almost entirely lost his wits, is about the least-interested person in the room. While his son is dying he sings snatches of old songs, imitates the whistling of the wind, and chuckles to himself as he carefully wraps his last ten roubles in a handkerchief for safe keeping. Meanwhile a young girl who loves Petruka has attended to his wants. As he gasps convulsively in the last throes of death she makes an outcry. The father rushes to the bedside, throws himself upon the prostrate body, kisses it, and calls upon his boy to answer. And, to complete the spectacle, he goes mad, the curtain descending as he is spinning around in a wild, maudlin dance.

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines" was revived for a few weeks at the Empire Theatre, and Miss Ethel Barrymore, for whom the play was written, and who achieved a signal success in it several years ago, was seen once again as Mme. Trentoni, and gave a delightful portrayal. Discarding the fashionable frills and furbelows of the 'seventies for the homely garb of a charwoman, Miss Barrymore appeared on the 18th inst. as Mrs. Jones in The Silver Box, a play in three acts, by John Galsworthy, and acquitted herself admirably, the versatility she displayed in her acting of a part so radically different from those with which she had been previously identified coming as a most agreeable surprise to her many admirers. Mr. Bruce McRae, as the drunken bully, Jones, gave an earnest and convincing portrayal.

"Ben-Hur" has taken a new lease of poularity at the Academy of Music. Originally produced in 1899, this play has been performed over 2,500 times. It will be the leading amusement offering at the Jamestown Exposition.

Mr. Ben Greet and his company of English players offered an interesting revival of Everyman at the Garden Theatre last week. The last week of the engagemnt is being devoted to a series of Shakspearean revivals.

Mr. Richard Mansfield, after appearing for several weeks at the New Amsterdam Theatre in Ibsen's Peer Gynt, returned to his familiar répertoire for the final week of his New York engagement. He had previously announced that he would be unable to play Peer Gynt much longer as the rôle was too exacting. As soon as he went "on the road" Mr. Mansfield was taken ill, and his engagements are cancelled for the time being.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, April 8, the Drama, entitled
"WOMAN AND WINE."

Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company is appearing this week in this well-known play, which is proving a strong attraction. Miss Cissie St. Elmo acts with considerable power as Marcel Rigadout, and looks very handsome in the part. Miss Violet Sims makes a prepossessing Mary Andrews, and a bright and spirited performance as Janet Marlow comes from Miss Ethel Vinroy. Miss Joan Perreira achieves a signal success as La Colombe, playing with rare abandon and fervour. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds contributes a striking performance as the reckless Dick Seymour, his portraiture being most faithful. Mr. Fred W. Goddard is responsible for an incisive characterisation of Alphonse Beaudet, and a grim and well-defined sketch of Pierre Crucru is contributed by Mr. George P. Lester. Mr. John S. Haydon plays Hugh Seymour appropriately; Mr. George H. Child is capital as Professor Sauter; and Mr. Harry Harrop is highly successful as Charles Sauter. The remaining parts in an exceptionally long cast are all played with ability, and the specialities introduced by the Lottie Stone troupe of whirlwind dancers meet with ready approval. The piece is exceedingly well-mounted and dressed.

COURT THEATRE.

On Monday, April 8, Revival of the Play, in Three Acts, by John Galsworthy, entitled "THE SILVER BOX."

Produced at a matinée performance at the Court Theatre on Sept. 25 last, The Silver Box has been placed in the evening bill, and, judging by the highly favourable reception accorded it on Monday, Mr. John Galsworthy's play bids fair to attract large audiences to the Sloane-square house. In any case, it will be succeeded a fortnight hence by the revival of Mr. St. John Hankin's successful play The Return of the Prodigal. The author of The Silver Box seems to have had the intention of throwing a lurid light upon certain aspects of modern life, and bringing into special prominence the inequalities between the rich and the poor. The play does, indeed, touch closely upon some much-discussed problems of the day; and the story of the Barthwick and the Jones families might well be cited by the Socialist speaker or writer in support of his views. It is, however, the absolute truthfulness of the picture presented that renders the piece so remarkably interesting. In numerous plays the caricatures of the proceedings of a court of law have been rendered laughable by reason of their absurd divergencies from the real thing, but in The Silver Box the police-court scene is absolutely correct even to the minutest details, as everyone familiar with these gloomy buildings used for the administration of the law must admit.

Most of the principal characters are, happily, still embodied by their original representatives. A more convincing portrait of John Barthwick, M.P., than that presented by Mr. James Hearn cannot be imagined; the irritation and perplexity caused by the youthful folly of Jack, his anything but promising son, being very cleverly depicted. Equally excellent is the Jack Barthwick of Mr. A. E. Matthews, who has become quite famous for his telling sketches of unsatisfactory young men of a too familiar type. Jack presents all the worst features of the mother's spoilt boy, submitting with an ill-grace to the frequent "ragging" of his righteously angry father; and every weak point in the young man's character is skilfully brought out by Mr. Matthews. Mr. Norman McKinnel again appears as Jones, the out-of-work groom who has taken to drink and to wife-beating. It would be difficult to name an actor better qualified to play the part of this drunken, violent, ne'er-do-well, whose one redeeming quality is his love for his unfortunate offspring; and Mr. McKinnel's realistic carefully-studied embodiment contributes in no small degree to the success which has attended the revival. Mr. Cecil Rose has replaced Mr. Goodsall in the rôle of Mr. Roper, the solicitor, and plays it well; Mr. Dennis Eadie has succeeded Mr. F. Lloyd as Marlow, Mr. Barthwick's butler, and exactly hits off the quiet, deferential manner of the well-trained servant. Mr. Athol Forde gives a capital sketch of the police-court magistrate; and Mr. Lewis Casson as the magistrate's clerk reads over the evidence in exactly the monotonous tone adopted by that important official. Mr. Edmund Gurney does good work as Levens; and worthy of mention, too, are the Snow of Mr. Trevor Lowe, the Relieving Officer of Mr. Edmund Gurney, and the Usher of Mr. Norman Page. With regard to the ladies, Miss Nora Greenlaw now plays the part of Mrs. Jones, the original representative of which was Miss Irene Rooke; and admirably in every respect does the newcomer portray the honest, hard-working charwoman, whose spirit has been broken by a worthless husband who "raises 'is 'and" to her when he is drunk. Quite life-like is this portrait of a woman of the people. Another actress new to the cast is Miss Mary Hamilton, who replaces Miss Sydney Fairbrother as the Unknown Lady, and makes good use of her one opportunity in the first act, when the "unfortunate" who has lost her purse confronts the horrified, disgusted father and the shambling, shame-faced son. Miss Frances Ivor is well placed as the doting mother, Mrs. Barthwick, whose self-satisfaction and intolerance of the lower classes are excellently expressed. Mrs. Charles Maltby as Mrs. Seddon, the Jones's landlady, and Miss Amy Lamborn as Wheeler, a maid-servant, lend efficient assistance.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 11, the Comedy entitled "THE FREEDOM OF SUZANNE."

Told in a delightfully pleasant manner, Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox's light comedy affords an excellent evening's amusement. Interpreted by the clever members of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, headed by such an accomplished artist as Miss Mabel Love, the comedy was bound to succeed, and at the fall of the curtain after each act on Monday evening the applause was most enthusiastic. Suzanne Trevor, the wayward lady, fits Miss Mabel Love's style exactly, and she plays the part so as to secure an artistic triumph. An excellent embodiment of the husband, Charles Trevor, is given by Mr. Templer Powell; Mr. F. G. Thurstans makes a capital Fitzroy Harding, the rakish old uncle; and Mr. Gerald Alexander is a good Sir Horace Hatton. Lord Dachet is safe in the hands of that experienced actor Mr. J. Hastings Batson; and Mr. Townsend Whitling is a capital Captain Harry Cecil. Tommy Keston is well played by Mr. Richard Neville; and as the King's Proctor's man, Budd, Mr. Montgomery is amusing. Miss Annie Stalman as Lady Charlotte Trevor, the mother-in-law, is characteristically biting, and acts with much spirit; as Fanny Mincing, Miss Florence Harwood has many opportunities of causing genuine laughter; Miss Violet Ley is a handsome and talented Lady Isabel Bury; and Miss Dorothy Lart is successful in the small part of Mrs. Tunstall. The charwoman, Mrs. Putnam, is humorously undertaken by Miss F. Turner. A well-written trifle, by Miss Rosemary Rees, entitled Her Dearest Friend, is also played, in which Miss Violet Ley, Miss Annie Stalman, and Mr. Richard Neville give every satisfaction. The scenery and appointments are exceedingly effective.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, April 8, the Musical Comedy, entitled "THE BELLE OF MAYFAIR."

The engagement of Milton Bode's principal company in The Belle of Mayfair is proving a strong attraction this week at the Marlborough. The successful musical play is produced on a very lavish scale, the scenery and dresses being most charming, while the company includes a number of able artists. Chief honours must be given to Mr. Harry Parker, who appears in the part of Sir John Chaldicott, Bart., M.P. He succeeds admirably in his portrayal, which is full of genuine humour and clever work. There is not one dull moment while he occupies the stage, and he pleases both in his acting and singing. Especially successful is Mr. Parker with his song "In skyland," which calls forth at least half a dozen encores. Mr. Haddon Cave merits warm praise for his natural performance as the Earl of Mount Highgate; Mr. Edward Hugonnet efficiently represents the Hon. Raymond Finchley; and Mr. Gwyn Alwyn does well as the light-hearted Hugh Meredith. Mr. Laurie Lisle cleverly sustains the part of Comte de Perrier; and Mr. George McCloskie makes the most of his opportunities as the Rev. Marmaduke Lawrence. Miss Queenie Finnis is a charming Julia Chaldicott, and her songs "To-morrow" and "Far away from cares and worries" meet with cordial recognition. Miss Veronica Brady, whose dancing is exceedingly neat and clever, is deserving of special mention for her portrayal of Pincott; Mr. Lewis Wigley is very entertaining as Simpson, and scores well with Miss Brady in the second act in their duet and dance; Miss Emily Stevens deserves much praise for her untiring energy in the rôle of Lady Chaldicott; and Miss Leslie St. John is successful as Lady Highgate. Miss Aurelie de Loriere creates a favourable impression by her impersonation of Lady Rosaline Rockesley and the Gibson Girl; her efforts as a vocalist meet with due recognition, and she sings with capital effect "Why do they call me a Gibson Girl?" assisted by the ladies of the chorus. This contribution is decidedly one of the hits of the piece. Miss Agnes Tandy acts daintily as the Princess Carl of Ehrenbreitstein. Miss Tandy possesses a rich voice, which she uses skilfully in several songs, notably "The weeping willow wept," Mr. Fred Brandon is good as Captain Theobald, and the numerous other minor characters are all in excellent hands. Not the least noteworthy part of the production is the strong and well-balanced chorus, and a word of praise is due to the Marlborough orchestra, which is augmented and under the able conductorship of Mr. Thomas M. Tunbridge. In addition to his excellent performance as the Rev. Marmaduke Lawrence, Mr. George McCloskie is to be complimented on his abilities as stage-manager.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, April 8, the Play, entitled "HIS HOUSE IN ORDER."

Mr. Robert Arthur has lost no time in securing Mr. Pinero's latest, and perhaps most brilliant, play for the delectation of the patrons of the Camden Theatre, where it is attracting crowded houses this week. The play is presented by Mr. George Alexander's company, which has been carefully chosen and rehearsed under the direct guidance of the popular actor-manager and the author. Mr. Frank Fenton, in the rôle of Hilary Jesson, presents a finished study of the genial, resolute, and clever diplomat who does so much to help his brother Filmer to put "his house in order." It is an altogether admirable piece of acting and most convincing. In the character of the young wife, Nina, Miss Auriol Lee is seen to the utmost advantage, and she plays with much charm and skill, especially in the more emotional scenes. In the scene in which Nina discovers the incriminating letters her acting is very powerful, and is loudly applauded at the fall of the curtain. Mr. Cyril Harcourt portrays the methodical, but somewhat weak, Filmer Jesson, who is so blind to his wife's good points, in a most creditable manner; Derek Jesson is well played by Miss Moyna Hill; the pompous and austere Sir Daniel Ridgeley is depicted in a most natural manner by that sound actor Mr. George Fitzgerald; while Lady Ridgeley is played in appropriately dignified style by Mrs. Kemmis, who is seen to great advantage in the part. Geraldine Ridgeley is a trying rôle to fill; however, Miss Audrey Campbell is quite successful in her clever embodiment. Pryce Ridgeley is capitally delineated by Mr. George Silver, who, however, has not much opportunity until the last act; Mr. L. Lowndes is good as Major Maurewarde, and Mr. A. E. Benedict amusing as Dr. Dillnott; Miss Lilli Kehr is smart as the French governess; Mr. Reginald Besant fills the part of Harding with excellent results; and Mr. Cyril Cuttley, who also stage-manages, appears with success as Forshaw, the newspaper representative. The play is staged in the most complete and artistic manner, and Mr. A. P. Horne is the general-manager for the company. Mr. Wilfred Stanford looks after Mr. Arthur's interests as acting-manager at the theatre.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, April 8, "LE PETIT DUC."

M. René Debrenne's French opéra-bouffe company is giving a short season at the Coronet Theatre with a varied répertoire of well-known operas, including La Fille de Mme. Angot, Les Mousquetaires au Convent, Les Cloches de Corneville, Le Petit Duc, La Mascotte, and possibly also Véronique, Les Saltimbanques, and Le Jour et la Nuit. Mlles. Henriette Delormes and Degoyon are well known to Parisian habitués of the Gaîté, and other well-known performers are Mlle. Hilbert (of the Lyrique), M. Corin (who created the rôle of Bariton in London), Mlle. de Kiercourt, Mlle. Nast, Mlle. Lenac, MM. Duncan, Ranté, Dumontier, Merlin, and Dorbach. The story of Le Petit Duc is concerned with the youthful love and marriage of the Duc de Parthenay and his juvenile Duchess; their nuptials are celebrated so early in life that the Duchess de Parthenay has to go back to a convent school, whither the lovelorn Dukelet follows her in disguise, and then she returns the compliment by joining him on the camping ground, whither he has gone as colonel of his regiment. There are some very pretty songs in the piece, but as no book is published it is somewhat difficult to recall the titles. Mlle. Henriette Delorme is a delightful little Duke, her vivacity and charm, as well as her grace and refinement, being apparent at every turn, and she is a sweet-voiced and expressive vocalist, and artistic all the time. Mlle. de Kiercourt is a sweet and gentle and lovable little schoolgirl Duchess, and sings most agreeably; M. Corin is a very distinguished and melodious Montlandry; M. Ranté is exceedingly droll as the scholarly Frimousse, and displays a lively wit in his interpretation of the part; and Mlle. Degoyon is capital as the lively and complacent Diane de Château Lansac. The dresses strike an English audience as somewhat quaint, but they are doubtless in keeping with the parts portrayed. M. Bonafous is chef d'orchestre, and Mr. Leachman assists in the front of the house.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 8, the Play, entitled "THE MORALS OF MARCUS."

The first visit of that charming play, The Morals of Marcus, to the London suburbs attracted a large and interested audience to the Kennington Theatre on Monday, and it is safe to say that no one went away disappointed. The play is one of the prettiest on the road at present, and the absorbing love-story of Sir Marcus Ordeyne, with its blend of comedy and tragedy and its eventual realisation, lost none of its freshness at the hands of Mr. Arthur Bourchier's strong company. The production is under the direction of Mr. M. V. Leveaux, and he is to be congratulated on the satisfactory result attained. The staging and dress effects are necessarily circumscribed, but the cottage and garden at Surbiton in the first act make rather a nice set. As Sir Marcus Ordeyne, the philosophic bachelor baronet of the first act, devoted to his books and forsworn of women, who gradually falls in love with Carlotta, Mr. H. Nye Chart was admirable. He made the most of the many fine situations in which the play abounds, and won for himself a veritable triumph. He was splendidly supported by that gifted actress, Miss Hilda Antony, who made a lovable Carlotta. Whether as the stray Syrian girl, forlorn and forsaken, as the wayward and mischievous young lady being slowly civilised, as the frightened woman in flight, or the returned penitent, Miss Antony was equally successful, and her acting was deserving of the warmest praise. In the part of Sebastian Pasquale, the cynical villain, Mr. David Domville did exceedingly well and displayed histrionic ability of no mean order. Mrs. H. Nye Chart gave a careful and sympathetic study of the somewhat difficult character of Judith Mainwaring, being seen to especial effect in the third act, when she makes a despairing effort to secure Sir Marcus for herself. An amusing as well as clever interpretation of the part of Antoinette, the garrulous cook, was given by Miss Eleanor Gilbart; Mr. A. H. Leveaux did not have much opportunity to shine as Hamdi Effendi, but he acted the grim old Turk very well; Miss Gladys Purnell was an ideal Dora Ordeyne, the modern cigarette-smoking girl, whose determined quest of Pasquale was eventually rewarded; while as Mrs. Ordeyne, Miss Mary Weigall looked a typical British matron whose sense of propriety had been outraged. Mr. Cecil Brooking was excellent as Stenson, the butler; and the Bobby Tremlett of Mr. W. Swinburne deserves mention. Miss Conyers Radcliffe as Mrs. McMurray, Miss Mary O'Neill as Lady Elmira Wynne, Miss Evelyn Summers as Miss Lestrange, and Miss Hilda Saxe as the Maid supported their respective rôles in a creditable manner.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, April 8, the Burlesque, entitled "BLUEBEARD THE BOLD."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's production for this week smacks more of the festive pantomime than of burlesque; but that is a slight matter, when the public gets an evening of rollicking fun, as many as five comedians, and a plethora of beauty and talent in the performers of the other sex. Miss Isa Bowman sang, danced, and acted with great go and success, wearing many and varied costumes of the "principal boy" order, and had an arch and pretty sweetheart in Miss Dorothy Dempster, who, as Fatima rendered several favourite songs, including "Ma Starlight Queen" in the second part of the play, with much applause. Miss Cissie Thompson showed much promise as Cashim, and there was plenty of ability and merit in the numerous ladies who acted the minor parts of ladies of Bluebeard's Court, attendants, &c. Mr. Charles Lake as Bluebeard was full of unctuous humour, but was too little seen. Mr. Gus Danby (an old favourite here) as Bamboozlum, the father of Fatima, was funny, and much laughter was caused by him in conjunction with Mr. Alec Godfrey as Pimple, Mr. MacStuart as Shakabak, and Mr. Johnny Clegg as Sister Anne. These three last-named comedians all had their opportunities during the course of the evening, and did not fail to take the fullest advantage of them. The company included several speciality artists; Mr. Morrice Holmes, a whistler of the Lawton school, with a good song; and Stuart and Stuart, whose eccentric songs and clever dances of the rag-time order secured encores repeatedly. As Nolah, Miss Maud Brock produced a good impression, both by her appearance and singing. There were several heavy sets in the way of scenery and the dresses, choruses, and general production left nothing to be improved upon.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, April 8, the Play, entitled "THE ANGEL OF UNREST."

This week we have a visit from the new Napoleonic drama, entitled The Angel of Unrest. The play is interesting and unconventional in treatment, and an excellent interpretation of it is given by Messrs. Alec Flood and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice's company. The central figure is Papa Bompasse, one of the Old Guard of Napoleon, a brave and kind-hearted old soldier, honest as the day, and somewhat given to boasting. The part is splendidly played by Mr. Henry Belding; very pathetic is his final scene, where the war-scarred veteran goes forth to answer the final roll-call. Mr. Alec Flood submits a fine character-sketch of the little Corporal, and the mannerisms which tradition has attributed to the Corsican tyrant are faithfully reproduced. Mr. Creagh Henry as the brave, high-souled Paul Brandt soon enlists the sympathies of the audience by the sincerity of his acting; and the reckless and unscrupulous Captain Lemesnil is played with much cleverness by Mr. Alexander Bradley. Miss Florence Tressillian puts pathos and passion into her rendering of the unfortunate young wife, Julie Lepine, and Miss Nita Imeson is a pert French maid as Lisette. Hugle, an old Russian, is made a strikingly effective character-study in the hands of Mr. James Chippendale. Mr. Richard A. Greene is a dignified and soldierly Colonel Bennaise. Miss Patti March does all that is possible with the small part of Mme. Renandot; General Renandot is well acted by Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice. Messrs. George Chase, P. L. Danks, Laurence Vining, Dudley Walton, and Fred Stone are all successful in minor rôles. Some very pretty scenery has been specially painted for the production, and the effect of the burning of Moscow in the third act is excellently contrived. Mr. F. Martin Morris is the general-manager for the company.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, April 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Jacob Gordin, entitled "THE TRUTH."

The attraction on Monday at the Pavilion was a performance by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company of Jacob Gordin's masterpiece The Truth, in which the writer answers the argument he raised in his earlier play, Menasha, by proving in The Truth that assimilation in the married state is practicaly impossible. Although the piece is of a domestic character, it contains great literary merit, and depends entirely upon the acting for its success, the author disregarding meretricious aids to produce effect. A large audience followed the drama with rapt attention, and testified approval with no uncertain voice. A portrayal in every respect scholarly and dignified was given by Mr. Sigmund Feinman, who depicted with power the anxieties of the husband William, every detail being carefully studied and the conception well thought out. Mme. F. Epshtein must be highly congratulated upon her brilliant achievements as Rosah, her impersonation of the wife being not only full of charm, but interesting and forcible withal. Mme. Epshtein has put in some good work during her engagement, but on Monday her performance was distinctly an artistic triumph. High commendation must be awarded to Mr. Isaacowitch for his decisive rendering of Mr. Stenten, which was perfect in every way, while his "make-up" was excellent. Mr. J. Sherman was equal to the demands made upon him in the part of Kalmen, which he enacted with all his usual cleverness; while that talented actress, Mme. J. Kayzer, presented a capital exposition of Wiala. A manly interpretation of Mike was given by Mr. M. Gusofsky; and an admirable interpreter of Abraham Gershuni was seen in Mr. J. Goldsmith. Mme. Josephson was delightful as Grase; and Mr. N. Hamburger was seen to advantage as an old Judge. Mme. Goldstein was natural and effective as Sheine Tubeh; and Mme. Bloom as Mrs. Stenten and Miss Lubritski as Benjamin were quite satisfactory. During the week Jews in Roumania, Othello, Alfonso the Noble, and Jews in Morocco have been played.

THE BROADWAY.

On Monday, April 8, the Musical Play, entitled "THE BLUE MOON."

Mr. Robert Courtneidge has exercised great discrimination in the selection of artists to interpret this successful musical play from the Lyric Theatre, each member of the company being peculiarly well suited to the character he or she represents, the result being an admirable performance. The chorus is well trained and attractive, and the orchestra ably directed by Mr. Ernest Hurman. Mr. Edward Lewis scores a great success as Moolraj the idol maker, juggler, and marriage broker; and the part is exactly suited to his quaintly humorous style. Mr. Leslie Gaze is well placed as Major Vivian Callabone. Mr. J. Edward Fraser as Captain Jack Ormsby looks and acts the handsome, dashing officer to the life. His song, "Letters from dear old England" is splendidly rendered. Mr. George Mudie, jun., is very good as Bobbie Scott, the journalist; and the trio, entitled "The major and the minor," is capitally given by these gentlemen, and is one of the hits of the evening. Mr. Reginald Switz as Private Charlie Taylor is excellent; and Mr. Thomas Holding (the Prince Radahur), Mr. Hugh Glendon (Abdul), Mr. George Parti (Hafez), Mr. Frank Haylett (Hon. Archie May), Mr. Edward Noble (Clive Mansfield), Mr. A. C. McDearsmid (Farzer Jenkins), and Mr. Charles Francis (Hanniker Makins), are all capital exponents of their respective parts. Miss Clarice Lockstone gives a charming impersonation of Chandra Nil, and her singing of "The little blue moon" is delightful. Miss Ethel Callanan is an attractive Evelyn Ormsby, and the duet, "Sometimes with Bobbie," is warmly applauded. Miss Florence Imeson is a bright and pleasing Millicent Leroy, and sings "The dear little girl with the bandbox" in clever and vivacious style. Miss Mabel Lorrell scores as Lady Brabasham, as also do Miss Maude Schwitz as Oma, and Miss Christine Ferris as Ramah. Other parts are well filled by Mesdames Hilda Lochner, Florence Foster, Margaret Radcliffe, Edith Foster, Lucy Daves, Lilian Stead, Margaret Evans, and Cissy Murphy. The play is lavishly dressed and mounted.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, April 8, the Comedy Drama, entitled "HEARTS ADRIFT."

At the Shakespeare Theatre this week Mr. Frank Bertram's company is holding the boards with the stirring American comedy-drama Hearts Adrift. An excellent company has been engaged, and the representation is illustrated by fine scenery, the tableau "On the Airship" being a very realistic set. The acting all round is worthy of the warmest praise. Mr. Harry Bedford brings out the main characteristics of the repentant Captain Teddy with convincing force, faithfully portraying the varying emotions of the part. Another good performance is that of Mr. Cecil Klein, an actor of marked ability, in the rôle of Robert Darney. Mr. Fred Terris's impersonation of the scheming company promoter is eminently satisfactory; and the same may be said of Mr. Alfred Holles as Pidgeon and Mr. R. Gwyn Richardson as John Lane. Mr. William Gomer does all that is necessary as the detective, Sam Redway; and Mr. Brian Daly contributes some welcome touches of humour as Simeon Green. Of the ladies Miss Nellie Clyde gives a natural representation of Rosie, a flower girl, winning the sympathy of the audience; Miss Gertrude Harrison makes an attractive appearance as Julia Lane; and Miss Beatrice A. Bell submits a capital character-sketch of Energy Muggs. Miss Kitty Kirwan as Peggy MacGuire keeps the audience well amused; and Miss Irene Moss is to be congratulated upon a sterling performance of Little Tim, a crippled newsboy. The play is produced under the direction of Mr. John East, and Mr. Eugene Bertram is general-manager and Mr. Ernest Bingham business-manager for Mr. Frank Bertram.

THE BRIXTON.

On Monday, April 8, the Drama, entitled "SHERLOCK HOLMES."

A great celebrity has this week appeared at the Brixton Theatre in the person of Sherlock Holmes, whose remarkable adventures have been followed with eagerness and rapturously applauded by houses filled from floor to roof. On the night of our visit the theatre presented an aspect of fulness that reminded one of its best days, and Mr. R. W. Allum is to be congratulated on the revival of prosperity which has evidently set in. The version of the famous book is that prepared by the author, Sir A. Conan Doyle, in conjunction with Mr. William Gillette, who played the title-rôle on the production of the play at the Lyceum in the autumn of 1901, and the company is that of Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart, who travels the piece by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman. Mr. Stewart plays the indomitable detective with admirable ease, sangfroid, and skill, humour being frequent, and a touch of pathos also being supplied. His handsome presence and well-modulated voice fit him excellently for the part, and his command over the audience lasts from beginning to end, curtain calls innumerable testifying to the estimation in which he is held. A fine embodiment of Moriarity is also submitted by Mr. James Skea, who has got quite into the skin of the rôle of the cunning, unscrupulous master-criminal, and plays it with rare finish. The make-up is excellent, the pallid features, the sunken eyes, and general air of degradation being capitally assumed, while a resonant voice and deliberate method add to its effectiveness. The famous scene in the second act was played to perfection, and won loud cheers. The gentleness and grace of Miss Gladys Harvey recommend Alice Faulkner at once to the sympathies of the audience. The young actress puts much animation into her portrayal of the part, and delivers her lines with feeling. Mr. Allan Jeayes is a satisfactory Dr. Watson, acting the genial medico with care and intelligence. James Larrabee is cast in a villainous mould by Mr. Henry Hare, whose effective voice and mordant methods are successful in giving added significance to the part, and as his lady partner, Madge Larrabee, Miss Georgina Wynter triumphantly surmounts the difficulties of an exacting and ungrateful rôle. A capital rendering of John Forman is given by Mr. Fred Bell, whose penetrating tones are of excellent service in the assumption; Mr. Edward Mervyn is the cause of much merriment as the "leery" Sydney Prince; and a bright and buoyant Billy is found in Master Leslie Hall, who is at times too rapid in utterance, but is throughout a favourite. Cragin, Leary, and "Lightfoot" McTague are embodied with due sinister characteristics by Messrs. Gordon K. Bull, Hubert Pinder, and Harold Broughton; and Sir Edward Leighton and Count von Stahlburg have suitable exponents in Mr. Henry Littlejohn and Mr. Frank H. Moar. A pleasingly Parisian Thérèse is found in Miss Rosalie Notrelle, who acts vivaciously and never loses hold of the accent; Mrs. Faulkner is creditably portrayed by Miss Dot Seilby; Miss Smeedly is sustained by Miss Grace Howard; and Mr. Wilson Roberts as Alfred Bassick, Mr. William Wilson as John, and Mr. Frank Spray as Parsons complete the well-selected cast.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

Dr. Walford Bodie and his company are taking the place of melodrama at the Stratford Theatre Royal this week, and the enterprise recently shown in the management of this popular house is likely to be well rewarded, judging by the auspicious start made on Monday night, when a large and enthusiastic audience was present. And when it is taken into consideration that it is only a few months since Dr. Bodie was last in Stratford, it is a strong tribute to his personal popularity. The doctor prefaced his performance by some pertinent remarks on the powers and wonders of electricity as a healer when all other means have failed, and the audience was considerably impressed by the elaborate display of electrical appliances which are brought into requisition, while quite a feeling of awe pervaded the auditorium at the sight of the cruel leg irons, now happily of no use to their owners, but retained by Dr. Bodie as "trophies." If there were no demonstration of the doctor's prowess as a healer, the turn could rank among the foremost on the variety stage for its entertaining and mirth-provoking side. For nothing funnier could be imagined than the antics of the "victims" who bravely go on the stage and attempt to undergo an electric charge or to sit on an electrified chair. Those in front are also not left out, for an electric cord is passed round the stalls, and the involuntary yells of those courageous enough to grasp the attached handles arouse screams of laughter. After several grateful patients of Dr. Bodie's had come forward and briefly testified to the good they had derived, two cases were treated, both being children discharged from London hospitals as incurable. And it was a gladsome sight, indeed, to see these youngsters, who were carried on to the stage, able to toddle off unaided.

The entertainment which precedes is contributed to by Bella Skene, burlesque actress and vocalist; Little Dolly Robson; Belford and Mars, singers and dancers; Clarice Mignon, banjoist; T. Dariah, comedian; Tom N. Mills, actor-vocalist (who also ably combines the duties of acting-manager); the Musical Acmes; and Russell and Reid's combination, in the farcical comedy Bink's Blunders.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, April 8, for the first time in London, the Play, in Four Acts, by S. Buchanan Rogerson, founded on Guy Thorne's novel, entitled "WHEN IT WAS DARK."

The Rev. Basil Gortre ..Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee
Constantine Schwabe .....Mr. George H. Pitt
Sir Robert Llewellyn ....Mr. B. Henry Stanley
The Rev. Mr. Byars .....Mr. Henry Heller
Honourable Charles Gayfly Mr. Millar Wilson
Nunc Wallace .....Mr. George Mortimer
Harold Spence .....Mr. W. B. Sommerville
Luifer .....Mr. Francis Cairns
Mr. Ommaney .....Mr. Arthur Clifton
Ionides .....Mr. D. M. Stormfort
Ali-al-Murad .....Mr. F. Davis
Ibram .....Mr. A. Watts
Hassan .....Mr. W. Shaw
Alphonse .....Mr. Allen Johnson
Helena Byars .....Mrs. Morton Powell
Grace Goldeye .....Miss Bessie Ellis
Flossie Lovegay .....Miss E. Ross
Minnie Golightly .....Miss G. May
Gertrude Hunt .....Miss Elizabeth Watson

There are in existence two dramatic versions of Mr. Guy Thorne's sensational novel "When It Was Dark," one being an adaptation by the Rev. Forbes Phillips, and the other by Mr. S. Buchanan Rogerson, with fresh dialogue and a scene written by Mr. Thorne, and now first produced in the metropolis at the West London Theatre. This last-mentioned version was originally staged at Cradley Heath, and a little later was produced at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, under the title of Darkness. The plot reveals how Constantine Schwabe, a millionaire, resolves to destroy the foundations of the Christian faith, and with this sinister object in view seeks the co-operation of Sir Robert Llewellyn, a dissipated baronet, who is deeply in the other man's debt. Evidence is produced to the world that the real tomb of the Saviour has been discovered at Jerusalem, and an inscription in Greek proves that the story of the Resurrection was a myth. Gertrude Hunt, who has been the mistress of Sir Robert, becomes a changed woman, after listening to a powerful sermon preached at the Bloomsbury Church by the Rev. Basil Gortre, the earnest young curate who is engaged to be married to Helena Byars, the daughter of the Vicar of Walkton. She resolves to thwart the evil designs of Schwabe and his tool Llewellyn, whom she has left. One night this "modern Magdalen" makes her appearance at Llewellyn's rooms. He is overjoyed at her unexpected return, and celebrates the occasion by imbibing freely of brandy. The woman presses him to disclose the terrible secret of which he is in possession. He at first refuses; she threatens to leave him again, as he has no trust in her, and he then confesses to her the details of the plot to overthrow Christianity, for which he and Schwabe are jointly responsible. She then makes her escape from the now drunken man.

The first scene of the last act is the Mosque at Nabjal. Hither has come the Rev. Basil Gortre to make investigations; and to the Governor of Nabjal he appeals for assistance. Ionides, a Greek, who has been employed by the conspirators, is brought in guarded, and under the lash he confesses to the part he has taken in the fraud. Then the scene changes to the room occupied by Llewellyn, who has by this time become a terror-stricken man, dreading the results of the discovery of the fraud which has been practised. He receives a visit from Schwabe, who learns from him that he has disclosed their secret to Gertrude Hunt, and that they are no longer safe from discovery. Schwabe places a phial containing poison on the table, and leaves the wretched man to die alone. For he has been stricken with partial paralysis, and is in a pitiable state. Dragging himself into a chair, he is about to put an end to his miserable existence by taking a dose of the poison when his hand is stayed by Gertrude, who has entered the room unseen by him. At her earnest entreaty, he signs a paper confessing to the conspiracy of which he and Schwabe have been guilty; and a few moments afterwards expires. In the last scene Schwabe makes an attempt to hypnotise Gertrude so that she shall support the false accusations he brings against Gortre. However, he fails, and is himself denounced as the conspirator who has done so much evil, the confession of Llewellyn being produced as irrefutable evidence against him.

Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee gives a very good embodiment of the zealous and plucky young curate, Basil Gortre, and makes excellent use of his opportunities. Mr. George H. Pitt as the satanic millionaire Constantine Schwabe has the advantage of a commanding personality, and plays the part with force and conviction. Mr. B. Henry Stanley submits a decidedly powerful impersonation of Sir Robert Llewellyn, and thrills the audience by the intense realism of his acting in the scene where the unhappy man is stricken with paralysis, and dies a horrible death in the presence of his former mistress. Miss Elizabeth Watson gives a telling performance in the rôle of Gertrude Hunt, and is loudly applauded for her highly-effective acting. Mrs. Morton Powell is excellent as Helena Byars, whose father, the vicar, is admirably portrayed by Mr. Henry Heller. Mr. W. B. Sommerville does well as the young journalist, Harold Spence, and Mr. Arthur Clifton plays carefully the rôle of Mr. Ommaney, editor of the Daily Mercury. Mr. D. M. Stormfort is a praiseworthy representative of Ionides, the Greek, and Mr. T. Davis is a sufficiently stern and dignified Governor of Nabjal. Neat sketches are submitted by Mr. Millar Wilson as the Hon. Charles Gayfly, and by Mr. George Mortimer as Nunc Wallace, a man about town. Miss Bessie Ellis is well suited as Grace Goldeye, and other minor parts are ably embodied by Misses E. Ross and G. May, and Messrs. Francis Cairns, A. Watts, W. Shaw, and Allen Johnson. The drama, which has had a favourable reception from West London audiences, has the advantage of being staged in a thoroughly effective manner, some of the scenic effects being exceptionally well-managed.

THE PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, April 8, the Comedy, by Ernest Denny, entitled "ALL-OF-A-SUDDEN PEGGY."

This week Messrs. Lionel Glenister and Wood-Ingram's accomplished company is presenting All-of-a-Sudden Peggy at this popular house, and is being accorded a hearty reception. Great interest is centred in Miss Decima Moore, who impersonates the title-rôle with irresistible charm, investing her performance with many dainty touches of light comedy that keep the audience delightfully amused. The cultivated style of Mr. Lionel Glenister is seen to advantage in his presentment of the Hon. Jimmy Keppel; and Mr. Frank G. Bayly is an admirable representative of Anthony, Lord Crackenthorpe, Mr. Patrick Fitzgerald making the most of his opportunities as Lucas. Mr. Henderson Bland deserves special praise for his portrayal of Major Archie Phipps; and Jack Menzies is capitaly handled by Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson; the small part of Parker being well filled by Mr. Harry Phillips. Miss Kate Wingfield is successful as the imposing Lady Crackenthorpe; and Miss Naomi Neilson displays ability as Mrs. O'Mara. The Hon. Millicent Keppel has a satisfactory exponent in Miss Eva Lonsdale; and Miss Estelle Despa is well suited as the Hon. Mrs. Colquhoun. The play is beautifully mounted and dressed, and was closely followed by an appreciative audience, who recognised all the points, the "business" in the second act being greatly to their liking. The comedy is preceded by a dramatic episode entitled The Lady who Dwelt in the Dark.

"VOTES FOR WOMEN!"

A Dramatic Tract, in Three Acts, by Elizabeth Robins, produced at the Court Theatre, on Tuesday afternoon, April 9.

Lord John Wynnstay.....MR. ATHOL FORDE
Geoffrey Stoner .....MR. AUBREY SMITH
St. John Greatorex..... MR. E. HOLMAN CLARK
Richard Farnborough....MR. P. CLAYTON GREENE
Freddy Tunbridge .....MR. PERCY MARMONT
Mr. Allen Trent .....MR. LEWIS CASSON
Mr. Walker .....MR. EDMUND GWENN
Lady John Wynnstay.....MISS MAUD MILTON
Mrs. Heriot .....MISS FRANCES IVOR
Miss Beatrice Dunbarton..MISS JEAN MACKINLAY
Mrs. Freddy Tunbridge..MISS GERTRUDE BURNETT
Miss Ernestine Blunt .....MISS DOROTHY MINTO
A Working Woman .....MISS AGNES THOMAS
Miss Vida Levering ....MISS WYNNE MATTHISON

We must not allow social or political feeling to influence us in our judgment on Miss Elizabeth Robins's piece and its production by the management of the Court Theatre. Votes for Women! is a really remarkable stage production. It is almost the only play, since It's Never Too Late to Mend, which has an avowedly didactic purpose. And, just as Charles Reade's detestation of the old prison system nerved him to dramatic vigour, so Miss Robins's sympathy with her sex has inspired her with an intensity of sincerity, a passion of earnestness which are irresistible. And this zeal for thoroughness has communicated itself to the management, and has resulted in some of the most striking stage-management that we have ever seen on the boards of a theatre. Not the Saxe-Meningen crowds, not the coster mob in The Lights of London at the old Princess's were so perfectly and absolutely illusive as the people who stand round the base of the Nelson column in the second act of Miss Robins's "tract."

This second part is a "slice out of life," and is sandwiched between an act of preparation and one of conclusion. The first takes place in the house of Lady John Wynnstay, a political hostess, who, with a Mrs. Heriot, represents indifferentism as to the suffrage as far as feminine opinion is concerned. Mrs. Freddy Tunbridge is the type of the woman's vote advocate who believes in getting reform by "winning the men"; and Miss Vida Levering is a handsome and well-to-do young woman who has "been through the mill," and has been turned, by her bitter experiences, into an ardent supporter of the movement. Thrown by accident on the world, suddenly reduced to get her living, and with only the workhouse at last in view, she was seduced, ten years before the play began, by a gentleman named Geoffrey Stoner, and became enceinte. This secret is known only to him and Mrs. Heriot. Miss Beatrice Dunbarton Stoner's fiancée, has taken a great fancy to Vida, who, now prosperous, holds a notable place in Society; and Mrs. Heriot, to put Beatrice on her guard, tells her the story of Vida's "fall." Looking at the matter by the light of her experience, Beatrice determines that Geoffrey must make amends to Vida by marrying her. He sees the absurdity of the suggestion, which, like a similar one made to Magda, would simply make matters worse; but he agrees to make the proposal to Vida. She is equally undesirous that he shall marry her; but, after bringing him to acknowledge that he owes her a debt, she makes him promise to pay it by giving his fullest support—he is now an influential politician—to the female suffrage movement.

This is merely the bare outline which Miss Robins has filled in with arguments, facts, and delicate and tender touches which is is impossible to take out of their setting without spoiling them. If Votes for Women! does not have the effect of altering opinions as to the question of female suffrage, it will, at any rate, show the women's side of the question in a fresh light to most playgoers, who are not, as a rule, "strong" in philanthropic facts and figures.

The clou of the piece, however, is the scene in Trafalgar Square. The base of the Nelson column is shown, with a little band of "suffragettes" upon it; and around, with their backs to the audience, is a typical London crowd, each item of which is differentiated with great care and skill—indeed, they have, really, separate and individual "parts." A most realistic Working Woman addresses the crowd. Next come a young and pretty girl-speaker, who is followed by a popular orator of the rough-and-ready sort. Then Vida Levering, nervous, hesitating, but resolved, braves the jeers of the mob, and, eventually, by the thrilling intensity of her belief, reduces them to attention and silence. The realistic way in which every detail of the scene is done is extraordinary. The coarse humours of the crowd; its insensate and impertinent interruptions, and the clever and painstaking characterisation of the whole, are from a technical point of view, worthy of the warmest praise

Miss Wynne Matthison scores a complete triumph as Vida Levering. Looking strikingly handsome, sensitive to every turn and phase of the part, full of deep feeling which was all the more effective for being semi-suppressed, Miss Matthison won the sympathy of the whole house, and "even the ranks of Tuscany"—represented in this case by those taking a contemptuous view of the "suffragettes"—could "scarce forbear to cheer" an embodiment so earnest, so refined, and so delicately artistic. Mr. Aubrey Smith played Geoffrey Stoner with his accustomed ease and firmness, and treated the very critical and trying scenes in the last act with admirable discretion and judgment. It was impossible to do much with a rôle which was comparatively subordinate to the female interest; but all that could be done Mr. Smith did, and did remarkably well Miss Robins has taken care to give the women all the best parts in the piece; and one of the more fortunate artists in the cast was Miss Agnes Thomas, who, made-up and costumed as the "very image" of an over-worked British matron, spoke the Working Woman's very "straight talk" with the men capitally, making every point tell. Another lucky artist was Miss Dorothy Minto, who put plenty of spirit into her little oration, and hit off the good-humoured tolerance of the young enthusiast exactly. Lord and Lady John Wynnstay were easily and commendably represented by such artists as Mr. Athol Forde and Miss Maud Milton; Mr. E. Holman Clark, slightly more fortunate, being all that could be desired as the practical politician, St. ohn Greatorex. Mr. P. Clayton Greene as Richard Farnborough was quite equal to the occasion; and Mr. Percy Marmont was efficient as Freddy Tunbridge; Mr. Lewis Casson being satisfactory as Mr. Allen Trent and Mr. Edmund Gwenn deserving very warm praise in the little part of Mr. Walker. It was a marvellously real and humorous impersonation. Miss Francis Ivor did good and careful work as Mrs. Heriot; and Miss Jean MacKinlay was a delightfully sweet, simple, and impulsive Beatrice Dunbarton, Miss Gertrude Burnett contributing a clever sketch of the mincing and "precious" Mrs. Freddy Tunbridge. The "dramatic tract" held the house from start to finish; and, at the conclusion, there was a demonstration which was, in great part, a tribute to the merits of the performance, apart from any opinion on the theme.

CHAT WITH MR. ERIC MAYNE.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

"I think," says Mr. Eric Mayne, who is at present playing the part of Prince Ulric in Her Love Against the World at the Lyceum Theatre, "that there is a desire on the part of the public to return to the theatre. Undoubtedly for a time the music hall caught the public taste, and—especially in the smaller provincial towns, where the theatre-going section is a comparatively small one—there was a serious decline of support for the drama. But there is a large number of people who are not satisfied with the brief brilliancy of a music hall turn, and to such people a strong story, clearly told, picturesquely mounted, and well acted, appeals.

"There has been a great development in public taste even recently. People now are quick to appreciate a real dramatic situation, as opposed to one merely created for dramatic effect, and there is a demand for better plays—clean, healthy, well-written plays, but not dull. Unfortunately many very clever and beautiful plays are dull, and therefore financially unsuccessful.

"The theatre-goer, as a rule—at any rate, the English theatre-goer—is out for amusement. The theatre ought to be, and undoubtedly is, a power for good; but it must be the general tendency of its work that makes for the uplifting of the ideals of life, and not specific moral lessons preached at the audience. The evening at the theatre should be one of healthy excitement and amusement—an antidote to the stress and monotony of life. Speaking generally, people do not want to see the unpleasant aspects of life unfolded and discussed by morbid-minded or misanthropic characters.

"But, after all, a part which is characterised by strength of purpose is most interesting to represent. I like, for instance, the part of Prince Ulric. He is a strong and uncompromising character. Villains seem to come my way oftener than heroes, and, as I have seen it advanced—as an argument against the theatre—that the constant representation of wickedly-disposed individuals must have a detrimental effect on the character of the performer, I try now and then to play a hero—just to ensure the saving grace of virtue. I think most actors like to have the audience in sympathy with them."

Mr. Mayne's first experience of serious theatrical work was in the fit-up towns, where, for about two years, he played in almost every class of play, from Shakespeare to burlesque. After that he toured for some time with the Adelphi dramas, and also had a long and pleasant engagement with Mr. Fred Gould, the well-known actor-manager, from whom among others, he had a message of good wish on his opening night at the Lyceum.

He was for a considerable time associated with the Drury Lane dramas. In A Life of Pleasure he played Lord Avondale for several tours, and was also responsible for the general-management of the tours. In The Derby Winner he played Lord Desborough for two tours; in Hearts are Trumps the part of Lord Barford; and in The White Heather, that of Lord Angus Cameron. He was engaged by Mr. Arthur Collins for the production three years ago at the Lane of The Flood Tide, but Mr. Collins was good enough to release him, in order to allow him to accept an offer from Mrs. Lewis Waller, with whom he did leading business for five tours, appearing as Bernard Dupresne in Zaza and Alexis in Vilma, and Captain Alderson in Miss Jack.

This is not the first time he has appeared in one of Mr. Walter Howard's plays. A few years ago he was engaged by Mr. Howard to manage a tour and play the heavy part in Under the Russian Flag; he also played Captain Demetrius in a suburban tour of the same play.

"Mr. Howard has been known as a successful playwright in the provinces for some years," remarks Mr. Mayne, "and the success of Her Love Against the World seems to suggest that what the provinces has been appreciating for some time, London is prepared to appreciate to-day.

"I don't think the public have ever lost interest in really good drama, provided you give them the play they like, done as they like it. Messrs. Ernest Carpenter and H. R. Smith have found the right play, and they have put it on in a way that appeals to popular taste."

In the autumn of last year Mr. Mayne went to Glasgow, where he played the part of Pisanio in the revival of Cymbeline at the Grand Theatre. After that he was with Mr. William Mollison, playing the Rev. John Carmichael in Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, on a tour through Scotland. He has also played the part of General Ivanoff, under the management of Mr. August Van Biene, in The Broken Melody; and Julian Devane, in The Lost Memory, toured by Messrs. Hart, Courtneidge, and Graham.

MRS. SIDDONS' GRAVE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The other day I happened to be passing Paddington Churchyard, in company with Mr. Arthur Hervey, the distinguished composer and critic, when I suggested to the latter that we should pay a visit to the tomb of the great tragic actress Sarah Siddons, who lies buried in this old, now disused, God's acre, and whose grave I was the means of restoring many years ago. My friend consented to accompany me to this memorable resting-place all the more readily as he had never before seen it. But imagine our surprise and disappointment to find the grave of Mrs. Siddons in a most dirty and neglected condition—so dirty, in fact, that not even a single word of the once perfectly legible inscription could be deciphered! I must, therefore, call the attention of the public to this disgraceful state of affairs, and express the earnest hope that the tomb of the illustrious Sarah Siddons may once more be thoroughly and completely restored.—Yours faithfully,

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The author of the new play is understood to be a Glasgow man, long resident in Milwaukee, and a diligent student of the manners and customs, ideas and modes of speech of the "noble red man." This insures that the local colour will be above suspicion, and a Glasgow audience accorded a kindly welcome to the new piece.

The story opens with a council called by the Chief of the Ockotchees, Lonawonda, who feels that age and infirmity make it necessary to appoint a successor as chief of the tribe. This he desires to do by inducing his daughter Adulola to marry one of his braves, the one so favoured to be chief. But the daughter, the Lily of Namabin as she is called on account of her fair complexion, will have none of the warriors, her affections being towards Niatawa, who is looked down upon by all the members of the tribe on account of the fact that he is no warrior, preferring the quieter life of a hunter. The father of Niatawa, Matawagnon, pleads his son's cause with the old chief, and when this is scornfully rejected, he casts suspicion on the parentage of Adulola, which so enrages the chief that he kills Matawagnon. The son thereupon vows vengeance on the slayer, whose identity is not known, and a faithless wife, Lashota, who is enamoured of Niatawa, artfully suggests that her husband, Sheanagua, is the murderer. Later, Niatawa discovers that the old chief is the guilty person, and realises how hopeless his love quest is. "My only love flows from the fountain of my hate," says the author, paraphrasing Romeo and Juliet. The most dramatic moment of the play comes when the chief (now turned blind) proceeds with several of his warriors to the Sacred Cave, with the intention of entrapping the faithless Lashota with Niatawa, and finds instead his own daughter, who had followed the guilty pair with the intention of saving her lover, and remained to shield the wife. The scene when the daughter steps forward to declare herself to her blind father, and meets his scorn and reproaches at her supposed guilt, rouses the audience to a certain degree of enthusiasm. In Act III., Niatawa has been condemned to die for his fault, and a wierd scene is made of the rites and ceremonies which precede the burning at the stake. Before this takes place, however, Naitawa is released on condition that he fights the wronged husband, and in this he receives his death wound. The concluding act is in the nature of an allegory, representing Autumn, Winter, and Spring, and through these scenes wanders the hapless Adulola, sighing for the day when she may meet her lover in the happy hunting grounds. Her death brings to a conclusion a poetically-conceived but somewhat melancholy story.

The play is beautifully staged. Mr. H. Reeves-Smith, in his original part of Lonawonda, makes an impressive old chief. Mr. Arthur Poole as Sheanagua was especially successful in a strong scene in Act III. Niatawa was excellently embodied by Mr. Philip Cuningham, who gave distinction to the character, and earned the plaudits of the audience. Mr. Algernon Syms as Matawagnon did well; and the other "braves" were ably portrayed by Messrs. L. Ashton-Jarry, Edward Beecher, Richard Norton, Edwin Palmer, E. Wilson, and Henry White. In the part of Adulola, Miss May Chevalier proved of great value; her light-hearted gaiety and the power she displayed in the strong scenes showed her to be an actress of much ability. Miss Margaret Murch as Lashota, Miss Edith Matt as Tana-Mongosh, and Miss Winifred Ingham as Fawn, all gave able support; and Misses Beatrice Hodson and Ella Manton added their quotas as Indian maids. At the conclusion of the play Mr. H. Reeves-Smith thanked the audience for their kindly reception, and promised to cable the author of the fact. He also referred to the help accorded by Mr. B. Tucman, general stage-director for Mr. William A. Brady, in the production.

THE GERMAN THEATRE.

Every promise of continued support was given to Herr Hans Andresen on the 5th inst., when he opened his eighth London season of German plays at the Great Queen-street Theatre. A large audience was present, and amply testified their appreciation of the care bestowed in the mounting and acting of Die Condottieri, with which the season was begun. The piece, which is by Rudolph Herzog, and has met with great success in Berlin, was fully described by our correspondent on its production at the Neues at the latter end of October. The remote times of the Venetian Republic under Bartolomeo Coleone are dealt with by the author in striking fashion, and the scenes of the play were acted by the company with all the requisite force and effect. To Herr Albert Heine, who appeared in the title-rôle, belongs chief honours. He maintained with admirable discretion the character of the part, and delivered the exacting speeches with well-varied effect. The sudden attacks of illness which come as the result of an ill-spent life were well simulated, and the address to the Council of Ten, in which the dying Coleone insists on the erection of a statue to perpetuate his memory, was finely sustained. Herr August Weigert made an appropriate appearance as Giovanni, Coleone's natural son, who aspires to inherit his father's greatness. The difficult and impressive scene of the third act, when Giovanni pretends to take the words from his father—already dead in his chair—advocating his son's succession to his honours, was capitally managed, and won warm cheers. Fräulein Herta von Hagen acted with fascinating effect as the syren Madonna Isabella, and infused passionate energy into the scene in which she yields to Coleone's embraces. The rôle of Madonna Beatrice was cleverly sustained by Fräulein Clara Rabitow, an actress of finished methods, who bore herself with admirable dignity, and delivered her lines superbly. Herr Hans Andresen, who was warmly welcomed on his appearance, made the bluff and kindly Gabriele an immediate favourite, giving admirable expression to his lines. Other rôles were played by Herren Paul Wind, Hans Stock, Willy Grill, and Joseph Idali, the last-mentioned having to give up his part in the third act owing to an attack of faintness. Loud and prolonged applause was bestowed after each act, when the author appeared and bowed his acknowments. The second of Herr Hans Andresen's season was produced on Thursday, and consisted of a rhymed verse farcical comedy by Schönthau and Koppel-Ellfeld, entitled Die Gold'ne Eva, a play which enjoys considerable popularity in Germany.

"HEARTS ADRIFT," with Mr. Henry Bedford and Mr. Frank Bertram, will be the attraction next week at the Crown Theatre, Peckham.

DEATH OF OWEN HALL.

We regret to record the death of Mr. James Davis, better known as Owen Hall, the well-known musical comedy writer. The sad event occurred at Harrogate on Wednesday morning, in the fifty-fourth year of his age. For the past few months Mr. Davis had been very ill, suffering from acute gastritis and heart trouble, and on the advice of Sir Thomas Barlow he went a little more than a week ago to try the Nauheim treatment at Harrogate, which, however, did not have the desired effect. The deceased was not prone to talk much about his health, and he was probably ill for a much longer time than anyone suspected. His condition had undoubtedly been aggravated by an accumulation of troubles and anxieties, though he himself was a man so accustomed to meet the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" in a philosophic spirit that his most intimate friends did not realise how great was their effect upon him. An Irishman by birth, the deceased—the son of the late Mr. Hyman Davis—was educated at University College, and for a period of twelve years after he had graduated as Bachelor of Laws followed his profession as a solicitor. This he subsequently relinquished in order to devote himself to newspaper work—journalism, in the main, of the critical, satirical, and "gossipy" order. He was a popular man with those who knew him best. As a conversationalist, he was extremely versatile—as an epigrammatist the cleverness of his mots usually atoned for the roughness of their "edge." Extremely fond of the Turf, it may fairly be assumed that the sport he followed brought him no pecuniary profit. He was a man who made money with comparative facility, and spent it with even greater ease. Above all, he possessed an abiding sense of humour calculated to appeal to the world at large, though often appreciated in only a strictly limited sense by individuals.

Mr. Davis, who was born in Dublin, was a brother of "Frank Danby" (Mrs. Frankau) and Mrs. Aria, and he married the only daughter of the late Mr. Joseph Andrade, a highly-accomplished lady, by whom he had several children. A daughter is at present playing in The Gipsy Girl at the Waldorf, and his son holds a commission in H.M. Army. The deceased gentleman made two unsuccessful attempts to drive law and politics as a pair under Tory colours—at Carlow and Dundalk. He was about to make a third try at Clerkenwell, and was actually Tory candidate for the division when other interests claimed him. During all this while Mr. Hall had been doing a good deal of very varied newspaper work, contributing to Truth, the World, Illustrated London News, and other papers. He was for two years, from 1888 to 1890, assistant-editor of Galignani's Messenger, and his were the "Stalled Ox" theatrical criticisms of the Sporting Times. Before this he had been editor of the Bat from 1885 till its demise, under gloomy circumstances, in 1887.

It was about this period that he became friendly with Mr. George Edwardes, who commissioned him to write a musical play, and A Gaiety Girl, his first musical comedy, was the result. Often when he in later days told the story of this wonderfully successful piece, Mr. Davis related how when thinking out what pseudonym he should adopt the condition of his finances suggested "Owing All," and eventually he changed this to Owen Hall, over which name he wrote An Artist's Model, The Geisha, A Greek Slave, Florodora, The Silver Slipper, The Girl from Kay's, The Medal and the Maid, Sergeant Brue, and The Little Cherub.

In the autobiography written by Mr. Davis and published some three years ago one is told, with remarkable candour, that he received £2,000 for the libretto of A Greek Slave, and that he lost it all horse-racing in three weeks. Florodora had so great a vogue in America that it was said that the famous sextette, "Tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?" had supplanted "Yankee Doodle" as the American national air. Last autumn Mr. Davis floated "Owen Hall, Limited," a company which was to produce his plays without the expense of the middleman manager. For many weeks he had been seriously ill, but his new "book," tentatively called The Catherine Wheel, was almost finished, and it was announced on Wednesday that it was to be produced in the autumn at the Adelphi Theatre.

The body of Mr. Davis was conveyed from Harrogate to London on Thursday, and the interment is to take place at Highgate Cemetery at twelve to-day, the cortège leaving 6, Montague-mansions, York-street, W., at eleven o'clock.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 8, the Musical Comedy, "KITTY GREY."

The members of Mr. C. St. John Denton's company are appearing with great success this week at the Dalston Theatre in the musical comedy, Kitty Grey. The title-rôle is sustained by Miss Hilda Guiver, who makes a really charming Kitty. As an actress she is vivacious, as a vocalist tuneful, and as a dancer fascinating. Mr. Robert Whyte, jun., is the King of Illyra, and he succeeds in making his Majesty a most interesting individual. Mr. Leslie Harris's Lord Plantagenet is an amusing character, and Sir John Binfield, who is the very ideal of an affectionate husband, finds a cordial representative in Mr. George Rowlands. Miss Eily Helene is a charming Lady Binfield, and is quite a rival to Kitty Grey in the matter of popularity. Mrs. Bright is played by Miss N. Laurraine, who, in the course of the play, sings a lively song. Saide de Poulson is played with commendable ease by Miss Lena Denton. Miss P. Listin is vivacious as Mabel; and others in the cast include Miss Mabel French as Lillie, Mr. L. Winning as Comte de Trenitz, and Mr. T. W. Kingston as Ponbrichet.

"THE PICK OF THE BUNCH."

A Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Charles Carey, Music by Louis Laval and Harry W. Wellmon, Lyrics by Buckstone Clair and Charles Wilmot, produced for the first time in the London District at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, on Monday, April 8.

Produced originally as a farcical comedy, with the title After the Ball, then changed into a musical comedy with the same title, Mr. Carey, the author, had not very great luck with the venture; but now that, for the third time, it has been rewritten and a new name has been given to it, there is every prospect of it receiving a considerable amount of public patronage. Indeed, although it has only just come to the vicinity of London, The Pick of the Bunch has been toured for some time in the provinces, and has been most favourably received wherever it has appeared. It is a bright and tuneful production, full of life and colour, and there is a story running through it that is not altogether devoid of interest, as is too often the case in this class of play.

Briefly, the story centres around the difficulties of a certain Halliwell Menit, who, having married a widow lady in Indiana, discovers at her death that she has a daughter named Nancy, to whom she left her fortune, and who, anxious to marry again a young English lady, Nellie Mather, endeavours to keep the story of the widow and the stepdaughter a secret between him and the object of his affection as well as the lady's guardian and his own uncle, Colonel Joseph Menit. His efforts in this direction necessitate the invention of many lies, which lead to numerous entanglements. For instance, when he arrives at a hydropathic establishment at Tunbridge Wells, where all the action takes place, and meets the lady, he finds himself forced to invent his first lie when he learns that his stepdaughter is staying at the same establishment. His mortification is increased by the unlooked-for discovery that his dead wife's child talks with a pronounced Mile End-road accent, and in every particular behaves herself as if she were a child of that familiar but unpoetic locality. His difficulties are not lessened by the arrival at the hydro of the uncle, who proves to be a very peppery old man. His stepdaughter loses no time in introducing herself to her "dad" by marriage, a circumstance that causes much disgust amongst the ladies and gentlemen at the fashionable resort, and particularly to the colonel and his ward, and a series of absurd lies about the lady, invented to save himself, and no sooner invented than discovered, at last leads to the harassed Halliwell declaring that the lady is his mother. Of course this deception, like all the others, was bound to be found out, and the surprise of the guests at the hydro may be imagined when Nancy openly and with characteristic coster energy declares her relationship to Halliwell and claims him as her stepfather. This at once sets up a barrier between Halliwell and Nellie Mather, whose love he had won, and sends the peppery uncle, from whom he had expectations, into a furious passion. Things, however, take a sudden turn in his favour at a fancy ball at the hydro, at which the gaucheries of Nancy had been particularly objectionable, for she suddenly appears amongst the astounded company, faultlessly attired in evening dress, beautiful to behold, and with an accent as pure as that of any of the aristocrats present. For, after all, Nancy had only been playing a part, though for what reason is not very clear; and, now that the disguise is thrown aside, there is not one in the company who does not declare that she is "the pick of the bunch."

Mr. Carey, who, in conjunction with Mr. Harold Wantage, produced the comedy, deserves to be congratulated for having succeeded where so many others have failed. There is scarcely a dull moment in the play, and there is such a wealth of action, skilfully interspersed with melodious songs and graceful dances, that the attention and the interest of the onlookers are never for a moment allowed to flag. Both Mr. Carey and Mr. Wantage have parts in it—Mr. Carey as the much-to-be-pitied Halliwell and Mr. Wantage as a foppish young gentleman of the name of Dick Seymour. Mr. Carey, who has a fine presence, acquitted himself admirably in the part, his numerous scenes with the supposed coster girl causing no end of merriment. Mr. Wantage's impersonation of the invertebrate Dick Seymour was also very good, and won for him the good opinion of the audience. Chief honours, however, were earned and freely accorded to Miss M. Sadie, who appeared as the irrepressible Nancy. Her assumption of the manners of the coster woman was redolent of Mile End, whilst her singing and dancing called forth the heartiest encomiums. Amongst the most successful of the musical numbers allotted to her were the songs "The Fancy Ball" and "The Ragity-Tagity Brigade," each of which was sung with force and character. Mr. H. Buckstone Clair, who plays the part of the fiery colonel, is also an exceedingly interesting personality, his grotesque outbursts of passion never failing to raise a laugh, as they never seemed to frighten anybody. A charming impersonation of the part of Nellie Mather was given by Miss Madge Christopher, whilst two of her songs, "The Tea House" and "The Flying Machine," were rendered with conspicuous success. Miss Eva Ellis also made a most favourable impression as Ruth Gay, Nellie's companion, a part that she invested with a charm of her own. Her singing of the songs "Molly O'Shea" and "The best little Queen in the pack" was very good; whilst a coon song and dance, in which she took the leading part with a number of other ladies, was one of the prettiest features of the show. Another successful part was that of Wilhelmeina, a Dutch girl waitress, which was filled by Miss Nellie James. Her assumption of the Dutch accent was faultless, and her clog dances brought down the house. Amongst the other artists, all of whom acquitted themselves well, mention should be made of Mr. Algernon W. Lee, who fills the part of Martin, Halliwell's servant, and shows the possession of a remarkably fine tenor voice, which was heard to great advantage in a song about dreams. There is a good chorus, a little weak in male voices, but admirably trained and working harmoniously together. It was kept well in hand by Mr. Harry Bolton, the musical director, who also controlled an augmented orchestra. Mr. J. Wilfred Chilton is acting as manager for the tour, which has just started, and Mr. Buckstone Clair is stage-manager.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham is assured of a hearty reception this evening, when he begins his welcome season at the Criterion with The Liars, in which the actor-knight and Miss Mary Moore will play their original rôles. The other parts in Mr. H. A. Jones' admirable play will be sustained by Messrs. Thalberg Corbett, Eille Norwood, Bertram Steer, Sam Sothern, W. H. Kemble, Herbert Dansey, L. White, and Reginald Walter, and Misses Charlotte Granville, Caroline Dupont, Dorothy Thomas, Frances Vine, and Enid Spencer Brunton.

Mr. Edward Terry occupied a seat as a magistrate at Surrey Quarter Sessions on Tuesday. The appointment of the eminent comedian to the judicial bench was made at the end of last year, and was a notable addition to a long list of offices of a municipal, social, and philanthropic character already held by Mr. Terry.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier will produce his English version of Henri Lavedan's play, Le Duel, on Tuesday evening, the 23rd inst., at the Garrick Theatre. Mr. Bourchier's talents as a dramatist were conspicuously displayed in The Arm of the Law, his adaptation of La Robe Rouge. In that play, it will be remembered, the foreign environment of the original was retained, but in his latest effort Mr. Bourchier has transplanted his characters to English soil. Miss Violet Vanbrugh will have a powerful part in the new play, the cast of which will also include Mr. Sydney Valentine and Mr. Cyril Keightly. The Duel will be preceded by Mr. Leo Trevor's one-act comedy, Dr. Johnson, with Mr. Bourchier in his renowned impersonation of the title-rôle.

The wedding of Mr. Charles Draycott, the general-manager of Mr. Lingford Carson's répertoire company, and Miss Muriel Thompson, daughter of the late Rev. H. J. Thompson, vicar of Dodfield, took place on the 3rd inst. at St. Peter's Parish Church, Bolton, the Rev. Canon Henn officiating. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Lingford Carson, was attended by her sisters, Misses Violet, Christobel, and Rose Thompson, and Mr. Sydney C. Cranston acted as best man. The wedding guests were subsequently entertained at 15, Harcourt-avenue, Seacombe. The honeymoon will be spent on tour. The happy pair were the recipients of many presents, including a cheque and dressing-case from the bride's mother., and a silver mirror and turquoise and pearl pin from the members of the répertoire company.

Mr. Martin Harvey has almost completed his arrangements for his London season, which commences in May. The programme will be changed every week, and each of the plays in the actor's répertoire is to be seen in turn. Great interest is sure to be excited in the new drama, at present entitled The Rich Youth, which Mr. Harvey will produce in June. The action of the piece takes place in Palestine about the year A.D. 30, and deals largely with the effect of the first lessons of Christianity upon the Jewish and Greek civilisations. In the new production Mr. Harvey will impersonate the youth "of great possessions."

Mr. George Edwardes has decided that The Lady Dandies at Daly's shall be followed by The Gay Widow, Mr. Edward Morton's adaptation of the successful Viennese opera Die Lustige Wittwe, the rights of which were acquired by the astute manager some time ago. The present attraction at Daly's, however, is so well sustaining its popularity that no date can be given for the production of the novelty, the cast for which will include Mr. George Graves, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Mr. W. H. Berry, Mr. Fred Kaye, and Mr. Lennox Pawle.

The executors of Mr. J. L. Toole have granted the sum of £250 (less duty) out of the funds at their disposal under the late comedians's will to the Royal Female Orphan Asylum, Beddington, to which institution Mr. Toole was a subscriber for upwards of a quarter of a century. £500 (less duty) has also been granted to the Royal Hospital for Incurables, Putney Heath of which Mr. Toole was for many years a regular supporter.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will make her London début at Terry's Theatre on April 25, when Mr. Gaston Mayer commences a season with this delightful American play. The character created by Mrs. Anne Hegan Rice, the authoress of the book, has become a sort of incarnation of the American spirit of optimism, and some of her quaint sayings bid fair to pass into household maxims. She is a pronounced type of American humour, and her kindly fun is set off by the comically odd background of the "Cabbage Patch" itself, the "po' white" quarters of Louisville.

The case of the suffragette was amusingly brought forward at the Avenue Theatre, Sunderland, on Monday, during the performance of The Taming of the Shrew. When Mrs. F. R. Benson, who played the part of Katherina, repeated the lines, "I am ashamed that women are so simple to offer war when they should kneel for peace," a gentleman in the audience gave utterance to a fervent "Hear, hear." The audience shook with laughter, in which the actress could hardly prevent herself from joining.

Mr. William Mollison resumed his provincial tour on Monday at Newport, where he is playing to the full capacity of the theatre nightly, while the advance booking approaches that of the late Sir Henry Irving's visit. On Monday night, the Mayor, wearing his chain of office, and the magistrates and Town Council attended officially. The officers of the Royal Artillery were present in full-dress uniform, and the president and members of the Newport Literary Society, as well as the local clergy, were strongly represented. Mr. Mollison's performance of Macbeth was received with the greatest enthusiasm, and when the curtain had been raised again and again at the end of the tragedy, Mr. Mollison was obliged to respond to the call for a speech.

Mr. Edward van Biene, son of the famous actor-'cellist, has just obtained a patent for an invention the usefulness of which will be apparent to all. It appears in the Patent Journal as "A spark or ash-collecting cigarette or cigar-holder," and consists of an ingenious device made of aluminium, or other suitable metal, in the shape of a cone, which, by a clever contrivance, will hold a cigarette or cigar, and prevent sparks or ashes from falling or being blown about. The device moreover is of a collapsible nature, and closes into the space of about one inch, and can be used either as an ordinary cigarette-holder, or as the specially protected one.

Mr. Bourchier has chosen "The Limits of the Dramatic Art" as the subject of the two lectures which he has consented to deliver to the members of the Royal Institution of Great Britain. The addresses are arranged to be given on Saturday, May 18, and Saturday, May 25.

The autumn drama at Drury Lane was decided upon on Thursday. It is to be a play from the pens of Mr. Cecil Raleigh and Mr. Henry Hamilton, who have collaborated in so many successes at the National Theatre, including The Derby Winner, Cheer, Boys, Cheer, The White Heather, and The Great Ruby. It is understood that the new piece will be of a modern and military character, and will afford opportunities for scenic display of which Mr. Arthur Collins may be trusted to take all possible advantage.

Dr. Distin Maddick has decided to have The Judgment of Pharaoh, originally announced for the 23rd inst., ready for production at the Scala by Saturday next in order to avoid a clash with the new piece at the Garrick. The full cast of the Egyptian play will consist of Messrs. Brandon Thomas, Edmund Gurney, James Fernandez, Vincent Clive, Edward Sorley, Cecil Fowler, Henry Worrall, Selwyn Seymour, Anselm Milroy, and Frank Collins, and Misses Nora Lancaster, Cecil Cromwell, Rachel Warre, Shelly Carlton, Betty Castle, Kitty Carew, Marjorie Day, and Vivian Stafford. The management are reverting to the old 7s. orchestra stall, 5s. staircase stall, balcony 3s., pit 2s., and gallery 1s.

Mr. Neil Forsyth, the manager of the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, who returned to London on Thursday night from his honeymoon at Monte Carlo, has resumed preparations for the coming season, which begins on the 30th inst. The season will be opened with two special cycles of Wagner's "Ring" and two elaborate performances of Die Meistersinger, and other Wagnerian operas to be revived are Der Flieglende, Holländer and Tannhäuser.

Among the French and Italian works will be Verdi's Aida, Il Ballo in Maschera, Otello (a novelty at Covent Garden), Rigoletto, and Traviata; Puccini's La Bohème, Madama Butterfly, and La Tosca; Bizet's Carmen; Mascagni's Iris (in addition to the répertoire) and Cavalleria Rusticana; Mozart's Don Giovanni; Gounod's Faust; Giordano's Andre Chenier and Fédora; Ponchielli's Gioconda (another novelty); Humperdinck's Hansel und Gretel, Catalani's Loreley (a new work), Nicolai's Merry Wives of Windsor, and Leoncavallo's Pagliacci.

The "star" vocalists of Europe will combine in the effective representation of the operas. Mme. Melba heads the list of lady artists, and Signor Caruso is again the principal tenor. A special noteworthy feature of the season is the attention given by the directors to the claims of British vocalists, who include Mme. Agnes Nicholls, Miss Cicely Gleeson White, the Canadian prima-donna, Mme. Pauline Donalda, Mme. Kirkby Lunn, Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, Miss Maud Santley, Mme. Edna Thornton, Mr. John Harrison, and Messrs. Frank Arthur and Frederick Austin.

A meeting of the Actors' Union was held at 3, Bedford-street, on Tuesday afternoon, with Mr. Harry Paulton in the chair. About fifty members were present, including Mr. Arthur Bawtree, Mr. Fred Bentley, Mr. Rawson Buckley, Mr. Percy Baverstock, Miss Mary Bissell, Mr. Orlando Barnett, Miss Beattie Bland, Mr. Fred Brooks, Mr. Arthur Cecil, Mr. W. H. Everleigh, Mr. Wm. Farren, jun., Mr.. Francis Chamier, Mr. James Graydon, Mr. Maurice Hoffman, Mr. Frank Lacey, Mr. Fred Jacques, Mr. Peet Leslie, Mr. Oswald Marshall, Mr. Ernest Norris, Mr. Robson Paige, Miss Mabel Syringa, Mr. E. Y. Rae, and Mr. Wilfred Shine. The acting secretary reported that 154 members had joined since the meeting at the Criterion. Mr. Paulton said he had left the Actors' Association owing to the unsatisfactory working of the qualification clause. He deprecated managerial influence on associations for the benefit of actors. A motion by Mr. Robson Paige —"That this meeting sympathises with the efforts of the Reform Party to effect reform in the Actors' Association"—was seconded and carried.

At a meeting at Manchester on Tuesday in support of the Actors' Union, Mr. Ruddle Brown, who presided, and Mr. Cole Aspinall spoke in sympathy with the movement; and the following resolution was proposed and carried:—"That in the opinion of this meeting carpenters and baggage-men who take walking-on parts and speak lines should not be eligible for membership in the Actors' Union." A requisition was presented to the Council of the Actors' Association on Tuesday afternoon, signed by 120 members, asking for an extraordinary meeting to consider certain resolutions altering the Articles of Association. The extraordinary meeting is fixed for May 6th; and a meeting in favour of the proposed reforms will be held at 3, Bedford-street, at 8 p.m., on Sunday.

Mr. Norman V. Norman gave a special matinée of David Garrick at the Theatre Royal during his recent visit to Hull. The audience were most enthusiastic, there being twelve "curtains" during the play. Mr. Norman is rapidly completing his preparations for the Shakespeare week at Tunbridge Wells. In the selections given from Romeo and Juliet the part of Romeo will be played by Miss Beatrice Wilson, who will also appear as Lady Macbeth, Rosalind, and Beatrice.

Mr. Norman, who has nearly recovered from the accident to his hand, has been able to resume playing hockey. His team has been very successful lately, beating the Hull Corinthians by five goals to three, the "Newlands" mixed team by twelve goals to two, and the Bridlington Ramblers by five goals to two.

Mr. Ernest Vousden, commenting on the report of his father's death which appeared in The Era, writes:—"You state that he was removed from Dublin to a home at Bexhill by the kindness of some friends. Allow me to say that I was the friend, also that I was at his bedside in his last hours, and that efforts to look after him were made years ago by his family, but given up through no fault of their own."

The members of the Green Room Lodge of Freemasons held their twentieth regular meeting at the Imperial Restaurant on the 5th inst. Mr. Harry Nicholls and Mr. James W. Mathews, in the absence of Mr. Herbert Leonard, the Worshipful Master for the year, presided alternately. Mr. Matheson Lang was advanced a stage, and Mr. Leslie Stiles and Mr. Wilfred Draycott completed their degrees. Messrs. Richard Green, Lauri de Frece, Dermot Fitzgibbon, and Lyn Harding were named as candidates. Mr. Herbert Leonard had a fine Past-Master's jewel voted to him as a mark of esteem from the Brethren, and in recognition of his valuable services as Master. Mr. Akerman May was unanimously elected as Mr. Leonard's successor, his installation being fixed for May 3. Mr. W. S. Penley was chosen as treasurer, and Mr. Chas. Patrick as Tyler, in succession to the late Mr. Samuel Ellis, with whose family deep sympathy was expressed. Messrs. A. B. Tapping, F. de B. Holmes, and Albert Le Fre were among the visitors. The usual dinner followed.

Miss Lena Ashwell will have the direction of a concert at a garden fête to be given on May 24 at the Royal Botanic Gardens by the Legion of Frontiersmen. A pageant representing the evolution of single combat over 2000 years, closing with a camp fire display by the officers and men of the Legion, will also be a feature of the fête.

Mr. Bannister Howard is continuing his policy of providing first-class attractions at the Crystal Palace Theatre by the engagement for next week of Mr. Charles Macdona's company in The Gay Parisienne. The cast will include Miss Lilian Talbot as Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon, Mr. Will Harman as Honeycombe, and Mr. Squire Day as the Major, supported by a first-rate company and the original Imperial Glee Singers. Every care has been taken to present the play as produced at the Duke of York's Theatre, and lovers of musical comedy who have not seen The Gay Parisienne, as well as those who wish to renew acquaintance with the lively work, should pay a visit to the Palace next week. There will be matinées on Wednesday and Saturday.

Becky Warder, the heroine of Mr. Clyde Fitch's new play, produced at the Comedy Theatre last Saturday night, may not know how to tell the truth, but she does know how to dress, and Miss Marie Tempest appears in three charming frocks. Designed and made by Mme. Hayward, they are admirably suited to the player and the part. Becky's first fibs, or preliminary prevarications, are told in a pale lemon-coloured crêpe de chine, mounted over Oriental satin of the same shade. The kimono-shaped bodice, now so popular, has wide sleeves, a high belt, and an elaborate design of Oriental embroidery, fading from deep orange to pale primrose—this gives an impression of colour and warmth in excellent contrast to the delicacy of the rest of the gown. A smart coatee of the same tone is worn, and the finishing touch is a big muff of silk crochet over crêpe de chine.

In the second act, Miss Tempest wears her favourite pink, technically described as "a soft la France shade," the corsage being cut in Oriental style trimmed with wide-meshed fillet lace, worked in thick floss silk and bordered with a hem of crêpe de chine. A pointed vest of cream-silk blonde-lace and a narrow waistcoat of folded pink tulle, decorated with small cameo buttons, complete the scheme. The undersleeves are composed of blonde-lace, while the skirt is decorated with a broad strap at the back, which reaches to the top of the belt and is mitred at each end. Becky Warder's third dress is grey voile over soft satin of the same shade. Wide Japanese sleeves again appear, with undersleeves of kilted net edged with Valenciennes lace, and a particularly effective redingote of grey satin with a high waistbelt is perfected by cords, tassels, and a collar of deep violet velvet.

The dresses worn by Miss Sybil Carlisle and Miss Grace Lane are the work of Messrs. Blanquaert and Co., and Mrs. Siddons is responsible for all the millinery. Miss Carlisle, who only appears in the first act, looks very pretty in olive green Oriental satin, worn under a coat of coarse lace in a somewhat brighter shade, with a band of silver embroidery round the collar, and wide kimono sleeves, the costume being completed by a beautiful feather boa, suède gloves and shoes, and a most original hat—nothing more nor less than a big grey-green parrot, resting on a twist of silver gauze! This is worn well tilted over the face, so that the bright yellow eyes of the bird seem to look at the wearer's forehead and the beak almost touches her hair.

Miss Lane's first entrance is made in a cleverly-cut dress of strawberry pink, with sables, her hat, of the same colour, being trimmed with shaded ostrich plumes, a small bunch of roses, and chocolate-coloured chiffon. In the second act Miss Lane is dressed in cream chiffon over white silk, with touches of old gold, and she wears ermine and carries a big white muff. Her hat, if not as amazing as the grey-green parrot, is decidedly new and effective, being a fine crinoline, with a quantity of delicate white feathers sweeping from front to back. As a contrast to the smartness of the other costumes, Miss Rosina Filippi, in the character of Mrs. Crespigny, is appropriately dressed in black brocaded silk, trimmed with black sequins.

Two additional subscriptions to the "Fred Locke" Fund are this week acknowledged by Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, namely 10s. 6d. from sympathisers at 23, West Nile-street, Glasgow; and 2s. 6d. from Mr. Charles Boult. Mr. Locke is at present an inmate of the Glasgow Western Infirmary, and several old friends have this week visited his bedside and helped to cheer him up.

"Clancarty," as Tom Taylor's popular play is to be called on its revival at the Lyric on Tuesday, will be strongly cast. Mr. Lewis Waller and Miss Evelyn Millard will be Lord and Lady Clancarty respectively, and the company will be completed by Messrs. W. Mackintosh, A. E. George, Owen Roughwood, Franklin Dyall, H. J. Carvill, S. B. Brereton, Herbert Jarman, W. Wilson, W. L. Schonberg, G. Ronald, S. J. Warmington, A. Caton Woodville, P. Digan, J. H. Irvine, Shiel Barry, and F. W. Trott; and Misses Eleanor May, Adrienne Augarde, Dora Barton, and Leonora Braham.

The first performance in London of the concert version of the opera, Merrie England, by Basil Hood and Edward German, will be given at the Crystal Palace this evening. The principal artists will be Miss Edith Evans, Miss May Peters, Mr. Alfred Heather, and Mr. Julien Henry. The Crystal Palace choir and the Crystal Palace Orchestral Society of 300 performers will be conducted by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock.

Many theatrical and musical artists will contribute to Colonel Barrington Foote's annual concert and variety entertainment in aid of the Church of England Soldiers' and Sailors' Institute, Woolwich, to be given at Grosvenor House on Friday, May 3. Among those who will give their services will be Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss May Palfrey, Miss Gabrielle Ray, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, Mr. Huntley Wright, Mr. Willie Warde, Mr. Fred Kerr, and Mr. George Grossmith. Mr. Wilhelm Ganz will conduct.

Mr. Aubrey Mather has been selected by Mr. Norman V. Norman to play Orlando in his revival at Tunbridge Wells. Mr. Mather will also appear as Claudio in Much Ado About Nothing and Banquo in Macbeth.

The Duchess of Devonshire visited the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, on Saturday and witnessed Mr. Murray King's very clever and amusing performance in A Pantomime Rehearsal. Her Grace, who was received by Mr. Clark, was accompanied by the Countess of Munster, the Countess Von Platen, and the Lady Theo Acheson. In addition to Mr. King the programme included Mme. Alice Esty in the Miserere scene from Il Trovatore. Since Murray King and Clark have taken over this admirably appointed theatre many improvements have been effected, and large and fashionable audiences have been the rule. A special feature has been made of the new orchestra, which has excited so much admiration that it will probably be heard in London during the season.

Mr. G. Alexander Marsh, who was accidentally wounded during the performance of Othello at the Miners' Theatre, Ashington, on the 1st inst. by Mr. Allan Wilkie, was unable to appear during the remainder of the week. His parts were undertaken by Mr. Harold Nuttall at twenty-four hours' notice, the young actor showing remarkable ability and giving a very clever study of Romeo. On the Friday evening Mr. Nuttall gave an excellent performance of Laertes in Hamlet.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Batley (Miss Ethyle Murray) are concluding ten months' engagement with Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's Held Apart company. In the summer Mr. and Mrs. Batley will create two parts in a new historical drama.

Mr. Sandon Perkins, late of Dundee and Sunderland, sailed on Thursday by the whaling ship Morning, bound for the coast of Greenland, Davis Straits, and the regions beyond the Arctic Circle. He is going into these northern wilds to gather material for a lecture, and is taking with him a full photographic outfit, including the necessary apparatus for taking animated pictures. The expedition is not expected to return before the end of October.

The Council of the Actors' Association held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday, when there were present:—Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (in the chair), Mr. Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Miss Carlotta Addison, Miss Clare Greet, Miss Georgina Hamilton, and Miss Kate Phillips; Messrs. Acton Bond, Cecil Brooking, W. Graham Browne, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, H. Athol Forde, Frederick Morland, Kenyon Musgrave, Frederick Volpe, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors gave their report.

A requisition signed by 122 members and others requesting the Council to call an extraordinary general meeting of the Association for the purpose of considering the adoption of a certain resolution, and to direct the secretary forthwith to give notice of such meeting in accordance with the articles of association was placed upon the table. The meeting was fixed for Monday, May 6, at 2 p.m., and the secretary was instructed to carry out the necessary arrangements.

The secretary reported that the names of a number of members of the Association had been removed from the register, owing to non-payment of subscription, and he was directed to return any letters addressed to such members, after a fortnight's grace, to the postal authorities. Dr. James Burnet, of 6, Glengyle-terrace, Edinburgh, was elected as an hon. medical officer to the A.A. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. G. Stapleton Roche, Arthur D. Layland, and Vera Herbert were nominated for election to the A.A.; and thirty-two former members were reinstated. The meeting opened at 2.30 and closed at 5.15.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, and were engaged for some considerable time settling the details of a communication which it is proposed should be sent to the managers throughout the country concerning the comfort of artists visiting their theatres. There were present—Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), A. E. Drinkwater, H. Athol Forde, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

Mr. Robert Arthur has arranged for the visit to the Fulham Theatre next week of Mr. George Alexander's principal company in His House in Order. The company, which has been specially selected and rehearsed by Mr. Alexander, will include Miss Auriol Lee, Mr. Cyril Harcourt, and Mr. Frank Fenton.

Miss Ethel Van Praagh, the accomplished actress, was on Saturday night, at the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, presented by the members of her company with a beautiful wrought copper teakettle and stand of an exquisitely artistic design, bearing the following inscription:—"To Miss Ethel Van Praagh, on her 200th performance of Marion, from the members of An Unwedded Wife company, with every good wish for the continued success of both artist and drama."

Mr. Benbrick Blanchard will finish his short season with The Gipsy Girl at the Waldorf Theatre on the 22nd inst., and will then take the piece on tour for a few weeks in the suburbs and provinces. During the tour the play will be entirely re-written, and will then return to the West End as a second edition, with new numbers, new dances, and fresh business.

Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton, the proprietors of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, have just completed another improvement in the shape of a very pretty rockery, which abuts to the corridor leading to the stalls and dress-circle. The work, which has been carried out under the direction of Mr. Henry Dundas, the esteemed manager, goes to a great height, and is artistically decorated with plants and electric bulbs, while goldfish disport in a miniature pond.

A more central situation for the enterprise which was begun so auspiciously at the Court some two years or more ago has been secured in the Savoy Theatre, to which Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker will transfer their productions in September. The season at the Court ends on June 29, and afterwards the Savoy will go through the process of renovation in readiness for the new tenants. It is interesting to note that in The Return of the Prodigal, which is to be the next evening production at the Court, Miss Fortescue, the beginnings of whose fame were laid at the Savoy, will appear.

Mr. T. W. Ford will be repeating early triumphs in his engagement for Simon Ingot, the part in which he made a great success to the David Garrick of the late Mr. E. H. Sothern, the father of the present Mr. Sothern, who opens shortly at the Waldorf Theatre.

Mr. Egbert Lewis, the lessee and manager of the Theatre Royal, Bath, has arranged two highly interesting flying matinées during June. The first will be given on the 7th by Mme. Jane Hading and her company in Frou-Frou, and the second on the 12th by Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Zena Dare, who will appear in a triple bill consisting of three one-act comedies, Scrooge, Hook and Eye, and Papa's Wife.

Mme. Kate Flinn, the well-known teacher of singing and elocution, will have an afternoon concert at Steinway Hall on Thursday, May 9, when several of her more advanced pupils will appear. Mme. Flinn, who has obtained such remarkable results by her methods of teaching, is bringing out some good voices this year as a practical result of her efforts. A charming soprano, of which much is expected, will be heard, and various other pupils, one of whom has just been engaged by Mr. Geo. Edwardes, will sing, recite, and dance. The attractions of the afternoon will be enhanced by the inclusion in the programme of the famous vocalist Mr. David Bispham, the clever violinist M. Léon Sametini, and Miss Leah Barnato, who will give a recitation.

Owing to the sudden illness of Mr. Edward Surrey, who was appearing in The Plucky Nipper, at the Muncaster Theatre, Bootle, his part was taken up at four hours' notice by Mr. Louis Weston, who was warmly complimented by Miss Bonwin Carlton, the manageress of the company, and by the resident-manager.

At the Theatre Royal, Leamington, on Saturday, Mr. Ian Maclaren produced Macbeth, thus making another addition to his répertoire, which now includes nine of Shakespeare's masterpieces. On the night of the production the audience were not satisfied until Mr. Maclaren had acknowledged with a speech the prolonged applause which attended the fall of the curtain on the last act.

Baron Harriss, emboldened by the success which has attended his Prince of Pilsen company, the tour of which was originally intended to terminate at Cambridge early in June for the usual summer vacation, is seriously contemplating filling in the recess by transporting his company en bloc to Paris for a fortnight's engagement there, to be followed by a series of matinées in Brussels.

Mr. Walter Howard is the author of many successful plays, but his latest, Second to None, is pronounced to excel most in crisp, refreshing comedy. It is not improbable that it will appear in due course at the Lyceum, the fortunes of which appear to be in a fair way of restoration by means of the same writer's play, Her Love Against the World.

The great success of Peter's Mother in the suburbs and provinces continues unabated under the management of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison. Fashionable and crowded houses attended the recent performances at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, many well-known members of the profession being present. Mr. W. S. Gilbert, Mrs. De La Pasture (the authoress), Miss Marion Terry, Mr. Alfred Bishop, Sir Theodore Martin, Mr. A. F. Henderson, Mr. Sidney Dark, Mr. Carl Leyel, Mr. A. E. Matthews, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. Norman McKinnell, and Sir Charles Wyndham made a special journey on Thursday to witness the matinée at Brighton.

The following extracts from letters received from Mrs. De La Pasture offer a remarkable testimony to the excellence of the production of her play by the Hutchison management, to whose enterprise the suburbs and provinces are indebted for so many artistic representations:—"I have just heard from Sir Theodore Martin, who witnessed your performance at Folkestone (having seen the play in London). He speaks in high terms of praise of your company, and of the entire performance. There is no better judge living of literature or the drama, though he is now ninety."

The satisfaction of the talented authoress is also expressed in the following excerpt:—"I must send you a hurried line this morning before starting for the country, to say how very much we all enjoyed your performance of Peter's Mother last night. I was especially pleased with the very faithful rendering of all the business arranged in the London performance, and the fidelity of the text; and I am delighted to congratulate you most heartily on the excellence of your company. Mr. W. S. Gilbert, as you heard, was quite as pleased as Sir Theodore Martin with the performance, and I am so glad to think that the piece will be, and has been, so well played in the provinces and suburbs. I am sending the members of your company copies of the novel 'Peter's Mother' as a little souvenir of my warm appreciation, which I hope they will accept with the authoress's congratulations on their success and thanks for their work."

Mr. Richard Elliott, who has just concluded a tour of twenty-one weeks as Dr. Oliver in Mr. Wentworth Croke's tour of My Sweetheart, has been engaged by Mr. Croke to play Adam Fairbrother in his autumn tour of The Bondman.

"Mr. George," the new comedy by Louis N Parker, is to be produced at the Vaudeville on Wednesday, the 24th inst. The return of the Vaudeville to comedy pure and simple will be inaugurated by a powerful company, of which Mr. Charles Hawtrey and Miss Billie Burke will be the leading figures. The rest of the cast will consist of Mr. Arthur Playfair, Mr. O. B. Clarence, Miss Alice Beet, Miss Gwynne Herbert, Miss Frances Wetherall, Mr. Hubert Harben, Mrs. Campbell Bradley, Miss Alice Russon, Mr. Charles Troode, Mr. Russell Norrie, and Mr. Henri Laurent.

Mr. Louis Calvert made his début in comic opera at Birmingham this week, during which he has played the part of Pharaoh in Amasis, owing to the regrettable illness of Mr. Rutland Barrington. Next week Mr. Calvert will be seen in the rôle at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross.

Encouraged by the success with which Mr. Arthur Shirley's sketch, The Stepmother, was received on its production at the Camberwell Empire on the 18th ult., William Holles and Nannie Goldman (who have been so successful for the last three years at the Moss Empires and other leading variety theatres) have decided to tour the original drama, in four acts, by Arthur Shirley, of which they hold the entire rights, and to which Mr. Holles will devote his entire attention. Miss Nannie Goldman's performance as Danny, the cruelly ill-used boy in The Stepmother, is spoken of as the most pathetic bit of acting since Jennie Lee's Jo.

"Toddles" is to emulate the example of musical comedy, and run into a "second edition." The fresh material will consist of a new last act, the scene of which is laid at a Paris railway station, and its introduction may be expected in about a fortnight's time. Meanwhile, the crowds which are filling Mr. Cyril Maude's Playhouse nightly are in no respect diminishing, and a new lease of life may be predicted for the amusing comedy.

Messrs. Henry R. Smith and Ernest Carpenter have appointed as acting-manager of the Lyceum Theatre Mr. W. F. Crowe, lately acting-manager of the Theatre Royal, Bristol. Mr. Crowe, who is very popular in the Western city, had a benefit there on Friday.

The organisation of the forthcoming benefit to Mr. Sidney Barraclough is proceeding satisfactorily. The committee includes the names of many influential people, representing the drama and kindred arts, and a number of the leading lights in the profession have kindly notified their willingness to give Mr. Barraclough all the assistance they can. Mr. T. H. Ferrar, of 42, Thorney Hedge-road, Gunnersbury, is the temporary secretary. It should be added that it was in the October of 1905, and not that of last year that Mr. Barraclough caught the chill which unhappily developed into consumption. It is hoped, however, that a complete cure will be effected.

The Thanet branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society was inaugurated with much success at Ramsgate on Monday. This, the twenty-third branch of the Society, owes its existence chiefly to the energy of Miss Gracie Murielle, and is an amalgamation with the B.E.S.S. of a small society formed originally amongst Miss Murielle's own personal friends. The reading chosen for the opening was Twelfth Night, in which Mr. Acton Bond and Miss Murielle delighted their audience by their finished rendering of the chief characters. Amongst the distinguished assembly was Lady Burnand, who, with a few very charming words of congratulation, presented Miss Murielle with a handsome basket of red roses.

Mr. M. Russell Rosse will to-night terminate his Easter season at the Pavilion, Kingstown, where his répertoire company has been playing a succession of modern comedies. The directors have been so pleased with the efforts of Mr. Rosse's well-balanced company that they have made arrangements with him to return in July, the height of the Kingstown season.

The prizes offered last autumn by Mme. Fanny Moody for the best essays on a performance of Lucia di Lammermoor given by the Moody-Manners Opera Company before 1,500 children from the London schools have been duly awarded. The successful essayists were:—Lettice Pearson, London County Council Battersea Pupil Teachers' Centre; Lily Windust, Stanley Higher Elementary London County Council School; and A. Taplin, Kentish Town-road London County Council School.

Mr. Harry Ludlow has been engaged by M. August Van Biene to play his old part, General Ivanoff, in The Broken Melody for a special fortnight, beginning on May 13, at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham.—Mr. T. Henry Twyford, who is just concluding his second tour in Mr. Lewis Waller's Brigadier Gerard company as understudy for the title-rôle, has been fortunate enough to play the part on several occasions.—Mr. Russell Vaun, the author of The Great Awakening, has just finished another drama for Miss Maud Hildyard, which she will produce in Australia.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Suffragettes at the Court.

THE auditorium of the Court Theatre, at the matinée of Votes for Women on Tuesday afternoon, was sprinkled with celebrities. Well-known Suffragists, some of them, according to the Tribune, just released from Holloway, thronged every part of the house. Miss Elizabeth Robins, the authoress of the piece, was in the stage-box with a number of friends, and Miss Lillah Macarthy, who is also a convert to female suffrage, watched the play from a box. Miss Marion Terry was in the stalls; and the leaders of the movement were well represented by Mrs. Pankhurst and Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson, and Mrs. Despard. Lady Bamford-Slack, co-hon. secretary of the Women's Liberal Federation, Mrs. C. A. V. Conybeare, Mrs. Pember Reeves, Mrs. Hylton Dale, and many other ladies who are taking a prominent part in the agitation for the suffrage were also present.

Plain Speaking and Hard Hitting.

SOME of the lines in the play are memorable; for instance, the Working Woman's query, "What's politics? Only housekeeping on a large scale. The national housekeeping has merely been mismanaged all these years because men wouldn't allow women to help them look after it"; and the statement by the heroine that "Well-behaved women, after working for forty years, have not done as much as the Suffragettes have done in a few short months." The idea that seduction is "mainly a question of economics" is suggestive, and at certain points of the play the audience positively "sat on thorns" in anticipation of what was going to be said next—especially when the "babe unborn" was being discussed.

Mr. Bourchier's Dream.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has told a Daily Mail man that the dream of his—Mr. Bourchier's—life is to see a National Theatre established in London. "I mean," he said, "a theatre by which the finest plays of our great dramatists should be kept fresh and green by revival performances, and where, as is done at the Comédie-Française, the exchequer might be replenished by the production of new plays of distinctive merit. I know," said Mr. Bourchier, "this question of establishing a National Theatre is surrounded by dangers and difficulties, and I believe that it will only be solved when someone hands over a theatre and a répertoire and the paraphernalia necessary to such an enterprise. The actor who one day might do this is Mr. Tree. No theatre in this country possesses such a répertoire as His Majesty's, and in no theatre in the world is the serious drama so fittingly, so superbly staged as there."

Mr. Willard at Chicago.

MR. W. S. WILLARD, in his recent farewell speech to the Chicago public at Power's Theatre in that city, said:—"If you had been seventeen years in a foreign land and been treated as I have been treated in America, you would know how loath I am to say farewell. And to Chicago especially is it hard to say that word, for it was in your city that for two months I lay ill at the Auditorium. Messages, letters, flowers, books, were then showered upon me, and though I was not allowed to see them when they came, they showed me later how the people had given a fond thought to the man as apart from the actor. That I can never forget. And you, in your great, and ever-growing greater, city, will you, perhaps, have room in the years to come for a memory of me. In my heart there will always be the loving memory of you and all your kindness."

Spicing the Dialogue.

WHEN Mr. Forbes Robertson was playing an engagement recently in a city near New York he was put up at one of the country clubs, and as the weather was fine both Mr. Robertson and his wife spent a great deal of their time there. The members of the club were getting up a matinée for some local charity; and as soon as they heard of it Mr. and Mrs. Robertson volunteered to appear, being an afternoon affair, and it was arranged that the Robertsons should give a scene from the piece they were then playing, Bernard Shaw's Cæsar and Cleopatra.

THE day before the performance Mr. Robertson's artistic soul was filled with horror by the receipt of this letter from one of the leading members of the club:—"My dear Mr. Robertson," the letter ran, "although this benefit which we are giving at the club is entirely a local affair, we want to make it as gay and spicy as possible, so I am enclosing you a few local jokes and quips which if you and Mrs. Robertson will only introduce them somewhere in the dialogue of your play they will be sure to make a hit."

IT was finally Mrs. Robertson's woman's wit which came to the rescue. To her husband's secretary she dictated a very charming little note, stating that Mr. George Bernard Shaw was such an ogre of a playwright that if Mr. Robertson were to insert even so much as a superfluous comma into the dialogue of Cæsar and Cleopatra he would forfeit his rights to the play.

English and German Acting.

HERR ADALBERT MATKOWSKY, leading tragedian of the Kaiser's, Berlin, Theatre, and a famous German Shakespearean actor, has been giving a Daily Express correspondent an interesting outline of the particular aspects of the Beerbohm Tree visit which appealed to German actors. "It is not alone that we are to see a great English actor on a Berlin stage," he said. "From the standpoint of general culture we will profit by this portrayal of the English national characteristics and the English temperament. The German follows the national instinct, and presents a tragic Shakespeare rôle with an abandon and passion which are entirely foreign to the reserve of the English nature. It is this English reserve, as against the German intensity, which will, in my opinion, make the most striking impression on the German mind. Where the English actors excel the Germans most is, I think, in their comedians. There is no reserve about the English actor where humorous rôles are concerned, and that, again, is characteristic. He is willing to lend himself to the grotesque, according to Shakespearean demands, to an extent impossible to the German actor."

School Board and Song.

A SPECIAL matinée of Lucia di Lammermoor was given last autumn, by arrangement between the Moody-Manners Opera Company and the London County Council Education Committee, to 1,500 children from the London schools, and three prizes were offered by Mme. Fanny Moody for the best essays written by the juveniles on the opera. These have now been collected, and some of the opinions expressed appear in the Tribune. "The only flaws in the reality of the whole performance," points out Phyllis Blackler, Burghley-road Higher Elementary School, "were, to my mind, first, Lucy's quick revival from her faint, and then the speedy coming to life of Edgar, in order to bow their acknowledgments of the hearty applause." A young student at the Hackney Pupil Teachers' Centre writes:—"What a boon would be conferred upon the English nation, what a stimulus given to educational advancement, were it possible for performances of this kind to supersede these harrowing plays, which perforce attract so many thousands to-day!"

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

BEERBOHM TREE'S BERLIN VISIT.

DINNER AT THE CECIL.

The greatest interest has been felt both here and in Germany in Mr. Beerbohm Tree's visit to Berlin. The gathering at the send-off banquet held in honour of Mr. Tree on Sunday evening at the Hotel Cecil was representative of all the professions. Diplomats rubbed shoulders with lawyers, dramatists sat side by side with great soldiers, and actors and critics exchanged courtesies and opinions in the most cordial spirit of friendship.

Never were Germans and Englishmen more happy in each other's company. The Lord Mayor (Sir William Treloar) occupied the chair, and others present were Mr. Max Beerbohm, Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mr. Haddon Chambers, Mr. J. M. Chute, Lieut.-Col. Henry A. Fletcher, Col. Ker Fox, Mr. J. T. Grein, Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Ludwig Holthusen, Mr. Rufus Isaacs, Col. Leroy Lewis, Mr. C. P. Little, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Louis N. Parker, Direktor Schroder, Mr. Yorke Stephens, Sir Douglas Straight, Mr. Edward Terry, Maj.-Gen. Sir Alfred Turner, Mr. Frederick Whelen, and Mr. J. B. Mulholland.

After the health of the King and the Kaiser had been proposed and enthusiastically toasted, with the singing of the two National Anthems,

The LORD MAYOR, rising to propose "Our Guest," said he felt highly honoured in holding the position of chairman that evening. He felt, however, that there was no one who had a greater appreciation of Mr. Tree's good qualities than he had, or who was more anxious to do him justice. Those who were responsible for the toast list must have had the opinion—which he shared—that there were many gentlemen present who could do greater justice to Mr. Tree than the Lord Mayor, for associated with him in the toast were the names of four gentlemen. This was a send-off banquet to Mr. Tree, but it was not meant to indicate that they were glad he was going to leave London for a week or two. They intended to show him that he was appreciated here, and that they were glad to know he was appreciated in Germany. He (the Lord Mayor) had always experienced great pleasure in seeing Mr. Tree act, and could he have spared the time, he should have been delighted if Mr. Tree had offered to take him to perform some small part in Berlin. If he had a theatre of his own he might perform in it sometimes, and would not allow anybody else to take a leading part. That, he believed, was the way with people who owned theatres. At any rate, that was the way with people who dwelt in the Theatre Royal, Mansion House. They hoped that whatever Mr. Tree undertook in Germany he would be successful. It was a great delight to them all to think that the German Emperor was going to honour Mr. Tree with his presence at several of his performances. They were glad to wish the distinguished actor God-speed in his journey, and they hoped that he might have a very pleasant and very successful time in the German capital. He would ask the company to join with him in drinking the health of Mr. Beerbohm Tree.

MR. LUDWIG HOLTHUSEN, who supported the Lord Mayor, appeared in the picturesque costume of the Duke Leopold von Dessau, and delivered "in the name of Frederick the Great and William Shakespeare a Message from Mars to the Darling of the Gods." The message, spoken by Mr. Holthusen with fine elocutionary effect, was most humorous. This "old Dessauer," presuming to represent Frederick the Great, said: "My King has heard with much pleasure of the impending visit of the English drama to his old capital, and has instructed me, his faithful servant, to make a descent from Mars to the shores of these islands and to wish the representative of Shakespeare good speed and a royal success. You go to Berlin, Sir, at the invitation of an Emperor who has the soul of an artist and the heart of a soldier."

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR ALFRED TURNER, K.C.B., said that he was quite sure that the visit of their distinguished guest and his company to Berlin would have a far wider and more important result than the mere enjoyment of the performances of a series of Shakespearean plays produced in the highest style of dramatic art where those plays were known, and where the name of their author was revered as much as it was in England. He (the speaker) was convinced that the reception which would be accorded to Mr. Tree and his company in Germany by the Emperor and by Germans generally would disabuse the minds of many of those persons, both German and English, who had been misled into the fallacious belief that there existed any real enmity and malice between Germany and England.

HERR VON STUMM, the German Charge d'Affaires, who appeared on behalf of the German Ambassador, remarked that Mr. Tree, as a most distinguished representative of dramatic art in England, could be sure of a warm reception in Germany. There was no ill-feeling against this country among the large masses of the German people, and he hoped that Mr. Tree's visit would reap most beneficial results in creating better feelings between the two nations.

MR. EDWARD TERRY said he had great pleasure in expressing the delight and satisfaction he had always derived from witnessing German performances both in Germany and in this country, and so far as the German Theatre in London was concerned he thought they were greatly indebted to Mr. Hans Andresen, who, it was to be hoped, would remain for a very long time here. He hoped that soon a German theatre would be founded in London. The wreck of the Berlin and the disaster that befel the German Opera Company was sadly lamented by all. People sometimes spoke pessimistically about the English drama; for himself, he was an optimist, and so long as the young authors were coming to the front he felt there was little to fear.

MR. HANS ANDRESEN gracefully acknowledged Mr. Terry's compliments on behalf of the German Theatre in London and himself. He assured the company that their most sincere wishes would accompany Mr. Tree on his journey to Berlin. He (the speaker) and his colleagues had a firm conviction that Mr. Tree's enterprise would meet with deserved success in Germany, for it was a country where art was appreciated. During his (Mr. Andresen's) seven years' stay in London he had had the opportunity of studying the English stage, and he was convinced that it was of the greatest importance that the two nations should work hand-in-hand in the matter of dramatic art.

Mr. Tree's health was then enthusiastically drunk, to the singing of the German equivalent of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

MR. TREE, who was enthusiastically cheered on rising, replied to the toast of his health as follows: My Lord Mayor and gentlemen, I am deeply sensible of the honour you, gentlemen of the German community, and you, my kind friends, have done me in inviting me to spend my last evening in your company. You have provided me with my "Henkersmalzeit," as the Germans say—that is, the last meal of which the criminal is allowed to partake before his departure for another world. But, indeed, gentlemen, I feel in more senses than one like the criminal in the dock, for do we not often read in the records of murder trials "the prisoner was the only person who appeared unconcerned." Well, I think this description accurately realises the state of affairs at His Majesty's Theatre during the past few weeks of storm and stress. In the maelstrom which has been agitating that little sea the centre alone has remained calm and untroubled. For my part, I have only become informed of what is going on through what I have read in the newspapers. I only hope that all I have read is true. Some of the items, I confess, came upon me as a surprise. I learnt, for instance, that I am "a mighty golfer." The other evening a newspaper rang me up, and asked me if the statement were true that our staff included 200 children. I replied that the statement was not entirely accurate, but if they would strike off two noughts—mere nothings—and divide the remaining numeral by two the statement would be strictly accurate. Around me I have noticed anxious faces and ruffled fronts. I notice that the bulky form of my manager, Mr. Henry Dana, has grown small by degrees and beautifully less. I notice that my stage-manager has buried his puzzled face in the depths of a German dictionary in his endeavours to conform to the approved etiquette in addressing his German comrade, so as not to upset the entente. I think he now calls him Herr Kaiserlich, Koniglicher, Hof Ober Regisseur und Geheimer Haupt unter Flisseur. I have noticed a look of despair on the erstwhile bucolic countenance of my master carpenter. I have remarked signs of artificial courage on the part of the chief electrician, who had hitherto been a total abstainer; and even the stoical Mr. Whelen has exhibited signs of what I may call municipal exaltation. My kind adviser and legal lexicon, Mr. Langton, has unconsciously relaxed the judicial frown which normally furrows his expansive brow; and it has not escaped me that even the redoubtable Mr. Grein's moustache curls less imperially. To him, by the way, I should again like to express my thanks for the interest which he has so generously shown towards me throughout these negotiations. Indeed, I should like to take this opportunity of tendering my thanks to all with whom our enterprise has brought me in contact. The German and the English authorities appear to have vied with each other in making our undertaking easy; and it appeared at first, I assure you, no easy task to accomplish. All have conspired to make our visit to Germany not only a labour of love, but a joyous pilgrimage. The Press, too, of both countries have shown us an amount of consideration and generosity which should make us very modest, for to the sensitive mind nothing is so destructive of conceit as is over-kindness and appreciation. Conceit, indeed, is often the armour we assume in the presence of our detractors. If, then, we are grateful for words of God-speed and encouragement on the one side, and of welcome on the other, we are also conscious that we have to face the ordeal of criticism. But we look hopefully towards the result, conscious that we shall do the utmost that is in us, and conscious also that we shall face a public which in art knows no jealousy and no Chauvinism. All nations meet on the common ground of Art—that blessed spot of neutral territory—that land of cordial intent. It is in this sense that His Imperial Majesty the Kaiser has said that the Art of the Drama is a mediator between nations. We who regard art as a serious element of life cannot but feel grateful for such a lofty conception of the function of our art, and if it should be given to us, in however small a degree, to bind closer the intellects, the intelligencies, and the sympathies of nations, we shall indeed be justified in our claim to be something more than the day-flies of pleasure. I began by saying that in the stress of work I had not realised the seriousness of our mission. To-night I have for the first time heard the trumpet that sounds the reveille, and calls us to arms. On the eve of battle I pledge to you, my kind friends, my full heart for the token of "gemutlichkeit," the good-fellowship of the soul, which you have to-night proffered me, and when we appear before our German judges, our thoughts will cling to the memory of to-night, and from that memory we shall quaff refreshing hope and courage as I quaff this full and loving cup to you to-night.

MR. J. COMYNS CARR proposed the health of the Lord Mayor in a happy and humorous speech, and his Lordship's reply brought the proceedings to a close.

During the evening a delightful programme of music was performed, under the conductorship of Herr G. H. Mohr, by that gentleman's "Salon Sextett."

The Lord Mayor forwarded to the Kaiser the following telegram:—

"The English and German friends and disciples of Art, assembled in the name of Shakespeare, at a banquet at the Hotel Cecil with Beerbohm Tree, on the eve of his leaving for Berlin, beg to present to your Majesty, the great protector and lover of Art, their respectful greetings.—WILLIAM TRELOAR, Lord Mayor."

On Monday came this reply:—

"His Majesty the Emperor having received the telegram which you addressed to him last night on the occasion of the Beerbohm Tree banquet, I am commanded to convey to your lordship, as the chairman of the banquet, his Majesty's best thanks for this friendly attention.—STUMM."

FAREWELL AT HIS MAJESTY'S.

There was a full house at His Majesty's Theatre on Saturday, when Mr. Tree appeared for the last time before leaving for Berlin. In answer to repeated demands Mr. Tree made a short speech, in which he said he was taking a series of Shakespeare's plays to a public that loved Shakespeare and was devoted to his art. At the same time, he was carrying the banner of the British drama across the sea, and he would, he trusted, return with it untarnished.

THE START FROM VICTORIA.

Mr. Tree and his company, nearly eighty in number, left Victoria Station at eight on Monday. By that hour crowds had assembled in the station who cheered Mr. Tree loudly when he came on the platform. He bowed his acknowledgments from the carriage; and the train moved off after emotional farewells from excited friends.

THE STOP AT HANOVER.

The travellers were fortunate in having a smooth crossing. At Hanover on Tuesday afternoon, a deputation from the Royal Theatre was on the platform with hospitable offerings, Miss Collier and Miss Tree being presented with bouquets of orchids, roses, and lilies. The leader of the deputation in a short speech expressed the hope that Mr. Tree would be able to make a professional appearance in Hanover. Mr. Tree, speaking in German, recalled the connection between Great Britain and Hanover, and said that though his arrangements would not permit him to play in the capital of the province on this occasion, he hoped to be able to do so at some future date. If he did not come they would know that he had failed at Berlin. It had been said that there were many Englishmen who did not know where the Rhine was, but he could state with emphasis that, at all events, all the members of his company knew where Hanover was, and that was "just here."

ARRIVAL AT BERLIN.

At the Friedrichstrasse station, Berlin, Mr. Tree's manager, Mr. Henry Dana, and a corps of journalists had formed themselves into a Reception Committee. Mr. Tree wanted to go to the Theatre Royal to see a performance of Schiller's Wallenstein; but he was persuaded to dine and rest for the morrow.

BANQUET AT THE KAISERHOF.

On Wednesday a banquet was given at the Kaiserhof Hotel in honour of Mr. Tree and his company. The gathering included many distinguished in art, literature, and journalism. Among those present were the Intendant-General of the Royal Theatres, almost all the theatre managers, and many of the principal editors of Berlin.

The Intendant-General (Baron Huelsen) proposed the health of the King and the Kaiser, and the toast was most enthusiastically cheered.

Dr. John Lehmann expressed his thanks for the enjoyable days that were spent by the German journalists in London, and pointed out how closely interwoven were English and German dramatic art. On the German stage Shakespeare, Shaw, and Wilde were predominant, and there were days when only the works of British authors were performed. He concluded his speech by proposing Mr. Tree's health.

Mr. Tree, replying in German, remarked that as he had British and German blood in his veins, his father having been a German and his mother an Englishwoman, he felt himself called to be an exponent of Anglo-German friendship. He alluded to the popularity which the plays of Bernard Shaw and other English dramatists enjoy in Germany, and emphasised the difficulty of the task of playing Shakespeare before a German audience. He thanked all those who had agreed to help him in performing that task, and concluded his speech amidst enthusiastic applause with the expression of a sentiment that the visit would realise the hopes that were entertained on both sides.

Herr Ludwig Barnay, manager of the Royal Theatre, praised Mr. Tree as an actor, and observed how much the German stage had profited by its association with foreign, especially English and Italian, actors and artists. In the course of his speech Herr Barnay asked: "Why speak of reconciliation when no quarrel has taken place?" In conclusion he referred in terms of the highest enthusiasm to English hospitality.

ARTISTIC SOUVENIR.

The souvenir programme which Mr. Tree prepared for the opening performance on Friday included a prefatory note in German, ending:—

"Mit unterhänger Huldigung Ersuchen wir Genehmigung";

and very fine reproductions of photographs of Mr. Tree in ordinary morning dress, as Hamlet, as Svengali, as Falstaff, as King Richard II., as Malvolio, and as Antony.

Mr. Oswald Brand has written the following verses àpropos of Mr. Tree's visit:—

"God speed! The Thespian mantle don,
Fashioned for thee by Fame!
An alien soil to tread upon,
Clad as becomes thy name!
May all thy pomp and circumstance,
Thy genius and renown,
Bring German laurels to enhance,
Those in thy English crown.

And buckle well thy armour on!
Art's trusty arms unsheath!
For there must be brave battle done,
To win that foreign wreath!
So let sans fear thy prowess shine,
Accoutred cap-à-pè!
The champion of those gifts divine
The gods have given thee.

Each year the Drama's Teuton sons
Have landed on our shore!
Our honoured guests, right welcome ones,
All actors to the core!
Now England's envoy thou, we hope
Berlin will at its best,
See thy great stage kaleidoscope
Thou 'Wizard of the West.'

So well equipped set proudly out,
On a victorious march!
And then quick turn and round about
Through Art's triumphal arch!
Thy mission spent, the coming years
Will proud remembrance bring,
And oft perchance within thy ears
These echoed words will ring:—

'Wilkommen uns, du Musen Sohn!
Vom fernen Themse-Strand!
Du Herscher auf dem Künstler Thron,
Wir reichen dir die Hand,
Und spenden dir des Rhumes Lohn,
In Deutschland, stammverwandt!
Die Kunst gehört nicht der Nation
Die Welt ihr Vaterland!'"

The following appeared in the Tribune of Friday:—

THE ACTOR-MANAGER-DIPLOMATIST.

A wizard of dramatic art,
A histrionic Merlin,
Our Mr. Tree is on the Spree,
And likes it—that is, likes to be
In theatre-loving Berlin.

"His Majesty's" Ambassador,
He puts the courtier's suit on:
It fits him well, but truth to tell
His magic robe, his Shakespeare-spell,
Will most delight the Teuton.

Thus statecraft high and stagecraft join
As one befriending factor,
And on the Spree the Germans see
The laurel-branches of the Tree—
The triumph of the Actor.

G. F. R. A.

Mr. Fred Terry's Day.

MR. FRED TERRY, in a Daily Mail symposium about "Work and Pleasure," says:—"My ideal day would be equal portions of work, recreation, and sleep. I should like to have eight hours of each; but, of course, that is impossible. Many people think that an actor's work is only play, but that is very far from being the case; our work is as exacting and as tiring as any. During rehearsals we are very often hard at it from early morning till late at night, but I usually try to take an hour off for luncheon. Then I have an immense number of plays to read, good, bad, and indifferent, from would-be dramatists."

Playing for Pleasure.

THE most remarkable thing, says Mr. E. H. Sothern in the Morning Leader, about the productions which Miss Marlowe and I are going to present to London is the attitude of my friends. They take such a gloomy aspect of the matter—quite as though I were being driven into something disagreeable against my will. They sort of take a fellow by the hand and pat him on the shoulder, you know, and they seem to say:—"Well, old fellow, if you must do this sort of thing, of course I wish you well. But I'm really sorry for you." It never seems to occur to them that we are doing this because we like it—that we take great pleasure in producing these beautiful plays, and that we're by no means forced into it. It's like the idea some people have when a fellow talks of playing Hamlet. They look on it as a sort of a pose. They say, "Well, now, this fellow has reached the point where he wants to play Hamlet. Isn't it too bad? But I suppose they all have to pass through that period, and he may be the better for it." Isn't it remarkable that they do not realise that one wants to play Hamlet for its dramatic worth, and that no one would play it were it not a great play?

"THE TRUTH."

A Comedy, in Four Acts, by Clyde Fitch, played for the first time in London at the Comedy Theatre on Saturday, April 6.

Tom Warder ..... MR. ALLAN AYNESWORTH
Frederick Lindon ..... MR. DAWSON MILWARD
Stephen Roland ..... MR. DION BOUCICAULT
Jenks ..... MR. HORTON COOPER
Messenger ..... MR. DONALD CALTHROP
Eve Lindon ..... MISS GRACE LANE
Laura Fraser ..... MISS SYBIL CARLISLE
Mrs. Genevieve Crespigny ..... MISS ROSINA FILIPPI
Becky Warder ..... MISS MARIE TEMPEST

Mr. Clyde Fitch, to use a phrase from a famous music hall song, "'As our simperfy." He has been inspired with an excellent "notion"—one of those simple, universally-appreciable ideas which tempt a dramatist irresistibly. So charmed has he been with his trouvaille that he has started out on his journey without any definite idea of how he was to cover the latter half of it. If Mr. Fitch's inspiration had been less happy we should be inclined to be harder on his falling off; as it is, we can only regret it, wish matters had been otherwise, and enjoy the excellences of the play which far outbalance its defects.

We have all of us met with people like Becky Warder in The Truth; people who lie, not from fear or interest, but simply by nature, habit, and instinct. There are many cases of married women, naturally truthful, having been driven into lying to their husbands by fear, and having found their first fib develop into a mountain of duplicity. But Becky's case is quite different. She lies for pleasure, pour l'amour de l'art, to keep her hand in, so to speak. She is a victim of heredity; her father is a congenital prevaricator, and, like the daughter of Mme. Angot, Mrs. Warder "takes after her parent." As long as her taradiddles are confined to misstatements as to her winnings at cards, and to the destination of a cheque supposed to be devoted to the purchase of a new bonnet, no great harm follows. But the consequences are serious when she "practises to deceive" about more serious matters. Frederick Lindon, a married man, conceives an infatuation for Becky. He is on bad terms with, and separated from, his wife, Eva, and Becky tries to bring them together, with the result of entanglement. With the too-frequent fatuity of silly women who think they can play with fire with impunity, Becky goes on meeting Lindon at Richmond and Mme. Tussaud's—in fact, compromising herself with him pretty completely. Lindon's jealous wife sets detectives to watch the doings of the pair, and lays the evidence thus obtained before Warder, who refuses to accept it, and adheres to his belief in his wife's veracity. Becky sends a note to Lindon putting him on his guard, so that he may deny the accusation of having been "out" with her. But Lindon, taking the letter for an encouragement to proceed to extremities, arrives, and embraces her passionately. Becky, who has only gratified her love of intrigue by flirting with him, orders him out of the house. In order to conceal the fact of the interview, Beck tells her husband another lie. This time, by accident, his suspicions are aroused. His faith in his wife is destroyed; and when she asserts that she is innocent, and that she has repulsed Lindon's advances with scorn, Warder cannot believe her word. He goes away to consider his course; and Becky runs down to Brighton to see her father. He also disbelieves her story, and resorts to more chicanery. He wires to Warder that Becky is dying. She tries hard to return to the paths of truth, but is over-persuaded by her parent, and induced to agree to again deceive Warder, who, when he arrives, learns the real state of the case from the landlady. When Becky sees him, her better nature triumphs, and she makes a "clean breast" of everything to her husband, who forgives her on promise to amend; and so, happily, ends the play. Those who criticise Mr. Fitch's two latter acts should be prepared with a scenario, showing how the idea could have been better exploited. The Truth, taken as a whole, is a clever, interesting, and amusing play.

If the piece does not evoke the enthusiasm in London which it has done in New York, the opportunities which it affords for a remarkable display of acting by an exceptionally strong cast must earn the gratitude of all playgoers. Miss Marie Tempest has never had a part better calculated to display her talent than Becky, the woman with the straight heart and crooked tongue. Becky's lying is an inherited instinct, laughed at from her childhood, and her fibs are told with such gay irresponsibility and such captivating unconcern by Miss Tempest, that it is impossible to take them with the seriousness which lapses from truth deserve. Miss Tempest's well-known powers as a comedienne have full play in the first act; and her Becky Warder is so buoyant, so full of natural sweetness of disposition, that, by the time she is caught in a net of falsehoods of her own weaving, and every struggle to free herself only entangles her more hopelessly in the meshes, we have taken her so completely to our hearts that, as we watch the struggles of the poor little victim we long to help her to escape from the consequences of her own folly. Miss Tempest has a wonderful power of moving her audience from laughter to tears in one moment; she rises to the height of tragic power when she sits stricken, with white face, and eyes with the look of a trapped animal in them, listening to the decree of her much-loved husband, that henceforth they must live as strangers, as he can never trust her again. For once the glib, lying tongue fails her, and she can only repeat brokenly again and again "I love you, I love you." As the type of a well-bred English gentleman, pleasant voiced and pleasant mannered, Mr. Allan Aynesworth has few superiors on the stage; but Mr. Aynesworth can show us other phases of an Englishman's character: he can show us the husband touched in his most vital point—his honour; the man of deep feelings, stirred to a frenzy of jealousy, keeping his emotions in check after the first outburst by the exercise of strong self-control, but showing his suffering by every tense line in his face, by the very tonelessness of his usually vibrant voice. Mr. Dawson Milward gives a most clever sketch of a fascinating and unprincipled scamp. He portrays the libertine in a very subtle and effective manner, and scores highly. Mr. Dion Boucicault plays what has become known as an "Eccles" part with odd touches of pathos and with quaintly humorous effects, which give the character a remarkable individuality. The performance of Miss Grace Lane is all the more deserving of praise in that the part is not particularly well suited to Miss Lane's temperament. As Eve Lindon she shows us a woman, naturally badly balanced, whose jealousy has rendered her unreasonable to the point of insanity. As Mrs. Genevieve Crespigny, the lady who insists upon being called a lady, who is insulted at the idea of taking boarders, but "consents to receive an occasional paying guest," Miss Rosina Filippa is a source of pure delight whenever she is on the stage. Her "gentility" is something marvellous; it is seen in every inflection of Miss Filippi's voice in her choice of words, in her walk, in her dress. Miss Sybil Carlisle as the would-be peacemaker is so sweet and kind and looks so pretty that her efforts to set matters straight all round evoke the warm sympathy of the audience. Mr. Horton Cooper is good as a well-trained servant; and although Mr. Donald Calthrop has only a few words to say, he conveys an excellent impression of a brisk and breezy Messenger. With acting such as it receives from Miss Tempest and her supporters, The Truth has every chance of success.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

Royalty, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here, in A Night Out. Mr. Charles Sugden in his original part of Paillard is as easy and natural as ever; the rôle of Pinglet is sustained by Mr. Edward Thirlby, whose energy and talent contribute largely to the fun; as Mathieu, Mr. Mark Lester gives a distinctive character study; Mr. Dare Austin deserves credit for his doubling of Brochard and Botticelli; Messrs. Fred Penley and Thomas Barry are amusing as the waiters; as the student Maxine, Mr. Geoffrey Saville does well; Mrs. Charles Sugden plays Marcelle with considerable grace; as Mrs. Pinglet, Miss Constance Groves supplies an amusing portrayal; Victorine is saucily represented by Miss Lillian Stafford; and the four daughters of Mathieu are attractively sketched by Misses Elmie Kemp, Elvira Stuart, Dorothy Dance, and Muriel Dance. The comedy is preceded by The Ruby Heart.

King's, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—Mr. William Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl is here. Miss Frances Earle as Elphin Haye deserves great praise for her interpretation; Jim Cheese is well played by Mr. William Stephens; Mr. Arthur Harrolds' fine voice is heard to advantage in "By the Mediterranean Shore"; Mrs. Shimmering Black is well embodied by Miss Beatrice Anderson; Miss Gertrude Melville as Daisy Fallowfield puts plenty of life into her work; Miss Jeanie Richards gives a clever character-study of Liza Shoddam; Mr. Percy E. Wright does well as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; and Mr. Green Taylor as Mr. Talk is capital; Mr. W. Norman is very amusing as Downham, and Mr. H. Courtin acts in fine style as A. Bunker Bliss.

Grand, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Leigh's company is here with Leah Kleschna, in which Miss Bessie Rignold gives a spirited delineation of the heroine; Mr. Paul Belmore as Kleschna gives a strenuous rendering of the old criminal; Paul Sylvaine is finely portrayed by Mr. William F. Grant, and Schram is fittingly depicted by Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; Mr. Hamilton Deane as Raoul Berton invests the character with comedy, and Gerald Berton is ably handled by Mr. Roland Daniel; Madame Berton is played in a natural manner by Miss Ethel Russell, and Miss Helene Belgrave looks pleasing as Claire Berton. Less prominent parts are filled by Miss Violet Thorold as Sophie, Miss May Hamond as Freda, and Miss Edith Summers as Charlotte.

Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company is here in In Holy(?) Russia. Catska Lavotski and Renee Rubinoff are well played by Miss Florence Creagh and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy; Mr. Cassidy as an Irish servant supplies some smart comedy; Mr. Arthur Stratton as Colonel Forrest excels, and Messrs. Frank Copeland, Martin Sands, Carl Rovinelli, J. Cuthbertson, Fred Lloyd, and Robert Cockroft are excellent.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—At the World's Mercy is here under the direction of Chas. Hermann. Praise is due to the efforts of Miss Madge Devereaux as Alice Lloyd and Miss Cissie Millford as Kitty Knott and Skittles. The acting of Messrs. Chas. Hermann, John Cecil, and G. D. Knight leaves little to be desired. The singing and dancing of Mr. Jesse Boxer are smart; he is ably assisted by Gwenny Ashdown as Dot.

Lyceum. — Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—An Unwedded Wife, which was at the Metropole last week, is here, played by Miss Ethel van Praagh and Mr. Edward J. Whitty's company, who have a hearty welcome.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—Herbert Darnley's company in The Skirmishers provide a lively half-hour of fun; Chris. Richards is as agile as ever, and his acrobatic dancing is wonderful; Russell Wallett's "lady in black" turn is always enjoyable; George Brooks and Lizzie Daniels contribute clever and catchy songs; the Three Amaranths are wonderful dancers; Topsy and Usher are a clever coloured couple; the Geretti Sisters with their daring trapeze performance are retained; Kitty Marion sings acceptably; and the Bioscope shows several fine films.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. N. Bostock.—Clarence C. Carri's company in Office Hours has proved a great source of enjoyment. The company includes Frank A. Wood, the well-known tenor, and Miss Violet Hicks. Charles Fisher's Pocket Opera Company give a good rendering of numbers from Il Trovatore; Carl Howard greatly amuses the audience with his parody of conjuring; Goggin and Davis are clever comedy acrobats; Starr and Leslie are amusing in their comical juggling act; James Dunn presents two well-illustrated songs; Lozelle goes through some extremely clever trapeze tricks; the Neilson Sisters sing and dance acceptably; and George Christian scores a success as a "Silly singer of silly songs."

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Sam Elton displays wonderful ability and agility in his scena; May Moore Duprez as a Dutch girl is full of quaint mannerisms; Driscoll and Beattie cause roars of laughter with the sketch, McPhee, M.P.; Verno and Voyce are doing new business this week; George French is decidedly clever; and an excellent turn is provided by Josh Dixon. Annie Nelson is a vocalist of ability; Clarice Mayne shines in original songs and in imitations; and the Crown Trio of vocalists contribute an enjoyable turn.

Coliseum. — Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Sam Gething; Acting-Manager, Harry Burdette.—The Ten Loonies are here creating the usual mirth; the Boy Army, in a series of cavalry drills, movements, and clever gun and carriage dismantling, &c., are a strong card; Chas. Dillon, comedian, and Sinclair and Parr, in song and patter, do good turns; and The Mystery of the Cliffs is well acted and staged. Barton and Ashley, in Canal Boat Sal, are great favourites; Ryan and Hall, in a comedy acrobatic scene, are very funny; the Bohemians, Will and Madge, show ability as instrumentalists; and good fooling is done by the Two Bostons.

Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Richard Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Here this week are Jack and Evelyn, comedy burlesque artists; the Tally-ho Trio of harmony vocalists are well received. Others engaged are Florence Deighton, double-voiced vocalist; the Brothers Obo, patter comedians; Prof. Glennie's Marionettes; Chummie La Mars, burlesque comedienne; Sam Thompson, Scotch comedian; Will Sergeant, Anglo-American comique; Arthur Boyne, comedian; and Woolmer Young, vocal comedian.

Gaiety, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—A. J. Gamble takes the place of honour here. He has lost none of his humorous eccentricities. Cookson is a ventriloquist above the average; a sprightly comedienne is Kate Lund; the Sisters Terry are excellently received; Harry Mars in a comedy gymnastic entertainment is clever; Tom Bassett is as great an attraction as formerly; and the Robsons do an eccentric "business" successfully. The films shown on the Gaiety Bioscope terminate a good programme.

Miss Bessie Butt, the principal boy of the pantomime at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, was presented on the stage on the 30th ult., by Mr. Lester Collingwood, with the nineteenth Owl annual prize for the principal lady of the pantomime which had enjoyed the longest run. Mr. Collingwood also presented the Owl's beautiful pantomime bouquets to Miss Minnie D'Aubyn and Miss Nellie Lunelle, the principal boy and second principal girl of the pantomime. Mr. Syd Sylvester presented Mr. Collingwood, on behalf of his company, with a framed illuminated address; after which Mr. Collingwood presented Mr. Bert Browne with a brooch consisting of a pair of gold bees, in recognition of his services at the various benefits; Mr. Jones, the assistant stage-manager, pany; and a kerb and set of fire brasses were given for "The Guv'nor's" office.

A copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

In the Court of Chancery on Tuesday an application was made for the delivery of 855 packages of scenery from America for Mr. E. H. Sothern's and Miss Julia Marlowe's coming season at the Waldorf Theatre. It was stated that the scenery arrived on the liner Minnehaha, and that Mr. Sothern's manager arranged that Messrs. Pickford should cart it from Tilbury to the theatre. The Custom House broker in New York, however, had consigned it to Messrs. Hickie, Borman, Grant, and Co., who claimed the right to transport it to the theatre. Mr. Justice Warrington's suggestion that the dispute should be settled by the delivery of the scenery to Messrs. Pickford and the payment to Messrs. Hickie, Borman, Grant, and Co. of £26 19s. 9d., and a further sum of £56 into Court was agreed to.

"ATONEMENT."

A Drama, in One Act, by Albert Chevalier, played for the first time on any stage at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, on Monday, April 8.

The Rev. Philip Cartwright ..... Mr. Albert Chevalier
George Cartwright ..... Mr. Cyril Fairlie
John Gordon ..... Mr. Julian Cross
Parker ..... Mr. Philip Durham
Mrs. Cartwright ..... Miss Keith Lytton

(from our own correspondent.)

Into this somewhat sombre little play Mr. Chevalier has succeeded in packing a great amount of interest, and in its chief point it presents again the problem of "the everlasting injustice to a woman."

The curtain rises on the interior of the Vicarage at Edenmarsh. It is Christmas Day, and apparently a happy time is promised for everyone concerned, and particularly for the vicar's son, George Cartwright, who has made a happy choice, and become engaged to a suitable and charming lady. But the promised happiness is marred by the sudden appearance at the house of a former tutor of young George Cartwright. In a few brief words this tutor, John Gordon, accuses the vicar's son of betraying his girl friend. George admits his guilt, but refuses to marry the girl he has wronged. Thereupon Gordon hands to the old vicar a letter explaining the painful circumstances of the case. Alone with his son, the vicar implores him to make honourable amends and marry the girl. George still refuses, and urges on his own behalf that his father does not know the world or its temptations. The old vicar now confesses to his son that he, too, has sinned, and that George Cartwright himself is the offspring of an early love, and Mrs. Cartwright is, after all, only his foster-mother. The son is humbled, and is led to see his duty clearly, and is prepared to marry his former love.

As the vicar, the Rev. Philip Cartwright, Mr. Chevalier again shows his wonderful versatility and his intense and earnest work enlisted the keenest interest of the audience, and placed the success of the little drama beyond doubt. Mr. Cyril Fairlie as George Cartwright played a somewhat difficult part naturally, and with excellent judgment. Mr. Julian Cross was an able and impressive John Gordon; Miss Keith Lytton was sincere and womanly Mrs. Cartwright; and Mr. Philip Durham gave able help as Parker.

We understand that Mr. Joseph Bebb intends touring the well-known Drury Lane sporting drama, The Prodigal Daughter, which has had a four years' rest, and should be heartily welcomed by managers. Miss Millie Ford will be cast for Rose Woodmere, the title-rôle, and will be supported by a strong company. The tour will be under the direction of Mr. A. Rogers, who has been associated with the play in the past.

BEERBOHM TREE IN BERLIN.

"All nations," said Mr. BEERBOHM TREE in his eloquent speech at the farewell dinner at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday, "meet on the common ground of Art—that blessed spot of neutral territory, that land of cordial intent. It is in this sense that His Imperial Majesty the KAISER has said that the Art of the Drama is a mediator between nations." The truth is, hostility between nations chiefly arises from misunderstanding. NELSON'S ideal attitude for young midshipmen, "To hate a Frenchman as they did the Devil," could only have been maintained by keeping up certain erroneous conceptions of the average Gaul; and the German public, who, in the course of the late war, believed in the caricatures in which British soldiers were represented as shooting down their foes from behind a barricade of Boer women, must have been sadly misinformed as to the characteristics of Tommy Atkins. The objection of Germans to the English is easily understood. The British nation is seen at its worst when represented by vulgar tourists. In England the Germans who have made this country their home get on excellently with the English. The unfortunate thing is that so few ever return to Germany to tell their compatriots that the British, when you know them, are not half as bad as they seem.

The only way, of course, is to send someone to demonstrate this decidedly; and no emissaries can be more fit and appropriate than the actor and actress. When Sir HENRY IRVING went to America in 1883 he increased and consolidated the brotherly feeling between the people of America and England; and it is certain that the visit of Mr. TREE to Berlin will have a beneficial effect on the relations between this country and Germany. The German nation, in its present form, and with its present aspirations, is quite a modern invention. The old idea of the typical Teuton was a fat, dreamy person, with a big pipe, who elaborated a camel out of his inner consciousness. The up-to-date notion of him is a well-set-up man in a spiked helmet, who knocks his heels together when he bows. Early in the eighteen hundreds it could actually be written, "The more profound study of Æsthetics has among the Germans, by nature a speculative rather than a practical people, led to this consequence: that works of art, and tragedies more especially, have been executed on abstract theories, more or less misunderstood." The drama in Germany well into the eighteenth century could scarcely be said to exist; and then it lived upon insipid and diffuse translations from the French, or imitations of the same school. This taste was overthrown by LESSING, who, as the editor of a theatrical paper, naturally advocated home manufacture. As far as the European world goes, LESSING is a neglectable quantity. Who nowadays admires or cares to consider Minna von Barnhelm or Emilia Galotti? As a dramatist, GOETHE, too, was a failure. He took the story of Faust from a marionette play, and elaborated it with many philosophic and poetical excrescences—beautiful in themselves, but injuring the work as a drama. Indeed, it is only by returning to the marionette outline that Faust can be made an effective piece. Iphigenia in Tauris was a mere echo of the Greek drama. As for SCHILLER, he was a defective imitator of SHAKESPEARE, or perhaps we ought rather to say of the pre-Shakespearean playwrights. Wallenstein, Maria Stuart, and The Maid of Orleans are, however, good stage plays of their genre; and Wilhelm Tell is a fine example of the sincerely patriotic drama. After SCHILLER, the German stage was flooded with romance and sickly sentiment, till the "modern movement" was made. The Germans have been praised for so often playing SHAKESPEARE in the old days. The fact is they had nothing of their own, even approaching "the Bard," to play.

It is well that Mr. TREE has elected to present a Shakespearean programme in Berlin; we should cut a sorry figure if we attempted to vie with the modern Germans in authorship. We have absolutely nothing of national growth that can challenge comparison with a work like Magda, for instance. Yet why should we be "down-hearted"? Art has no country; and have we not seen several of our own actresses besides Signora DUSE and Mdme. SARAH BERNHARDT in SUDERMANN'S masterpiece? The Germans do not mourn because they have not been able to breed a GEORGE BERNARD SHAW; they simply translate his pieces and put them on their stages in Berlin; and they do the same with the works of PINERO, ZANGWILL, DICKENS, and others, including Sir ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE. We must not conceive the great German public as feeding exclusively on the serious drama; they "like a bit of fun" as well as any nation. The only difference between the two nations is that we are stupid without being "stodgy"; while the Germans are "stodgy" without being stupid. What English audience, for instance, would have "stuck it out" for five hours in witnessing a performance of Antony and Cleopatra, poorly mounted, and with only one actor—the representative of Enobarbus—who could make any impression? Yet this heroic deed was actually performed, according to Mr. SIDNEY LEE, at a Burg-Theatre, on the occasion of his visit to that "stately and dignified" house. We feel certain that the Germans will be so much delighted with Mr. TREE and his company that they will insist on his visiting them annually, just as the German Theatre Company visit us. Other leading managers will follow Mr. TREE'S example; and it will be the correct thing amongst London actor-managers to have, yearly, a season in the German capital. Their kindly intercourse with German audiences will do more to bring about a good understanding between the two countries than any efforts of diplomacy. For diplomats deal with the princes; but actors appeal to the people.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, April 8, the Play, by Alfred Sutro, entitled
"THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

A strong programme has been forthcoming at the Fulham Theatre this week in the shape of Mr. Sutro's powerful play, presented by a capable and well-balanced company. The leading rôle, Jack Frobisher, is played by Mr. A. E. Anson with intensity and self-control. He is well seconded by Mr. G. A. Brandram as Hankey Bannister, a pleasant study of the rough diamond type. Mr. Cyril Baleine is amusing as the Marquis of Steventon; and Mr. Alex. Cassy does well in the small part of Lord Drayton. Mr. A. W. Tyrer, who plays Harry Dallas, has made the part quite his own. The other society men, Bertram Hannaford, the Hon. Wilfred Renton, and Lord Marchmont, are capably represented by Messrs. G. Percy, J. Herbert, and W. S. Lane respectively. Miss Marguerite Cellier acts with great sympathy and power as Lady Westerby; and Miss Edith Cuthbert scores as Miss Mornington. Miss Nona Wynne's performance of Lady Lucy deserves warm commendation. It is full of cleverness, and has a strong sense of humour. Miss Florence Jackson as Lady Alethea Frobisher is a worthy partner to Mr. Anson. She is very successful in portraying the varying moods of the character. Playfulness, anger, half-hearted repentance, pride, and the triumph of maternal love and wifely loyalty are all shown with great dramatic skill. The piece, as presented, shows every sign of careful management, and Mr. Alexander as organiser and Mr. Brandram as stage-manager are to be congratulated on their success.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, BIRMINGHAM.

THE PRESENTATION OF THE "OWL" PANTOMIME CAKE AND BOUQUETS

took place at the Alexandra Theatre on Saturday night, when, in the presence of a crowded house, Mr. Lester Collingwood, in the Palace scene, where it occupied the centre of the stage, in the limelight, asked Miss Bessie Butt's acceptance of the Owl's nineteenth annual prize for the principal lady of the pantomime which had enjoyed the longest run. This he did in felicitous terms, thanking the Editor of this paper for the institution of the prize, and expressing the hope that Miss Butt, the notable Cinderella of a memorable production, would live to win many such rewards. Mr. Collingwood also presented the Owl's beautiful pantomime bouquets to Miss Minnie D'Aubyn and Miss Nellie Lunelle, the principal boy and second principal girl, respectively, of his pantomime, and complimented the recipients gracefully, while praising the handiwork of Messrs. Perkins and Sons, from whose nurseries the bouquets had been supplied. Those ladies, like Miss Butt, bowed their acknowledgments. The cake, which was the most successful of the series made for us by the Birmingham Dairy Company, Limited, at their Grand Theatre Restaurant in Corporation-street, was greatly admired, and especially appreciated by those amongst whom it was subsequently distributed by Miss Butt, behind the scenes.

Following the ceremony just described, Mr. Syd Sylvester presented Mr. Collingwood with a framed illuminated address, on behalf of his company, which was accepted in suitable terms, after which Mr. Collingwood presented Mr. Bert Browne with a brooch consisting of a pair of gold bees—B. B., in recognition of his services at the various benefits. Then Mr. Jones, the assistant stage-manager, was given a cruet-stand by the artists of the company, and, finally, a kerb and set of fire brasses were produced as a gift for "The Guv'nor's" office.—Birmingham Owl, April 5, 1907.

AT the Aldershot Theatre Royal, this week, A Soldier of France is being capably presented. Mr. Arthur Hinton gives a vigorous portrayal of the loyal Corporal Jean, and a powerful personation of Pauline is contributed by Miss Leilla Zillwood. Mr. Travis Green in the thankless rôle of Judas is clever; Mr. Arthur Lowry, Victor Millard, and Frank Hudspeth are capital as the Duke, Lieut. Louis, and Barnave respectively; and humour is freely introduced by Mr. W. Drury and Miss Jennie Clare. Miss Lydia Andre's Rita is ably played; and Miss Dolly Turner as Little Louis does well.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. BERLIN, THURSDAY, April 11.—The manager of the Neues is preferably German in his tastes, and, in contradistinction to his fellow-managers, seldom or never produces a play, or even an adaptation, from any other country. This is not altogether an advantage; but it pleases the Chauvinists, and the theatre does as good business as any in Berlin. Herr Bernstein-Sawersky's latest production is a "tendency-piece," aiming at certain rules and regulations of the Prussian law courts. Distinct traces of talent are apparent in the psychological passages and in one or two dramatic scenes; but, taken as a whole, the piece is too spun out, and the audience loses patience and interest as the four long acts draw to a close. Captain von Hilden, a retired Army officer, and now head-inspector of the fire-insurance company "Teutonia," is unjustly accused of forging a bill. There is only one person who can prove his innocence, and that is Hilden's old friend, Kommerzienrat Riemann—a wealthy and highly-respected citizen. Riemann's testimony in the witness-box would save his friend, but he is afraid of the publicity. In his early youth Riemann—driven to desperation—had committed an embezzlement, for which he served a short term of imprisonment with extenuating circumstances. The story is long forgotten; many of the present generation know nothing of it. Herr Riemann is the father of a coming magistrate himself, and the disgrace of being compelled to own to a long-atoned-for crime is too much for him. It is against this cruel law that the author fights with might and main. A witness in Prussia is asked under oath if he has been "vorbestraft," and is frequently badgered into giving details that have no bearing on the case in point, and all this is in the open court, to which public and reporters have access. Through three long acts the unhappy Riemann struggles and squirms between the demands of his conscience and his position, and in the meanwhile Von Hilden is sentenced. Finally, after a full confession to his family and a consultation with them, Riemann makes up his mind to speak, but it is too late; his friend has hanged himself in his cell. The piece met with a cordial reception, the author being called before the curtain and warmly applauded. The interpretation was thoroughly satisfactory.

THE Monte Carlo Opera Company commenced their season at the Royal Opera last week, and the undertaking is proving successful beyond anticipation. An ardent patron is the Kaiser, who has attended several of the performances in the company of the Prince of Monaco, who is His Majesty's guest for a few days. The first performance was Berlioz's dramatic legend La Damnition de Faust, a work which, despite its musical beauties, always fails in effect on the operatic stage. Its interpretation was an excellent one on the whole, although the impersonator of Faust was audibly indisposed. It is scarcely necessary to add that every possible care and taste had been expended on the mounting. Boito's Méphistophélès created a very favourable impression, the singing of M. Chaliapine in the title-rôle being especially fine. By the Kaiser's wish the duet in the second part, between Helena and Panthalis, was repeated. The principal artists, including Mmes. Storchio and Brozia and MM. Chaliapine and Sobinow, were received by His Majesty in the Imperial box, and highly complimented. This evening Verdi's Don Carlos (in three acts and six tableaux) is to be produced. The work has never yet been done in Berlin, and as the cast is a particularly good one, much interest has been shown in the production.

IN the bill of the Chamber Plays at the Deutsches Theatre Ibsen's Comedy of Love has found a place. Director Reinhardt scarcely displayed his customary excellent judgment in the selection of a play which never has been, and never will be, a success. Die Comödie der Liebe was written in Ibsen's earliest youth. The author evidently intended a similar theme to that of the Pillars of Society, which was written fifteen years later; but his powers of description failed him, and many other necessary qualifications also. Ibsen never was a graceful verse-maker, and this he himself acknowledged in later years. Even the Lessing Theatre—the Ibsen theatre par excellence—has always avoided this crude piece of playwriting, and not even a good cast and splendid mounting at the Deutsches could obtain for it a success. These chamber plays, by the way, are doing particularly good business. They are not given in the Deutsches Theatre itself, as many people seem to imagine, but in an adjoining building, which was formerly a small concert hall. This has been converted into a bijou theatre, with high prices of admission. Only such plays are here performed as are in keeping with the intimate character of the building. Director Reinhardt's admirable company and his own incomparable taste in mounting make the "Kammerspiele" a very great attraction for all lovers of high-class plays.

DR. BLUMENTHAL'S amusing "journalistic" comedy Das Glashaus is being given again at the Royal Schauspielhaus. It has not lost any of its popularity, and the interest shown in it by the Kaiser has given it an impetus. The piece is very brightly acted, Frau Schramm, our most famous comedienne, being foremost as usual.

THE Mozart cycle at the New Royal Opera has proved very successful. On Sunday Figaro's Hochzeit, with Frau Herzog, Frau Scheele-Müller, Herren Naval, Hoffmann, and other first singers of the Royal Opera, was given, and on Monday the cycle ceased with Così Fan Tutti. All the performances have been most enjoyable; Dr. Richard Strauss has conducted the last three.

ON Sunday afternoon the Lessing Theatre gave a final performance—for this season—of Die Weber, and in the evening Die Stützen der Gesellschaft was given. The company has gone on a lengthy tour through Holland, opening at Amsterdam this week. In the meantime, the company which has been got together by the eminent actor, Herr Emanuel Reicher, gives a season at the Lessing, commencing to-night with Sardou's comedy Marquise.

MISS MAUDE ROOSEVELT, a cousin of the President of the United States, has just been engaged at the Stadt Theatre at Elberfeld for grand opera. Miss Roosevelt, who is young and extremely good-looking, is a pupil of Jacques Bouhy, of Paris, and of Rosa Sucher, Berlin.

AT the Lui'sen Nestroy's humorous farce, Lumpacivagabondus, has been revived, and is proving a good draw. The acting is very vivacious and good all round.

DURING the indisposition last week of Miss Lilian Braithwaite her parts in The Peacemaker and The Stronger Sex, at the Apollo Theatre, were played with great success by Miss Victoria Addison.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"MADAME LA DOUANE."

Play, in Four Acts, by MM. A. Dinter and J. La Rode, produced at Déjazet, on April 10.

François Sperber	M. A. CALMETTES
Schimmel	M. SIMON-MAX
Zipfel	M. PHILIPPON
Pimpe	M. MAX-ANDRE
Biederman	M. BAILLY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, April 11.—Tire-au-Flanc! which kept the bill at Déjazet for a considerable time, has now been replaced by Madame la Douane. Although translated from the German, the work surely was never produced in the Fatherland in its present form. If so, author, manager, and performers would be languishing in jail for having dared to speak slightingly of the Emperor and deriding the German officials. The scene is laid in Alsace, in a small inn, on the Swiss frontier. Schimmel, the innkeeper, is also a smuggler, in league with the famous contrabandist, François Sperber. The latter, a kind of Fra Diavolo, is a handsome youth, French at heart, and, having returned from his military service in France, once more declares war to the Imperial Customs. He is a wholesale importer of contraband goods, and when the story begins is trying to smuggle a large quantity of Swiss watches into Alsace. But the authorities have wind of the affair, and they try to arrest him. In fact, the officers enter the inn before he has time to escape. Schimmel trembles in his shoes; but the resourceful François is equal to the occasion. Von Pufki, a high official from Berlin, who travels incognito in order to pay surprise visits to custom house officers to see whether they perform their duty, is hourly expected, and François hits upon the ingenious plan of impersonating him. The ruse succeeds, and it is the real Von Pufki who is mistaken for François and arrested. The watches are duly smuggled into Alsace, and it is only when François is safe on the other side of the frontier that he addresses a letter to the chief custom house official, advising him to release the pseudo-François and tender him his apologies. Moreover, François has succeeded in inducing a dozen young Alsatians to go with him and enter the French Army, and this patriotic act afforded much pleasure to the easily-amused audience. A little love story interwoven into the plot comes as a happy relief to this otherwise childish story. M. André Calmettes, who used to play important rôles at the Vaudeville, under Mme. Réjane's management, impersonated François with his usual skill; but it is, nevertheless, a comedown. M Simon-Max fell into his old failing, and overacted his part to such an extent that he seemed afflicted with the St. Vitus's dance. MM. Wagmann and Bailly, on the other hand, supplied capital types of German officials; and Mlle. Perrot and Rolle gave a good account, one of an amorous spinster, and the other of a love-sick German maiden. The new piece met with a cordial reception.

LAST week we mentioned in these columns that the rumour that M. Fursy (from the Boîte à Fursy) intended taking over the Palais-Royal management was not likely to prove true. Our prediction has been fulfilled, for this gentleman has made a public declaration, stating "that for a moment he thought of risking the affair." Now, however, he feels no longer tempted, and he winds up his statement by saying: "And I intend to remain in my 'Boite,' where, after all, I feel happy and contented." M. Fursy is a wise man.

I JUST hear of the death of Mme. Désirée Artot de Padilla at the age of seventy-two. She was born in Paris of Belgian parents, and for two years was pupil of Mme. Viardot-Garcia. Thanks to her magnificent voice, she had a marvellous success, and on Meyerbeer's recommendation obtained an engagement at the Paris Opera. She afterwards married the Spanish singer, Padilla y Ramos, with whom she sang in different cities. After her retirement from the stage she devoted herself to teaching, and her little house in the Rue de Prony became the rendezvous of artistic Paris. A great artist, and a lady in the highest sense of the word, Mme. Artot de Padilla will be deeply regretted by all who were fortunate enough to know her. Mlle. Lola de Padilla, her youngest daughter, is now engaged at the Opéra-Comique in Berlin.

A GALA subscription is announced at the Opera to raise the necessary funds for the erection of a statue to Beethoven on the Ranelagh, the triangular grass-plot on the Muette side of the Bois-de-Boulogne. The site has been given by the Paris Municipal Council, who showed a proper spirit in wanting to honour the memory of the great musician. Unfortunately, their spirit carries them a little too far. They have become statue-mad, and our beautiful city is being slowly changed into a kind of second-rate museum for cheap sculpture. Statues jump up from every side. Men in frock-coats, in evening dress, in walking coats, sitting, lying, or standing, are to be seen at every street corner, and look with a bored expression on the passer-by. Alfred de Musset was fortunate to escape the statue epidemic for a long time. But last year he, too, fell a victim to the craze, and the man is now to be seen gazing vacantly at the Comédie-Française, taking no notice whatever of the damsel behind him. That young lady is supposed to be "Fame," watching over him. But the public does not seem to know this; and certainly not the Cook's tourists' guides, who whisper to their flock "that this young woman is Georges Sand, with whom Musset had that love affair, you know!" If the Beethoven Committee spent the money intended for the statue in inducing the French middle-classes to adopt Beethoven and discard some of the fifth-rate musicians they patronise, they would raise the standard of music in this country, and pay a higher tribute to the German musician's memory.

THERE is not a word of truth in the rumour that M. Antoine's management has not given satisfaction to the gentlemen in power. Like all innovators, M. Antoine has many detractors, who consider that he is taking "liberties" with the Odéon répertoire. The Odéon, as everybody knows, is our second Comédie-Française; but that is no reason why the management should not be eclectic in its taste. In the short time M. Antoine has been at the head of the house he has brought out plays that made people, who had not gone there for years, flock to it. And as regards financial results, the figures speak for themselves. During the last year of M. Ginisty's management the gross takings amounted to £18,655. During M. Antoine's tenure of office they showed the first year £22,640, an increase of £4,000, despite the fact that in consequence of the theatre having been partly rebuilt one hundred and fifty places had to be sacrificed.

ALTHOUGH the theatrical season here is nearing its end, there are still many new pieces to be brought out. At the Comédie-Française: La Réveuse, by MM. Henry Kistemaeckers and Dellard. At the Odéon: La Française, by M. Brieux. At the Opéra: La Catalane, by M. F. Le Borne. At the Gymnase: Le Joujou Tragique, by Mlle. Jehanne d'Orliac. At the Athénée, a comedy, by MM. Jacques Monnier and Montignac, of which the title is not yet settled. The Opéra-Comique, too, has several novelties in course of preparation, but there will be hardly time to produce them all.

NEXT week will see the production at the Prince's Theatre, Poplar, by Mr. Louis Calvert, of the wonderfully successful play Sunday. The capable cast will include Miss Emelie Polini, Mr. Leonard Pagden, and Mr. Arthur Vezin.

"THE DREAM OF HIS LIFE."

A Fantastic Musical Play, in One Act, written by Albert Chevalier, Music by Alfred H. Weit. Played for the first time at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, April 8.

Prof. Peter Pinder	MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER
Dr. Percy Goodwin	MR. ISIDORE MARCIL
Geoffrey Goodwin	MR. STUART ALEXANDER
Raha Rantaja	MR. JULIAN CROSS
Sims	MR. HARRY BRETT
Mrs. Peter Pinder	MISS KEITH LYTTON
Nellie Pinder	MISS DOROTHY GARDEN
Miss Nadoura Pinkerton, afterwards Nadoura from "Space"	MISS DOROTHY DAVIS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Chevalier has produced in this an extremely amusing comedy. Professor Pinder is a scientist who holds ideas of the most materialistic kind. He publicly and vigorously denounces all those who hold any sympathy will things spiritual. Now Raha Rantaja, an apostle of spiritualism, is highly indignant at the Professor's remarks, and promises, by means of spirits, to punish the man of science. The Professor has a strong intellect but a very weak digestion. Contrary to all advice, he insists on partaking of a substantial pork chop for supper. A drowsy feeling follows the heavy meal; the Professor stretches himself upon a couch, and soon falls asleep. Suddenly, in a blaze of light, Raha Rantaja appears, and proceeds to prove to the Professor that his mysticism is anything but a fraud. Ghosts of Pinder's former self are ranged around him, and he sees before him the bodies he has inhabited—a prehistoric man, a monk, an ancient courtier, a jester, and soon. Notwithstanding the strains of "Should auld acquaintance" he fails to recognise the images of his former self, and very appropriately sings "How soon we all forget these little things." But Raha, the spiritualist, now pronounces a punishment upon Pinder for his unbelief. In the presence of other people he will assume the personality of his own butler, who has well-marked characteristics and a pronounced Cockney accent. Only when alone will Professor Pinder revert to the knowledge of his real identity. In the character of the butler Mr. Chevalier again has a very fitting song, "My Sunday out." From the pompous Butler Sims in company, he in solitude becomes the despondent Professor. His own family imagine him dead; his wife decides to marry again, and Pinder is condemned to assist at the marriage as best man. In a moment, when he is alone, a brilliant idea strikes him, and he writes to his solicitors, explaining that though he is apparently and outwardly the Butler Sims, he is really Professor Pinder. Before he can address the letter he is interrupted, and is again the butler. The letter is found, and the most amusing situations and explanations are the outcome. The room suddenly darkens, and we find the Professor awaking from what has been a most exciting and, to him, uncomfortable dream—all the result of an undigested pork chop. Professor Pinder at last realises he has only been dreaming; Raha is merely a charlatan and has been given in charge, and everything ends happily.

As a character-actor, in his own line Mr. Chevalier has no rival, and in the dual personalities of Sims and Professor Pinder he finds scope for his undoubted abilities, and the visible and alternating change from one character to another—essentially different—was wonderfully effective. Mr. Geoffrey Goodwin sang in very pleasing style a tuneful song, "Nelly," and took part in a spirited and taking trio, "How dare you!" in which he was very ably helped by Mr. Isidore Marcil as Dr. Goodwin and Miss Dorothy Davis, a very charming and attractive Miss Pinkerton, and afterwards Nadoura. Miss Dorothy Garden was a very successful Nellie Pinder, and Miss Keith Lytton was a most appropriate Mrs. Pinder; Mr. Julian Cross was an ideal and impressive Raha, and Mr. Harry Brett was a smart and humorous Sims.

WOLVERHAMPTON AMATEURS.

A series of performances of Cousin Kate has been given this week at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton, by amateurs in aid of a fund for a nurses' home in connection with the Wolverhampton and Staffordshire General Hospital. The cream of Staffordshire society and the élite of Wolverhampton filled the theatre to its utmost capacity at every performance. Among others present were the Mayor and Mayoress, Mrs. Twentyman, Mrs. Waterhouse, and the Earl and Countess of Dartmouth, who occupied a box at the matinée on Saturday.

Mrs. Douglas Barlow played the title-part, and was delightfully bright and convincing. She wore a charming white frock, and smart hat with paradise plumes. Mr. D. Barlow played forcefully as Heath Desmond. Miss Elwell was a pretty Amy Spencer; Miss May Hutchins was an excellent and natural Bobby; and Mme. Vantini gave a careful and finished study of Mrs. Spencer. Miss Strange made the most of Jane; and Mr. Cyril Langley looked very well as the Rev. James Bartlett, and, with much temptation to exaggeration, played with artistic restraint.

The play was produced and stage-managed by Mme. Vantini, who is so well known in London and Oxford. The second act, with its exacting scenic effects, was handled in a masterly and artistic manner, and reflected great credit on Mme. Vantini. The series was probably the most successful that has been produced by amateurs in Wolverhampton for many years. There were three specially brilliant houses—on the Masonic night, the Mayoral night, and the Yeomany night, when official robes and uniforms filled the spacious dress circle.

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. March and Co., of St. James's-walk, E.C., are offering to the musical public a startling novelty in their "Eclipse" edition of songs, and can certainly defy competition in the well-printed copies of sentimental and comic songs selling at the extremely low price of one penny. In this case there will be no need to invoke the aid of Mr. O'Connor's admirable Copyright Act, as the price and quality give the pirates no chance. Each copy has a space for the insertion of vocalists' portraits, and the comic songs will no doubt be very welcome to singers at the seaside during the coming summer. In "Wait for me," written by Dave Hall and composed by Herbert Rule, the chorus, "Don't go in the workhouse until I come home, then we'll all go in together," is certain to be popular. "The Pride of Lucerne," written and composed by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule, is a catchy melody in waltz time; and "Won't you come and see the soldiers?" is written to a stirring march air by the same authors. An Irish song "Sally O'Malley, introduced by Mme. Sims Reeves, is very effective; and a lively ditty, "There's a girl everywhere," is certain to please. One of the songs, "Who'll come for a ride with me on my Aeroplane," written and composed by Fred E. D'Albert, is sung with great success by Miss Jessie Burnett. A song with the comical refrain "I don't know," written by James McGhee and composed and sung by Mr. Herbert Rule, is always secure of a hearty laugh. Other novelties are Mr. Herbert Rule's song "Diary" and Mr. J. P. Long's "Bubbles." Among the serious melodies are "I'm so sorry that I left you," written by James McGhee and David Hall, and "Farewell, Sweetheart Nell," composed and written by Mr. Austin Turner.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.
BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.
Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.
Mr Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mrs. J. Lawrence (mother of Miss Vesta Victoria) writes under date April 11:—"By to-day's mail we have a letter from Miss Vesta Victoria asking us to contradict the rumour that she was to be married to Bert Cooper, of the firm of Cooper, Kendis, and Paley, of New York, and that the report is absolutely false."

"Who leads in favour—Alice Lloyd or Vesta Victoria?" is the question that appears in big type on the front page of the Evening Mail of New York city, which, all unmindful of the old adage that "comparisons are odious," prints a coupon, and invites its readers to "mark an X before the name of your favourite." The votes will be counted, and the momentous question will then be decided.

To quote further from the said newspaper:—"Thousands of vaudeville patrons are discussing the respective popularity of Vesta Victoria and Alice Lloyd. These two talented artists from across the Atlantic seem to have aroused New York theatregoers to a most enthusiastic pitch. Each one, however, seems to have as many and as loyal champions as the other, though both claim the lead. The entire vaudeville world is at sea as to whether Miss Lloyd or Miss Victoria has the larger following." The competition is an excellent boom for both these charming and popular ladies.

These things speak for themselves and need no comment. The Era was certainly correct in saying that "the taste for English and Scotch comedy is evidently growing in the Empire City." The New Yorkers are much more cosmopolitan in their ideas of what constitutes wit and humour than they were ten years ago.

In reference to the American boom, the following New York cable from Mr. H. B. Marinelli, the well-known agent, is published:—"Keep my firm out of newspapers. Bollinger, too (the manager). You know nothing. All salaries mentioned are smoke. People dreaming of fairy tales and tremendous salaries may wake up soon with a tremendous headache, and those who have accepted extraordinary salaries are not over their troubles yet.—Marinelli."

Mr. Clifford Fischer, the sole and exclusive representative of Klaw and Erlanger in London, says that those gentlemen are going to some extent into the variety business, and are seeking good turns, but they are working on a commercial basis, and certainly could not do that if they paid the salaries that are being mentioned. Of course, salaries are higher in America, the natural consequence of general expenses and the cost of living being higher there. Mr. George Foster is working in conjunction with Mr. Fischer. It is understood that Miss Marie Lloyd goes to America in the fall.

The first annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation will be held at the Empire Theatre, Camberwell, to-morrow (Sunday) at four o'clock. The chairman will be Mr. Joe O'Gorman. The theatre has been kindly lent by Messrs. Jesse Sparrow and Harry Bawn. Admission will be by card of membership only, and the Press, we understand, will be excluded. In another column will be found a letter on the subject from Mr. Charles Coborn.

The Woolwich Hippodrome is the new name adopted by Mr. Walter Gibbons for the Grand Theatre, Woolwich, when it begins its music hall career. A. W. Deer, formerly of the Balham Empire, has been engaged as manager. Luxurious tip-up seats and pretty upholstery will brighten the auditorium considerably. The performances will start each night at 6.45 and 9.10, except Saturday, when the times will be 6.15 and 8.45. The prices will range from a threepenny gallery to an eighteenpenny stall.

The recent death of Major Murray recalls the famous Northumberland-street affray in 1861, when the Major was twice shot by a solicitor and moneylender named Roberts, who had inveigled his victim into a deserted suite of apartments and locked all doors. The Major, recovering partly, made such a desperate fight with the fire-irons and a champagne bottle that his assailant succumbed to his terrible injuries in Charing Cross Hospital. The incident is, to a cetrain degree, produced in Humanity, the famous John Lawson music hall sketch, which in its turn was taken from the drama by Hugh Marston and Leonard Rae, produced under the direction of Mr. John Douglass at the Standard Theatre on April 10, 1882.

Mr. Owen Hall (Mr. James Davis), whose death is announced elsewhere in our columns, gave nothing of his daring wit or smartness to the variety stage. The only piece from his pen produced thereon was Agnèse's Secret, a sad little drama undistinguished by humour, given at the Palace Theatre on Nov. 13 last at the farewell matinée of Emily Solvene.

The first meeting of creditors was held on Monday in the case of Julien Davis Solomon, described as of Belsize-road, Kilburn, theatrical manager. It appeared that the debtor had been engaged in the theatrical business since 1866. He spent £4000 or £5000 on a scheme for converting the old Kilburn Town Hall into a theatre, but the place was afterwards converted into a music hall, the debtor estimating that his expenditure on alterations had amounted to about £12,000. During the past four years the letting of the hall had been unfortunate, and the mortgagees entered into possession shortly before Christmas last. A trustee was appointed.

The Charles Bertram matinée in aid of the widow and daughters of the late popular conjuror will be given at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday, April 23. In connection with this performance an influential committee, including the Lord Mayor, Lord Dufferin, Lord Lonsdale, Lord Glenesk, Mr. Herbert Gladstone, and others, has been formed. The lamentable position in which Mrs. Bertram has been left was due to the deceased conjuror's illness, which caused the loss of all professional engagements, while adding greatly to his expenses.

The beautiful series of Living Pictures at the Empire, reinforced by further additions this week, makes way for the new ballet, Sir Roger De Coverley, by Adrian Ross, with music by Dr. Osmond Carr, at the end of April, so no time should be lost in seeing them. Miss Ruby Helder, a young lady baritone of seventeen summers, adds a fresh element of strength to the present Empire programme. Her turn is a distinct novelty.

At the 507th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, held at the offices on Wednesday, there were present Messrs. Fred Herbert (in the chair), P. W. Millis, Harry Blake, Harry Wright, Bob Hutt, Pat Carey, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). A letter was read from Mr. G. W. Gerald, for some time the representative of the Association in Paris, resigning his position. Dr. A. S. Sieger, 9, Grey-place, Greenock, and Dr. Robert Thompson, 1, Sinclair-gardens, Kensington, were appointed hon. medical officers. Nineteen new members had been enrolled since the last meeting.

Liverpool is to have another place of amusement. After several unsuccessful applications, Messrs. Broadhead, of Manchester, have succeeded in obtaining the approval of the magisterial licensing bench of that city to plans for the erection of a two-houses-a-night variety theatre, proposed to be erected at the junction of Lodge-lane with Upper Parliament-street.

On Thursday when the magistrates, many of whom hold strong teetotal and religious views, had the matter before them, a bitter opposition was shown by a number of people, who had succeeded in getting the signatures of hundreds of Sunday School scholars against the granting of the licence. It was stated that the site, which consisted mainly of slum property, had cost £8,000, and the erection of the building, which was estimated to hold 2,000 persons, would demand another £20,000. The site was about a mile and a half from the nearest present place of amusement, and within a reasonable distance of Lodge-lane there resided about 200,000 people. The Bench, while approving the plans, stated that no guarantee would be given that a licence would follow when the place was erected. Messrs. Broadhead took the risk of proceeding with the work.

Sheffield is to have a new variety house. Negotiations are being directed towards securing a site in Cambridge-street, and if this is obtained a good hall may be erected with an excellent and commanding frontage. The people interested in the proposed venture are a London syndicate, which includes Mr. Walter de Frece and possibly Mr. Tom Barrasford. If Mr. De Frece and his colleagues are able to complete their arrangements for the site, it is probable that a local company will be formed.

Mr. Oswald Stoll has once again earned the thanks of the public of Leicester by placing the Palace Theatre at their disposal in the cause of charity, viz., to raise funds for the Children's Hospital and General Hospital. The affair took place on Thursday, April 4, and was under the distinguished patronage of Sir Edward Wood (the Mayor), Sir John Rolleston, and Sir Herbert J. Marshall. After the payment of expenses between £20 and £90 will be divided in the ratio of two-thirds to the Children's Hospital and one third to the Infirmary. Mr. C. Finch-Hatton, the acting manager of the Palace, gave his valuable services in conjunction with his assistant, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.

The programme submitted was a strong one. Miss Florence Smithson (the clever daughter of Mr. Will Smithson, so well known in the profession) made her first appearance in her native town in the "Jewel Song" scena from Faust, and had a great reception. Other artists who appeared were Tom Costello, the New Macs, Ryder Slone, and Boy Glen from the Empire, Sheffield; Mendel, Dare's Minstrels, and the Kirbys, from the Empire, Nottingham; the Findens, from the Empire, Birmingham; Fanny Erris, Nellie Coleman, the Three Tauberts, and the Bioscope of the Leicester Palace Theatre; and Hilda Boot (of Nottingham, Alfred Raymont, Winnie Oldershaw, Daisy Pollock, W. Barrington Nurse, and Philipps (Royal Opera House).

Mr. George Gray, who was unable to appear in Parson Gray, V.C. owing to the length of the programme, sent a note of apology to the Mayor, enclosing a cheque for £2 as an expression of his sympathy. Other artists who were present and ready to appear, but could not owing to time, were Dome, Frank Lynne, Lily Burnand, and Howard and Harris. Sir Edward Wood (the Mayor of Leicester), who was cordially received on making his appearance on the stage, after stating that the artists had given their services free, and that Mr. Oswald Stoll had undertaken to pay their expenses, said the performance had been promoted by the various friends of the Infirmary and the licensed victuallers of the town. They were deeply indebted to the orchestra, the Palace staff, and all helpers for services so freely given.

Mr. B. Pearce Lucas, managing-director of the Bedford, made an application through his counsel, Mr. Clavell Salter, K.C., to the adjourned annual licensing session at Bristol on Monday for a dramatic licence for the Empire and Hippodrome, Old Market-street, now run on the two-houses-a-night principle. The application was opposed by Mr. James M. Chute, proprietor of the Prince's Theatre, and Messrs. Carpenter, Ltd., of the Theatre Royal, in King-street.

Mr. Lucas, who went into the witness box in support of his case said that he was applying for the licence for his own safety. Such sketches as he wished to present might last from thirty to forty-five minutes, and would not have more than six principals and twenty-four supers. He had never been prosecuted in Bristol, but had been threatened that if a sketch lasted more than thirty minutes he would be prosecuted. He had no agreement with Mr. Chute and Mr. Carpenter. The application was refused.

Mr. William Holland, who was for several years manager of the Morecambe Winter Gardens, has been appointed manager of the New Brighton Tower grounds for the present season. Mr. R. T. Davy, who has been connected with the company for over ten years, retains his position as secretary and manager of the company.

The summer variety season at the Royalty Theatre, Chester, will open on May 6. As it is the local race-week the two-houses-a-night system is certain of a good send-off. Mr. C. B. Fountaine's services will be retained as resident-manager. The chief attraction is to be Bob Hutt's Welcome Home.

The remains of Ben Doubleday (father of the Three Darrells) were laid to rest on April 4 in Chesterfield Cemetery in the presence of his daughters and several life-long friends, including his staunch "pal," Mr. Harry Wilson. Mr. Doubleday's daughter, Miss May Darrell, a talented instrumentalist, will shortly start on tour with a refined drawing-room act.

We regret to record the death of Professor Heno, a much respected local entertainer and an old resident of Brighton. Professor Heno was to have fulfilled an engagement at the Town Hall, Andover, but whilst waiting at Tidworth Railway Station he contracted a severe chill; an acute attack of pleurisy followed, and Mr. Heno passed away suddenly on March 25, at the comparative early age of fifty-five.

He was one of the few entertainers who received an autograph letter from the late Queen Victoria, complimenting him on a successful entertainment he had given before her Majesty at Buckingham Palace. On one occasion Mr. Heno was performing before the inmates of the Broadmoor Criminal Lunatic Asylum, where he met Prince, the murderer of William Terriss, the popular actor. After the performance, the Professor saw Prince, who said to him, "What wonderful tricks! What marvellous conjuring! But I wish you could conjure me out of these iron bars." Professor Heno leaves a widow, for whom Mrs. Barrasford makes an appeal in another column.

Mr. John Lawson wishes to contradict the statement that The Unwritten Law will be a "hash up" of the Thaw trial. Such is not the case, as the episode bears very little, if any, resemblance to this somewhat sordid crime. Preparations are now well forward for the presentation of the work, which will take place at the Holborn Empire on May 6.

Mrs. John Lawson has again scored a great triumph at the Ealing Hippodrome with The Devil's Sunday. The performance of Fay Faber at once stamps Mrs. Lawson as a true artist.

In reference to the death of the late Johnny Morton, late of the Moore and Burgess Minstrels, in our last issue, it should have been mentioned that any donations to the fund being raised for his widow—now in very straitened circumstances—should be forwarded to Mrs. G. W. Moore, Moore House, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood, who has kindly consented to receive the same.

The first anniversary of the Queen's Palace of Varieties, Poplar, under the direction of Mr. Jack Woolf, takes place on Tuesday, when, in addition to the usual strong programme, many extra turns will be provided, and several well-known artists have promised to appear.

Mr. Charles Relf, who pioneered variety in Canning Town, where he developed the possibilities of a cheap entertainment at the Royal Albert, is to become mine host of the Royal Standard, 84, Victoria Park-road, South Hackney, of which house he will take possession on Thursday next. He will be pleased to welcome any of his old friends.

Mr. Fred H. Anderson will add the entire proceeds of the Palace, Northampton, on Friday next to the Good Samaritan Society of the town.

A grand international wrestling tournament has been arranged to take place at the Crystal Palace after the final tie football match on Saturday next at 6.15. Contests in ju-jitsu style will be taken part in by Yamato, the champion ju-jitsu wrestler of the world; Yukio Tani, the most scientific ju-jitsu wrestler; Takio, the boy champion of ju-jitsu, and Miss O-Fuji-San, the lady champion of ju-jitsu. There will be a catch-as-catch can contest for £25 between Peter Gotz, light-weight champion of the world, and George Jennings, of Liverpool. Those wishing to accept any of the challenges of the ju-jitsu wrestlers must inform the Crystal Palace management two days before the tournament.

Mr. Barney Stuart returned on Saturday by the R.M.S. Tarquah from Las Palmas. The favourite character-actor resumes work at the Westminster Palace, Liverpool, on Monday.

A physical drill display and march-past competition of the London Girls' Brigade will take place to-day in the Centre Transept of the Crystal Palace. Proceedings will commence at three o'clock, and the various items on the programme include ambulance and nursing, club display, physical drill display, beauty culture and physical fitness competition, and a march-past competition. The prizes will be presented by Lady Benn at five o'clock.

Paul Valentine's Doreen Girls are appearing in song and dance this week at the Canterbury Next week they go to East Ham Palace. They have just been secured for pantomime at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool.

Mrs. Jack Camp desires through our columns to thank the numerous professional and private friends for their extreme kindness to her during her recent bereavement. It will be impossible for her to answer individually the letters and telegrams of sympathy sent, which touched her deeply, or to acknowledge each of the many beautiful wreaths that testified to the esteem in which her late husband was held. Among those who sent floral offerings whose names were inadvertently omitted from the account of the funeral in our last issue were the Haytors, Mrs. Stace and family, Mr. and Mrs. Price and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Fox. Others who followed and sent wreaths were Mrs. Canning and family and Mrs. Paul Courtney.

Miss Jane Moore produced her sketch, White Slavery, at the Empress, Brixton, on Wednesday last, April 10, with unquestionable success.

Mr. Harry Bamford, who is known as "the crippled comedian," will be performing at the Paragon matinée on Thursday next, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Cripples' Fund. Mr. Bamford has been engaged with Alf Ball's travelling entertainment for the past eleven years, and is well known amongst showmen.

Mr. Billie Bint is going excellently well on the Broadhead tour with his song, "Quite content to stay at home." Does the evergreen Billy refer to our coming artistic invasion of the States?

Miss Pattie Hanbury, who has appeared in musical comedy under Mr. George Dance's management, made her début on the variety stage on Monday at the Royal Standard, Pimlico. She is the possessor of a fine soprano voice, of considerable range, and her rendering of "Marguerite" and "Down the Vale" was heartily applauded by the audience.

Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Edward Cranston will produce a new comedy duologue, entitled A Model Wife, next week at the Hippodrome, Hastings.

Always a great attraction at the Alhambra is the fine orchestra, whose performers are skilfully guided by the bâton of Mr. G. W. Byng. Some of the loudest applause heard during the evening is awarded to the admirable interpretation of Tschaikowsky's remarkable "1812" symphony.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday afternoon at the York Hotel, when Mr. Frank Heath occupied the chair. There were also present—Messrs. Tom Carney, W. Brisco, W. West, and R. T. Baines (secretary). The agenda did not contain any items of public interest, and the meeting closed with the customary vote of thanks to the chairman.

Miss Rose Hamilton, after an absence of five months from London, and fresh from her pantomime success, will appear at the Metropolitan in two new numbers, one a musical recitation by George Arthurs and Orlando Powell, entitled "The study of life." The other, a Chinese song, by Mills and Scott.

Miss Barbara Babington, who met with such brilliant success as principal boy in Hull, has returned to London with an extensive répertoire of refined and pleasing chorus songs, which were the rage at her recent engagement with Mr. Stoll.

Mr. Billy Keene (of Keene and Adams) writes as follows:—"We have covered something like 28,000 miles since we left England for India last October. I shall be happy to assist anybody going out there with advice, as nobody knows the country but those that have been through it."

Mr. Toni Pastor celebrated his forty-second anniversary as a theatrical manager last week, and was the recipient of numerous congratulations from all parts of the country. It is superfluous to say that his theatre was crowded. Mr. Pastor sang "Down in a coal-mine" and "Sarah's young man," as is his wont on these festive occasions, and the cordial and enthusiastic greeting he received must have delighted the popular "veteran of variety" exceedingly.

Mr. L. Austin Millais suddenly collapsed at the Hippodrome, Hulme, on Friday, the 5th inst., and was unable to lecture on Venus and her portrayals of popular paintings. Slides were hastily made for the second house, and Mr. Percy Broadhead's manager, Mr. E. Kay, kindly deputised for Mr. Millais at both houses on Saturday with remarkable success.

The new Hippodrome, Middlesborough, promises to be among the largest and most palatial of the provincial variety theatres. The plans have been prepared by Mr. G. F. Ward, theatrical architect, of Birmingham, who is responsible for the designing of a large number of theatres and halls throughout the country.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar is certainly a feature in the present tremendous bill at the Tivoli, her beautiful voice, handsome gowns, and smart stories making quite a hit.

"A miniature comedy in fifteen minutes" is the description of a new sketch, entitled A Game of Bluff, produced by Mr. Fred S. Howard at the Empress, Brixton, at a matinée last week. The little piece has nothing to do with the pantomime order of play, but is genuine comedy of the best school. Smartly written, A Game of Bluff enjoyed the distinction of being played by a company of artists who know their business. Mr. Fred S. Howard enacted the worried husband admirably. Miss Grace Dillon was charming as the wife; Miss Fannie Selby capital as the mother-in-law; and Miss Bella Wallis very fine as the "hotel thief." It is to be hoped that the sketch will be seen at a more central house before long.

Miss Maidie Scott, after her severe throat trouble, is in harness again, and is anxious, through these columns, to thank the numerous friends who have written and inquired after her during the past three weeks.

Miss Alice Grossmith (Flo D'Orville) and Mr. Lyall Grant, by the courtesy of Mr. Pete Murray, produced at the matinée at the Britannia on the 3rd inst., a new musical comedy act, entitled The Chorus Girl and the Call-Boy. It was practically unrehearsed, as Miss Grossmith has been away, fulfilling engagements in the provinces, but it so pleased Mr. Frederick Baugh that he at once booked it for the five London halls under his management.

Mr. Reuben More, the popular pierrot, concludes to-night a successful engagement as Harry de Vere in Lionel Vaughan's sketch In Trouble. He will now devote a week or so to preparing for his fourteenth summer pier tour, for which he is writing special concerted numbers.

The Prince and Princess de Broglie, at their first performance in Rome, had a very unpleasant experience. A crowd of young aristocrats had taken with them to the theatre whistles, rattles, and keys, which they worked with great vigour when the Princess appeared. The police surrounded the most violent of the disturbers, but all to no purpose, and the performance would have ended in a hand-to-hand fight if the Princess had not suddenly stopped and defied her audience by putting her thumb to her nose. This bold act turned the tide in her favour, and all ended good-humouredly.

The D'Ostas, who are mental telegraphists—wireless, of course—have just returned from the States, and are now fulfilling their fourth engagement in England since 1893. At the Tivoli, South Shields, this week their performance has prompted much curiosity, speculation, and excitement.

Henry Robson, described as a porter, of Percy-street, Tottenham Court-road, was charged at Marlborough-street on Monday with selling pirated music. Walter Frost, agent to the Music Publishers' Association, proved ordering two copies of "The Dream of Paradise" from the prisoner and being supplied with them by him. The music was pirated. Mr. Herbert Cooper, assistant-secretary to the Association, said prisoner was well known as an underling for others. Robson denied that he dealt in such goods, and only supplied them to Frost at his repeated solicitation. Mr. Denman imposed a fine of 40s., or fourteen days.

Miss Camilla D'Alberg's comedy company is booked for In at the Finish for Paris in the autumn. Negotiations are pending for the production of the sketch at a London West End house.

The latest quotations of music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅞; Canterbury, ⅛; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; Empire (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pavilion Ordinary, 4⅜; London Pavilion Preference, 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅜; Moss' Empires, 4⅞; Moss' Empires 5 per cent. Preference, 4⅛; Oxford, 6⅛; Palace, 10s.; Tivoli, 5⅜; Variey Consolidated Theatres, ⅞.

At St. George's Hall, Liverpool, the native choir from Jamaica, brought over a few months ago by Sir Alfred L. Jones, has appeared for three weeks, and hundreds have been turned away at every performance. On the Saturdays it was found necessary to give as many as three and four performances in the one day. The Pier Pavilion, St. Annes-on-the-Sea, recently was crowded to hear the famous combination. At Manchester and Southport the same thing has occurred. The choir is to visit London, Blackpool (three dates), Bridlington, Lincoln, Birmingham, Ryde, Folkestone, Dover, Birkenhead, Rhyl, &c.

The question whether songs reproduced by means of phonographic records come within the Copyright Act was raised before Mr. Justice Sutton on Wednesday, and decided in the action of Newmark v. the National Phonograph Company and the Edison Manufacturing Company. The allegation of the plaintiff, Newmark, was that the defendant companies by reproducing the music of a song (of which he was the owner of the words and music) upon a large number of phonographic records which they had sold, had been guilty of a contravention of the Copyright Act. He consequently asked for an injunction, and claimed damages at the rate of 40s. for each performance of a particular song.

Mr. Scrutton, K.C., argued that the record on the cylinder was not a "copy" within the meaning of the Act. That had been decided in the case of Boosey v. White, where the court held that a perforated roll was not a copy of a song. His lordship agreed with this contention, and said it was clear that this was not a case under the Copyright Act. The records could not be regarded as in any way a "sheet of music," and as a result there must be judgment for both the defendants, with costs

Messrs. Vaughan and Cook, the eminent firm of specialists in electric lighting, whose artistic work in many London theatres speaks eloquently of their conception of harmony in architectural details, have been again successful in their scheme of electric lighting at the New Royal Hippodrome, Belfast.

The main ceiling is lit by a beautiful series of twelve standard electroliers of hammered brass, the illumination of the circle, gallery, and box fronts and over boxes being secured by elegant hammered brass brackets of a most up-to-date design. The main entrances, corridors, staircases, and lounges are also prettily embellished with ornamental fittings of a similar design. In the front of the house and throughout the auditorium there are about 800 lights, and something like 400 bulbs contribute to the stage illumination, in addition to the usual limelights, &c. The fine façade looks well under the brilliant incandescence of six flame arc lamps fixed to ornamental wrought-iron brackets, and ornamental box lanterns are placed over the various entrances and exits.

The auditorium is ventilated by means of electric fans. In the main ceiling a 36in. fan fitted into a large air shaft is used, and smaller ones are fixed in the circle and pit ceilings. The whole of the work has been carried out under the personal supervision of one of the partners, Mr. A. L. Fitzroy Cook. The firm is also responsible for the whole of the brass hand-rails, &c., and is now erecting wrought-iron and glass canopies to the whole of the front and side of the house.

Horace Goldin, "illusionist," on Saturday sought in the Glasgow Sheriff's Court for an interdict to restrain Gustave Fasola, appearing at the Glasgow Empire, from performing a trick in which a lady is supposed to be shot from a cannon into a box suspended from the roof. Petitioner held a patent which provided for the lady getting out of the cannon by means of a trap-door on the floor or by means of adjacent scenery, or for her to remain in the cannon, while a substitute was found in the box. The box consisted of two trunks, one inside the other, the inside one having a false bottom that could be opened. When the trick was performed the inner trunk was taken out and placed on the floor of the stage over a trap-door, through which the lady could enter the box. The Sheriff refused to grant an interdict.

A well-known personality will be missed from the Grand Theatre, Bolton, by the death which took place on Monday evening last of Harry Jackson Martin, who occupied the position of stage-door keeper up to a week ago, when he was obliged to give up. Deceased had been in failing health for some time, and during his absence from the Grand he was frequently visited by artists, with whom he was a great favourite. When the Grand was built thirteen years ago, Mr. Martin was the first stage-door keeper. He was thirty-nine years of age, a native of Preston, and died from dropsy and heart disease.

In connection with the Belfast Theatrical Charity Fund, in aid of local charities and Theatrical and Music Hall Benevolent Funds (London), a grand matinée will be held to-day (Saturday) at the Palace Theatre, Belfast, which theatre is being kindly lent by the directors of Warden, Ltd. Mr. Fred W. Warden (managing-director of Palace and Theatre Royal, Belfast) has charge of the programme, which will be contributed to by various artists from the Empire, Hippodrome, and the New Alhambra. The principal members of the Goody Two-Shoes pantomime have also promised to assist. Every effort is being made to exceed last year's contribution.

The death is announced of Mrs. Vernon Dowsett, widow of the once popular manager of the Tivoli, who passed away on Saturday, the 6th inst. The remains of the deceased were interred at Crayford, Kent, yesterday (Friday). The late Mrs. Dowsett at one time was an accomplished danseuse. Her hubsand died nearly three years since.

Mr. George Robey on Monday captained a strong scratch team against Chelsea, in aid of the fund to help the widow of the late James Miller. Some interesting football was seen, the result being a win for Robey's team by 3 goals to 0. The popular comedian was assiduously fed by the members of his team, and twice before ends were changed almost scored. Ten minutes after resuming Bull headed a second goal, and a quarter of an hour before the end Robey himself beat the Chelsea goalkeeper with a good cross shot, much to the delight of the crowd.

"SATAN'S ANGEL."

A Dramatic Sketch, produced at the Canterbury Theatre of Varieties, on Monday, April 8.

Frank Lyndhurst ..... Mr. Leslie Clare
Lord Ravenscroft ..... Mr. Arthur Rodney
Dick Denton ..... Mr. Montague Turner
Jules Scara ..... Mr. Naylor Grimson
Cora Onandez ..... Miss Freda Sharlotte

That Cora Onandez deserved her ultimate fate no one can deny, for she fell by the hand of a man she had falsely betrayed. Cora is an unscrupulous adventuress, who, having married Jules Scara, a bank clerk, deserts him after he had got into trouble in connection with a robbery. Subsequently, however, Jules traces her to London, where he finds her carrying on her wicked schemes with the aid of one Dick Denton, a rogue of the first water. She has, too, become the wife of Frank Lyndhurst. Cora and Denton, who are aware that Jules is wanted by the police, seek to get rid of him by planning his arrest, but their would-be victim overhears their conversation on the subject, and before the scheme has had time to fructify he makes an end of his faithless wife by shooting her.

Miss Freda Sharlotte acts with dramatic forcefulness in the rôle of Cora, and creates a striking impression. Mr. Leslie Clare is handsome and gentlemanly as Frank Lyndhurst, and the representations of Mr. Arthur Rodney as Lord Ravenscroft, Mr. Montague Turner as Dick Denton, and Mr. Naylor Grimson as Jules Scara are in every respect praiseworthy.

THE LATE PROFESSOR HENO.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The many friends of Professor Heno, conjuror and ventriloquist, will learn with deep regret of his death, which occurred with painful suddenness whilst he was on tour at Andover, on the 25th ult., at the comparatively early age of fifty-five. Mr. Heno's willingness to give his services gratuitously at many entertainments to further the interests of charity is so well known that it is hardly necessary for me to draw this to the notice of your readers.

Unfortunately the profession of a public entertainer has of late years been a declining one, so much so that Professor Heno has been unable to make any provision whatever for his widow whom he leaves to mourn his loss.

A subscription list has been started to assist her to tide over difficulties—which are many—and any donations towards this most deserving cause will be most thankfully received and acknowledged by me.—Yours faithfully,

MAUD BARRASFORD

Hippodrome House, Brighton, April 10.

SONGS. WRITERS. AND SINGERS.

AMONG the very latest songs about to be published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, are "The echo of an old, old tale," sung by Miss Sable Fern, written and composed by Frank Leo; "Jackson's not at home," by R. P. Weston; "Sometimes the sweetest honey," by Percy Edgar and H. E. Pether; "My sweet Babette," by Fred Warwick and T. F. Robson; "My girl," by Charles Collins and Charles Ridgwell; "Little cloud with the silv'ry lining," and "What's the good of living?" both by Geo. Arthurs and C. W. Murphy; and "There you are—that's a girl" (Miss Ruby Verdi), by F. W. Leigh and Ben Albert.

IN addition to the foregoing, Mr. David Day's firm has in the Press "My sunny Egyptian home" (featured by Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie), by T. F. Robson; "This coon ain't a-gwine home no more," by Edgar Bateman and H. E. Darewski, jun.; "I shall love you all the while," by Fred Glenville; "Lavender," sung by Miss Mabel Green, by Charles Wilmott and H. E. Darewski, jun.; and "The gipsies' wedding," by J. F. Lambe and T. W. Thurban.

THE "Sixpenny Pops" of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, now comprise 363 numbers, the last three songs just added being "Man and wife should always pull together" and "Sympathy," Miss Carlotta Levey's great successes, and "Poor John!" Miss Vesta Victoria's enormous hit.

EDGAR BATEMAN was a few days since bidden by Miss Marie Lloyd to put on his considering cap especially for her, and the "command" of the "Queen of Comediennes" was obeyed forthwith, the result being a cockney country idyll, entitled "With my little bunch of daisies in my hand," embodying some remarkable discoveries in ornithology and agriculture made by a small and select party of New Cut maidens having a day's outing a little way from town, and of some strange happenings at the terminus on their return. The author, who positively revelled in the writing of the number on Southend pier, has as collaborator Henry E. Pether.

AT the South London Palace on the 15th inst., Miss Flo D'Orville and Mr. Lyall Grant are producing a new musical comedy sketch by the latter, entitled The Chorus Girl and the Call Boy. Special dance and other music has been arranged by J. Chas. Moore, and the latest motoring song by Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co., "A ride in my automobile," has been featured.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have been fortunate in acquiring a new song from the master hand of Mr. Felix McGlennon, which this celebrated author-composer optimistically considers will equal, if not eclipse, his old-time success "Comrades." This new song recounts the adventures of a young German girl in London, who, when the moment for parting arrives, light heartedly enjoins her disconsolate lover to "Wait for me, Fritzy dear!" which injunction gives the song its title. The dénouement evolved by the third verse is novel and humorous.

MISS GLADYS MAVINS, whose success with Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's "Rosie is Waiting" all round the Stoll tour has been extraordinary, has just conveyed to the same author and composer the gratifying intelligence that their new Scotch number, "Kiss your ain Scotch laddie," is going very big at the Empire, Bradford, this week; indeed so successful are both songs that she will specially "feature" them at the London, Empire, Holborn, and Empress, Brixton, on her return to town.

SOMETHING like a sensation was caused at the Empress, Brixton, by that clever juvenile comedian Little Cliff, in his quaint rendering of Messrs. R. P. Weston and F. J. Barnes' whimsical composition, "The Coon's Conscience," which was received with screams of laughter. This number, which Little Cliff is now especially "featuring" on tour, will shortly be published in the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "Sixpenny Successes" series.

MISS ADDIE LENNARD (late of Mr. Chas. Macdona's Gay Parisienne company) is the latest theatrical recruit to the music-hall stage, and she will shortly be heard at a leading West-End music hall in a new and original répertoire, entirely written and composed by Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate, two chief items of which may be tentatively entitled "Lovers" and "Military."

FROM America comes the intelligence to the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. that Miss Alice Lloyd and Miss Lilian Doreen are both "featuring" Mr. J. F. Lambe's charming song "Queen of Old Samara" in the States. The American edition of this popular song has now been issued by Mr. Fred Day (manager of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's New York house), who predicts a big sale. Miss Alice Lloyd is also singing with signal success "I'm going back to the Fatherland."

A SONG in great demand among pierrots just now is the popular idyllic number "My Tiny Firefly," written and composed by Ballard Macdonald and Donovan Meher, which is one of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "Sixpenny Successes," and is selling in very large numbers.

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY have purchased the following novelties from the pen of Mr. T. F. Robson, viz., "My sunny Egyptian home," introduced by Miss Ethel Ra Leslie; "My sweet Italian Maiden," acquired by Miss Fanny Robina; and "The old home across the sea," sung by Ernest Ball. The two former are already established successes, and are free. The same firm have purchased yet another for the free list in "My Babette," which is also by T. F. Robson, in collaboration with Fred Warwick.

MR. SAM MAYO produced this week at the Oxford a new song, entitled "The policeman," the music of which Mr. Mayo composed himself, while the words are by Mr. Worton David. The song proved an instantaneous success. "I'm going to sing a song to you this evening" is also a strong item on the Oxford programme. Both of these numbers are published by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

MR. FRED EARLE has just placed the publishing rights of his new winner, "Let 'em see you've one, father," by Murray, Leighton and Hilbury, with the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co., and the song will shortly be added to the Sixpenny catalogue of this enterprising firm.

MISS DAISY DORMER intends to produce shortly two numbers, entitled "Can't you take the baby over there with you?" written and composed by Charles Collins and Harry Castling, and "The wedding bells won't ring out for you and me," also composed by Charles Collins. The publishing rights of both songs have been secured by Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co.

ON the application of Mr. Gill, K.C., on Tuesday, the Court of Appeal ordered that the appeal in Mackay v. Edwardes stand over until April 23. The appeal is by Miss Julie Mackay, the music hall artist, who brought an action against Mr. George Edwardes for alleged libel, interfering with her right to sing "Under the bamboo tree," and threats. The case was heard by Mr. Justice Bigham and a special jury, and found for the defendant.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT.

at the AVENUE THEATRE, SUNDERLAND.

The selection of Miss Maidie Scott as Dick was a well-judged one. Pretty and shapely, she takes the hearts of all who see her, for her archness and winsomeness are irresistible. She dances with grace, makes love with fervour and a slight mischievousness, and sings with sweetness. Her rendering of "Everybody works but father" gained her a double encore, and was followed by a still more enthusiastic greeting when she sang the song of the season, "Zuyder Zee."—Sunderland Echo, Dec. 27, '06.

The cast is undoubtedly graced by the presence of Miss Maidie Scott. She fills the rôle of the hero Dick, and proved herself such an attractive boy that, if Dick Whittington possessed the same personal attractiveness, 'tis little wonder the alderman's daughter could not resist his blandishment. Besides being able to sing and dance in a pleasing and skilful manner, Miss Scott possesses that dramatic power required to bring out the full effect of the part she is enacting.—Newcastle Chronicle, Dec. 27, '06.

The title-rôle is entrusted to Miss Maidie Scott, a young lady of graceful presence, that secures her the public favour on her first appearance. Her work is full of vivacity and energy, whilst the rendition of her various numbers is distinctly pleasing. Possessing a sweet voice, she shows evidence of having received a good musical training, whilst her acting is all that can be desired. In "Everybody works but father," with a refrain that is immediately caught up by the audience, and also in the now popular "Zuyder Zee," with juvenile chorus and dance, a distinct success is scored.—Era, Jan. 5, '07.

The charm of Miss Maidie Scott wins her the favour of all, and last night she had quite an ovation after giving "Zuyder Zee," a song in which she appeared to revel.—Sunderland Echo, Jan. 15, '07.

As Dick Miss Maidie Scott has thoroughly made good her hold, the assured ease of her acting and fine, cultured voice having made her a firm favourite.—Era, Jan. 26, '07.

The principal boy (Miss Maidie Scott), who became a special favourite from the first night, received quite an ovation on her appearance last night. Miss Scott has a style all her own—at all times perfectly natural and unaffected—and she sustains the character to perfection. She is a pleasing singer, and the assistance she received in the rendering of her popular songs from the gentlemen in the upper circle proved that they had, at any rate, been there before.—Sunderland Echo, Jan. 29, '07.

Miss Maidie Scott assumes the title-rôle. She has a graceful presence and a captivating manner, sings well, and dances with spirit.—Newcastle Chronicle, Feb. 5, '07.

As Dick, Miss Maidie Scott delights everyone by her versatility and charming manner.—Newcastle Journal, Feb. 12, '07.

A charming principal boy is Miss Maidie Scott, who has won hosts of admirers.—North Mail, Feb. 12, '07.

Miss Maidie Scott, who appears in the title-rôle, scores a huge success.—Northern Gossip, Feb. 23, '07.

Miss Maidie Scott gives a fine performance in the title-rôle, and sings and dances exceedingly well.—North Mail, Feb. 26, '07.

CROUCH END HIPPODROME.

The Crouch End Hippodrome is now firmly established in the regard of audiences in the northern heights of London, the excellent programmes framed by Henry de Groot making for the legitimate success that has been so happily and deservedly achieved. An excellent programme is invariably submitted at this place of entertainment, including many West End stars, and upon the evening of our visit the house, which is a large one, was well filled. The astute manager, Mr. Henry de Groot, is responsible for this happy state of affairs, keeping his finger on the pulse of the special public for whom he caters, and he is inevitably successful in his efforts to please them. The result is a performance which goes from start to finish without the slightest hitch. The proceedings commence with a capital overture, rendered with spirit by the excellent orchestra under the direction of Mr. J. Howard Hutchinson, after which Miss Jennie Lynwood, comedienne, contributes two songs, "I want no other girl but you" and "I wonder if the girl I'm thinking of is thinking of me." Special mention is due to Messrs. Stacey and Williams, cross-patter comedians and dancers. They go through their business in a neat and artistic manner, and are much appreciated. A strong turn is supplied by Carl Rosine, magician. He introduces some surprising and very puzzling feats, one of the most inexplicable being the passing of hoops over the hands, the thumbs being tightly tied by a member of the audience. Carl Rosine's entertainment is a very striking and ingenious one. Mr. Chas. Lilburn is a capital comedian, well deserving of the cordial reception given him. Mr. Lilburn displays an abundance of humour in the rendering of his two effusions "Shan't ask 'em any more" and "Work days."

Miss Maud Elliston and company play with much spirit and animation the farcical production, entitled Dobson's Day Off, the parts in which are well acted and the result most satisfactory. Miss Alice Digby sings about "A Bungalow in Borneo" and "White moon"—the latter a very pretty serenade—afterwards giving a dance, which is highly commendable alike for agility and grace of movement. The Three Sisters Tree (Bibby, Dolly, and Portia) appear in a hunting episode, The Love-chase, and their combined efforts win (as they deserve to do) the appreciative recognition of the audience. Celest, the well-known sensational wire-walker and gymnast, contributes a turn remarkable for its neatness and dexterity, and it meets with general approval. Mr. Harry Ford is this week the bright particular star, and his appearance has been welcomed in the heartiest manner possible. Of his performance it need only be said that it retains all the familiar features which long ago promoted Mr. Ford to a high rank amongst the music hall comedians of the day. Mr. Ford, with a style of his own, is both versatile and clever, changing his manner as well as his dress with each song. He displays an abundance of humour in the rendering of his songs, "I wonder," "Oh! bosh!" and "When she walks," introducing some very amusing patter in the two latter. The Five Digby Girls, expert dancers, contributed valuably in their speciality "Back from the Continent," in which they introduce various national dances. Their varied and picturesque costumes and clever dancing provide a delightful item in the programme. James Willard and company, in a laughable sketch, entitled The Little Wonder, prove a strong attraction, and its reception must be very encouraging to the performers. Harry Reynold's Minstrel Quintette give a capital entertainment, the varied features of which include part-singing, whistling, ballads, and comic songs. Each member of the company in turn contributes, and their combined efforts are worthy of high praise. The excellent programme concludes with Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your report of the City Varieties, Leeds, in your last issue we are reported as the La Donays, song illustrators. It should have been the Lovelaces, song illustrators.—Yours sincerely, THE LOVELACES, Empress, Hartlepool, April 9.

FAY FABER OWNS TO AMBITIONS.

Mrs. John Lawson Would Like to Play Leading Rôles in the Higher Drama.
TORN FROCKS.

No one who has witnessed Mrs. John Lawson's striking impersonation of Fay Faber in The Devil's Sunday will need to be told that the accomplished lady has high ambitions.

What she would like to do would be to play the leading rôles in the higher drama—the "temperamental" heroine—characters requiring the magnetism necessary for the creation of an "atmosphere." I think she could do it, too. At any rate, the ambition is there.

And now I have told you that you will not be surprised to learn further that Mrs. Lawson's ideal is Mrs. Patrick Campbell, of whom, with her luminous eyes, sweeping carriage, and svelte figure, she is somewhat reminiscent.

Most people know that Mrs. Lawson's husband is Mr. John Lawson, a clever actor, who has become famous in the variety world for his intense sketches, and will be at once remembered.

I told the fair actress that many regrets had been expressed at the fact that Mr. John Lawson had not appeared with her this week.

"What is your favourite part?" I asked.

MRS. JOHN LAWSON.

"Whatever the public like me in best," came the prompt answer; "because," sagely observed this logically-minded lady, "if the public like me, the managers do, and that means lots of engagements."

Mrs. Lawson thinks the music halls better to work in than the theatre, from the artist's point of view, because the effects are more rapidly obtained.

The success of the music hall, with its continuous entertainment and absence of intervals, she attributes to the quicker pace at which life is lived nowadays. Just as a man takes the Twopenny Tube instead of the omnibus, so he goes to a music hall in search of his amusement instead of to a theatre.

It is interesting to mention that Mrs. Lawson designs all the dresses and scenery used in her husband's productions, and her artistic taste has frequently been commended.

Talking about dresses, the sensational struggle in The Devil's Sunday is rather hard on the wardrobe, and Mrs. Lawson showed me a charming "confection" which had been hopelessly ruined this week. Silk and chiffon were not intended for jiu-jitsu.—Nottingham Press.

"OFF TO GRETNA GREEN."

A Comic Opera, in Three Scenes, Lyrics and Libretto by Wellesley Smith, New and Original Music specially composed by George Ess and Julian Rutt, produced on Monday, April 8, at the Queen's Palace of Varieties, Poplar.

Squire Hawthorn ..... MR. WELLESLEY SMITH
Sir George Graham ..... MR. FRANK BARCLAY
Spotts ..... MR. TOM FANCOURT
Cranky ..... MR. WALTER WESTWOOD
Molly ..... JENNIE RUBIE
Maude ..... MISS CLARA MOORE
Hearty ..... MR. PEARCE
Leary ..... MR. ALFRED ELLIOTT

Bright and tuneful music, good comedy, pretty dresses, and a simple plot are the ingredients which have contributed towards the immediate success of this merry trifle, while the completeness of the production and the smoothness of the performance reflect every credit on all concerned. Maude Fairbanks, the ward of Squire Hawthorn, is in love with Sir George Graham, but the Squire, who has gambled away Maude's fortune, fears that Sir George may find out his dishonesty, and, therefore, forbids him the house. During the Squire's temporary absence the lovers meet and arrange to elope and marry at Gretna Green. In this scheme they are aided by Spotts and Molly, together with a lunatic who has a mania for blowing up anything that annoys him by means of bombs. Maude and George manage to elope, and after several amusing incidents, arrive safely at Gretna Green, where they are united, the Squire's guilt is proved, and the end is forgiveness and happiness.

Mr. Wellesley Smith was energetic as Squire Hawthorn, and Mr. Frank Barclay made a manly Sir George Graham, his fine voice being heard to advantage in the charming number "Gretna Green." Miss Clara Moore looked exceedingly pretty as Maude, and Mr. Walter Westwood was capital as the bomb-throwing Cranky. Miss Jennie Rubie was smart and vivacious as Molly, and Mr. Tom Fancourt as Spotts was extremely funny, his amusing "business" and comic interludes being in a rich vein of comedy, while his duet with Miss Jennie Rubie fairly brought down the house. The chorus worked well, and the scenery and dresses were of a high order of excellence. Praise must be awarded to the general-manager, Mr. Jack Woolf, for his successful efforts; while Mr. Morris Abrahams carries out his duties as assistant acting-manager with his usual urbanity.

HARRY STACKHOUSE, for some months past electrician at the Empire, Glasgow, resigned his position last Saturday to take up an appointment in Middlesbrough. A pleasant surprise awaited him at the fall of the curtain, when Mr. Charles Mussett, the manager of the theatre, had the pleasure of presenting him with a purse of gold, subscribed by his colleagues. In handing this to him, Mr. Mussett said that although he had been at the Empire only a few months, he had become most popular with the management and the staff, and his leaving was greatly regretted by one and all. Harry Stackhouse replied in a few words; and, with a handshake all round, a pleasant function terminated.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

LONDON PAVILION.

Mr. Frank Glenister's Easter programme at the fine house in Piccadilly-circus is blest with the names of a number of old favourites, who are making happy returns in more senses than one. Among them is Mr. George Mozart, who comes back to a house where he has always been popular after a series of triumphs in America. As a new vehicle for his humour Mr. Mozart—who, by the way, is a skilled instrumentalist—gives a burlesque of the vagaries of a village band, comically untuneful and unmelodiously droll. The imitation of the untutored efforts of an amateur on the clarionet—a much-abused instrument for which Balfe had such a great regard—are in the best spirit of travesty, and Mr. Mozart undoubtedly gets "home" with his audience, by whom he is cordially welcomed. He will probably, with repetition, add further to the amusing features of the skit. Mr. John E. Coyle has also been securing golden opinions from all sorts of people in sunnier lands since his last Pavilion engagement, and finds a very hilarious subject in "By the sea" which appeals in its clever comedy patter to the many-headed. In strong contrast to Mr. Coyle is Mr. Will Edwards, a comedian who has won much popularity in another field of entertainment. He is nightly increasing his reputation at the "Pav.," where he amuses vastly with a humorous song on a beanfeast outing, in which breadth of humour is very advantageously displayed.

We have had many cross-talk comedians from the other side, but for abysmal depths of absurdity commend us to the conversations of Jordan and Harvey, who hit off in a very clever fashion the foibles of the humbler members of the Hebrew race. One exclaims to the other in a pathetic vein concerning his wife's extravagance. Mrs. Ikestein's demands are extortionate. Every day she bothers Ikey for cash—in increasing amounts, too. Commencing at the humble sum of twopence, she raises the figure until it reaches the lordly half-a-crown. "Mein gracious," says Ikey's sympathiser, "what can she do with all that money?" "I don't know," is the reply, "I haven't given her any!"

Refined musical turns are always heartily welcomed in the halls, and the selections of Florence and Lilian on the cornet, violin, and post-horn find the heartiest appreciation. Les Fleurs Polonaises, whose artistic dancing causes enthusiasm nightly, have very wisely been retained over the holidays. They give a most exhilarating performance of their native dances, especially of "The Krakoviak," into which is infused all the fire and energy of the Slav nature. The cosmopolitan attractiveness of the programme is added to by Hill and Whitaker, from America, who hold us captive while we hear echoes of the ancient negro revival songs—always melodious and often quaint. Mr. Malcolm Scott, a chartered libertine in the matter of jest, has increased his knowledge by observation during his recent voyage to the Canaries and back. The comedian's matter is exceedingly well put together, and his observations as the latest Gibson Girl are not only quaint, but they are often 'cute. Mr. Scott is evidently a caustic critic of public affairs and topical incidents.

Early in the evening Mr. Kit Keen evokes much applause by his ingeniously introduced bone solos, choosing as the vehicle for his clever exhibition the "Anvil Chorus" from Il Trovatore. Miss Alice Lawton is a fascinating dancer; and Mr. Harry Zetter, as a comedian and eccentric dancer, is in a progressive groove, and is very smart. Howard and Collinson exploit a highly original act in The Porter and the Parcel, quite a parcel of fascinating mischief, with a wonderful study of mechanical movement, à la poupée. Beautiful examples of statuary are still chastely realised by the perfectly-formed Olga Seldom and her companions, the finest being "The Fountain," a design worthy of a place in an art gallery. Francis, juggler; Miss Marie Dainton, Mr. Frank Maura, Mr. Hal Forde, Miss May Henderson, and Miss Nora Moore, are other attractions in a long and finely-varied bill.

THE EUSTON.

The gentleman burglar is quite an old friend of the lovers of melodrama. Mr. Henry Arthur Jones is supposed to have invented him when he created the character of Captain Skinner in The Silver King, a piece that may be counted as one of the finest of its kind produced during the nineteenth century. Up to that period the cracksman of the drama was a forbidding-looking personage in moleskin or corduroy, of the Bill Sikes or Rogue Riderhood pattern; and, therefore, when Mr. Jones added to his elegance and his tailor's bill, and presented him in faultless evening dress, the public interest in the lamented Wilson Barrett's Princess's Theatre production was largely stimulated. Later, Sir Charles Young introduced to the London stage Jim the Penman, played by, among other actors, Mr. E. S. Willard, who became famous by his impersonation of the aforesaid Captain Skinner. Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman, is the latest addition to the interesting series of characters; and The Gentleman Cracksman, now being presented at the Euston, one would think, was suggested by the Comedy Theatre success referred to. But an examination of both pieces reveals no resemblance, and if Mr. Edward Ferris—who, we may presume, is the author—has been inspired by any theatrical production at all, it would seem to be Sir Charles Young's powerful play. Jim the Penman is a successful commercial man, as well as a famous forger. Philip Marsden is a clever barrister and a bold burglar. He disturbs burly Bill Grimes while in the act of abstracting jewels from Lady Unstart's bureau, and, covering him with a revolver, makes him replace them. Bill doesn't get away, but clears himself by inculpating an innocent man, whom Marsden defends in the last scene. The game is up, however, when Grimes enters the witness-box. Marsden confesses to the robbery, and shoots himself. Mr. Ernest Norris plays the barrister-burglar with excellent effect, being cool in his audacity and eloquent in speech. Mr. Bruce is grimly humorous as Bill Grimes; and a very great hit is made by Miss Adie Boyne, a capital little character actress, with a positive genius for low comedy. Miss Boyne appears in the trial scene in a number of characters, and the poor, distressed widow who pleads to the judge so pitifully for her son is in deep contrast to the jaunty and pert Polly Potter or the unreflecting and stupid Mrs. Painter.

A very attractive interlude of song is presented by Mr. Emlyn Jones and his quartet of international singers. Firstly, Mr. Jones himself sings as a solo "Memories," the chorus of which is very artistically rendered by a ladies' quartet, who appear behind a transparency. The national sentiment is emphasised by such selections as "The Bells of Aberdovey," in Welsh, "Loch Lomond," and "Killarney," the finale being the refrain of "The Death of Nelson." Loud applause greets these admirable vocalists.

We find an excellent humorist in Cruikshank, "the fool of the family," who sings to his own banjo accompaniment a funny parody of "In the shade of the old apple tree." Mr. R. H. Douglass, a first-class monologue entertainer, gives a résumé of the fun of a pantomime rehearsal, which, besides being replete with humour, shows much keen observation, and is full of laughter-raising points. A very fine exhibition of sand-dancing is furnished by My Fancy, a champion at quickness and intricacy of step; the Three Sisters Sprightly show decided ability in their trios, and especially as dolls; Baker and Balfe are excellent xylophonists; Miss Ella Retford makes a delightful fraulein with a pretty sabot dance; Mr. C. tells stories in his quaint American way; and the Yankee Doodle Girls present a lively series of manœuvres and dances, which typify international amity between the States and the Old Country. The bill concludes with Ruffell's Bioscope, with an amusing film, "The movable pillar post-office." Mr. Fred McAvoy is the popular manager here, and he is well assisted by Mr. Charles Wellman.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

The management of this hall of amusement should be well satisfied with the result of their efforts to place before their patrons an excellent entertainment at a very low price. The high-class performance provided has made this hall as popular as any in London, and good business is the rule. Foremost on the programme this week are Mr. Wal Pink's "workmen" in Repairs. The scene represents Muddleton Villa in the hands of the decorators, Messrs. Messit and Spoiler, and apparently these cognomens are very appropriate. This little absurdity is the essence of humour, and hearty laughter rewards the efforts of those responsible. The scene in this sketch is an excellent example of its kind, and not only may the members of Mr. Pink's company be looked upon as comedians of a high class, but they may also be regarded as acrobats of more than usual merit. Much praise is due to this clever body of players for their energetic and highly-satisfactory performance. Miss Nellie Farrell, an Irish comedienne with a charming manner, and also the possessor of a tuneful voice, sings of the troubles of married life in a style which gains for her considerable applause. Mr. Frank Seeley, the quick and quaint comedian, provides plenty of amusement with his two songs. In the first, disguised as a woman, he relates in a droll manner the worries and troubles he has experienced as Cinderella. In the patter he tells of the time when seated by the fireside his fairy godmother came down the chimney covered with soot and pieces of brick. Not having the necessary pumpkin in readiness to be changed into a coach, he breaks open the child's money-box and sends for a vegetable marrow, and so he continues, causing laughter with every sentence. His second contribution, "I had to go back and change it," was delivered in his usual humorous manner, and much praise is due to him for his excellent contributions.

Another favourite here is Mr. Charles Bignall, and he scores a huge success with his two songs, "The happiest man alive" and "Are we downhearted?" In this latter number he is assisted by the audience, who, when asked the question, "Are we downhearted?" reply, in an extra hearty manner, "No." Mr. Charles Bignall's turn is much appreciated. Miss Daisy Dormer proves herself to be a dainty and charming comedienne. Both her numbers are rendered in capital style, and she afterwards treats the audience to some clever dancing, a most noticeable feature of this being a backward high kick. She must be complimented on her really capable performance. Mr. Tatten Hall, a burlesque comedian, obtains a warm reception which is well deserved. His turn is an excellent one, opening with a catchy song relating to the troubles of a dude who wears an eyeglass, and closing with a most comical impersonation of a huntsman. Both contributions gain for him well-deserved applause. Miss Lilian Boanas, a charming vocalist, is well received in her tasteful and well-rendered songs. Her voice is pure and rich in tone, and enables her to do great credit to the numbers of her choice. Jordan and Harvey, a couple of Hebraic comedians, entertain the audience with their droll songs and amusing patter. Fun is liberally provided by these clever artists, who appear to have reached the zenith of their popularity. Some excellent pictures are shown by the Imperial Bioscope, the most interesting of which is "The Hooligans of the Wild West." Mr. George Wilson has taken over the management of the Holborn Empire for a time, and in his place Mr. Harry Blight is again seen in his old post. He ably attends to the front of the house, and his close attention to the comfort of the audience is much appreciated. The orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. A. Petersen, who is a firm favourite with everyone.

THE MIDDLESEX.

The stars are always twinkling in Drury-lane, or in that portion of it occupied by Mr. J. L. Graydon's old-established hall, and among those who shine with most lustre this week are the Bensons, who have just been entertaining patrons of the Palace, and prove to be equally acceptable to the more humble, but no less discriminating audiences of the Middlesex. The daintiness and grace of the lady, her vocal accomplishments, and excellence in the art of terpsichore, combined with the smartness and agility of her partner, take the occupants of stalls and gallery alike captive, and their brilliant comedy gifts are exercised in many varied and agreeable ways. Their version of "Sally in Our Alley," in which the lady does such excellent work at the piano, proves irresistible to the audience, who applaud the act with might and main. The effects obtained in the selection are highly relished, and an encore is undeniable. The response made on the evening of our visit took the shape of a rendering of the favourite "Shy Ann," sung with delightful archness by the comedienne, and aided by her partner in the refrain. The dance which concluded the item was distinguished by variety of movement and neatness of execution, and though more was demanded, the artists had breathlessly to bow their acknowledgment of the prolonged cheers which their exhilarating act had drawn forth. They certainly get "the" reception of the evening.

Phenomena of the Fire Brigade are presented in the sketch Blazes, which flares furiously under the care of the Six Brothers Luck. The playlet has some genuinely funny moments, and the efforts of the famous family of comedians move the house to the heartiest laughter. The New Bioscope has this week turned on a film in which a little dramatic story is portrayed. Under the title of "Foul Play," it depicts a theft by a bank clerk, who causes suspicion to fall upon his fellow employee. The latter is arrested, and the trial in a police-court, when the accused is convicted, is reproduced. How the wife of the prisoner tracks down the scoundrel, and secures the release of the husband is vividly portrayed on the film, which is enthusiastically cheered.

A musical motorist figures among the variety items of the programme. Mr. Gus Barra, who makes his entry in a bassinette fitted up as an automobile, playing a droll solo on a number of "hooters" attached to his clothes. His performance on a couple of concertinas played at the same time is very clever, and well applauded. Mr. Frank Seeley receives the welcome always extended to an old favourite. His appearance as Cinderella involves the addition to his lay of a quantity of "patter" that is well appreciated, and the singing of "Coming in" is also highly approved. Ross and Grayson excite constant peals of laughter by their comedy act, in the course of which the comedian does a funny sand-dance at the piano, on which he executes solos in the most inconceivable positions. There is a good deal of quiet drollery about Stacey and Williams, whose "cross-talk" is original and ingeniously contrived, and, together with their capital dancing, renders them prime favourites. The Sisters Cora captivate their hearers in their duet, "Would you care?" and in the popular lyric, "Come back to Borneo," to which is added some skilful dancing. Mr. Fred Dornan, a son of the popular basso of Moore and Burgess Minstrels fame, reveals hereditary talent in his descriptive songs "Fairies" and "Jack of Diamonds," the choruses of which are vigorously re-echoed up aloft; and the Currie Trio succeed in a bright act in which military drill and dancing are agreeably combined. Fyne and Hurley are popular contributors to a well-filled programme, which is also embellished by Corelli, in "Conjuring, and How it is done"; Master Charles Carr, Miss Marie Neilson, Mr. Will Freedo, Gerant and Ugar, and Dene and Dawson, in a comedy sketch.

TRIAL TURNS AT NEW CROSS.

Two hours were devoted at the New Cross Empire on Monday afternoon to the sampling of a number of candidates for the London halls selected by Mr. Ernest Bridgen, the manager of the handsome Moss and Stoll house in the South-east. No particularly novel item was to be found among the fourteen aspirants who presented themselves, but earnestness and ability were evident in almost every case, and in some instances great promise was given. The test, over which Mr. Will Collins, district manager for the Moss Empires, presided, was made under the least encouraging conditions, no audience being present with the exception of a few artists and some members of the Press, so that the performers had to face many rows of empty benches. A good beginning was made by a young lady vocalist named Miss Sudbury, who gave "She wandered down the mountain side." The ballad, of course, is more fitted for a concert room, but such great strides have been made in that direction by the modern variety hall that Miss Sudbury, who sings with great feeling and taste, might well hope for future success. A neat dancer was forthcoming in Mr. Geo. Phillips, a youthful comedian, who made the plaintive appeal in song, "Honey, won't you open the door?" and did a well-varied sand dance. A brother of a popular comedienne was found in Mr. Jack Monks, who had nothing more new to offer than the old favourite "Terry," but he sang it in breezy style, and revealed the possession of a robust tenor which might be used to still better advantage.

An artist well qualified to hold her own in the regular bill appeared in Miss Minnie Merry, a lady low comedian, who put on male attire of an eccentric kind to sing a couple of comic songs. Miss Merry is gifted with a droll expression and a well-developed sense of humour, and works with abundant resource. Her style, indeed, is superior to her songs, with which she might be better suited. Miss Jeanie Deans' "The Tinker's Wedding," sung in Scottish array, was chiefly noticeable for a graceful hornpipe. As a vocalist Miss Deans did better in the ballad "Caller Herrin'," sung in character, and partly accompanied by herself at the piano.

Command of the concertina was manifested by Mr. Alexander Prince, who played unaccompanied an excerpt from grand opera in musicianly style; but his performance, while being interesting to music-lovers, would have to be more varied to obtain permanent recognition by a music-hall audience. Mr. Walter Barrett, dressed in the picturesque garb of a bandit, displayed a cultivated baritone in the difficult ballad "The Bandolero," which he rendered with all the requisite breadth and vigour. A child comedienne appeared in the person of Miss Lily Farrar, who sang of "Mlle. New York," and did a pretty and well-executed dance. Clever songs were well sung at the piano by Miss Herron Brown, who treated of the Workman's Compensation Act in "Master's got to keep me all my life," and also reproduced humorously the peculiarities of her partners at a dance. Similar work was done by Miss Roma Howard, who sang daintily to her own accompaniment a couple of piquant songs. Tentative appearances were also made in the course of the afternoon by the Pollods, who cut a comical appearance as a trio of Lilliputian oddities; Miss Flo Rose, who made a blithe vivandière; Mr. Frank Goddard, who sang of the delights of "Flying"; and Smyth and Moylan, who submitted a duologue followed by a tenor and soprano duet.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

The all-round excellence of the programme that is being presented here this week is drawing houses packed from floor to ceiling, standing-room only being the order throughout. The bright particular star is Miss Marie Lloyd, who appears to be in excellent health and spirits. She is giving this week two capital numbers, in both of which she appears to exceptional advantage. Her first is the increasingly popular "Custom of the country," which is going as well as ever, and is being received with every expression of favour. In her second contribution she is dressed as a Spanish dancing-girl, and sings of the rapid ways of the land of King Alfonso, "where the girls they do go on so." In this she exhibits a delicious piquancy, and gives her audience just a taste of Orientalism in her dancing. On concluding she is the recipient of a perfect hurricane of applause. Special mention should be made of her lovely dresses, which both suit and fit her to perfection.

Sibb and Sibb, the clever trapeze artists, are again paying one of their periodical visits to this hall, and are presenting their ever-popular turn, which has been further improved by much new and original work. No matter how steep is the trick, it is accomplished with an ease that is surprising. On concluding they are rewarded in a most liberal manner. Ella Lane is singing a capital number of the pot-pourri description, in which she introduces the names of innumerable songs, both past and present, which are strung together in a most clever manner. Real rollicking fun is supplied by the Six Brothers Luck, who are presenting that laughable absurdity, Blazes; or, The Lightning Fire Brigade. Whilst these comedians occupy the stage the fun waxes fast and furious, and they succeed in keeping the house in one continuous roar of laughter. The Three Prestons, in The Liftman's Rise, are as amusing as ever, bringing the sketch to a conclusion by some excellent dancing. Miss Maud Courtney, an American artist, tells a number of funny stories in a most interesting manner, and brings her turn to a conclusion with an excellent number, entitled "Wouldn't that be a dream." Victor Travers is singing "I'm the messenger of love," the verses of which he intersperses with some funny patter and amusing impersonations, which seem much to the liking of the house. Fred Spencer, described on the programme as "an expressionist," is giving a number, entitled "They call me a bathing girl," in which is introduced some original patter.

A Daughter of Pleasure is the title of a sketch which is being successfully exploited by Grahame and Harrington. This little drama is cleverly written, and admirably acted. The scene is the reception-room of an hotel. A gentleman, on his way to London with a large sum of money, which is to save the credit of a certain renowned bank, is forced, owing to a breakdown on the railway, to break his journey in Paris. He is in great fear that he may not reach his destination in time, but at the last minute discovers that if he leaves in the middle of the night he may bring his journey to a successful ending. Whilst interviewing the maître d'hôtel, and arranging everything for his early departure, he discovers that a certain former mistress of his is staying at the same hotel, and she makes her appearance ere he can escape. Wine is ordered, just for old time's sake, and under its influence he divulges his mission and the sum of money he has with him. The sudden temptation is too much for her; and she succeeds in effectively drugging and robbing him. Whilst going through his pocket-book, she discovers that the bank which he represents is the one in which her aged mother has invested her all. A feeling of contrition possesses her. She is able to successfully administer an antidote, and her former lover catches his train and saves the credit of the bank. Of the title-rôle Miss Harrington has made a close and deep study, and the result is quite artistic. Mr. Grahame is also intense and powerful as the lover.

George Reeves has a capital song, entitled "Nap, Nap, Nap Napoleon," which is being received with every expression of goodwill; the Three Sisters Sprightly introduce some clever dancing into their turn; and the Bioscope is again contributing an interesting item. Mr. Harry Ketteman, the manager, is popular, and his courteous assistant is Mr. Charles Lurring.

SADLER'S WELLS.

Miss Dolly Elsworthy and her company in the sketch The Orange Girl have proved a great attraction here this week. The story concerns the relations of King Charles II. with one Nell Gwyn, his mistress. It would be difficult to conceive anything more bewitching than Miss Dorothy Elsworthy in the rôle of the Royal favourite. Her moods and manners are kaleidoscopic. At one moment she brings the King to a feeling of remorse with her battery of tears, and at another she has him in a spirit of exultation and unbounded joy by her smiles and her merry cajolery. In short, where one thing fails, pretty mistress Nell knows very well that another will succeed, and so with a variety of expressions and a changefulness which have ever characterised her sex, the vivacious erstwhile seller of oranges moves from gloom to gaiety, from angry words to mirthful sentiments. In Miss Elsworthy's hands she is an embodiment of all the peculiar qualities which have made her sex a riddle, and the actress is certainly to be congratulated upon a brilliant portraiture. Mr. S. Wilson acts in good style as the King, and Mr. J. Willoughby appears to advantage as the Duke of Buckingham. Miss E. Douglas plays with marked ability in the part of the jealous, back-biting Lady Castlemaine; and Mr. Adderley Howard is virulent as the disappointed lover. Miss C. Rivers as Mother Gwyn presents a capital study of an old drink-sodden hag. The playlet is excellently mounted.

Mr. Fred Moule's company creates uproarious merriment with the "musical mirthful mixture" entitled The Love-Makers; or, The Extra Turn. The antics of a jocular stage-manager and his various "turns" cannot fail to arouse our risible faculties, and with the assistance of a troupe of dancers, specially trained by Miss Lottie Stone, the comedietta is bright and lively from beginning to end. Mr. Harry Wright excels as an extempore vocalist; and Miss Marion Scott is a very engaging and talented comedienne. Miss Nellie Gannon sings in stirring style about Nelson and the days of Trafalgar, and she also has a pretty ditty entitled "My little love-bird," which is sung with feeling and expression. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux display some remarkably realistic pictures on the subject of "The Village Fire Brigade"; and the Maros are seen in a quaint triple bar act which is smartly performed. The Zampas are also heard and seen to advantage as vocalists, speciality dancers, and bâton manipulators, and in the latter line show themselves to be most skilful. Capital contributions to the programme are furnished by Miss Peggy Fame, comedienne and dancer; and Mr. Charles Gardiner, comedian.

BARNARD'S PALACE, GREENWICH.

Mr. Bert Dent has, according to his invariable custom, arranged a programme for this week remarkable both for quantity and quality. The frequenters of this hall must be hard to please if they cannot find much to their taste in the capital bill submitted for their delectation. After the overture, "Aus der Leit für die Zeit," has been rendered by the excellent band, under the direction of Mr. William Skerry, the entertainment commences with the appearance of Mr. Dudley Hayes, character comedian, who sings two amusing songs, entitled "It won't be a stylish wedding" and "Don't 'e do 'is 'air all right?"; next comes Mons. Savoro with some cleverly executed imitations of a thrush, a young chicken, a skylark, a puppy, &c., and these are all so perfect as to evoke loud applause. George A. Stevens and vaudeville party follow, and the songs they contribute are all well rendered; Miss Ray Raymond, the charming comedienne and dancer, creates an excellent impression with "The girl I left behind" and "I'm going to marry Brown, of Chicago"; the attractive lady gymnast and contortionist, Lilian, causes much wonder and admiration at the marvellous skill and dexterity she exhibits, and the precision and grace with which she executes her difficult and novel tricks. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope presents a new and interesting series of animated pictures. A capital extra turn is that of the sketch entitled, The Paperhanger, which is well acted by the Sprengsons. Other extra turns include those of Long and Beale, whose duologue is excellent; and Charles Banks, with his cleverly-trained dog. La Belle Maie, known as the Queen of Equipoise, delights all with her clever and graceful performance; George Scott has a flattering reception for his rendering of "Something missing" and "Nelson"; Cline and Clare, comedy duologue artists, do well in their contribution, entitled The Other Mrs. Brown; Baroux and Bion, comedy and eccentric acrobats, cause much laughter by their funny boxing act; Mlle. Du Roche, operatic vocalist, rouses the audience to enthusiasm by her splendid rendering of "Banish sorrow" and "Marguerite." This artist is the fortunate possessor of a very fine soprano voice, well trained and pleasing in tone. Stanley's Urchins are great favourites here, and their entertainment, consisting of singing, comedy, and dancing, is very popular; especially so is their rendering of "Snowflakes," "Eileen Alannah" and "Don't send the organ-man away." Billie Bracey, the dandy negro comedian, scores a success with his original patter, and his song, "A telegram from baby."

THE DAYTON FAMILY AT DONCASTER.

GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.

A high-class variety entertainment is provided at the local theatre this week, and on Monday evening two good houses witnessed the performance, and by their applause showed marked appreciation. There is not a dull minute from beginning to end. The Dayton Family head an excellent bill, and show some exceedingly novel and clever tricks. They are ten in number, and each one finds something to do, and does it well. Their latest creation, "Le Rendezvous," a scene in Hyde Park, London, is a huge success. The Cecilian Family, musicians and dancers, created something in the way of a surprise with the performance of a little girl. Milford Bros., triple trapeze artists, and George Bernard, actor-vocalist, are worthy of special mention. Johnny Groves, Sansom and company, Billian Trio comedy sketch, in A Night's Frivolity, found plenty of scope for some excellent fun. The company is well balanced throughout. Others appearing are Miss Ada Lucerne, charming singer; Hannaway Bros., comedians, dancers, and burlesque boxers; and Harry Sansom, comedian. There is every appearance of a busy week for the theatre staff.—Doncaster Borough Advertiser.

GRAND THEATRE.

A particularly fine variety entertainment is being given at the Grand Theatre and Empire this week, and none should miss it, every "turn" being good. People who like thrilling and clever acrobatic displays find everything to be desired in the Dayton family, ten in number, who in a specially set piece, entitled "Le Rendezvous," go through a series of the most amazing feats. Lying on their backs, five of the adults, by leg and feet movement, roll and toss three little boys about in the air as if they were nothing more than bundles of hay, and apparently without at all inconveniencing either themselves or the youngsters. Two or three fine and unique human pyramids feature the performance, which, on the whole, to use a colloquialism, is well worth the money.—Doncaster Gazette, April 12, 1907.

Performers having a long wait in Birmingham on any Sunday can obtain lunch, tea, and other refreshments by calling at the Dog and Partridge Inn, Ellis-street, Holloway Head, the proprietress of which is Mrs. Charles Edgar, widow of the late Charles Edgar. Railway tickets must be produced.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Vesta Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

Subscribed to date, 2212½ shillings.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Norton Heath Fair.

We are very much afraid that this fair will have to go. There seems to be a lamentable want of energy or interest on the part of the local showmen, for although we have reason to believe that the roundabout proprietor who provides the principal attractions is well aware of the proposal of the local authorities to abolish the fair, he is taking no action to preserve his business interests. Acting for the Showmen's Guild, Mr. Horne has visited Norton Heath and interviewed the authorities at Ongar.

Stafford.

The Eastertide amusements at this town were provided by the local caterer, Mr. Davies, who provided galloping horses, park swings, and other machine novelties, and with him was associated Mr. Connor, with throwing games and fair-ground novelties.

Richmond Park.

The show-ground in the Old Deer Park at Richmond was, as usual, well supplied by Matthews, of Farnborough. The principal attractions were roundabouts, shooters, and throwing games.

On the Sands at Crook.

According to our Durham correspondent the showmen have had a good time on the sands this Eastertide. The Warden and Freemen of Durham have always encouraged the best class of showmen to exhibit their concerns on the sands. One of the principal novelties this year was the Japanese airship provided by Mr. J. Wingate, of Skegness. On the upper deck of this machine novelty there is a large platform, capable of holding one hundred patrons; when the roundabout is in full swing the sensation experienced by the trippers is most realistic. The deck oscillates from side to side, first up and then down, giving all the experience of a short voyage on a squally sea. Mr. Wingate announces that he intends to patent an airship and to bring it out as a novelty on his next tour. In addition to this amusement there were motor-car roundabouts, a cinematograph theatre, various side-shows, and throwing games.

Guild Meetings at Wrexham.

Continuing his itinerary of British fairs, the Guild Captain hopes to be at Wrexham for next Sunday, when he intends to hold meeting of the Guild and a service on the fair-ground.

A Colonial Premier and Party at the Fair.

Amongst our distinguished guests now in the old country for the purpose of attending the Colonial Conference is Sir Joseph Ward, the Premier of New Zealand. Accompanied by Lady Ward and the rest of his party, the distinguished statesman spent a glorious afternoon on Hampstead Heath at the time of the Easter Fair. To the ordinary Britisher it is difficult to realise how our cousins overseas enjoy when they come to the Mother Land the glorious attractions of the fair. In recording his impressions, he says:—"I would not have missed it for anything. To feel myself at one with the merry-makers, to take part in the joyous din of chatter and song, and to be carried away with the hurly-burly of the roundabouts, and to be drawn a willing patron into the numerous shows, was, to me, one of the most delightful experiences of my home visit." The showmen were justly proud of the distinguished visitors in their midst, and there is no doubt that our guests from New Zealand entered fully into the spirit of the fair.

Gorton Spring Wakes.

Under Mr. John Collins' management, the principal concerns from Queen's-road Fair opened at Gorton, a great industrial suburb of Manchester. The shows included Colonel Clarke's coliseum of varieties. A contingent of side-shows and the machines and throwing games were those already described at the Easter Fair.

Eccles Spring Fair.

Under Mr. John Whiting's banner, the shows at Eccles included Norman's cinematograph theatre and Gibson's temple of occult magic. The lessee exhibited his celebrated Japanese cars and other attractions. The side-shows and throwing games were provided by the caterers from Ordsall-lane Fair and a contingent from Queen's-road.

Abertillery, Wales.

Bostock and Wombwell's fine menagerie were here Tuesday for the day. Crowds were highly delighted with the animals' performances and music of the excellent band. They also visit this week Risca, Abercarn, Treharris, and Maesycwmmer.

Astwood Bank.

Holloway's New Empire Theatre has just concluded a very successful three months' visit to Astwood Bank. Some first-class plays have been performed—The Fighting Parson, East Lynne, Driven from Home, My Sweetheart, and many others.

Mr. H. Ayres is now paying a visit with his steam galloping horses and cockerels, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle battery, cokernut gardens, and other numerous attractions.

Evesham.

At Evesham Easter Fair were Mr. H. Ayer's steam roundabouts, horses and cockerels, swing boats, bottle shooter, Mollies, cokernut sheets, &c.

Pershore.

At Pershore we have had Mr. A. Scarrott's new pony roundabouts, aerial swings, pipe smasher, cokernut sheets, and other numerous amusements.

Circus Horses Run Away.

An exciting scene was witnessed in the streets of Kettering on Thursday. Shortly after two o'clock the mid-day procession in connection with Lord John Sanger's circus was returning to the show-ground when two horses attached to one of the vans took fright and bolted, occasioning much alarm among the thousands of people in the streets. Their mad career came to a sudden stop through one of the horses falling.

A Fair Saved.

Our readers will remember the agitation at Writtle, near Chelmsford, to abolish the annual pleasure fair at Whitsuntide. Fortunately the local showmen have a great friend and champion of the fair at Writtle—Mr. Castledine, veterinary surgeon. The Showmen's Guild executive satisfied itself that the fair was one to be defended, and co-operated with Mr. Castledine in petitioning the Home Office against abolition.

A Friend in Need.

Mr. Castledine took a great amount of trouble, and enlisted a good deal of public sympathy for the showmen, whose business interests were threatened. He also made a strong point of the people's side of the question. We are glad to be able to announce that the Home Secretary, after taking the whole of the circumstances into consideration, has written to the local authorities and the various petitioners to say that he does not feel justified in abolishing Writtle Fair.

Mr. Castledine has forwarded the following letter for publication in our columns. It is addressed to the Hon. Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild:—

My Dear Sir,—As I suppose you already understand, we have been informed that the Home Secretary does not feel justified in making an order for the abolition of our Whitsuntide fair. We have fought hard in Writtle for the benefit of the inhabitants, and I feel sure you have worked hard for the welfare of the showmen, for which I thank you very much. As we are now only six weeks to Whitsun, I hope you will make it well known with the show people, so we are sure of having a good fair, which I should like to see much larger than in previous years. As the show people are on the green on Whit Sunday I should very much like to see you come down among the people on that day, or if that should not be convenient, perhaps you could come on the Monday, so as to open the fair. Trusting this will meet your favour,—Yours faithfully, W. Castledine.

Wrexham Fair.

Amongst the many excellent shows and machine novelties at this pleasure fair are P. Collins' coliseum of living pictures and empire varieties; Relph and Pedley's electrograph and variety theatre; C. Farrell's animated pictures; Wortley's two ground booths—the colliery model and the fine art gallery; C. Relph's willow pattern plate novelty show; and Tiny Tot, the midget pony. The machines are P. Collins' quartette—the yachts, the motors, the wheeley-whirley, and helter-skelter; C. Farrell's racing cockerels and jumping horses; J. Collins' Japanese airship; and Relph and Pedley's motor-cars. The shooting concerns are provided by C. Farrell, J. Fossett, Turner and Wright; throwing games, stalls, and varieties by Messrs. Hall, Turner, Farrell, Greatorex, Wright, Ball, Curry, Cordwell, and others; photo. saloons and vans by Messrs. Caddick and Fossett.

Our Blackburn correspondent omitted to mention that Captain Tom, with his bioscope, was on his usual ground at the fair. He will be at Darwen next week.

Royal Recognition.

The Chronophone, which is a combination of the principles of the cinematograph and the graphophone, was introduced on the 14th inst. to Royalty at Buckingham Palace, London, by special command.

Realistic and convincing-looking artists were made to act and sing in a most perfect and natural manner, the pictures being thrown on the screen over a bank of palms.

The Queen, the Empress Marie of Russia, and the Prince and Princess of Wales and children were present, and evinced the greatest delight at the entertainment afforded. Her Majesty showed her pleasure by commanding the production of extra pictures. The entertainment lasted about an hour.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Pickard, of the Britannia, Glasgow, was the first in the United Kingdom to bring the Chronophone before the public, and at his establishment it still forms one of the leading items of his entertainment.

Old Spilling's Fair is located this week on the Denes, at Lowestoft, and presents all the attractions recently on view at Norwich and Yarmouth. The fair, which is attracting thousands of sightseers from the surrounding neighbourhood, includes Messrs. Barker and Thurston's motor-cars, bioscope shows, slipping-the-slip, shooting galleries, boxing booths, &c.

The Charles Urban Trading Co. has long been noted for the cleverness of its magic and mystery cinematograph films, but its latest production is far ahead of previous publications. "Comedy Cartoons, by the Hand of the Artist" is a marvellous combination of expert—almost uncanny—photography and magic. The hand of the artist outlines chalk heads on a blackboard, and these gradually become animated. The head of a female appears and casts comical eyes of longing in the direction of an outlined tea-pot, which materialises into the real thing. The spout of the tea-pot is inserted into the mouth of the living image, and her expressions of content are extremely quaint. Most wonderful of all, however, is the drawing of a masculine head, which also assumes life and gesticulates in a remarkable manner. Suddenly the animated head is seen to split from crown to chin, and the halves fall apart as if hinged. From the eyes of the image are then drawn numberless yards of fine tape, and from the interior of the bisected head are produced wines, liqueurs, cigars, and cigarettes. The halves then reunite and resume the facial contortions, which continue as an ordinary duster removes feature by feature from the blackboard until only one eye is left, which winks impudently at the audience. Many other illusions are produced in this notable subject, which is certain to achieve a wide popularity.

On Thursday of this week (11th inst.) Lord John Sanger and Sons' Circus and Hippodrome paid a visit to Mansfield, and was largely patronised.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

These particulars have been supplied us by Messrs. Hughes and Young, of 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all matters relating to the protection of patents, designs, and trade marks.

Mr. G. F. Rayner, 37, Chancery-lane, London. Improvements relating to kinematographs. The intermittently rotating disc which carries the film, and the continuously rotating driving-disc, which is provided with slots, each of which, in passing the lens, acts as a focal-plane shutter, and exposes a portion of the film. A stop device is provided for stopping the disc at the end of one revolution. The stop, fixed on the disc, comes in contact with a projection on a slide and forces out the slide so that the projection comes into the path of the pin and stops the disc when the pin and projection contact. When uninterrupted rotation is required the slide is pulled out so that the pin passes between the projections.

Complete Specifications.

25,737. Panoramas, exhibitions, scenic Thorp, J. B., 98, Gray's Inn-road, London, W.C. A circular platform, carrying a model of a city, scenery, &c., is rotated on circular rails by a motor and worm-gearing, and spectators view the whole scene from a gallery, or get a closer view of parts from a corridor through apertures. The platform is surrounded by horizon and sky scenery and a semi-transparent awning diffuses the light from lamps. Electric lights for imitating sunlight, moonlight, and other effects are switched on and off by commutating-rings on the platform. An awning is provided over the gallery. Moving parts of the model, such as boats sailing on a river, may be operated by electricity.

26,307. Stage illusions. Goldin, H., 17, Torrington-square, London, W.C. In order to produce an illusion of firing a lady from a cannon into a series of boxes or trunks locked and bound one within another, the cannon is provided with a visible inlet door and a concealed outlet through which the lady descends through a trap-door in the stage, or a large cannon-wheel may be provided with sliding quadrants which move one behind another to enable the lady to pass through the wheel and behind scenery at the back. The trunks are fitted with flap or sliding doors to allow the lady to enter through a trap-door in the stage, or a double may be dressed to resemble the lady, who enters the cannon and remains in it after the firing, which is simulated by a pistol at the muzzle of the cannon. The trunks are arranged in the roof or other part of the building in view of the audience, and may be run down to the stage on a stretched wire or rope.

BIO OPERATORS' ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of operators resident in London was held on Friday, April 5, at 29, Wellington-street, Strand, London, the office of the National Alliance and of the National Association of Theatrical Employees. In addition to a number of operators there were present Mr. William Johnson, general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees; Mr. Frank Gerald, secretary to the Variety Artists' Federation; Mr. C. C. Bartram, and other representatives of these organisations.

A general discussion took place, and a number of letters were read that had been sent relating to the reports which appeared in The Era and the Performer on the subject of a union for bioscope operators.

The meeting was unanimous that an organisation should be formed, and it was decided to issue further invitations to discuss the proposal at a meeting on Wednesday, April 10.

The adjourned meeting was held on Wednesday at the same place. Mr. Catling, of the Surrey Theatre, was elected to the chair, and among those present were Mr. Merrett, Hale's Tours; Mr. Field, Bow Palace; Mr. Neal, Foresters'; Mr. Mayo, the Star, Bermondsey; Mr. J. Wood, Assembly Rooms, Canning Town; Mr. Brown, Mr. Brill, Britannia Theatre; and others connected with the N.A.T.E.

The following resolution was carried unanimously:—

"That, in view of the fact that a branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees has control of its trade interests and its funds, and practically all the advantages of an independent society, this meeting recommends that a Bioscope Operators' Association be formed to be a branch of the N.A.T.E."

It was suggested that the entrance fee be 2s. 6d., and that those applying to join send an application fee of 1s,

A list of provisional objects was drafted, and it was decided to circularise all operators before coming to any decision with respect to objects, contributions, and benefits.

The following donations were received, and they will be regarded as part payment of entrance fees:—C. E. Mack, 2s. 6d.; L. Wood, 2s.; H. Catlin, 1s.; J. Love, 1s; J. M Robinson, 1s.; J. Hutchins, 1s.; Merrett, 1s.; Sagett, 1s.; Mayo, 1s.; J. Wood, 2s.; Neal, 1s.; Brown, 1s.; Field, 1s.; Catling, 1s.; Cullen, 1s.; F. Gerald, 2s. 6d.; C. C. Bartram, 1s. Total, £1 2s.

Mr. Merrett was appointed to act with W. Johnson in issuing the necessary circulars.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on Wednesday, April 24, at 2 o'clock.

All those interested in the matter are urged to communicate their views, and to secure the support of those operators whom they meet, or with whom they are acquainted.

FORM OF APPLICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP.

I, the undersigned, hereby apply to be elected a member of this Association, and hereby pledge myself to abide by the rules and decisions of the Association, and to do my utmost to promote its welfare. If at any time it be proved that I have made untrue statements to obtain admission, or have violated any rule or refused compliance to any decision of the Association, I agree to be fined, expelled, or suspended, as the governing body may decide.

It would facilitate matters if applicant would mention names of well-known operators to whom applicant is known, and who can vouch for his eligibility for membership.

This application, with a fee of 1s., should be sent to Mr. William Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, London, W.C.

TO THE BIOSCOPE OPERATORS, ETC., OF THE UNITED KINGDOM.

It has been decided to form a Bioscope Operators' Association, and it is desired to elicit the opinions of all operators as to the objects the Association should aim at. The following list is submitted, and those interested are asked to say whether they favour the adoption of all or any of these objects.

Write in "Yes" or "No" in the column of the right-hand side, and return the form to William Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, London, W.C.

1. To establish a minimum salary.
2. To establish an employment agency
3. To establish a sick fund.
4. To establish a funeral fund.
5. To establish a benevolent fund.
6.
7.

Add any further object which you think should be included.

What should be the qualification for admission to the Association?

Would you favour an examination and the provision of a certificate of competency?

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

Gaumont's Chronophone celebrated its 200th consecutive performance at the London Hippodrome on Saturday evening last. The attractive powers of the wonderful instrument are as potent as ever, the new singing pictures being a source of wonder and delight with Hippodrome audiences.

Miss Florrie Bray, who is appearing this week at the Palace, Halifax, had rather an amusing incident occur during her song. She expected the audience to take up the lines "At Blackpool," which they did with gusto; but at the end of one of the verses a small voice from the gallery shouted "At Bunce's" (a local place) instead of "Blackpool," and evoked a peal of laughter in which the singer was compelled to join.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE METROPOLITAN.

Mr. Jack Edgar's holiday bill was robbed of one of its chief attractions during the Easter carnival by the indisposition of Mr. George Robey, who is now happily himself again, and quite able to realise his large responsibilities as the "prime minister of mirth" at the fine Edgware-road house. He has come back with the pantomime honours gained in Birmingham thick upon him. Quite in the Robeyan vein is "Now Laugh!"—a story in verse of "turning the tables" upon those who are too previous in their joy at the discomfiture of others. Mr. Robey, who has given us a sketch of our prehistoric ancestors on the variety stage, is again adding to his comical historical gallery of portraits by a burlesque skit of Elizabeth—good Queen Bess. "She" gives her own version of the story of Sir Walter Raleigh and the cloak, and has something amusing to say about Bluff King Hal, her father. Mr. Tom Woottwell, another prominent favourite at the Metropolitan, has given his admirers many a droll quarter of an hour, and he is again fortunate in the selection of his numbers. In his first he sings of "a little shirt." In his second item Mr. Woottwell, dressed as a navvy, seated on a barrow, indulges in philosophical dissertations concerning many blessings beyond the reach of his class. The possession of them is based on the fabric of a dream, and "Blowed if I didn't wake up" is the phrase that supplies a droll text.

Cinquevalli, the juggler of two centuries, holds the senses captive by his wonderful skill with billiard cues and billiard balls, and his tricks as a human billiard table in pocketing a ball that rolls from his forehead to his hips are far prettier to watch than the anchor cannon. If we do not indulge in superlatives concerning an exhibition of the art of poise and balance that has become world-famous it is because nothing that can be written can convey any real idea of the scope of Cinquevalli's genius. He has many imitators, but he is his only parallel. A word of praise should be given to his smart assistant, who most unmistakably possesses the gift of comic expression.

Early in the evening Miss Jessie Preston, who hails from the land of loch and brae, submits a whimsical character-sketch of the heroine of Mr. Harry Lauder's song "Ma Scotch Bluebell." A comical figure indeed, with an eccentric dance that sends the house into fits of laughter. Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, in her chief number, satirises the ditty that praises the maidens of unknown regions. There may be poetry in singing about the lily of Lugano, the pet of Pekin, the belle of Borneo, or the maid of Mexico; but Pimlico is more prosaic and practical, and the little girl whose adventures are so cleverly and archly described by pretty Miss Broadfoote "gets there just the same." Miss Godwynne Earle is well suited with "A picture no artist can paint"; and Miss Lilian Elfreda mimics a number of variety stars with considerable cleverness. Mr. G. H. Elliott, with charm of voice and earnestness of style, takes his audience captive when he warbles "Baby Loo." So wholesome a song and so sweet a singer are a rare combination. Mr. G. W. Hunter is at his very best in "The Freedom of the Press," a clever satirical song; Mr. Wilson Hallett is an exceedingly clever mimic of children; Mr. Andie Caine is very smart in his essays in musical comedy; Mr. Arthur Gilbert opens the bill with humour; and that favourite sketch, Love Germs, which is a screamer from first to last, is smartly presented by the Smythsons. Mr. Brien McCullough, who is not only an excellent comedian but a prolific author, is responsible for a farcical absurdity entitled The Wrong Letter, in which he plays with considerable unction the part of Lieutenant Nelson Beresford Togo Greene. Miss Nellie Nelson is a capital Mrs. Nelson Greene; and Mr. Horace Hunter is alert and smart as Captain Sidney Cawthorne, military officer. There should be plenty of bookings for such an amusing bit of nonsense as The Wrong Letter. A very fine film of the Grand National is presented among Jeapes' animated pictures, by permission of the Palace Theatre Company. The programme is wound up by the Great Northern Troupe, admirable dancers. On the night of our visit the place of Kelly and Gillette was successfully filled by Mr. Martin Conway.

THE PARAGON.

The Paragon programme is made up of a number of variety items, each one of which can be said to possess some special interest of its own, the whole forming an exceedingly attractive entertainment. An important engagement is that of Mr. George Robey, who is as heartily welcomed in the East End of the town as he is in the West. Genuine humour has its admirers everywhere, and Mr. Robey has gained his present position by the display of those uncommon qualities which belong only to the true comedian. The song "Now, laugh" is one of the happiest of the more recent additions to his répertoire, and the audience literally obey the invitation, as successive peals of merry laughter sufficiently prove. Even more conducive to uncontrollable merriment is the appearance of Mr. Robey as Queen Elizabeth, wearing a flamboyant wig and a huge lace collar of the true Elizabethan type. Queen Bess discourses on various matters, is anything but respectful to the memory of her father, bluff King Hal, and gives an entirely new version of the famous cloak episode in which Sir Walter Raleigh played a leading part. The frequent introduction of obsolete words of exclamation adds greatly to the fun, and Queen Bess has quickly become a popular personage at the Mile End place of amusement. Another comedian whose quaint style and funny patter meet with ready acceptance at the hands of patrons of the Paragon is Mr. Mark Sheridan, who has some amusing references to the alleged enormous salaries offered to English variety stars by American vaudeville managers. He also gives a taste of his quality as a dancer, and scores with a funny imitation of a young man going through a set of quadrilles for the first time.

Mr. Harry Tate and company in a revised version of Motoring, are responsible for some of the heartiest laughter heard during the evening. The boastful motorist, as of yore, comes to grief at the very beginning of his proposed trip, and the real humour of the situation appeals to everybody. In addition to a chauffeur who will persist in saying "I don't think," at the conclusion of almost every sentence, and the curious boy who is always getting in the way, the motorist has now an additional aggravation in the form of an impertinent individual who contemptuously strikes a match on the broken-down vehicle to light his cigarette. The sketch goes as merrily as ever it did.

Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene are appearing in the powerful dramatic episode, At the Stroke of Twelve, the most notable feature of which is the sleep-walking scene, played with thrilling effect by the lady. An innocent man is in prison on a charge of committing murder, though the actual criminal is no other than Isabel Trevellyn, the wife of a solicitor. She walks in her sleep, and in the presence of her horrified husband and a detective, she repeats all the details of the tragedy. On being awakened and learning what she had done she fatally stabs herself. Mrs. Royston-Dene gives a very forcible and telling rendering of this scene, and her admirable performance is greeted by loud applause. She is ably supported by Mr. Royston-Dene as the husband, Miss Sheelah Desmond as the daughter, and Mr. A. Field-Fisher as the detective.

The great Northern Troupe of International Dancers are always an attractive turn; and Miss Wynnie Darrell, comedienne gives a charming rendering of "My bungalow in Borneo." De Lilo and Metz meet with a flattering reception, the gentleman doing well as a comedy juggler, while the young lady scores as a contortionist who achieves some remarkable feats. Miss Ella Retford is quite successful with a song in the rendering of which she appears in the character of a lady who is looking for a German band and a member thereof named "Fritz." The Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers, and the Lancashire Lads, in song and dance, are cordially greeted; and so, too, are Miss Madoline Rees, comedienne, and Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon. The Bensons continue to shine as speciality artists; Howard and St. Clair appear in a comedy sketch; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope presents the latest pictures. During the interval a selection of the most popular songs of the day, arranged for the orchestra by Mr. Arthur Grimmett, its conductor, is given. Mr. Charles Beecham, the manager, is naturally desirous that it should be widely known that on the 18th inst. a special grand matinée will be given here by Mr. H. H. Wells in aid of the Lord Mayor's Cripple Children's Fund. Sir W. Treloar and the Sheriffs have promised to attend in State.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

The bill presented here this week is topped by Mr. Frederick Maxwell and company in the episode entitled Dick Dare, M.P. Mr. Maxwell plays the title-rôle admirably. The part is a well-written one, and he makes the most of it. Miss Louise Biddulph sustains the dual parts of Lucy and Alice Vernon, twin daughters of Sir Edward Vernon, very prettily and cleverly. Mr. Charles Levey as Raffael Villois, alias Jules Varlerie, the bullying spy, gives an effective performance; and Mr. Gerald Blake quite looks an Italian organ-grinder, and is accompanied by a clever little monkey. Mr. W. Beatty as the father of Lucy and Alice, Sir Edward Vernon, makes the most of his opportunities; and Mr. Sam Harcourt as the gouty member of the "Upper House," Lord Savage, is good.

Miss Carlotta Levey, a great pantomime favourite in Hammersmith, is very popular in her two songs, "Man and wife should always pull together" and "All I got is sympathy." Mr. Dan Crawley also gives two songs, "I finish them off a treat" and "Mother-in-law," the last-named causing roars of laughter. The Deer Family present the sensational act in two scenes, entitled The Indians of the Past. In the first scene we see a small Indian encampment with three Indians and one Indian maid resting after their day's travels. The maid sings a very pretty song, after which they decide to once more continue their travels. The next scene is a log-cabin in a wood, where an American is living with his wife and child. After instructing his wife to keep the cabin door locked for fear of Indians, he departs on a hunting excursion. Mother and child retire to the cabin and bolt the door; then the Indians arrive and set fire to the habitation. The inmates run out and are caught and bound to a post. The father returns, and with his gun makes short work of the Indians. The sketch is very cleverly played. Two of the performers, James and John Deer, acted as scouts for Lord Wolseley in the march to Khartoum.

Mr. John Coyle gives "Don't you think he ought to see a doctor?" and "Bathing in the sea." His facial expression is very comic. Mr. William Gourlay presents an exceedingly funny skit on the modern melodrama, in which he plays all the parts. Miss Carrie Laurie and her juveniles give their popular entertainment. The children sing several good choruses, and one tiny mite of a girl dances cleverly. Amongst the juveniles there is also a clever boy comedian. Miss Belle Braham sings two songs descriptive of the pictures shown on a screen. In the first, "Songs, songs, popular songs," the verses are composed of extracts from various well-known music hall ditties, and the various singers of them are shown on the screen. The second song is "I'm longing for my old Kentucky home." Both are well received, the audience singing the choruses with much gusto. Miss Madeline Rossiter sings "Alice, where are you going?" and gives a clever dance.

The Musical Schaffers are one of the most novel musical turns on the halls. They consist of a lady and a gentleman, and first give a clever performance by three or four instruments which are shaped like funnels. "Flight of Ages" is played on "a piece of wood with two holes in it" by the male member particularly well, and their show concludes with "The Lost Chord," played by them on aluminium tubes. Mention must also be made of their revolving sunflowers, on which another duet is played. Mr. Ted Saunders cleverly imitates Harry Lauder, George Lashwood, and others, and the Three Delaries give a good trapeze performance. Miss Ivy Aberdare sings a coon song and does a smart sand-dance. Allsopp and Beckwith are excellent in "Coming Upstairs." During the interval the selection, "The Lady Dandies," is well played by the orchestra, and the Edisonograph completes an attractive show.

BOW PALACE.

The principal attraction here this week, in a programme of all-round excellence, is the sketch Paul Kanvar, a popular dramatised episode of the French Revolution, performed by Mr. Arnold Bell's company. The story, which is on the lines of Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities," holds the rapt interest of the audience throughout, and is enthusiastically applauded. Mr. Arnold Bell as Paul Kanvar acts with thorough conviction; and Mr. Cuthbert Imrie gives a most incisive portraiture of the crafty Marquis de Vaux. Mr. J. W. Henson is a dignified and earnest Duke de Beaumont; Mr. Arthur T Lennard does well as General de la Roche; and Mr. Frank C. Robson renders able support as Potin. Miss Frances Campbell plays with much feeling and power as Diane.

Little Zola is a prime favourite with his eccentric actions. "Four foot two and a bit" is a most appropriate number for him, and his other item, "Who'd ha' thought it?" goes wonderfully well. Jack Martin touches a popular chord when he sings in rousing style of a private soldier who "only did what a man would do in taking his own wife's part," and he is also highly successful with "The beautiful idol called gold." Daisy Martell creates a most favourable impression when she appears and sings of "Mabel May," as an encore to which she gives a dexterous step-dance. Fred Land has a quaint style, and his "nursery rhymes" songs, containing some very pointed verses, are keenly relished. The high-class vocalism of Fatmah Diard receives vociferous applause, her rendering of "Scenes that are brightest" and "Home, Sweet Home," showing the possession of a voice of much sweetness and compass.

The Mayvilles, in a lilliputian act, receive some of the heartiest applause heard during the evening, the duo showing much versatility and cleverness, and being always amusing. The Sisters Florence are a prepossessing pair, who make a favourable impression with their singing, and afterwards are seen to great advantage in a neatly-executed dance. Will Johnson causes much laughter with "You'll have to get out of that," and afterwards has the audience on the best of terms when he appears as a female of uncertain age, who regretfully recalls the days when she was young. Billy French wins favour with his smart appearance, and quickly shows himself to be a skilful buck dancer. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are presenting a new series of pictures, entitled "The Haunted Hotel," which are proving one of the most attractive items on the programme.

Mr. Charles Harvey is deservedly popular in his managerial capacity, and nothing but praise can be bestowed on the Bow Palace orchestra, under the able bâton of Mr. Vincent Exley.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—Speaking of my new production, The Chelsea Pensioner, at the South London, in last Saturday's issue you mention most highly the work and singing as done by J. H. Romer. It should have been, yours faithfully, T. W. Rowse.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, March 5.—Miss Tittell Brune gave a farewell performance on the 1st inst. at Her Majesty's Theatre, which was packed. An act each was performed of L'Aiglon, Sunday, and Leah Kleschna, and also the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet; and in all these Miss Brune played her old popular rôles, Mr. Gaston Mervale and Mr. Thomas Kingston helping in their own masterly style. A speech from the bénéficiaire followed repeated curtain calls. To Mr. J. C. Williamson's enterprise and encouragement Miss Brune's great success is chiefly due; he even set apart her last night as a benefit, a rare act of generosity. On the next night Mr. Julius Knight and the artists selected by him in England for Mr. J. C. Williamson, appeared in Robin Hood. The scenery, notably Sherwood Forest, was much appreciated, and Mr. W. R. Coleman deserved the praise and plaudits bestowed. Mr. Julius Knight had a hearty reception on his return, and Mr. Harry Plimmer came next in the popular welcome. Miss Katherine Elbert Orton was a charming Maid Marian; Miss Dorothy Sydney was a piquant resourceful Adela; Miss Mary Godfrey was a dignified and attractive Eleanor of Aquitaine; Miss Elsie Wilson did well as Alison. Mr. Harry Plimmer as King Richard was a truly royal personage; Mr. Rupert Julian was good as Hugo de Longespee; and Mr. Herbert J. Bentley depicted a scowling Prince John. The tenor music allotted to Allan and Dale gave Mr. Walker Whyte a fine opportunity, of which he fully availed himself; Friar Tuck had a humorous exponent in Mr. Hubert Willis; and an old favourite, Mr. Leslie Victor made the most of the steward De Tracy. The play was most enthusiastically received.

Mr. Bland Holt is closing his season very soon, and The Breaking of the Drought is to be replaced on the 9th by a revival of The White Heather, in which Mrs. Bland Holt will make her last appearance prior to her departure for England and rest.

The Sydney Howard dramatic company, under Mr. Harry Rickards' engagement, finished at the Criterion on the 2nd, and took its departure for Adelaide.

The Tivoli welcomed Miss Annie Lauri on the 2nd with great cordiality, and King and Benson continue to charm with their Just for Fun; Fred Russell, Will Lochrane, Fred Bluett, Cassie Walmer, Fanny Powers, and other clever artists keep visitors here busily employed in laughing and applauding.

The National Amphitheatre, improved according to official requirements, is now open again with a huge company, and the new artists are Apollo Belvidere, who gives studies in statuary; Miss Gertie Everett, a character comedienne; Little Dot Ireland, ball punchress; Hedley, "the musical moke"; Miss Essie Jennings; and the ever-mirthful Will and Charles Bovis. The place is an enormous amphitheatre, accommodating thousands, every one of whom has a good view of the stage.

Wonderland City keeps on adding to its attractions, the latest being "the Pocket Hercules," with feats of strength; Ben Hur, the wrestler; and Jack Prendegast, the Australian rough-rider.

Miss Rose Seaton, elocutionist, is giving excellent recitals of fairy stories for children, and the lady announces her intention of giving a Shakespearean Night.

Lady Winter (wife of Sir Francis Winter, late Chief Justice of New Guinea), professionally known as Miss Edith Moore, prima donna in English opera, died in a private hospital in Melbourne on the 2nd inst. The deceased lady's sister is Miss Elsie Moore, now in Europe.

MELBOURNE, March 5.—Prince's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Ward and Willoughby; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Cowan.—The New Clown has been drawing good houses since the opening night. Messrs. Ward and Willoughby between them keep the fun merrily going. Miss Palotta sings and dances with her usual grace, while the rest of the company lend valuable assistance to the performance. On Saturday evening next Mr. Hopkinson will be staged for a brief season.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessee, J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis.—The last twelve nights of Mother Goose are announced. The pantomime has proved one of the most successful productions ever presented to Melbourne audiences, the house being packed nightly. The enchanting "Swing" song has quite captivated Melbourne playgoers, and is nightly encored two and three times. Mr. Phydora has established himself a great favourite; while others who receive their fair meed of praise include Miss Florence Young, Mr. Harry Shine, Miss Morelle, Miss Ghiloni, Queen and Le Brun, the Miniature Dartos, Miss Addie Nine, and many more. On Saturday, the 23rd inst., Miss Tittsell Brune will make her reappearance in Melbourne in the remarkable play Parsifal, which is just now running to good business in Sydney.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—The Squatter's Daughter is still running to good business, and has entered upon its fourth week. The production is lavishly mounted, the scenes depicting glimpses of the Australian bush being especially good. Judging from present appearances there should be no need to change the bill for some time to come.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Chanti, the quick-change artist, is appearing for a brief farewell season, and is still as strong a "draw" as ever; the Charlenes have introduced some new "business" into their clever turn; Mr. Charles Leonard Fletcher appears in a number of new character-sketches, which meet with genuine approval; Miss Preston is back with new songs; Rochfort and Hart delight all with their part-songs; a feature of the programme is Signor Antonio and his troupe of performing dogs and monkeys; while the rest of the company present interesting items.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

The last fancy dress ball of the season took place at Covent Garden Theatre on the night of the 5th inst., and there was a very good attendance. For the best fancy costumes eight ordinary and six special prizes were offered, among the latter being an eighty-guinea upright grand piano, an oak canteen case of plate and cutlery, a tea and coffee set, and a case of silver salt-cellars. The dresses again evidenced the exercise of much ingenuity on the part of those responsible for the invention of the clever designs. Mr. W. Clarkson gained the first award (ladies') for a dress entitled "The Prize Airship." Large panels on the skirt suggested the journey from Calais to Dover and from Charing Cross to St. Paul's, while on the bodice and shoulders airships were represented. The head-dress was formed of a Maxim flying machine above a large crescent. The wearer carried a banner in the design of which a large airship, some balloons, and the British, French, and German flags figured. Mr. Clarkson also won a third prize (ladies') with a pretty costume called "Wedding Bells," and several less important prizes. "The Blue Moon" consisted of a pretty Princess robe painted to represent the moon, and decorated with chiffon petals and various coloured spangles, the general effect being much enhanced by electric illuminations. The march past took place at about two o'clock. Mr. Dan Godfrey's orchestra was again in attendance, and dancing was kept up till a late hour.

Music Hall Home Fund cards received:—Will Johnson, 35s.; Gladys Mavius, 10s.; Woolmer Young, 9s.; Bros. Oho, 20s. Particulars will appear in the next issue of the paper.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING.
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,

LIVERPOOL AND MANCHESTER.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK MARK

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

THE BLIND BEGGAR'S DOG.

Code Word, CAPACITE.

The kind guide. Separated. The voice of a friend. Poor dog! Help. Free. Too late. In search of his Friend. Touching fidelity.

We see here two old friends who never leave each other, and every day have the same fight for life, one being the eyes of the other. Separation comes one day when two scamps steal the dog, and the poor beggar in distress is taken to his miserable home by charitable people. Friendless from now on, one morning he is found dead. Next we see the dog which has escaped, back in the old home, and finally tracing his master to the cemetery, he lies down on his grave, faithful to the end. Length 362ft. The Subject £6 0s. 8d.

A HORRIBLE ADVENTURE.
Code Word, CHEVET.

A poor old clown, failing to amuse the audience is dismissed. Pathetic scenes follow, in which he is suspected of another's crime and imprisoned.

626ft. The Subject £10 8s. 8d. Colouring 13s.

HERRING FISHING.
Code Word, CAHOTER.

Delightful fishing pictures. The departure of the boats. Casting the nets. The catch and the return, all make up a charming film. Do not miss it.

660ft. The Subject £11. Colouring 3s. 6d.

HAUNTED KITCHEN.
Code Word, CARNAGE.

Clever acrobatic scenes. A bright kitchen, shining pots and pans, and a jolly old cook. Out of a cloud of steam two weird figures appear, perform some wonderful "turns," and disappear as they came.

215ft. The Subject £3 11s. 8d. Colouring 19s. 6d.

THE FIANCÉE'S NIGHTMARE.
Code Word, BROUISSURE.

The night before the wedding the mother turns a beggar away from the house. This the bride thinks will be an ill-omen. She dreams all kinds of terrible things at first, later on a fairy comes, lets her see her bridegroom, and all is well. Very pretty scenes.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d. Colouring 5s. 6d.

JEALOUSY AND FOLLY.
Code Word, CABARETIER.

A tragic story of a jealous husband. He goes mad, and is shut up in an asylum. Later on he is allowed to return home, but is still a victim of the insane jealousy which leads him to kill his young wife, and finally to get arrested and shot. Most pathetic story.

535ft. The Subject £9 18s. 4d. Tinting 8s.

Code Word, CAISSON.

Wonderful flames. Lovely girls representing butterflies; also a demon performing all kinds of weird exercises. Very pretty. Splendid quality.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d. Colouring £2 10s, 6d, extra.

DISTRESS.
Code Word, CALEBASSE

Thrilling story of a father and daughter. The man steals a loaf and is imprisoned; subsequently escapes, and goes to look for his little girl, who has been sent to a home for children. Great joy when father and daughter meet. Later on he is tracked by the police. In preference to being taken again he throws himself from a great height and is killed. Very pathetic scenes, and full of interest.

610ft. The Subject £10 3s. 4d.

MODERN BURGLARS.
Code Word, BUVEUR.

Amusing struggle between burglars and police, performed by the Price troupe. Ridiculous situations, causing shouts of laughter from start to finish.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

THE ELECTRIC BELT.
Code Word, CANAPE.

The husband has a bad pain in his back. His wife gets an electric belt; puts it in his overcoat; it makes him jump all over the place and want to kiss every woman he meets. He is arrested; the magistrate accidently puts on the coat and goes through the same performance; many amusing complications follow. This is one of the most humorous films we have ever produced, and is bound to be a large seller.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

THE RUNAWAY MOTOR CAR.
Code Word, CHIFFON.

A couple of bad boys start a motor-car in the chauffeur's absence. The car goes off at a great speed; travels all over the country; only stops for a cripple. It is extraordinarily funny to watch the antics of the populace trying to stop the car.

320ft. The Subject £5 10s.

BABY'S FIRST OUTING.
Code Word, CHICANE.

The careless nurse takes baby out and speaks to many people on the way, and keeps on colliding with various obstacles. Eventually a naughty boy ties the pram to a dog, who rushes off with it, followed by an interested crowd of spectators. Finally the pram is precipitated into a pond, but baby is unhurt, and is brought back to her parents in triumph by a kindly policeman. Fine quality, and really amusing.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

THE GOLDEN BEETLE.
Code Word, BUREAU.

An old wizard succeeds in capturing a golden beetle, which he casts into a melting-pot, from which there immediately appears a most beautiful form, succeeded by fountains of water, and displaying lovely girls. This water then throws off splendid coloured effects, rising higher and higher, eventually turning into a regular cascade, the centre of which is a glorious fairy. Splendid trick film, beautifully coloured.

165ft. The Subject £2 15s. Colouring £2 2s. extra.

THE COSMOPOLITAN DANCERS.
Code Word, BURINEUR.

A series of rapid changes in costume and dancing made by two dancers, who exhibit the styles of Jack Tar, Spanish, French, Japanese, Italian, Russian, &c. Beautiful colouring effect.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d. Colouring £3 extra.

THE WONDERFUL ELECTRIC BELT.

This Picture is electrified right through. A continuous current of Fun (not alternating). The Film to electrify and grip an audience. A subject of high voltage.

Re THE WONDERFUL ELECTRIC BELT.

We find that one of our contemporaries has considered this film worth copying, even copying our description as on this page. Imitation is the surest flattery, but we are the original producers of this film, which was put on the market some three weeks ago.

The husband has a bad pain in his back. His wife gets an electric belt; puts it in his overcoat; it makes him jump all over the place and want to kiss every woman he meets. He is arrested; the magistrate accidentally puts on the coat and goes through the same performance; many amusing complications follow.

Length 660ft. Price £11 net.

BY THE COMMAND OF HER MAJESTY.

We have had the honour of entertaining Her Gracious Majesty the Queen, the Dowager Empress of Russia, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and many of the most prominent people in the English and Foreign Aristocracies with the Chronophone at Buckingham Palace: The fact has been so widely commented on in the World's Press that we refrain from making further comment here, but we note that the Chronophone is styled "a marvellous invention," "an ingenious contrivance," "a masterpiece of modern science," &c., &c, &c.

MANAGERS, SHOWMEN, AND OTHERS.

The CHRONOPHONE is to-day the talk of the élite of Society and the wonder of the General Public. There is no time like the present for the enterprising investor to make money, and make it easily and quickly. Throughout the country the Chronophone is fast superseding the old-time Bioscope. Such well-known men as Taylor, Kemp, Proctor, Pringle, Collins, and others testify to this. They are enhancing their reputations and lining their pockets by means of the Chronophone, which is the only genuine TALKING and SINGING PICTURE MACHINE in the WORLD.

DO NOT BE FOOLED BY IMITATIONS.

DO NOT MISS THE REALITY IN A VAIN ENDEAVOUR TO GRASP THE SHADOW.

IT'S THE PICTURE THAT MAKES THE SHOW. WE CATER FOR THE BEST. OTHERS FOLLOW. WE LEAD.

PIRATING ELGE FILMS.

We note that one of our business contemporaries has made it a practice to copy our subjects wholesale, and the latest piracy of Elge Films is a poor and weak imitation of our powerful and sensational film,

THE

REIGN OF TERROR IN RUSSIA.

No. 1590. Length 740ft. Price £12 6s. 8d. net.

Which was produced and advertised by us a month ago. We deplore the fact that a well-known firm is so lacking in enterprise and originality as to find it necessary to copy, advertise, and place on the market as theirs pictures which they are well aware are deliberate and barefaced copies of another firm's originals.

TRADE WITH THE FIRM WHICH PRODUCES ORIGINAL SUBJECTS, DO NOT BE PUT OFF WITH POOR AND WEAK IMITATIONS.

Another film which has been copied, but of which we are the original producers and placed on the market some weeks ago.

MA-IN-LAW VISITS PARIS.

PAUL'S LATEST FILM.
THE FATAL HAND.
A DANGEROUS LUNATIC ESCAPES FROM ASYLUM.
Police Reward Notice issued for his Capture.
A MISSING FOREFINGER.

Once at liberty, the lust for crime takes hold of the maniac, and, entering a miserly old woman's house, who observes the shadow of his hand on the window-blind, secures money and jewels, after strangling her.

Newspaper placards announce escape and murder. Police detectives search railway station and trains.

Old gentleman buys paper, enters compartment, reads with great interest account of the murder, when to his horror a hand is seen protruding from under the opposite seat, showing the missing forefinger. Realising he is in the power of the lunatic, attempts to pull communication cord, but is quickly overpowered and killed. Lunatic gets out at next station with old gentleman's portmanteau and ticket, which he offers to the ticket-collector, who, noticing the missing finger, attempts to capture him. The lunatic meanwhile reaches the street, but is quickly followed by police and crowd. Seeing a building in course of erection, he climbs a ladder, and gains the scaffolding. From this point of vantage he keeps his pursuers at bay, throwing missile after missile on the heads of those below. A constable succeeds in reaching scaffolding, but is thrown to the ground and killed. A sailor at last climbs up the rear of the house, and springs upon the maniac, a fierce life and death struggle ensues, in which the police take part, and succeed in handcuffing their man and marching him off.

A stirring, exciting, and sensational subject. Grand quality. Code Word "Hand." Length, 415ft. Price £6 18s. 4d. nett.

OUR LATEST FILM.
THE ADVENTURES OF PULCHINELLO.
Code Word, "PULCHINELLO."

This is a magnificent film, beautifully coloured in parts (no extra charge).

It tells of the love adventures of Pulchinello in the toyshop for the beautiful doll. Rich people come to buy the doll, and take her away.

Pulchinello has magic aid, and leaves the toyshop in pursuit. After the most wonderful journey, in which he goes through mystical adventures, he comes to the castle where the doll is taken to. There he fires the castle, rescues his beloved, and returns with her to Fairyland.

Wonderful trick effects, beautiful tints, and grand quality is the universal verdict of all those who have seen this film.

LIFE AT A SOUTH AFRICAN GOLD MINE.

A wonderful series describing White, Coolie, and Kaffir Life at the Mines and in Compound. Most interesting views are given of Crushing, Sluicing, Stamping, and Cyanide Tanks, varied by scenes illustrating the issue of rations to the Chinese and Kaffirs and their methods of Cooking and washing; also close views of the Coolies' Mess, Roll Call, and general surroundings. These pictures are particularly interesting at this juncture as throwing light on a vexed question.

No. 1975. Code "Compound." Length 490ft. Price £8 3s. 4d.

THE MAGICAL PRESS.

A Marvellous Pictorial Reproduction and Humorous Presentation of some of the Leading London Journals, with Symbolic Illustrations Magically introduced. Copies of well-known Newspapers are first projected, and a literal illustration of the word-title follows, often with comic results, but always wonderfully realistic. A CERTAIN BIG DRAW.

No. 1973. Code "Press." Length 500ft. Price £8 6s. 8d.

THROUGH THE MICROSCOPE.

A Fascinating Series, the result of long and patient research by our Scientific Staff.

Some of the subjects are magnified many millions of times as reproduced by the Micro-Cinematograph System of this company, and astounding pictures of the lower forms of life are projected—quaint, beautiful, active, and pugnacious. The wonders contained in a drop of stagnant pool water are projected with scientific accuracy and extraordinary results.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, April 18.—M. Emile Fabre, the distinguished author of La Vie Publique and Les Ventres dorés, has also been attracted by the fascinating story of Timon of Athens, immortalised by Shakespeare. For some unknown reason, the work, written many years ago, was not brought out in Paris, but in Marseilles, where it was not sufficiently well appreciated; and M. Gémier promised himself to produce it the moment he became manager of the Antoine Theatre. He has kept his word, and has shown himself a worthy successor of Antoine. M. Fabre, who in his previous works already showed us his great contempt for latter-day political morals, has had a fine opportunity of pouring forth his mordant satire. His Timon is what the great Napoleon used to call an "ideologist." He believes in the sincerity of his friends, and helps them with money, loading them with presents and using his influence on their behalf. And then comes the crash. Athens has been devastated, and poor Timon is ruined. Penniless and sad, he appeals to those he has befriended, but, to his surprise, he finds himself deserted by all. He has the good sense to follow Alcibiade's advice, and joins him in an expedition against the island of Minos. Having looted like the rest, Timon returns to his native city a wealthy man. Despite the severe lesson he received, he is still the ideologist of before, and his ambition now is to reform society. He starts with the aristocracy, and establishes what he considers an ideal community. When he finds the aristocrats selfish and greedy, he turns his back on them, goes over to democracy, and gives the power to the people. He has every reason to feel sorry for having tried the experiment. The mob is unjust, unthinking, narrow-minded, and ill-bred into the bargain. He has been their benefactor, and they reward him by hounding him out of the town. This time, however, he has had enough of politics, and withdraws to a neighbouring wood, where, on hearing of the fall of Pallas, he kills himself. It is a clever play, and a masterpiece of staging. Less praise must be bestowed upon the acting. M. de Max was most unsatisfactory in the chief rôle, and, with the exception of M. Gémier, who was an impressive Apémantes, the other exponents were hardly up to the mark.

A CURIOUS action has been brought against M. Alphonse Franck, the Gymnase manager, by Mlle. d'Orliac. When that lady brought him her play Le Joujou tragique M. Franck accepted it with enthusiasm. In fact, he was so delighted that instead of inserting in the contract the usual sum of £400 to be paid to the author in case of non-production, he raised the amount to £800. Le Joujou tragique, thereupon, was put into rehearsal, but in the meantime M. Franck received from M. Bernstein and from MM. de Flers and de Caillavet two plays that took his fancy. He then stopped the rehearsals, and informed Mlle. d'Orliac that her piece would be produced—at an indefinite period. "In that case," replied Mlle. d'Orliac, "pay me the sum we agreed upon!" "£800!" exclaimed M. Franck. "Never! According to the Society's rules, you can claim only half that sum." The case will now come before the Authors' Society, and if these worthies cannot arrive at a settlement the affair will be brought into a court of law.

THE interesting event this week has been the opening of the new Apollo music hall in the Rue de Clichy. Every praise is due to M. Auburtin, the architect, for the manner in which he has acquitted himself of his task. The hall is spacious, beautifully decorated, and the seats so arranged that from every part of the house a perfect view can be obtained of the stage—a thing unknown in the existing Paris music halls. The performance, too, is of a high order, and the excellent programme includes the names of such well-known artists as Miss Vickey Delmar, Estio-Luigi (champion ball jugglers), Wynne Brothers, Mr. Wood and the Sisters Rosie, the Snowdrops, Hale and Francis (the American globe experts), the Elsa-Satanella Trio, Trilby and Svengali, the great Rapoli, and the Kaufmanns (cyclists). But the sensation of the evening is "The Basculo." At 11.30 the people are requested to leave the stalls. The shrill sound of a whistle is heard, and, to the bewilderment of the audience, the floor slowly begins to revolve on its axis. For a moment we see it perpendicular over the abyss below; it topples over, the stalls disappear, and the hall becomes a dancing-room—the "Bal du Tout-Paris"—whereon the Snowdrops, Les Clodoches, Mlles. Tanagra and Farfalla, and the adepts in the Paris quadrille disport themselves. Management and artists may be congratulated on the success they achieved.

THE Opéra-Comique has given us Circé, a lyric poem in three acts, by M. Edmond Haraucourt, music by M. Hillemacker. Everybody knows the story of Circe, who changed men into swine. In the first act we are shown Ulysses' companions at Circe's residence. They have not undergone the ugly physical metamorphosis, but, voluptuous and drunk, they behave like pigs, which comes pretty well to the same thing. Ulysses, guarded against the enchantment by a drink given him by Mercury, comes to Circe, and, sword in hand, demands the restoration of his friends to their normal state. But he falls in love with the sorceress, and only towards the end of the last act remembers his faithful Penelope, when, after a little hesitation, he returns to Ithaca. The symbolic story is simple enough, but in the libretto it is drowned in gallons of philosophy. The music, also, is too philosophical. It is compact, solid, well orchestrated, but lacking in charm.

THE Opéra-Comique also produced La Légende du Point d'Argentan, in one act, by MM. Henri Cain and Bernède, music by M. Félix Fourdrain. It is a pretty story, prettily told. The secret of manufacturing the famous lace, called "Point d'Argentan," having been lost, a reward is offered to whoever discovers it. A poor woman whose child is ill, anxious to earn the money, prays to the Holy Virgin, and prays so hard that the heavenly maid comes to her during the night with a little army of angels, and in a short time manufactures yards of "Point d'Argentan." The woman finds the lace in the morning, and all she has to do is to sell it and grow rich. As usual, M. Carré has distinguished himself in the way of staging.

LA COMEDIE-ROYALE, the new house in the Rue Caumartin, will open on Monday next, with La Maison n'est pas au coin du thé, a revue by M. Gabriel Timmory. The cast, a strong one, comprises many well-known artists: MM. Galipaux, Tauffenberger, and Mmes. Arletto Dorgère, Valentine Petit, and Marion Davencey.

MM. MESSAGER AND BROUSSAN, the new managers of the Opéra, announce that one of the first works they intend to produce will be Le Prince Igor, by Borodine. They have also made arrangements with Mme. Cosima Wagner's representative to bring out The Dusk of the Gods and Rheingold.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, April 18.—This work—to the best of my knowledge—has never been heard in Berlin before. It cannot be said that we have lost much, or that the Monte Carlo Opera have greatly added to their laurels by including the work in their repertory. The music is neither good nor bad; it endeavours—in keeping with the book—to present an Oriental character, and is at times effective, though never original. Sardou's text is too well known to need description; it has a highly dramatic plot, the realism of which should satisfy the most bloodthirsty spectator. The singers have but little chance of distinguishing themselves vocally, the chief demands made upon them being to weep and groan and shriek. In addition to this, several of the artists were evidently indisposed. A fashionable audience filled the house fairly well, and their Majesties, with several members of the Imperial family and the Prince of Monaco, were in the State box. Verdi's Don Carlos, given by the Monte Carlo guests on Tuesday night, achieved a greater success, although the opera cannot be reckoned among the composer's best productions. The interpretation was a good deal more satisfactory than that of some of the other works given by the company, notably Méphistophélès and Berlioz' Damnation de Faust—a work never intended for the operatic stage. M. Renaud, M. Chaliapine, and M. Rousselière gave the best renderings.

FROM an "entente cordiale" point of view, the Monte Carlo "Gastspiel" has been a complete success, from an artistic point of view less so. Being a "gift-horse," criticism is inadmissible. The Prince of Monaco—who has been the Kaiser's guest for the last ten days—has defrayed the whole of the enormous expenses himself, and placed the proceeds of the eight performances at the disposal of the Kaiser for German charities. All that was asked of Berlin was a theatre to act in and an orchestra. Nearly two hundred persons—including soloists, chorus, and ballet—were brought over from Monte Carlo. The artistic management was in the hands of Raoul Gunsbourg, who has proved himself a very capable and tasteful manager. The Kaiser's interest in the season was naturally great, his Majesty attending the majority of the performances with his princely guest, and singling out the composers Massenet and Saint-Säens, as well as several of the artists, for exhibitions of his good-will. Among the artists, Mlle. Brozia, of the Paris Opera Comique, Rénaud, the famous French baritone, Rousselière, a capital tenor, and Schaliapine, the eminent Russian bass, made the greatest hits; but the representations, taken as a whole, were not so good as those of many an important German opera company. The last-mentioned singer was exiled from his native country for political reasons, leaving the Imperial Opera at Petersburg for America. Schaliapine is a close friend of Maxim Gorki, the two men having been fellow tramps in their early youth, before the world of art and letters "discovered" them.

AFTER the recent production—detailed in your columns—of a play by the German author Bernstein, the Neues gave last week Der Dieb (the thief), by the French writer of the same name. It is a sensational piece, with melodramatic effects, but, notwithstanding a good deal that appears unnatural, the whole is skilfully put together. The story of the extravagant young wife, who robs her best friend gradually and systematically to pay for her follies, and allows the blame to rest upon a youth who is in love with her (the friend's only son), is doubtless known to your readers. It was admirably interpreted, and met with a most cordial reception, many of the audience being visibly moved by the rather overdone pathos of some of the scenes.

HERR BONN, manager of the Berliner, is nothing if not original. He is always doing funny things, and he enjoys the local fame they bring him. One night last week he issued a houseful of invitations to what he termed a general rehearsal. The piece performed was written by Herr Bonn himself, and entitled Der Junge Fritz. It is the first part of a patriotic play, representing scenes in the life of Frederick the Great. Der Junge Fritz depicts the king in several familiar situations, the scene between himself and his father (the rigid punishment which followed youthful insubordination) being the best. The piece met with a very cordial reception, and was well interpreted, Herr Bonn taking the name part. At the conclusion the author made a speech to his guests, stating—candidly enough—that he had been hawking his play about for eight years, never finding anyone willing to take it. He had, therefore, chosen this method of making his work known. Herr Bonn added, with charming naïveté, that the reasons for the refusal of his play were utterly incomprehensible to him.

AT the Deutsch-American Theatre the company of the Theatre des Westens are holding the boards for a time. On Wednesday last Hervé's three-act vaudeville Mamselle Nitouche—the book by MM. Meilhac and Millaud—was produced, meeting with genuine and hearty appreciation. The merry little operetta has not been done here for some time, but it will in all probability remain for a good while now that it has come. It was very well acted and sung.

MADAME NEVADA made her appearance here a few nights ago, after an interval of many years. She sang the part of Lakmé at the Komische Oper, but was suffering so acutely with a bad throat that the results were unfavourable, and criticism would be out of place. Madame Nevada (in private Mrs. Palmer) has returned to her home in Paris, but intends to come again before long.

WOLF FERRARI'S pretty little comic opera Die Neugierigen Frauen, which met with such great success two seasons ago at the Theatre des Westens, is to occupy the stage of the Komische Oper while Herr Gregor is in London. The services of Herr Pfitzner, the eminent composer and kapellmeister, have been engaged for the time, he having superintended the work on its first production.

"ALT-HEIDELBERG" has been revived once more, and at the New Schauspielhaus this time. Herr Walden, who created the rôle of Karl Heinrich, gave the part of the youthful prince in the same sympathetic manner as at the première, and the rest of the cast was very satisfactory.

HANS SOMMER'S new "fairy" opera, Riquet mit dem Schopf, was produced at the Court Theatre at Brunswick on Sunday. Excellent things are reported of it, and the reception is said to have been enthusiastic. The work will be given here early next season.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THE GERMAN THEATRE.

Comedy was still the dominant note of Herr Hans Andresen's third production of the season at the Great Queen-street Theatre, which, on Monday evening, rang with hearty bursts of laughter over Gerhart Hauptman's clever farce, Die Biberpelz, an English translation of which was produced at the Court Theatre in the spring of 1905. The rôle upon which the fun chiefly depends is that of a provincial magistrate, who conducts an inquiry into a series of thefts in general, and of a fur coat in particular, organised by Frau Wolff, a crafty washerwoman, and although convinced of his own wisdom and astuteness, the official is deceived by all and sundry. Herr Carl William Büller, who played the part, made a palpable hit on his introduction to London. He is a matured comedian of natural methods and considerable resource, and was very droll throughout, both in speech and action, his pomposity and self-complacency being irresistible. Fräulein Ida Müller-Bardon exercised a similarly comic effect as a woman of the lower class, who manages to "bluff" everybody into believing that she is innocent of all crime, when in reality she is the prime mover in the petty larcenies which are the subject of judicial inquiry. Herr Hans Andresen gave a capital characterisation of the wealthy Krüger, whose pursuit of his property leads to such droll results; Herr Carl Winter was suited admirably in the part of Dr. Fleischer; Herr Paul Wind gave a skilful embodiment of the artful and insinuating mariner Wulkon; Herr Carl Berger gave a clever study of a bibulous policeman; and Fräulein Ida Mahr and Elsa Steele are to be praised for their renderings of the two daughters of Frau Wolff, whose husband was also a striking impersonation at the hands of Herr Hermann Merz.

The comedy, in three acts, entitled Die Von Hochsattel, by Leo Stein and Ludwig Heller, was played on Wednesday evening. The character whose name is used as the title of the play is an eccentric old gentleman who resides on the fourth floor of the house that once entirely belonged to his family. He has, amongst other peculiarities, a strong prejudice against the Jews, and it is a sore point with him that a member of the chosen race, one Von Rosenstock, should be the owner of the house and occupy with his family the first floor. Much against the old man's wish, his son, Ulrich, has become an opera singer. A letter addressed to Ulrich is opened by his father. It contains an invitation to the young man to sing at an "At Home" to be given by the Rosenstocks, and enclosed in payment for his services is 1,000 marks. Hochsattell regards the proferred payment as an insult, and angrily resolves to interview Rosenstock on the matter. Ulrich, calling on his father's neighbour, meets Hedwig, the Jew's daughter, and the young people quickly become good friends. Old Hochsattel puts in an appearance, and indignantly returning the money sent to his son, gives Rosenstock a piece of his mind. However, when the discussion has reached a very heated stage Ulrich himself appears and announces, to his father's disgust, that he will accept with pleasure the invitation to sing. In the last act Ulrich and Hedwig discover that they love each other, and all congratulate the happy pair with the exception of Hochsattel, who is quite horrified at the idea of his son marrying a Jewess. Eventually, however, finding he has no support, he gives in. Herr Carl William Büller presented a clever and delightfully amusing sketch of the Freinherr. Hans Andresen was also excellent as Rosenstock, making his points with the ease and skill of an experienced actor. Herr Paul Breitfeld played naturally and effectively as Ulrich; and neat portraits of Adolf, Rosenstock's nephew, and of Graf Wilms, who aspires to the hand of Hedwig, were presented by Herr Carl Winter and Herr Hans Stock. The merriment was considerably increased by the genuinely humorous way in which Herr Hermann Merz played the part of Adler, a Jewish theatrical agent. Frau Ida Müller-Bardon as Rosenstock's wife gave a comical embodiment of that very pompous lady; and Fraülein Elsa Steele was bright and pleasing as Hedwig. The minor rôles were all carefully played.

MR. ARTHUR VERNE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I encroach upon your kindness and space to present to your readers and friends the sad case of Mr. Arthur Verne, comedian? Mr. Verne joined my Dare-Devil Dorothy company in December, 1902, as principal comedian, and played the part till March, 1906, when, through weakness in the legs, he was compelled to relinquish his engagement. He was under medical treatment at his home till May, when he went into hospital as an in-patient till July. He was discharged, and rejoined the company, Aug. 13; but in September, four weeks after, at Manchester, was suddenly stricken with paralysis in the right side, leaving him entirely helpless, and, of course, had to resign his part again. Since then, to the present time, he has been totally incapacitated, and although a very prudent and well-living man, his savings are quite exhausted.

Mr. Verne's previous engagements were:—Four years with The Prodigal Parson; he also toured with The Days of Cromwell, Our Irish Visitors, &c.; pantomimes at Standard Theatre, London; Princess's, Glasgow (two seasons); Theatre Royal, Manchester; Grand Theatre, Cardiff; Theatre Royal, Plymouth, &c.

I should like to say that during the long period Verne was under my management I always found him sober, industrious, and a splendid comedian and dancer, and always willing to help brother artists in distress.

I feel sure there are many old friends who would be glad to help poor Verne now he is unable to help himself.

Subscriptions will be gratefully received and acknowledged by Henry Swinerd, Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich; or by J. W. Cordiner, Dare Devil Dorothy Company, en route.—Yours truly,

HENRY SWINERD.

LYRIC OPERA HOUSE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 15, the Melodrama,
"A WRECKER OF MEN."

The well-known melodrama, described as a story of a modern Delilah, is this week being presented at the above house by Mr. Samuel James's stock company. Miss Florence Dalton, in the leading part of Risca Mallison, a woman with a past, is excellent. Miss Dalton's acting is powerful and thrilling. Mr. H. Gray Dolby makes Jim Morley, the slogger, a most interesting character, whose career is keenly followed by the audience. Mr. Herbert Hewetson looks sufficiently villainous as Pharosaphus, the Egyptian wanderer, and Mr. Albert Brasque plays Railton, the silent servant, well. Mr. D. G. Noble puts plenty of energy into the part of Guise Strange. Mr. Edmund Cuthbert as the Hon. Reggie Verincourt is good, and Mr. J. P. Dryden is Ezekiel Isaacs, a Jew. Miss Florence Lovel is a pleasing Marion Isaacs, and Miss Laura Leycester as Doris Melville is a tender and loving sister to Eric Melville, her dissipated brother, a part well sustained by Mr. Sidney Hallows. Mr. Percy Allen as Karnaphus, a mummy, Mr. Ashton Winslow as Detective-Inspector Bransmere, Mr. George Rawlings as Ishma, and Miss May Seton as Vavasole Slopper are all satisfactory. The play is well staged, and a word of praise must be added for Miss Dalton's dresses.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Joseph Poole's latest Myriorama and Variety Amusement Amalgamation. The pictures are excellent, the special production of Venice being worthy of great praise. Mr. Natt Abott is a very popular guide and raconteur. The Paulasto Troupe, sensational eccentrics, are very clever; Felix Somers, a facial expert, gives some skilful representations of "People we Know"; Mlle. Juanita de Ollviera's wonderful collection of performing cockatoos provides a very interesting turn; Pauletti, a trick cyclist, is worthy of special mention; the Veronas are two clever lady dancers and vocalists; the Silly Selbys, the musical clowns, cause roars of laughter; and Miss May Finch, in song-scena, adds greatly to the evening's enjoyment.

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mrs. Russ Whytal and company appear this week in a cycle of Shakespearean plays. On Monday, in Romeo and Juliet, Mrs. Whytal played Juliet with much tenderness and pathos in the love episodes, and with an intensity that showed to some extent the measure of her tragic powers in the latter scenes of the drama. Mr. Henry Le Grand interpreted Romeo with considerable power; Mr. Stratton Rodney was an excellent Mercutio; and other male parts were well filled by Mr. F. Pennington Gush, Mr. S. Hawley, Mr. Osborne, Mr. G. E. Polson, Mr. Eardley Turner, Mr. Wilfred Beckwith, and Mr. J. J. Bartlett. Miss Eugénie Vernie made a capital Nurse, and Miss Ada Marius and Miss F. Aynesworth appeared with success as Lady Capulet and Lady Montague. Twelfth Night was presented on Tuesday, with Mrs. Russ Whytal as Viola; and among the other pieces for the week are The Merchant of Venice and Much Ado About Nothing. Mr. G. S. Titheradge, who was unable to appear on Monday in Romeo and Juliet, is billed for Malvolio, Shylock, and Benedict in the other plays.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The visit of Georg Hackenschmidt completely crowds the theatre this week. The Davis-Gledhill trio give an exciting display of trick cycling; and Ben Harris and his clever "nippers" keep the audiences in an almost continuous roar of laughter by their appearance in the mirth-provoking boxing sketch, A Promising Pupil. Among the other successful artists on the bill are Miss Nellie Dunbar, an attractive comedienne; Rene and Smith, comedians, dancers, and ball-punchers; Mr. Charles Ashdowne, eccentric comedian; Hans and Lux, the "argumentative college chums," and Mr. Francis O'Flynn, a clever banjoist.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Lilith tops the bill here and receives a fair share of applause; Hector and Sultan deserve to be complimented on their clever comedy act; Lilian Warren gives an interesting show; Prince Ishmael and Mlle. Valeria are smart illusionists; Le Diable Rouge is pleasing; the Two Sparks are acceptable duettists and dancers; the Carney Bros. score as duettists; the Biograph completes the bill.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Potter, Vandy, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—A very good bill is provided here this week, including Belle Davis and her youngsters, who give an interesting and amusing performance; Sisters Poole are smart entertainers; the King's College Boys are clever; Welda and Wynne give a neat juggling and tumbling act; Maidie Scott is well received; Jimpson's Pets is a clever sketch, and is duly appreciated; and Nash and Noel are well applauded. The Hippo Bioscope shows some good pictures.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The performance of The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is very successful here this week. Mr. Roy Redgrave makes an ideal sailor, and scores heavily in the rôle of Willie; Mr. Frank Robertson's Jack is well played; Mr. Walter Thornton gives a good personation of the villainous James Harcourt; and as Bill Slater, Mr. Sidney Sarl does well; as the wayward Sophie, Miss Frances Ruttledge portrays a thankless rôle with effect; and Miss Nannie Meade makes her part of the worldly-wicked Vesta as realistic as possible. Many laughable incidents are introduced by Mr. Willie Reid (Johnny) and Miss Marie Kildare (Poppy).

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. J. A. Campbell is here with his own company in The Sin of Her Childhood. Mr. Arthur Trail does well as Farmer Haysel; Mr. Wilson Summers depicts with sufficient emphasis the utterly selfish, callous scoundrel, Stephen Haysel; Mr. Frank Liston is a kindly and courageous exponent of Captain Thornton; Little Dorothy is remarkably good as the child, Little Mary. Miss Clara Santley scores as the drink-sodden, wretched Maria Haysel; Miss Madge Violet is pert and smart as Eliza Muggins, a servant girl; Miss Stanley Burt stands out prominently for her clever and artistic assumption of the long-suffering heroine, Mary Haysel. Mr. James Duncan as the Rev. Alan Grey plays the part with a quiet power which is very telling; Mr. Hugh Brady is diverting in the character of a rollicking Irishman; and Miss Lissa Young, who appears as Hannah Spry, is a clever little danseuse and vocalist.

The Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—For the chief feature of this week's programme the lady known as Venus is responsible. The beauty of the living pictures she presents is freely acknowledged. The other artists are Adey North, a new comedian; Sidney Lee, a clever conjuror; Phern and Phern, in their Continental musical act; the Kimberley Boys, quaint comedians; Eustace and Eyre, in their ventriloquial absurdity, Tomkins, Junior; the Three Bebans, quick-change vocalists and dancers; Three Spangelettis, with their circus; T. C. Edwards, the Australian baritone; and Mac and Hill, patter comedians. The Bioscope pictures are also attractive.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris A. Wordsworth.—Picture entertainments are being continued here with marked success, and the thoroughly up-to-date series is most enjoyable; Miss Ray Royal, a charming vocalist, having proved so popular in her illustrated songs, has been again retained.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—The premier position here is held by the Pasquali Brothers, in a smart exhibition as head-to-head balancers; Mlle. Roza's Canine Hippodrome is most interesting; the Sages, burlesque artists, are well received; hearty applause rewards the clever performance on the trapeze by Natalia and Diana; hearty laughter is aroused by Mr. Clayton's pictures, entitled "The Housekeeper's Party"; Mr. Dan Robans is very good in his songs; Harley and Melton are a couple of mirthful comedians; and Mr. Johnny Walker makes a welcome reappearance.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company opened here on Monday night in It's Never Too Late To Mend. Mr. Tearle himself played the part of Tom Robinson in a masterly way, winning the applause of the audience by his bluff, hearty, and kindly portrayal; Mr. Bernhardt Turner as George Fielding was particularly successful; while Mr. Clifford Marle as the Prison Chaplain played this manly part to the life. The Peter Crawley of Mr. G. T. Greig was made rascally enough, and Isaac Levy had a fine exponent in Mr. Ernest Lodge; Mr. W. R. Wilson as the Governor of the Prison acted well, and the same may be said regarding Mr. A. D. Adams as Mr. Meadows. Mr. J. A. Keoch did not spare himself in his delineation of the Aboriginal Australian "Jackey," and caused much laughter by his antics. The Mr. Merton of Mr. W. R. Weldon was carefully acted; while Mr. R. H. Lace as William Fielding was natural and effective in his acting. Miss Mary Campbell as Joseph, the waif, gave a most pathetic rendering of her part; Miss Esther Tearle as Susan Merton was delightful. On Tuesday night Othello was played, on Thursday Jeanie Deans, and on Friday Julius Cæsar.

BARNSLEY.—Public Hall. — Lessee, Mr. Hoyey.—The Camerons (Jim and Marie) have quickly made themselves prime favourites in their comedy act, The Plough Boy and Lady Guide; the Rollars are exceptionally good acrobats; the Welsh Glee Singers, Marie de Voy, Jim Elvo, Sheila McNiel, the Gentrys, and Jasper Redfern's up-to-date pictures complete a good programme.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Messrs. Power and Kirby's company in Man's Enemy is here. Mr. Norman A. Overton gives a powerful presentment of Harry Stanton, and Mr. William Jeans is a good General Sir Arthur Stanton; Mr. T. Arthur Ellis is an effective Fred Lisle, Mr. Fred Owen a typical Isaac Barnett, and Mr. John Power a resourceful villain, Tom Drake. Miss May Grayce is a pleasing Grace Leslie, Miss Constance Medwyn a splendid Sarah Drake, and Miss Clara Reid as Polly Harris and Mr. Frank Hedley as Adolphe D'embonpoint are not a little amusing.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. George Alexander's company, in His House in Order, is here. Nina is excellently done by Miss Grimston, and Hilary Jesson is quite a distinguished performance in Mr. Stanley E. Ewart's hands; Mr. J. Edward Pearce is a precise Filmer Jesson, M.P., and Mr. Luke Foster is an engaging Dr. Wilmott; Miss Augusta Haviland as Lady Ridgeley, Miss Elaine Sleddall as Geraldine Ridgeley, Mr. Herbert Lomas as Sir Dan Ridgeley, and Mr. Ernest R. Holloway as Price Ridgeley all show cleverness; while Mr. Charles Tyrel as Major Maurewarde, Miss Jean Cadell as Mlle. Thorne, and Miss Carmen Woods as Derek are effective.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Edgar Laban.—Messrs. Kelly and Ashby, America's acrobatic grotesques, are much enjoyed, and Wat Tyler is a good character vocalist; Rozell is a sensational gymnast, and Hanid Alexander an amusing mimic; the Saletos give a novelty equilibrist pot-pourri act, and the Vyponds, who submit a refined comedy drawing-room entertainment.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Miss Annie Hughes and company opened on Monday with Tommy, and here, as elsewhere, her success in the title-rôle was never for a moment in doubt. Her big scene in Act 3 was a triumph, not only for Miss Hughes, but also for Miss Winifred Pearson, in the character of a jealous and revengeful rival. Miss Ada Richardson as Honour gave a vivid picture of the girl in her teens who is desirous of assisting her father in his troublous life; Mr. Rupert Lister sustained the part of Dick Danvers with commendable sincerity; as Peter Hope, Mr. Evelyn Vernon played with a quiet humour not easily forgotten; two impersonations that also deserve warm commendation were Mr. W. Hartill and Mr. Reginald F. Beach as William Clodd and Flipp. The duologue, The Love Lesson, is also included in the programme.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—A return of that merry musical mélange, The Prince of Monte Carlo, with that resourceful and amusing comedian, Harry Roxbury, as P.C. Longfellow, is proving much to the liking of audiences here this week; Meier and Mora once again are seen in their ball-punching speciality act; Bertha Winder continues to display her acknowledged talent as a step-dancer; Wall Robins, the black and white comedy musician, is always sure of a cordial welcome; as is Arthur Goodman, the tramp juggler, with his amusing banter. Minnie Fenton, Scotch comedienne, also contributes; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux is the final item in a good programme.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Sherlock Holmes is staged here this week, and Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart, who brings the company, plays the part of Holmes himself. He has an excellent reception each night, and thoroughly deserves it. The make-up of Mr. James Skea as Moriarty is extremely good, and he plays the part most successfully; Miss Gladys Harvey as Alice Faulkner puts plenty of expression into her lines.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—The ever-popular D'Oyly Carte opera company presented The Mikado on Monday with greater success than ever. Mr. Fred Billington's impersonation of Poo-Bah was, as usual, inimitable; Mr. Pacie Ripple appeared as Nanki-Poo, and sang all his numbers delightfully; and Mr. Charles R. Walenn appeared to the greatest advantage as Ko-Ko. Miss Hope Hastings' charming impersonation of Tum-Yum won abundant favour. Much praise is due to Miss Theresa Rassam for her impersonation of Katisha; and Mr. Albert Kavanagh was all that could be desired as the Mikado; Miss Lulu Evans and Miss Mabel Burnege were thoroughly capable as Pitti Sing and Peep-Bo; and other rôles were admirably sustained by Messrs. Leicester Tunks and Fred Drawater. On Tuesday The Yeomen of the Guard was presented amid much enthusiasm; and during the week The Gondoliers and Iolanthe have also been performed.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Kronom's grand military spectacle, Our Boys in Blue, with its vastly-exciting incidents, has been received with intense enthusiasm. Jack and Evelyn appear in their smart comedy act, their success being emphatic; and Albertus, the American eccentric juggler, assisted by Miss Jessie Millar, gain much approval for "A Scena at the Fair Grounds." Miss Libby Blondelle and her Johnnies have made a big hit; and the Three Ettenas appear in their unique globe speciality. Mr. Chas. J. Johnson; the Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers; the Casimo Girls, brass instrumentalists; and the Palace Pictures complete a fine programme.

Royal Hippodrome. Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The success of this beautiful new theatre continues to be unabated, fashionable crowds thronging the theatre nightly. Rosina Casselli and her midget wonders top the bill, and the extraordinary feats of this highly-trained troupe of rare dogs has caused a veritable sensation. Mr. Harry Barker's character songs have been heard with pleasure; and much surprise has been expressed at the remarkable acrobatic feats of the Yullan Family, seven in number. Miss May Newall is a splendid singer of American ballads, and the Primrose Quartette in song-scena have quite delighted the crowds. Rappo and Ella, society gymnasts, gain unmeasured approval for their fine act, and the Lavails, in their ladder and bar act, would, indeed, be difficult to surpass. Also here are Mr. Will Walton, comedian; Huline and Le Hay, modern musical clowns; Vanola; and the very attractive pictures on the Hippoecope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. George Lashwood repeats all his former successes in this city by his finished rendering of several capital songs; the Two Bostons return with their novel sketch; and a hit has been made by Miss Peggie Lennie and Mr. Walter Hast, who appear to great advantage in their phantasy, "The Sea Nymph." The acme of excellence is exhibited by the Three Amaranthas, in their graceful and clever dancing; and Goggin and Davis, acrobatic comedians, have been as successful as they could desire. The Neilson Sisters are accomplished duettists and dancers; and Mr. Chris Richards is one of the drollest comedians imaginable. The Empire Bioscope is also on the programme.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, produce this week the sensational drama, A Life's Revenge. Miss Nina Blake-Adams, an accomplished actress, delights all with her sympathetic and clever impersonation of Princess Vanda Iveyala; and much praise is won by Mr. Horace Denton for his capital acting as Paul Starovitch; Mr. Cyril Grier acquits himself with distinction as Maurice Trevor; and congratulations are due to Miss Kathleen Lagee for her clever impersonation of Marcia Vittoria. Mr. Edward M. Heanley's impersonation of the iniquitous Prince Strognoff is so realistic that he fully earns the loud anathemas of the crowded house. Mr. Elmore Frith sustains the rôle of Michael Orloff with his accustomed ability; Mr. Tom H. Solly's humour as Nicholas Bobliskioff is irresistible; and Miss Mattie Crawford is thoroughly satisfactory as Daphne Dashaway. Miss Alice Clarke is an admirable Acoulina; and other rôles are admirably sustained by Messrs. J. E. Davies and Edward Smythe. The Alhambra Bioscope present very humorous pictures.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—It is not often that the heroine and the heroine's child take first honours in the piece, but in The Power and the Glory, played here this week by Mr. Ernest Chesney's company, these characters should claim that distinction. The histrionic ability of Miss Chrissie Dunbar as Lizzie Medwin is undoubted; whilst the juvenile efforts of Miss Flo Florence as Linda, the blind girl, stamp her at once as a real artist, young as she is. Full of vigour and outspokenness is the young sailor, Harry Goodluck, of Mr. Geo. Edwin Clive; Mr. Chesney as Crayle, and Miss Bessie Elma as Kate, are good; Miss Cissie Clarke is successful as Bessie, the flower girl; and others prominent in the cast are Misses V. Chamier and F. Olive; also Messrs. H. Eglington, H. Nelson, W. J. Gould, and Bradford.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company opened here on Monday, in When It Was Dark, a capital performance meeting with cordial recognition. Miss Elizabeth Watson gives a finished and effective rendering of Gertrude Hunt; Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee appears to great advantage as the Rev. Basil Gorte; Constantine Schuable is well impersonated by Mr. George H. Pitt; Sir Robert Llewellyn is cleverly embodied by Mr. T. Morton Powell; Miss G. May is an efficient Minnie Golightly; Mrs. Morton Powell displays considerable ability as Helena Byars; and the remaining characters are all capably filled. The scenic effects are elaborate, and the piece is carefully staged.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. John Lawson and his company are a centre of attraction here, and during the week have appeared in The King's Minister, The Monkey's Paw, and Humanity with pronounced success. Boyd and Gilfain, in their musical comedietta, Sunny Spain, are also a favourite turn, and a strong programme also introduces the Three Clarions, in a musical sketch; Miss Lorna Doone, juvenile danseuse; Mr. Ted E. Box, comedian; Farr and Farland, patterers; Miss Dot Hardy, comedienne; Mr. Julian Mack, comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The New Aladdin is met with ringing applause nightly on this its first week here with Mr. George Edwardes's company. The hero, Lally, is made exquisitely graceful and captivating by Miss Cressie Leonard's clever efforts in the rôle; Miss Ida Rene's fine talents and beauty render the Princess's rôle one of irresistible charm and sweetness; Miss Irene Verona shares in the general triumph with her merry humour as the Spirit of the Ring; Miss Nelly Lonnen makes a highly popular rôle of the dancing girl, Laolah; Miss Mary Fraser imparts a charming Scotch accent to the part of Jennie, the maid; and Miss Jessie Lonnen's clever Parisian style as the French comedienne is well relished. Mr. George Gregory as Tippin has a part which his clever burlesque powers exploit to full advantage amid roars of laughter; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as the Genie of the Lamp enters into the spirit and humour of the rôle with admirable and tireless zeal; Mr. Henry Taylor's Lost Constable is a diverting piece of acting; and Mr. Frank Hector as the Uncle, Mr. William Spray as the Cadi, Mr. Ernest Maher as General Ratz, and others contribute most ably to the production, which is liberally chorused and richly staged.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company opened here on Monday with the always-welcome Carmen, which, as usual, drew a big house. Unfortunately, Mlle. Zelie de Lussan was indisposed, but Miss Toni Seiter rose to all exigencies and showed much improvement on her previous efforts in the rôle. Miss Kate Anderson scored as the timid and tender Michaela; Mr. Wilson Pembroke as Don José did exceedingly well, especially in the last scene; Mr. Lewys James won enthusiastic plaudits as Escamillo; and the other principals, together with the band and chorus under Herr Richard Eckhold, worked splendidly. During the first act the stage was thrown into semi-darkness and the orchestra into total darkness through the failure of the electrical apparatus, albeit the situation was partly saved by the lighting of gas brackets and the main chandelier in the ceiling. The orchestra stuck to its work, and the act finished as well as could be expected, matters being set right afterwards. Aïda, the novelty of the week, was on Tuesday greeted from start to finish with loud applause, while the performance terminated amid a scene of the wildest enthusiasm and cries of "Speech!" to which Mr. Manners replied, the principals and conductor having all been summoned to the front. Mr. Joseph O'Mara sang in his best style as Radames; Mme. De Vere-Sapio enraptured the audience as Aïda; Miss Toni Seiter acquitted herself of the arduous rôle of Amneris splendidly; and Messrs. Manners, Magrath, James, &c., were duly acclaimed. The conductor was Signor Romualdo Sapio. Tannhäuser (Parisian version), with Mme. Fanny Moody as Elizabeth, was performed on Wednesday. Lohengrin, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and Faust also figure in the programme.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—The gratifying success which attended the opening of Mr. Collingwood's dramatic season at Easter is well sustained by the visit of The Assassin, which is presented by Mr. Augustine Knight and full star cast. Mr. Knight holds the audience well in hand with his powerful acting as Prince Demetri; Mr. Edward E. Ashby realises the aspirations and character of the young soldier, Impanoff, with clever art; Mr. Theo. Balfour gives a smart embodiment of the modern aristocrat, Duke Karl; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is favourably situated as Baron Alphonse; and Mr. Chauncy Morris as General Nichol, and Mr. Edwin Jenner as Capt. O'Neil both give good impressions of their ability. Miss Ella Vane enacts the rôle of the assassin, Countess Wanda, with exceptional success, her dramatic moments being many and thrilling; Miss Frances Waring is successful as the Prince's victim, Nita; Miss Hettie Senior acts the American rôle, Connie Jonathan, in good style; Miss Marie E. Robertson's acting as Katrina tends to the success; and Mr. Tom J. Taylor is very acceptable in the humorous rôle of Peter.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville, Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. Mark Blow's company is doing well here in the picturesque drama, At Cripple Creek, Mr. Stanley Bedwell leads in his manly and taking portrayal of Joe Mayfield; Mr. Eric Hudson as Martin Mason, the terror of Cripple Creek, acts with well-studied effect; Mr. Oscar Power makes the character of the bully, Manuel Alvarez, duly formidable; Mr. Will Hook scores with his humorous acting as Reggie Harwood; and the clever endeavours of Mr. Arthur P. Layland as Wahketah, Mr. Harry Leander as Ben White, and Mr. Chas. Watson as the Rev. Mr. Wilson are much applauded. Miss Daisy Carlton is highly attractive as Maggie Mason; Miss Lily Beagle wins favour as Belle Gordon; Miss Agnes Verity gives clever expression to the rôle of Dynamite Ann; Little Rosie Hopkins is admired as Little Tatto; and Miss Norah Dillon is successful as Sarah Lively

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Her Nameless Child is making a successful appeal here with Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company. Miss Pattie Hastings portrays the heroine's rôle, Phyllis Ford, with much cleverness and charm; Miss Grace Jones in the opposite rôle, Lady Sibil Woodville, shows excellent force and ability; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne enacts the rôle of Lord Henry Woodville in a very satisfactory manner; Mr. Herbert Evelyn presents the good qualities of Arthur Ford in a happy and manly style; Mr. Fred Griffiths gives a clever delineation of Mongrole, the cat's-paw; and Mr. J. W. Evelyn is prominent in the cast as Anthony Ford. Mr. Fred Danvers as Tom Rivers creates much mirth; and Miss Florence Hall as Bessie Brooks and Miss Madge Trevelyan as the maid, Crayont, infuse much humour into the play, which is of a soul-stirring nature, and well mounted.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company in The Love that Women Desire fully maintains the reputation of this popular house for effective drama. Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson acts to the audience's keen delight and admiration as the manly young farmer, Philip Carnaby; Mr. J. O. Stewart portrays the mercenary qualities of Squire Abingdon to the finest point of discretion; Mr. Alfred Brandon shows a clever grasp of character as Richard Abingdon; Miss Lalla Stanhope acts prettily in the love scenes, and brings out the sympathetic character of the heroine, Sybil, with delightful charm; and the play is leavened with some acceptable comedy, conveyed principally by Mr. John Hignett as Dennis O'Rourke and Miss Emmie Litchfield as Pattie Swift. Other clever rôles are played by Mr. J. W. Wilkinson as P.-C. Snowberry, Miss N. Griffiths as Mariquinha, Miss Gladys Murray as Madge Abingdon, Miss Violet Haye as Molly, Mr. Hugh Wallace as Cathorne, Mr. Charles Franklin as Adam Frere, Mr. B. Morris as Amos Gibson, and Mr. S. P. Clewton as Dr. Brandeth.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Wilkie Bard is at the head of the bill here, and scores a great success. Nellie Stratton and Madge Temple are both favourite comediennes; the Montague Brothers in their speciality act, A Sculptor's Dream, are excellent; John Rowley is another comedian of great ability; Arthur Gill is well received; the Cumberlands have an up-to-date cycle act; Barratt and Knowles are expert dancers and comedians; and Gaumont's Chronophone and A. W. Scott, coon artist, complete the programme.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Arthur Prince, ventriloquist, meets with a most cordial reception; the Carina Sisters provide an excellent musical turn; Frank Leon has brought the Lancashire art of clog-dancing to perfection; and an attractive programme is completed by Spencer and Marks, the Meymotts, Fred Hastings, Percy Hannan, George Barron, Tom Leamore, the Four Rio Brothers, and Rosie Lloyd.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Foster.—The premier position on the bill is held by F. E. Burnett's sensational dramatic sketch, The Indian Mutiny, played by a powerful company. Mlle. Von Etta, lady illusionist, proves very attractive; J. W. Rickaby is very amusing; and the Zapps, Ruby Dahl, the Three Missouris, and Agnes Molteno and company are all responsible for attractive and well-rendered turns.

Curzon Hall.—Mr. Walter Jeffs returns to Birmingham for a short season with his New Century Pictures, which come in for a hearty reception. Mr. Jeffs introduces, among others, "The Wonderland of Canada" and the building of the Cape to Cairo railway.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Huntley.—Mr. and Mrs. John E. Tomlinson's company is here on a return visit in the Oriental play, Secrets . . . . As Lieut. Herbert Markham Mr. Reggie Brown depicts the character of the true English sailor in convincing style; Mr. Wilfred Richards is well suited as Nouredin Ali; Ibrahim Ali Murad has a powerful exponent in Mr. J. E. Tomlinson; whilst Kara Mesrour receives a masterly delineation at the hands of Mr. Lal Abdul Gottman. The interesting and appealing character of Ismalia could not be better delineated than it is by Miss Lizzie Palmer; whilst splendid ability is shown by Miss Nellie Navarro as Zuelieka. The humorous element is well provided by Mr. Victor V. Raymond as the Hon. Cecil Cholmondley, and Mr. Herbert Woodin as Peter Wilkins, assisted by Miss Madge Palmer as Peggie Wilkins. A clever troupe of dancers introduce several dances in the course of the evening.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Norman Y. Norman and company are appearing here this week with considerable success. Robin Hood was the attraction on Monday night, when Mr. Norman very ably played the title-rôle and Miss Beatrice Wilson was sweet and attractive as Maid Marian. Mr. Kenneth Bruce as King Richard and Mr. Aubrey Mather as Little John also acted their parts with care and discretion. David Garrick, The Adventure of Lady Ursula, and Nell Gwyn of Drury Lane also occupy a place in the week's programme.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is paying another visit here this week and meeting with the most cordial reception nightly. The Merchant of Venice was presented on Monday in an admirable manner. Mr. Henry Herbert as Shylock and Miss Dorothy Green as Portia were excellent. As You Like It, Hamlet, Macbeth, The Taming of the Shrew, and Richard III. have also received attention during the week.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Tom Foy and company top the bill here this week, and their comedy absurdity, The Yorkshire Lad in London, causes roars of laughter at every performance; Charles Austin, the popular comedian, is also very well received; whilst other enjoyable turns are provided by Harwood's Juveniles, in a novelty scena entitled The Children's Christmas Eve; the Brewsters, vocalists, dancers, and Indian club experts; the Lorrisons, comedians; Katie Marsh, vocalist and dancer; Ida Ross, comedienne; Starr and Jerome, vocalists; and Leslie Race, a clever comedian. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope still remains a great attraction.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here with Dr. Wake's Patient. Mr. Lawrence Grant gives a finished impersonation of Dr. Forrester Wake; and Mr. George Howard is successful in his delineation of the old Devonshire farmer. Much comedy is infused in the acting of Mr. Allan Pollock in his part of Duff Wynderden, and also amusing is the Bishop of Selby by Mr. Adam Alexander. Miss Fyfe Alexander gives a delightful rendering of Lady Gerania Wyn-Charteret; Miss Mabel Wynne is neat and humorous in the part of Mrs. Murdoch; and a very clever character-sketch is the Mrs. Wake of Miss Kate Osborne. Miss Georgie Trewman is a stately Countess of St. Olbyn; Mr. Paul Lovett displays ability in his impersonation of the Earl of St. Olbyn; Miss Clara Earle is vivacious as Harriet Bronson, and Miss Yamsi Ismay is a creditable Gipsy.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—There is variety here in plenty this week, supplied by Miss Marie Kendell, comedienne; Harry Taylor, the Wigan comedy warbler; the Gregson Comedy Trio, in their original speciality act, The Dummy; Henderson, blind concertina soloist; Keith and Merson, in their hunting absurdity, The Meet; Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian; A. Ba Bes, in his magic picture postcard album; Steve McCarthy; comedian and expert dancer; Whimsical Walker, in his sketch, Captain Hamilton, V.C.; the Varleys, harmonising duettists; W. Fullbrook and company, in their screaming sketch, Astrology; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—Muncaster Theatre — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Messrs. Fred Acton and H. C. Nash's company are presenting this week the popular drama, Between the Lights. The drama is well staged, the swing-bridge scene and the steel-works being excellent sets. Mr. Bertram R. Ross is a manly Captain Hinton; and Miss Fannie Williams makes a sympathetic Violet Warren. Mr. Frederick Garrett is well placed as Gerald Warren, and Mr. Wm. R. Winning as Stanley Crofton displays some fine acting; Mr. Frank Orchard is all that can be desired in the dual rôles of Oswald Warren and Ben Armley; and Madge Armley finds an excellent exponent in Miss Eileen Bamford. Much amusement is created by Mr. Fred Acton as Jimmy Fickle, Mr. Frank Daleno as Charles Stott, and Miss Millie Doris as Kitty.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. De Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—At the top of the bill here are the popular comedians Foreman and Fannan, who have had a good reception; a refined turn is given by Dandy George and his dog Rosie; Lena Verdi is a dainty comedienne and clever mimic; a good turn is submitted by Laurie Wylie in his marionette performance; as an instrumentalist, Rosetti, the musical girl, is much appreciated; Blanche Marion is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; the Bioscope shows some up-to-date pictures.

BOSTON.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—The chief attraction here is the Leslie Troupe, in their pantomimical burlesque, entitled Larks, which causes roars of laughter. In the bill are also Miss Jessie de Grey, soubrette and dancer; the Three Scrooneys, in an up-to-date absurdity, Come Back; Bert Bevan, comedian and raconteur; the Sisters Russel, in new dances; Dan Hatfield, comedian; Vera Goodall, vocalist; the Barrand Troupe of acrobats; the Matthews, in their latest success, Eccentric Visitors; and a new musical burlesque sketch, entitled Mr. Robin Hood. On Friday, the 12th inst., Mr. Geo. Saphrini took his second annual benefit. There was a large audience, and the chief novelty in the programme was the first appearance of Master Stanley Saphrini, son of the manager, who received the best reception of the evening, his dancing being excellent for a boy only five years of age.

Shodfriars Hall.—Lessee, Mrs. Bartol Storr.—The Sign of the Cross was played on Wednesday and Thursday under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattel. Although this is the third visit the interest in the play was as strong as ever.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Sidney Cooper's company, in Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, opened here for the first time on Monday. Mr. William Mollison has a part exactly suited to him as Lachlan Campbell; a capital piece of acting is given by Mr. Alec F. Thompson as the Postman; Miss Evelyn McNay as Flora Campbell plays charmingly, and divides with Mr. Mollison the honours of the evening. Mr. W. A. MacKersy, Mr. Archie W. Chappell, Mr. Kendal Chalmers, Miss Josephine Woodward, and Miss Elsie Vron, are all excellent.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. George Edwardes's company in the new Chinese comic opera, See-See, is here this week. As the retired merchant, Cheoo, Mr. W. H. Rawlins is diverting, and Mr. Frank Danby is funny as the Chinaman, Hang-Kee; Mr. Leonard Mackay's voice is heard to advantage in the character of Yen. As So-Long, Mr. E. Freshwater is pleasingly in evidence; Miss Amy Augarde as Mai-Yai is excellent. The vocalism of Miss Lily Elsie in the title-rôle, and the delightful dancing by Miss Topsy Sinden (So-Hie) are features of a most enjoyable performance.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The Eternal City is being presented here by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. The call PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Ralli.—Those diverting comedians, the Deane Tribune Company, are here again, funny as ever, in Applicants. Richard Taylor furnishes a very clever turn as ventriloquist, mimic, and whistler; there is some capital dancing by Brull and Hemsley in Fun in a Music-Shop; Florrie Bray, comedienne, contributes with a fair measure of success; the Four Herberts are seen to advantage as acrobats and knockabout comedians; the vocalism by the Sisters Hall is good; Charlie Williams as a "Scotch nigger" is entertaining; with harp and saxophone, Diamond and Beatrice supply excellent music; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux show some capital pictures.

BRIDLINGTON.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Josephs opened here on Monday evening with an entirely new entertainment, which bears the title of Samples. Miss Stanton scores with her finely rendered songs and graceful dances. Miss Nora Neville and Miss Ada Brogden are charming comediennes; and the Sisters Richardson give some cleverly-executed dances; Mr. Bruce Green is a great favourite here, and his amusing songs and patter are loudly encored; Mr. Will Terry is a smart comedian and reciter, and Mr. George Millard amuses with his funny songs; that clever boy comedian, Little Keeno, gives amusing imitations of Harry Lauder; Professor Lenton is a successful magician, and with young Bertram gives a remarkable display of thought-reading. The Pagodascope living pictures are very good, and Mr. Joseph's capital pierrot team is responsible for some excellent concerted numbers from the best of the musical comedies.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The vocalist this week at the promenade concerts in the Grand Pavilion, which Mr. Joseph Sainton is making so popular, is Miss Elsie Whitham, a lady possessing a very fine contralto voice. Mr. Kettlewell's finely rendered cornet solos stamp him as a musician of rare talent on that instrument, and Mr. J. Messer's 'cello solos are a rare treat.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company opened here on Monday with Three Little Maids. Miss Mabel Kerridge, Miss Daisy Sylverton, and Miss Eva Weigh gave charming impersonations of the three daughters of the Vicar of Market Mallory, and displayed tasteful vocalisation; Mr. Frank Henderson submitted a clever character study as the frivolous Lord Cheyne; Mr. Eric Barrington's M. de L'Orme and Mr. Frank Wilson's Bryan Molyneux were well played; Mr. Harry Walsh as Cupid and Miss Laura Wright as Gretchen afforded much amusement; Miss Kate Graham-Beck made a dignified Lady St. Mallory, whose aristocratic protégées had attractive representatives in Miss Hilda Shericker, Miss Bertha Trench, and Miss Nellie Clapton; while able assistance was also rendered by Mr. Burgess Barratt as the Vicar, and Miss Maud Madle as Miss Price. At Thursday's special London matinée Toddles was performed by Mr. Cyril Maude and the entire company from The Playhouse, London.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Dr. Walford Bodie is here this week. On Monday evening the great bloodless surgeon treated two patients who were suffering from paralysis, and, in each case, proved completely successful. Dr. Bodie's lecture and electrical experiments were very interesting. A variety programme was also sustained. Sydney Baker and company were very successful in the musical romance, Visions of the Past; Tom N. Mills, the Australian actor-vocalist achieved great success with his patriotic songs; Little Dolly Robinson sang and danced in good style; the Musical Acmes won warm applause for their refined entertainment; Belle Skene, burlesque actress and vocalist, was well received; and capital turns were contributed by Belford and Mars, comedy duo singers and dancers, and T. Duriah, comedian.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—An excellent company is here this week. Hardeen, the "Handcuff King," submits a very attractive turn, and releases himself from handcuffs and irons with remarkable ease; George Doughty and company are very entertaining in the sketch, Captain Cupid; Marjory Clark and Percy Hayden are well received in their comedy duologue, By Appointment; Will Musgrave, comedian, is a prime favourite; Willie Gardner is clever in roller and ice skate dances; Raie Walters gives her fishing song effectively; Oakdene proves himself a smart ventriloquist; Marie Neilson is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Master Gicardo, the boy juggler, achieves great success; the Sisters Cora are pleasing duettists and dancers; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. Ernest Shand, comedian, is enthusiastically applauded for his songs and short stories; Great Roland is a clever illusionist; Bertha Zander is highly successful in her "home songs illustrated"; the El Tampico Trio of Mexican troubadours give a bright and much appreciated performance; the Falcons are smart acrobatic equilibrists; Lawrence Barclay is an eccentric comedian; the Silver Tone Quartet, harmonious vocalists and cake walk dancers, furnish a capital turn; Eva Hope and Jack Wayho and company present scenes from Dickens' novels in good style; Keir and Kempton, vocal soloists and duettists, merit praise; Mlle. Pollo is a daring gymnast; Charles Somers is a pleasing comedian; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., and company opened their second week here on Monday with Carmen, a play founded on the well-known opera. Miss Florence Glossop-Harris made an ideal Carmen; Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., was highly successful as Corporal Don José; Mr. David Santley was admirably suited as the Toreador; Miss Kate Turner's Tessa and Mr. Percy Vernon's Il Dancairo were ably enacted; Mr. Edward Landor was a humorous Lieutenant Mina; and Miss Nora Goulden was a capital Manuelita. The programme for the week also included Twelfth Night.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is still here, and proves very attractive.

HOVE TOWN HALL.—On Wednesday afternoon and evening dramatic performances were given here in aid of St. Oswald's Convalescent Home for Boys, Alfred-road, Brighton. The programme comprised The Bugle Call and Woodcock's Little Game, which were given under the direction of Col. G. M. Onslow. The principal characters were sustained by Miss Mary Pinero, Mrs. G. M. Onslow, Miss Edith M. Onslow, Mr. George Hammond, Mr. Harold Richardson, Mr. T. Gates, and Miss Maud Molyneux.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—A return visit of San Toy, staged with liberality, is proving attractive. Miss Gertrude Gilliam is a pleasing exponent of the title-rôle; Miss Olive Crellin is highly successful as the vivacious Dudley; Miss Hebe Bliss is well placed as Chu San, obtaining much applause for her excellent singing; Mr. Horace Mills is capital as Li; Mr. Colin Coop is amusing as Yen How; Mr. Edmund Sherras both acts and sings well as Captain Bobby Preston; Mr. W. J. Manning is decidedly smart as Sir Bingo Preston; Miss Sylvia May is pleasing as Poppy Preston; and Mr. Frederick Hobbs both acts and sings excellently as Fo Hop. The other parts are all capably taken, and Miss May Gould presents a clever and graceful dance in the Palace scene.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty. Mr. Junius Booth and company are here for the week with Monte Cristo, the drama being well staged and capitally performed. Mr. Junius Booth, who is the author of the play, displays considerable power in his impersonation of Edmund Dantes; Miss B. Doyle is a charming and interesting exponent of Mercedes; Mr. Augustin Bowerman makes the most of the part of Danglers; Mr. C. W. Crowe acts effectively as Fernand; Mr. Percy Braithwaite makes a good character-study of Caderousse; and the same may be said of Miss Alice West as La Carconte; Mr. F. Doyle acts with distinction as Albert de Morcef, Mr. Walter Huron is satisfactorily placed as Villefort, and Mr. Beckett Bould is in every way commendable as Nortier. The remaining parts are all carefully played, and the drama is interesting.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Nat Clifford, comedian, heads the bill, and obtains considerable appreciation; New York Nippers have an amusing scena, Bed-time, in which singing and dancing are introduced; Marie Collins, comedienne, obtains much applause; the Picquays score with their drawing-room entertainment; Nellie Martell is a pleasing comedienne and an expert dancer; Bliss and Bliss, comedians, do a good turn; and Earle and Melville, comedians, are successful. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Raku, exponent of ju-jitsu, supported by Japanese assistants, heads the programme, obtaining much appreciation for clever demonstrations of the usefulness of the art. Lily Burnand, comedienne, presents an attractive turn, which is much appreciated by all parts of the house; Lord, Murray, and Lord score with an amusing ball-punching and boxing interlude, The Instructor; Ivy Aberdare is a capable and attractive coon vocalist and dancer; Jan Rudenyi, Hungarian violinist, supported by Dora de Winton and John Saunders, is successful in a musical romance, The Power of Music; Happy Attwood, comedian, obtains applause; Six Lancashire Lassies are clever exponents of clog and other styles of dancing; and Van Allen, attired as a tramp, amuses with patter, plays the banjo cleverly, and gives selections upon trick instruments. The performance concludes with a good selection of animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—This is the last week of Walter Jeff's New Century Animated Pictures. Judging from the large attendance at each entertainment the season has been a successful one.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company are giving a series of historical plays during this week, and on Monday the drama by Clifford Rean, entitled Robin Hood; or, The King of Sherwood Forest, occupied the attention of a good house. Robin Hood is forcibly played by Mr. F. B. Woulfe, who has a manly presence and a good voice. An excellent Marion Gilfain is presented by Miss Ethel Griffies; Mr. James Stillwell as King Richard acts well; Mr. A. Edward Dunstan is a comical Eustace le Beau; and much fun is also contributed by Miss Edith Loraine as Maude, Mr. Bob Anderson as Friar Tuck, Mr. Holland Day as Little John and Will Scarlett and Mr. Albert Waghorne as the host of the mill. Mr. Clifford Bean scores as Fitzalwyn; Prince John is a good study by Mr. Henry Ernestine; Elwynna is well embodied by Miss Winifred Symonds. Nell Gwynne, Jane Shore, and Lady Godiva are the other plays presented during the week.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Peter's Mother is being presented here this week by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Miss Lilias Earle gives a most human and sympathetic rendering of Lady Mary (Peter's mother). Miss Hilda Sims is very pleasing as Sarah; Miss Evelyn Shelley and Miss Celia Gordon are both excellent in their respective rôles of Lady Belstone and Miss C. Crewys; Mr. Maitland Dicker is delightfully fresh as Canon Birch; and Mr. Henry Renouf gives a clever portrayal of John Crewys, Q.C. Mr. Ernest Rushton as Sir Timothy Crewys is very good, and Mr. E. F. Meads is capital as Peter; Mr. A. P. Kaye as Dr. Blundell calls for praise; and Mrs. Howell is ably undertaken by Miss Mildred Cottrell. The play is preceded by a clever farce, Chalk and Cheese, in which Miss Mildred Cottrell, Miss Hilda Sims, and Mr. A. P. Kaye maintain the merriment of the audience throughout.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—An excruciatingly funny turn here this week is that of the Gentle Mackweys in a comedy acrobatic turn. The Kurios are another turn in an absurdity which greatly affects the risible faculties of the audience; and Ward and Davies are very funny in Wanted, a Typist. Lloyd's Gondolier Glee Singers give delightful renderings of several quartettes, and are highly appreciated. Zaid performs a series of contortions on the rings; and D. J. Tandy, comedian, is well received; Billy Burns has a good voice; and the Ringling Trio are clever eccentric comedians. The New Empire Theatroscope is up to date with a picture of the Grand National.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waller.—Some good variety turns are given this week. The wonderful spectacular effects produced by Maurin's fountains are watched with intense interest; Frank Sauteron, of the Sauteron Wonders, gives a clever exhibition of his agility as a jumper; the Musical Keiths' bright and skilful entertainment is much enjoyed; Alec Aubrey is an excellent gymnast; Ida Fair sings in good style; and Will Hughes and Charles Tempest score heavily. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux concludes a good bill.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The drama, The Girl Who Lost Her Character, is being played here this week by Mr. Douglas Bruce's company. Miss Ethel Bracewell sustains the title-rôle capitally; Miss Lydia Manning is successful as Marian Franklyn; Mr. Frank Adair is effective as the villain of the piece; and capital fun is provided by Mr. G. H. Aspin as Dick Punch and Miss Daisy Meynard as Isabella Jones.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Animated pictures again form the principal turn here this week. Other turns are the Lynches, who illustrate songs; and Vasey and Ramsey, expert step-dancers.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons.—A good bill includes Robins and Collier, in a musical comedy, entitled The Lady and the Porter; Mary Blythe, contralto; the Veqneys, banjoists; Les Zelovas, acrobats; George Hyam, comedian; Mlle. Vand, juggler; and Alice Fontainblea and her trained dogs.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Fontainblea and her trained dogs top the bill here, with a performance which fully merits the applause evoked; the Forsyths give an entertaining sketch, The Tramp in the Nursery; the dancing of the Daniels is remarkably clever; Miss Nellie Duval sings a good song; H. E. High is an amusing comedian; Jury's pictures keep up their reputation; and Gulliver, a smart ventriloquist, concludes an excellent programme.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—For the whole of this week the theatre is occupied by Mr. H. A. Saintsbury and company in Anna of the Plains. Of Anna, Miss Dorothea Desmond gave a most interesting study; Mr. H. A. Saintsbury invested the rugged old Boer with a good deal of pathos; Mr. Hilliard Vox was successful as Michael O'Donaghan; Mr. C. H. Croker King played naturally as Piet Van Heller; Miss V. Vivian as Sarah Kerrins gave a realistic performance; Mr. Louis Scott (William Van Stern) and Miss Grace Ryland (Stina Kerring) made the most of the humour. The play was followed by a smart little comedy, entitled Jocelyn the Jester.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Cardiffians have an opportunity this week of witnessing a revival of Claudian performed by Mr. William Maclaren's company. Mr. Maclaren interprets the title-rôle with dignity and a restraint which emphasises its power; Miss Lily C. Bandman submits a fine rendition of Almida; as Agazil Mr. Douglas Earle is seen to much advantage; and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa and Mr. C. T. Chaloner as Belos enliven the piece with some welcome comedy. The difficult part of Thariogalus is in the capable hands of Mr. F. Owen Chambers; while the rôle of Alcares is undertaken by Mr. Weston Hubbard with much effect. Other characters in the prologue well-represented are Theorus (Mr. Edmund Crogan), the Holy Clement (Mr. Alick Burke), and Serena (Miss Rosa Webster).

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—After a long absence we have a visit of The Sorrows of Satan, presented by Miss Loie Esmond's company, under the direction of Mr. Edward Neville. Mr. Neville impersonates Prince Lucio, and deals most effectively with this difficult part; Miss Cecilia Dare appears as Lady Sybil, and submits a very charming delineation. As Geoffrey Tempest Mr. J. McCaigh acquits himself with much credit; Miss Loie Desmond as Diana Chesney is a captivating and vivacious American; while the comedy of Mr. Fred Cherry (Morris) is certainly one of the successes of the piece.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Wm. Lee; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The versatile Vesta Tilley is packing the Cardiff Empire this week. The charming, bright, and breezy little lady is more entertaining than ever, and her new songs are rendered with more than her usual sprightliness of manner. A comedian new to Cardiff is "Mr. Hymack," and he has achieved great success; the Sisters Morgan are enthusiastically welcomed back to the city of their birth with all their South African honours fresh upon them; the Bros. Dean prove an expert troupe of dancers; and the Renard Trio of dental athletes are particularly smart and clever. Collins and Rice, two bright comedy artists; the Strads, in a musical turn; Cissie Carlette, a mimetic vocalist; and the Bioscope, with interesting pictures, entitled "Black Diamonds," complete a most attractive programme.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Godfrey Tearle's company opened here on Monday with A Soldier of Fortune, under the direction of Mr. Haldane Crichton. In the title-rôle, Mr. Tearle acquitted himself in a manner worthy of the highest praise. The delightful acting of Miss Molly Malone as the Lady Phyllis was followed with intense interest; in the heavy rôle, Mr. Baliol Holloway was seen to marked advantage; Mr. William Lowe's ripe experience enabled him to make Dr. Thorn quite a prominent character; Phineas Sturge had a capable representative in Mr. Chas. E. Ommanney; Mr. Edmond T. Sayers was responsible for most of the laughter, receiving excellent support from Miss Violet Barnett; Mr. Alfred Gray as the Earl and Miss Ethel Matthews as Mistress Culign contributed sound performances.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—A capital programme is provided here this week. "The Smart Set" on the top of the bill sing popular music in a novel and delightful style; Indian club juggling is contributed by the Fitzgeralds, whose tricks bring down the house. A lady with a style quite her own is Miss Millie Payne, whose quaint mannerisms and comical facial expression create roars of laughter. A popular turn is given by Roze and Calvert, the comedy couple; and Ada Twibell, comedienne and burlesque actress, is also a favourite. Ted Young, whose humorous pantomime successes here have made him quite an old favourite, had a splendid reception, which was renewed at the end of his clever performance. A turn quite out of the common is contributed by the Lowenwirth Bros., who are simply brimful of comic Hebrew patter and funny business. The Pepiscope shows some fine new pictures this week.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred. C. Somerfield are presenting here this week for the first time their new production, The Tyrant, by Mr. Fred. C. Somerfield, adapted from one of Victor Hugo's masterpieces. The scenery is admirable, and the numerous actors work hard, and are much appreciated. Miss Dagmar as Tisbe again gives proof of ability as an actress of emotional power; Mr. Somerfield appears with great success as Homodei; Mr. Roy Fortesque's portrayal of Angela is highly satisfactory, as is also the Rudolph of Mr. Lionel Atwill. Some powerful acting is contributed by Miss Lallah Shelton as Eulie; Miss Millie Ford plays Lady Katherine with genuine insight; Mrs. Chas. E. Warne makes an effective Dean of St. Anthony; Mr. Albert Rogers is amusing as Nobbs, and he receives capital assistance from Miss Olive Lloyd as Reginella. Mr. Percy Brown is quite at home as Victor.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Emerson.—The management has arranged an admirable programme for this week. Les Louberts (four in number) head the bill in an entertaining comedy sketch; Little Dot Moss, the toy comedienne, appears with remarkable success; Little Eugene McCabe sings some good songs; a word of praise is due to Mr. Russell Hatton for some clever impersonations of Dickens's characters; Reed and Lerne as eccentric comedians keep the audience in a roar throughout; Will McIvor, in a song-scena, is a capital turn; the Miltons contribute some clever tricks as knockabout skaters; Clem Lisbon is an agile comedian; and the Loyal Dominion Company's animated pictures are a treat.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Lovers of melodrama are witnessing with much satisfaction As Good as Gold, which is being presented here by Mr. Samuel James' company.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have Millie Williams, vocalist and dancer; Jack Crawley, eccentric comedian; Rita and Roma, in a smart vaudeville act; Dolly Golden, a neat dancer; Rosie Archer, who imitates in a telling manner many music hall celebrities; Marriott Edgar, the man in red, has some quaint songs; Jack Collinson's company includes some bright juveniles, who amuse with The Topsy-Turvey School; Barnard and Dent's company give a musical comedy, entitled L'Entente; and several films are projected by Mr. Lacey's Bracopde.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. R. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Dorme.—Rita Ross, burlesque artist, appears first, and is followed by T. W. Romer, in his song-scena, "The Chelsea Pensioner"; then we have the Three Sisters Thurban, who achieve success in a musical entertainment. Miss Amy Sullivan has two capital numbers, which prove popular; Arthur Reece obtains a very flattering reception; Marie Santoi is again scoring with "A Japanese tea-garden"; Allen and Hart are a pair of pleasing dancers; and the Edisonograph contributes an amusing film.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company opened on Monday in Under Two Flags. Mr. Blow's impersonation of the hero is worthy of all praise; Miss Amy Maitland takes Miss Molesworth's place as Cigarette in a powerful and admirable manner. Mr. Harry Benson as the hero's devoted servant contributes most of the fun; Miss Mabel Mannering as Venetia, Miss Ella Dixon as Lairnia, Mr. R. Faulkner as Lord Rockingham, Mr. H. Fitzgibbon as the brother, and Mr. Arthur Elwyn as Black Hawk are all worthy of special mention.

VICTORIA ROOMS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. B. Shenton.—Mlle. Florence's amalgamation of vaudeville artists are the attraction here, drawing two crowded houses nightly. Mlle. Florence's performance on the rolling globe is truly marvellous; Abex, the miniature Hercules, gives a striking exhibition; Lomas, the monkey-mimic, astonishes; and other turns are the Ottawas, Canada's musical cowboys, ventriloquial sketches by Hoozee, and popular songs by Miss Gladys Wells and Harry Keeble.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, is paying a return visit with Dare-Devil Dorothy. Mention may chiefly be made of the Hawkins of Mr. Arthur Hartley; Miss Dorothy Desmonde, in the title-rôle, admirably realises the author's charming heroine; a humorous Silas Crump is found in the person of Mr. Bert Edwards; Mr. William G. Hearson does well as the footman, Smith; Miss Marie Vere is suitably placed as Ruth Montrose; and the various other artists concerned do their best with the material at their disposal.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. Stanley Carlton's company is here this week with A Life's Story and A Marriage of Vengeance. In the former play on Monday Mr. F. Bulman Pitt, as Detective Tom Berry, won much praise; Miss Rubie Maude scored a decided success as Zieka, and Miss Marjory Armstrong was good as Beatrice; Mr. Stanley Carlton made an excellent Count Benger, and Mr. Arthur Dudley was well fitted in the part of Captain Jack Temple. Mr. Edwin Beverley gave a capital impersonation of Max Clifford, and Mr. Geoffrey Chate successfully appeared as Lieut. Hugo de Bresson. The humorous parts were well supplied by Mr. Fred Rose as Tony and Miss Lottie Pearce as Rosa.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's Naval Detective company opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday. Mr. Leslie Austin as the detective was successful in his trio of parts, and Miss Louie Fountaine, who had a like number of characters, sang several songs in good style. Mr. George Whillis was wonderfully active in the aptly-named part of Captain Hustle; and Mr. Walter Hybert was successful with several humorous contributions. Mr. Charles Burnes, in his rôle of saloon-keeper, was most entertaining on a variety of musical instruments; the Roduin Girls danced throughout in good style; and Miss Edith Claris did well in the low-comedy part of Susan Scrubbs.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The Trip to Coontown is the chief attraction this week, and without a doubt the coloured people in the piece are very clever, their singing and dancing being of a high order. Takio, the mimic, is an entertaining artist; Ada Parker sings and dances in irreproachable style; and A. E. Clifford is a descriptive vocalist of considerable merit. Joe Mac is boisterously amusing with his eccentricities, and Allsopp and Beckwith introduce some smart comedy business, the pictures concluding CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Miss Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, who is here this week with her company in Wep-Ton-No-Mah, portrays the title-part with commendable ability. As Col. Stockton Mr. C. W. Charles is exceptionally good, and Mr. E. Leroy is a capable Manuel. The comedy element is amply supplied by Messrs. Guy Hackney and Dan Ryan, who keep the house in roars of laughter. Miss Blanche Leroy is the recipient of well-deserved applause for her very careful rendition of the part of Nellie Stockton; and the remaining characters are well filled by the other members of the company. The play is excellently staged.

CORK.—PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The programme here this week includes the Szarvasi-Ferencz Troupe of Hungarian singers, dancers, and acrobats, who give a novel and interesting turn; Frank Cass, actor-vocalist, sings in good style; Lozelle is an exceedingly clever gymnast; Barney Vox, in his ventriloquial turn, causes great amusement; G. H. Keith, descriptive vocalist, pleases very much; Armino gives a fine display of strength with heavy weights. The farcical episode, entitled A Bunch of Trouble, by Messrs. E. Cossart, Victor Kerr and Miss Babs Stuart, evokes much laughter; and Harry Edson and his performing dogs give a capital turn.

COVENTRY.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. Lennox Barry.—Large and appreciative audiences are being drawn here this week. A big attraction is Miss Lottie Lennox, who is deservedly encored; Lilian Dundas and company give a dramatic sketch, The Doom of Delilah, which is superbly acted; Thorpe and Coe appear in a charming comedy duologue, entitled My Burglar; Fernee's Juveniles are a very clever troupe of children, who give some good songs and dances; Horace Jones appears as an original Welsh humorist, and effectively mimics local celebrities; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto give a clever exhibition of football on cycles; Beatrice Willey, comedienne, and Freed Keeton, comedian, are well received; the Bioscope pictures concluding a successful entertainment.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The Woman Who Gambles is being produced by a strong company under the direction of Mr. Morton Powell, and judging by its reception on Monday promises to have a successful week's run. Mr. Alex. Alexander appears with striking effect as Count Steinbach; Mr. Horatio Sinclair is responsible for Baron Cratzlaw; Mr. Reginald Fox is successful as Carl Ctzarteriski; Miss Louisa Peach gives a striking and forcible rendering of Countess Steinbach (the woman who gambles); Miss Florence Halton is an effective Cora. The piece is excellently staged.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. W. Graham Arthurs' company, with When a Man Hates, is here this week. Mr. W. Graham Arthurs plays the heavy character of Pietro Danelli, and gives a finished performance; Mr. Herbert M. King is responsible for a fine piece of acting as the half-witted Paul; Mr. Arthur Jarvis makes a capital curate as Lawrence Hastings; Mr. F. A. Lester deserves praise for his careful rendition of Sir Rupert Treharne; Mr. George F. Pleons as Detective Smart earns well-merited applause; Mr. Ernest Turner and Miss Jennie Hallworth as Peter Simple and Dolly Pimple are responsible for the fun of the play. Miss Maud Burleigh as Olga Gwynne acts with much taste and feeling; Miss Mabel Lister makes a winsome Letty; Mr. A. G. Gillies as Hawk is well chosen for the part; Mr. Fred Rosson deserves mention for his Sergeant Wiggins; Mr. E. Sampson as Jim Rogers submits a very careful study.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. Hilliard Vox's company in Alaska is fulfilling an engagement here this week. As Skookum Jim, the hero of the play, Mr. Percy Ballard is a huge success. Mr. H. Naylor Grimson plays Ned Larson with commendable skill; Mr. Stenson Liddard does ample justice to the part of Baptiste; Mr. Arthur Ferris gives a faithful rendering of Pompey Cæsar; and Mr. James Fox makes a favourable impression as Father Bernard. Miss Violet Craufurd's delineation of the Indian girl, Alaska, is an admirable bit of acting; Miss Muriel Vox merits warm approval as Jessie Dalton, and Miss Ethel May is a clever Topsy. Miss M. Palmer as Widow Casey, and Little Polly Percival as the Widow's Mite are worthy of notice.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge has sent an extremely well selected company, including a handsome and sweet-voiced chorus, with The Dairymaids, whilst the dresses and scenery are also very fine. Miss Edith Blanche is delightfully fresh in the rôle of Lady Brudenell; Miss Violet Lloyd is bright and attractive as Peggy; Miss Rhoda Gordon deserves hearty congratulations as Winifred; Miss Beryl Vaudrey is a charming Hélène; Miss Madge Avery admirably fits the part of Miss Penelope Pychase; Miss Cissie Sephton is full of gaiety as the maid-of-all-work, Eliza; and Misses Muriel Gordon, Gay Silvani, and Rosie Campbell are pretty schoolgirls. Mr. E. Statham Staples tickles the fancy of the audience immensely with his whimsical acting as Sam Brudenell; Mr. George Desmond's free and easy style exactly fits the rôle of Lieutenant Brudenell; Mr. Alec Fraser sings to perfection in the part of Captain Fred Leverton; Mr. Forbes Dawson enacts Dr. O'Byrne in the best possible manner; and praise is due to Messrs. Harry Cottell, Rupert Mar, and Fred Foster as Tim Capus, Lieut. Berton, and Togers.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is at the Royal with An Abandoned Woman. Mr. Walli Spinner scores as Captain Herbert Seaton; Mr. P. Morton Wright is commendable as Robert Saunders; Mr. Richard Ferris is praiseworthy as Philippe Malvoisin; Mr. Jim K. Woods makes a humorous Paddy Boyle; Mr. Will Glaze is suitable to the part of Sammy Sharp; Miss Georgetta Thierry acts creditably as Ninon Malvoisin; Miss Elsie Deane is successful as Sally Sloper; Miss Edith Spinner acts with strength in the rôle of Eleanor Deane; and little Frances Maddocks is clever as Mona Deane.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Paul Martinetti's company of pantomimists in the graphic sketch, A Night Attack, is greeted with unstinted applause; Les Rallis are great in their acrobatic comedy sketch; the Eight Sunrays sing and dance their way into favour; Albert Lee Fre is an excellent comedian; Daisy Dormer sings coon ditties to perfection; Bert Byrne, comedian, is much liked; Bosanquet, violin virtuoso, has a good reception; and Mlle. Haydee's miniature theatre is enjoyable.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The Karno Troupe of comedians opened here on Monday, appearing in Mumming Birds and Early Birds. Mr. Charles Denion proves himself a smart comedian; the Milton Comedy Duo are very good; Lincoln and Warren, cyclists, give a clever turn; the Sisters Lavender, dancers, give a pretty and refined performance; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian, is well received; and Lillie Stuart, comedienne and dancer, completes an excellent programme.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's principal company is here this week in The Conscript and The Branded Woman. In the former, which was played on the night of our visit, Mr. Cowell Clarke gives a capital rendering of Ivan Manloff; Mr. Walter Steele is capable as the villain, Paul Hardisti; as also is Mr. H. Creagh Hunt as Karl Truevitch. As Tretch Trotoff, Mr. Harry Liddle supplies good comedy, being well supported by Miss Isabel Hunt as Wanda. Mr. Edward Lowrie and Mr. Wybert Clive both do well as Doggervitch and Maxim Fredka respectively; Nadia Truevitch is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Florence M. Daly; Miss Maud Elliott makes a good Dame Katinka; and as Little Karl, Miss Cissie Reenan is pleasing.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Langley Wyatt.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and full West End company are here with The Lady of Ostend. As the French Baron, Mr. Brough has a part that fits him like the proverbial glove, and does it and himself infinite credit. Mr. Percy Marshall is in every way excellent as Joseph Carbury; and Mr. Henry Hampson could not be improved upon as Dick Whortles. The name-rôle is played engagingly by Miss Marian Ripley, and Miss Kate Milford is a charming Dorothy, Miss Bessie Harrison doing thoroughly well as the mother-in-law. Mr. Watkin Wynne is capital as Toby Krockitt, and Miss E. Eiley Boyne appears to advantage in a minor part. The lever de rideau is At the Risin' of the Moon. Mr. Percy Marshall is highly praiseworthy as Barry O'Blane, and Miss E. Eiley Boyne makes a delightful Norah. Other parts are carefully filled by Mr. Reginald A. Hunt and Mr. Rupert Harvey.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Dora Lyric's up-to-date repertoire of tuneful songs is warmly appreciated; a comedy sketch, Aunt Matilda, submitted by Frank Elliston and Co., causes roars of genuine laughter; the Katos, living marionettes, provide a highly diverting turn; the Wallenda do some very neat tricks on parallel bars; John Henry, a Welsh basso, sings in fine style; the Sisters Selwyn are vivacious in song and dance; and Lilian Rigby proves herself a talented musical artist. The Bioscope continues to maintain its popular character.

DEVONPORT.—Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—East Lynne is being played here by a fine company under the management of Messrs. H. Armitage and A. Beaumont. Miss Julie Kennard gives a most laudable rendering of Lady Isabel; Mr. Alfred Beaumont is quite at home in the part of Archibald Carlyle; Mr. Frederick Marker submits an accurate study of Francis Levison; Miss E. Hardacre is a creditable Cornelia Carlyle; and Mr. Harry Rutland impersonates Richard Hare.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Frank Bateman Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. Stuart Lomath, has made a successful appearance in No Wedding Bells for Her. Mr. Lomath himself undertakes the part of Frank Hatherleigh, and gives a powerful delineation of muscular Christianity; Mr. Percy Shaw is exceptionally smart as Dick Delver; and Mr. Frederick Carton is happy in his portrayal of Montague Blair; Harold Trevelyn loses nothing by being assigned to Mr. P. Beresford; and Mr. George Herbert, as Horatio Fane, an old actor, is convincing. Mr. Will Skelton secures warm recognition as Simkins, a nondescript; a good impression is created by Mr. Frank Davies as a mad actor, and the Adonis Tightfist of Mr. Fred Vaughan is submitted with a fine artistic appreciation. Miss Dora Pass is charming as Doris Fane, Miss Bessie Franks is admirable as Peggy, and Miss Patty Alberry's treatment of Mrs. Eastman is excellent. The part of Lola Delaspierre presents no difficulties to Miss Lizzie Montague, who is applauded to the echo.

DOVER.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatre, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—The chief attraction here is Faust, an excellent sketch played with success by Miss Josephe Calona, Mr. Arthur St. John, and company. The Almos, lightning equilibrists and tumblers, perform many smart feats; and Beattie Kent proves herself a charming comedienne. Hearty applause is earned by Tom Collins, who gives a couple of capital songs with appropriately topical verses; and Lang and Beal are clever musical artists. Miss Colona's company also appears in the second house in a farcical episode, entitled O'Callaghan's Luck; and in the early house Mr. A. Welham (a Dover vocalist), Miss Jessie Licence (a youthful soprano), assisted by Miss Lily Lingard (a capable and experienced artist), contribute an original sketch called The Little Peacemaker. Raymond's Bio-tableaux has as usual some most interesting and amusing pictures.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Lessees, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Holt; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Chas. R. Standfield.—At the top of an excellent bill is Valvero, a lightning painter, who astonishes everyone with the rapidity and excellence of his pictures. A good musical act, entitled Tommy Atkins at Play, is contributed by Horace Monto; the illustrations add much to the success of Cissy Coman's well-rendered songs; and a really fine turn is given by Joe and Jim Ralston; Laurie Wallis, national and skipping-rope dancer, is an expert; a good deal of fun is derived from the amusing patter of Sam Redfern, negro comedian; the mannerisms of the coster are faithfully copied by Will Bacchus; and the "Pork Butcher's Nightmare" and "The Yawner" on Raymond's bio-tableaux complete the programme.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The amusing comedy, All-of-a-Sudden Peggy has been heartily enjoyed and warmly appreciated by good audiences this week. It is played by Messrs. Glenister and Wood Ingram's company. Mr. Frank G. Bayly gave a particularly good reading of the part of Lord Crackenthorpe, and the Hon. Jimmy Keppel was capitally represented by Mr. Lionel Glenister; a decided success was made by Miss Decima Moore in her effective portrayal of Peggy; Mr. R. Henderson Bland displayed his abilities cleverly in the character of Major Phipps, and as Jack Menzies Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson sustained his part creditably. Miss Kate Wingfield was a dignified Lady Crackenthorpe, and Miss Eva Lonsdale as the Hon. Millicent Keppel and Miss Estelle Despa as the Hon. Mrs. Colquhoun were both good in their respective rôles; Miss Naomi Neilson submitted a clever impersonation of Mrs. O'Mara; Mr. Harry Phillips as the Footman Parker, and Mr. Patrick Fitzgerald as Lucas were also good. A dramatic episode, The Lady Who Dwelt in the Dark, preceded, and was well received.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—In an excellent programme the chief item is George Gray and company in The Fighting Prason; the Emerald Gems, in character songs and dances, delighted the audience, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden in their comedy duologue, Two to One, meet with well-merited success; Stevens and Rennior are a capital pair of comedians and dancers, and Fred Fane, actor-vocalist, has several taking songs; Forest and King are a smart pair of comedy artists, and the musical turn contributed by Stave is cordially approved. A gratifying reception is given to the Two Dixons, bâton swingers and song and dance artists, and Allan Hanbury is a comedian who hits the mark. The Empire Pictures are also interesting.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Peter Pan, which finishes here to-night, has had a most successful three weeks' run. Miss Pauline Chase as Peter Pan and Miss Hilda Trevelyan as Wendy have become most popular with their charming performances. Captain Hook (Mr. Loring Fernie) and the Pirates Smee (Mr. George Shelton) and Gentleman Starkie (Mr. Charles Trevor) continue to give much amusement in their respective rôles, and Miss Mary Mayfren is again worthy of mention as Mrs. Darling.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy. — An excellent variety combination provides the amusement here this week. The leading turn is by Sims and Sims, musical comedians; Weiland, comedy juggler, assisted by Mlle. Carlotta, perform some clever and amusing feats; an engaging turn is contributed by Winifred and Lang, lady duettists and dancers; the vocal items of Edie Gray and Boys are well received; Maude Cherry, comedienne, has a good style; Columba Trio, comedy vocalists, score a hit, as does also George Prince, the crazy comic; Morton and Roberts, comedians, are going strong, and Roy Ralston, baritone vocalist, is popular. The Bioscope exhibits some new pictures.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The company engaged here includes Prof. and Mme. Elba, second sight artists; Ted Warner, comedian and dancer; Ethel Mackey, soprano vocalist; and George Mack, comedian. The new cinematograph is an additional attraction.

Samuels' Exhibition Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Howard.—The following artists are appearing here:—The Raymonds, in their original acts, Serial Stories and The Lady and the Pupil; Harry May, eccentric comedian; Ida Bernard, vocalist and dancer; Allen and Hall, patter comedians; and Percy Harris, comedian and dancer.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—What the Butler Saw has had a particularly favourable reception here. Miss Ada Blanche as Mrs. Barrington acts with charming archness and a humour that is simply irresistible; Mr. Lionel Rignold's embodiment of the butler, Pink, delights the audience; Mr. Charles Fawcett acts Jack Barrington in a thoroughly clever and artistic manner; another excellently played part is that of Sir Charles Foden by Mr. Louis Lingard; the Misses Clarissa and Selina Dunlop are characters vivaciously filled by Miss Jenny Wigney and Miss Dorothy Hart; and Miss May Hart displays good abilities as the young Sophonisba Hake. Mr. Victor Widdicombe causes much amusement as the fiery General Dunlop; Mr. Leo St. Clair combines effective stage-management with a well-played part as Sydney Clifford.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Peberdy.—The principal attraction here this week is the amusing sketch, entitled Duck Hunting, cleverly rendered by Arthur Aiston and company. Another popular turn is that of Mlle. De Rose, lady baritone vocalist, who is in great request; Mabel Mavis is skilful as a glassophone soloist; J. H. Hawtrey has some capital songs; Kendrick and Laura, the society pair, give an enjoyable turn; Clara Sefton, comedienne, and Harry Desmond, character comedian, also obtain a good reception.
